Noted speaker to discuss 'coming out'

By WENDY SUTO
The BG News

Chasity Bono always felt she was different as a child. She looked at other girls her age and felt confused about their interest in boys and fashion trends. At the age of 13, Bono discovered a name that explained why she was different. She realized she was gay. Officially Bono came out to her parents at 18.

Bono will be visiting the University in celebration of Women's History Month Monday, Mar. 22 to speak about coming out as a lesbian. She is touring nationwide to give talks about her book.

"Family Outing," is a book written by Bono in 1998 which gives personal accounts of the coming-out process from the perspective of several gays/lesbians and their families, including her parents, Sonny and Cher. This book provides her parents' reactions. It also explains how difficult it may be for young adults to come out of the closet, and how powerful the experience may be for them.

Mary Krueger, the director of the Women's Center, said Bono was suggested among other candidates to speak at the University.

"We wanted to make sure lesbian issues were included in Women's History Month," Krueger said. "It's all about diversity."

With her parents' blessing, Bono publicly came out in 1995, five years after a tabloid newspaper printed a story about her being a lesbian when only a few friends and family members knew.

Formerly Bono was the entertainment media director of the Gay and Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation. She also was writer-at-large at The Advocate from 1995-1996. She became the National Coming Out spokesperson for the Human Rights Campaign, the nation's largest gay and lesbian political organization in 1996. Currently she lives in Los Angeles.

Bono and her agent were very receptive to coming to the University to talk about her book and experiences, according to Krueger. She said Bono enjoys speaking to young adults.

"I think families are very important, and coming to college is often a crucial time for homosexuals," Krueger said. "When they have healthy relationships, their lives are more competent and tend to be more successful."

Jessica Teaman, a junior psychology and sociology major, is the secretary for VISION and hopes students will get a better understanding of what it is like to come out.

"It was very important for Bono to come out to her family, just as it is important for students to be honest with their families," Teaman said. "I hope she will inspire me and that I will learn more about the coming-out process."

Everyone is invited to hear Bono talk about the media's representation and reporting of gay issues in "Media Watch" from 2:30-5 p.m. today at the Women's Center in 107 Hanna Hall.

Bono will also be speaking in the Lenhart ballroom at 7 p.m. Monday, Mar. 22. A book signing and a reception will be held following her presentation at the Women's Center. It is free and is

New athletic director welcomed

Paul Krebs plans to make athletics competitive, scholastic, economical

By TOD McCLOSKEY
and VINCE GUERRIERI

The BG News

New athletic director Paul Krebs is the key to providing an athletic department that is academically sound, athletically competitive and fiscally viable, according to University President Sidney Ribeau.

Ribeau, who introduced Krebs at a press conference Thursday in the Miletic Alumni Center, said the field of athletics is turning into a big business, the best candidate for athletic director is someone with business experience.

"[Sports] is a business," Ribeau said. "It's a business with a bottom line. It's a business that is required to balance a budget in a rapidly changing environment."

Krebs, who received his bachelor's degree in business from the University in 1978, will start in his new position Apr. 12. He already has ideas for bringing the University into the black.

"I think there are a lot of opportunities to take advantage of," he said.

Krebs is particularly interested in increasing fundraising, which he calls one of the keys to trying to erase the athletic department's $1.5 million deficit.

University President Sydney Ribeau greets new athletic director Paul Krebs at a press conference Thursday morning.

He declined to set a timeline to bring the athletic department out of debt.

"I would not put a number on it," he said. "It's an evolutionary process."

Previously, Ribeau said he would like to see the deficit reduced in five to seven years.

Krebs declined to say if sports will have to be cut to bring the athletic department out of debt.

Krebs praised his predecessor, who had one of the highest graduation rates for student-athletes.

"I'm extremely impressed with the job Ron Zwierlein and the coaches have done, and we certainly want to continue that fine job graduating our student-athletes and making them productive members of society," Krebs said.

But while Krebs encourages setting goals, he will let the coaches set their own disciplinary policies.

"I don't believe in setting a blanket policy," Krebs said.

Krebs is anxious to tackle the challenge of a new position, particularly this one.

"I've spent the last 20 years of my career hoping for this opportunity to be a college athletic director," Krebs said. "And being appointed athletic director at my alma mater of Bowling Green State University makes it extra special."

University drops Art Therapy program

Curriculum lost due to low staff, lack of cohesiveness

By AMYJO L. BROWN
The BG News

Art therapy will no longer be an undergraduate program at the University due to limited resources.

The program will be phased out over the next three years.

The College of Health and Human Services and the School of Art, who shared the responsibilities for maintaining the program, decided that the program could not continue as it was.

"Art therapy was housed in two different colleges which created problems," said Clyde Willis, dean of the College of Health and Human Services. "It was not a good arrangement."

Additionally the program had no full-time faculty members. One temporary professor is currently teaching the courses.

Students in the program will be able to finish requirements for their art therapy degree.

"We're not closing shop tomorrow," Willis said. "We're making a three year commitment."

While students who are currently in the program will be able to finish their classes and obtain their degree, no new students will be accepted. Twenty high school students had expressed interest in the art therapy major, however, they will receive notice that the program is no longer available.

"It's too bad that it has to be taken away," said Jennifer Fetterman, a senior art therapy major. "Not a lot of universities offer this major, and I talked to a lot of students who were interested in coming to BG for art therapy."

Willis said the art therapy program had a lot of interest and had a good number of students participating. Eighty-four students are currently taking classes for art therapy, and at least 20 students admitted to the University had expressed a desire to major in art therapy.

Art therapy is a new method of dealing with health-related problems. Through the use of art, therapists can treat patients who may be emotionally disturbed, handicapped or substance abusers.

"There are many different ways to look at art therapy. It's used as a healing process. It helps people feel more confident when they can create something," Fetterman said.

Fetterman was not surprised to hear that the University would no longer offer art therapy.

Public speaker Steve Sawyer loses fight with AIDS virus

The BG News

23-year-old Steve Sawyer died of cirrhosis of the liver, a complication of the AIDS virus on Saturday, Mar. 13, at 11:30 a.m.

He was scheduled to speak at the University Feb. 26 to spread his message of "Finding Hope Through Suffering." However, due to failing health and hospitalization he was unable to make the trip.

Sawyer died in his home surrounded by his family. It had been determined earlier in the week that the doctors could do no more for him. Sawyer was unhooked from the machines keeping him alive and was moved home, according to Michael Brown, director of Campus Crusade for Christ.

Steve Sawyer died Mar. 13, 1999. He was 23.

To prolong his life, a shunt, which helps for 30 days, was installed to help his liver function. The idea for the shunt was Sawyer's. The Campus Crusade for Christ Productions had been documenting Sawyer's life for some time and Sawyer wanted the shunt installed so that they could get some more footage of his life.

editorial

"A study commissioned by the White House concluded Wednesday that marijuana can be effective medicine in treating chronic pain, nausea and AIDS-related weight loss," reads the first sentence of a front page article in the Thursday, Mar. 18 edition of USA Today.

So why is it our nation's drug czar, Barry McCaffrey, still refuses to recognize marijuana as a viable medical option?

Perhaps he never wanted the study performed in the first place. Well, this is obviously not so, since the report was actually commissioned by him.

Maybe it didn't put enough resources into finding the real facts. Seeing as how 18 months and nearly $900,000 were invested in this, that doesn't seem likely either.

Well, it's possible that the researchers weren't quite competent. Maybe they were part of some backluster group with a "pot agenda." Once again, this seems false, being that the investigators were affiliated with the Institute of Medicine, an arm of the National Academy of Sciences, "one of the nation's most prestigious scientific research organizations."

The study wasn't entirely in favor of marijuana use either. It noted that harm can be found in smoking it, that its use for glaucoma and migraine headaches isn't supported by the facts and that there should still, nevertheless, be more research before any kind of further implementation besides short-term use of marijuana for medicinal purposes.

As a supplier of simple facts and news, The BG News finds it sad when those in our own government choose to ignore truth and instead cover it up with more lies and mistruths.

After Wednesday's report, it has now become crystal clear to anyone with a brain that our nation's government will continue to ignore any positive aspects to marijuana and insist on perpetrating the image that all marijuana users are criminals and rejects deserving of society's disapproval.

What do you think about marijuana? Given recent scientific reports on its use, do our nation's laws make sense? Let us know at bgnews@bgnnet.bgsu.edu or if you don't trust our e-mail, bring your letter to 210 West Hall.

Letters to the Editor policy

Do you agree with all of this? The BG News encourages all student, faculty, administrative and local input from any and all people who have a strong opinion. The BG News will not discriminate upon letters solely based on a person's opinion. We offer two avenues to people wishing to express his or her opinion.

■ Letters to the Editor. Letters are to be less than 500 words (less than two typed, double-spaced pages). These are usually in response to a current issue on the BGSU campus or Bowling Green area.

■ Guest Columns. Longer pieces (between 600-800 words) can be submitted as Guest Columns. Guest columns will be subject to space limitations and considered based on topic relevance and quality.

Anonymous letters are not encouraged. The News will not print any letter or Guest column without being able to verify the author. This will be accomplished only if the author submits his or her name, academic major and year, phone number and/or e-mail address. The News will consider printing a letter or column as anonymous only under specific situations in which the author may have valid reasons to remain anonymous.

To submit a Guest Column or Letter, bring a written copy to 210 West Hall and leave it in the Opinion Editor's mailbox. Or, send it on e-mail to bgnews@bgnnet.bgsu.edu and give it the subject, "Letter to the Editor".

Space limitations may prevent The News from printing all letters received. The News reserves the right to edit any and all letters. The Editorial Board acknowledges all entries submitted for publication.

Yankee Clipper remembered

"All the great men are dying and I don't feel so good myself."
--Mark Twain

I was in Orlando on Spring Break when I heard.

Joe DiMaggio, "The Yankee Clipper," "Joltin' Joe," the man who had been voted the greatest living ballplayer, had died.

It bothered me more than it should have. I never saw Joe D. patrol center field in Yankee Stadium, or anywhere else, for that matter. I never knew him personally.

But I felt like I did.

I am a third generation American. As I grew up, I had a very distinct sense of my background. We ate spaghetti and meatballs. On Christmas we had fish, shrimp, squid and more cookies and pastries than my WASP friends could ever imagine.

As I was growing up, very proud of my Italian heritage, there were three people who represented Italian-Americans: my grandfather, Frank Sinatra and Joe DiMaggio.

I love baseball. My father's sport is basketball, but he enjoys the American Pastime as well. My grandparents were Indians fans, too. Grandma and Charlie yelled and screamed when the Indians made the World Series in 1995, and both were passionate

Rejecting racist man undermines Constitution

It turns out that America, land of the free, isn't so free after all.

Just ask Matthew Hale of East Peoria, Ill.

After completing law school and passing the state bar, Hale was denied his license to practice law. The reason? Matthew Hale is a racist.

Leading a white supremacy organization, the Church of the World Creator, the self-proclaimed "Reverend" Hale preaches racist and anti-Semitic doctrine through editorials and postings on his web site.

His fate as a lawyer was decided by a three-member panel that evaluates the character of hopeful lawyers. Two of the three found Hale's beliefs too dangerous to allow him to practice law, giving them the majority needed to prevent Hale from becoming a lawyer.

Explaining why Hale was denied his license, the panel wrote, "Under any civilized standards of decency, the incitement of racial hatred for the ultimate purpose of depriving selected groups of their legal rights shows a gross deficiency in moral character, particularly for lawyers who have a special responsibility to uphold the rule of law for all persons."

Vince Guerrieri

Yankee-haters.

But they, like many others of their age and background, had a soft spot for DiMaggio and many of the other Yankees of Italian descent: Frank Crosetti, Tony Lazzeri, Yogi Berra. My grandparents rooted for them, and other Italian baseball players, because they were them. They were all children of immigrants looking for a better life.

Joe DiMaggio stood head and shoulders above everyone else, Italian or not. His grace, style and talent that made him an idol to youths everywhere made him a hero to first-generation Americans who, like DiMaggio, lacked formal schooling but worked doggedly to make their lives better than their parents, and their children's lives better than their own.

Italian-Americans also looked up to a saloon singer from Hoboken, N.J. To anyone with any Italian blood, Frank Sinatra's music is heaven.

My grandfather sang in the shower, old Italian songs that I never learned. He died before I could. He was the first of the three to go. It wasn't more than a month after we sat down on opposite ends of the state and watched Frank Sinatra's 80th birthday.

He died the night after Grandma's 70th birthday. He saw his grandchildren one last time before he went to sleep. Nat King Cole was playing in his tape deck by his bed. It wasn't Sinatra, but it was almost as good.

That year, the Yankees won the World Series. I growled and grimaced as my brother the Yankees fan reveled in it (he must be the milkman's kid). However, I did muster a smile for Yankees manager Joe Torre. He's one of us.

I began to cultivate an appreciation for Frank Sinatra, thanks to the tapes I inherited from my grandfather. My friends smiled and humored me when I said, "It's Frank's World. We just live in it."

Shortly after summer break started last year, I was getting ready for work when my mother came downstairs.

"Did you see the news," she asked.

"No," I said.

"Frank Sinatra died."

I wore black to work that day. I made a five-hour drive that weekend from Youngstown to Dayton. I listened to the Chairman all the way down.

And now Joe DiMaggio is dead. His life has been reduced to a series of numbers: 361 home runs, a phenomenal 56-game hitting streak, 10 world championships.

Others try to paint him as a popular icon. From his marriage to Marilyn Monroe to Paul Simon's paean to him in "Mrs. Robinson."

DiMaggio was like Frank Sinatra. Both were like my grandfather: sons of Italian immigrants who dropped out of high school and made a better life. All died surrounded by those who loved them.

It's a happy ending for a singer-actor and a baseball player. Not bad for a manual laborer, either.

I feel blessed now more than ever because I, a history major, am coming to understand my own history.

Vince Guerrieri is the wire editor for the BG News. He can be reached at idorawildcat@yahoo.com

In other words, years of hard work can become null and void if your opinions clash with those of certain people.

The irony of the panel's decision is as thick as their rhetoric. They said it themselves: "Depriving selected groups of their legal rights shows a gross deficiency in moral character."

That's exactly what they did to Hale. To use their own words against them: the panel has deprived racists their legal rights, which shows a gross deficiency in the panel's character. This is a direct blow to the First Amendment.

America is based on a free market of ideas, which protects the most vile and grotesque of beliefs as well as the most noble. What's noble and what's grotesque is not to be decided by any individual - or any three-member panel. The point of free speech is to give every voice in the country a chance to be heard. More often than not, only the most reasonable voices will be accepted by the masses.

By not allowing Hale to practice law, the panel not only attacked freedom of speech, they attacked freedom of choice. Don't the people of this country have the right to be represented by a bigot if they choose to be?

Who are these panel members and what gives them the authority to decide if views are dangerous or not? Hale is an open racist. He admits it and he practices what he preaches. That's far less dangerous than others who hide their agendas by pretending to be objective.

Whether what Hale preaches is right is not the issue at hand. Banning someone from an occupation because he or she has unpopular ideas is a fierce blow to the intentions of our founding fathers.

America fought a revolution to lift itself from an oppressive government. Here we are, more than 220 years later, running blindly toward the past.

If Matthew Hale is unable to have this decision turned around, we are in grave danger of traveling further down the slippery slope of legal precedence. These rulings will eventually lead to self-censorship in which people will hold their views to themselves - turning the market of free ideas into a garage sale of popular opinions.

It will only be a matter of time before individuals with unpopular beliefs on capital punishment, abortion, school prayer or other topics will fall victim to the swinging ax of groups like the "character and fitness" panel.

The brutal reality of the First Amendment is that it is often used to defend the most horrid views and horrific actions. What a small price to pay for the right to speak your mind to anyone at any time.

Matthew Hale has the right to practice law. It's ridiculous for a group of people to decide what are and what aren't favorable characteristics. Give people a chance to make up their own minds and make their own decisions.

We're not as dumb as they think.

COLLEGE = COLLAGES = HAIKUS

College is, in itself, the art of collage. The university is a collage of many different kinds of people together in one place. The classroom is a collage of students with a myriad of ideals and goals. The dormitory room is a collage of a multitude of useless textbooks, old shirts, and junk food in various states of decay. The papers one writes are collages of information culled from all sorts of resources. And the artwork created by students - be it literary, visual, or musical - is a collage of media and styles.

We have here today a collage of words forming haikus, one of the wackiest and best forms of poetry.

The Art of the Haiku:

- 5 syllables first
- Seven more in the next line
- Five in the last line.

Haikus are not very hard to master, and often entertaining to read. But not always.

I'm a haiku guy; our innermost feelings.
I write haikus when I can Haikus do not rhyme. Zip, Pow, Yowee, Whack.
Ack. Ka-Boom, Vroom vroom vroom vroom.
Bang Zoom to the Yort!
Of course, sometimes our innermost feelings sound goofy when you put 'em in print. Especially if your feelings have anything to do with comics.
Where do I write these?
It seems I've run out of room.
That makes this one last.
Most importantly, haikus are a way to express yourself and your collage of ideas creatively. And chicks really dig it when you're counting out syllables on your fingers.
And sometimes, a haiku can express special thanks to Dave Carey

U of M students protest against factories

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Students protesting possible sweat-shop conditions in factories that make University of Michigan-licensed apparel continued their sit-in today at the school president's offices after meeting with him.

About 30 students carrying sleeping bags and food began the sit-in Wednesday morning and met with school President Lee Bollinger by evening.

"I am trying to figure out the most constructive way to resolve this issue," Bollinger said. "We're developing a position and we're trying to make sure human rights are protected."

Michigan leads the $2.5 billion-a-year licensed collegiate apparel business. It is the top seller for the Collegiate Licensing Co., which licenses products for more than 170 colleges. Michigan makes $5 million a year in licensing royalties, school spokesman Joel Seguine said.

"When I say that I am from the University of Michigan, I don't want to be associated with blood," said sophomore protester Jason Keydel of Detroit.

A key unresolved student demand is that manufacturers agree to pay their workers a living wage. Seguine said the university agreed in principle but the two sides had not agreed on how to define a living wage.

Last week the university agreed to require licensed-apparel makers to reveal their plant locations — the second school to do so after the University of Wisconsin. Knowing the locations is essential in seeing that the plants pay sufficient wages, provide safe conditions and do not exploit child labor, protest organizers say.

The protest follows similar demonstrations at other campuses across the nation.

A health official sprays insecticide Thursday, Mar. 18 to drive off mosquitos likely to be infected with the Japanese Encephalitis virus, which has killed nearly 50 Malaysians since October in Sungai Nipah village.

Malaysia kills 64,000 pigs to prevent death by virus

The Associated Press

BUKIT PELANDUK, Malaysia — Malaysia ordered the extermination of 64,000 pigs Thursday to prevent more deaths from Japanese encephalitis, a virus that has killed 50 people since October, many in recent weeks.

The government sent 1,400 soldiers and police officers to carry out its orders in the area where the deaths have occurred, a cluster of hog-farming villages

60 miles southeast of the capital, Kuala Lumpur.

Hundreds of villagers have fled their homes, fearing infection from the virus, which is transmitted from pigs to humans by mosquitoes that thrive in swamps and open drains. The disease attacks the brain and causes high fever, muscle and back aches, vomiting and eventual coma.

"Our mandate is very clear. It is to save human lives," Health Minister Chua Jui Meng told a news conference.

"At dusk the whole area is empty. That's when the mosquitoes come out," said Piam, a 35-year-old farmer who identified himself by just one name.

Nearby, a dozen health officials and volunteers wearing high boots, masks and overalls, sprayed clouds of chemicals around a huge pen of abandoned pigs, then checked the animals to see if they were infected.

A vaccine exists and the government has ordered enough for 300,000 people and 500,000 pigs.

As well as fearing for their lives, villagers worry entire hog stocks will have to be destroyed.

"I just want to know how this virus came here. Where is the government help?" said Piam, leaning on his motorcycle next to Sungai Nipah's red-and-gold Chinese temple. "I too may have to leave tomorrow. But who will feed my pigs?"

New addition flies into BG

12-year gymnast Marny Oestreng helps Falcon program soar to new heights

By MATTHEW P. LYONS
The BG News

From the first time you watch one of her routines, no matter if it is on bars or floor, you know you are watching an Olympic class gymnast. Forget the Atlanta games in 1996, we have Marny Oestreng in 1999.

As soon as her name is announced a cheer rises from the crowd. They are about to see the 1998 Scandinavian gymnastics champion in action. She is well known in gymnastic circles in all of Scandinavia, winning the Norwegian Championship in the junior division from 1992 through 1995 and the senior division from 1996 through 1998. She also finished eighteenth in the European championship in 1998.

Entering the United States did not keep her from making her mark on the Falcon record book. By the end of the meet against Western Michigan on Jan. 23, she had replaced all of BG's individual records with her own scores.

Oestreng had paid her dues in the gym to reach this level. She has 12 years of gymnastics training behind her. She got her start by watching. Every afternoon she would accompany her older sister to the gym and watch her train as her mother coached.

In her first collegiate meet ever, against Illinois-Chicago, she set three new school records. The all-around record had been set by Karen Jordan during the 1996 season. Current teammate Leslie Malucci set the uneven bars record of 9.8 during the 1998 season. Marny replaced that score with a 9.875. Senior Jackie Haft relinquished her vault record from the 1998 season to Marny as well.

Her second meet in college, and her first in the Mid-American Conference, saw another record relinquished and one of her own reset. Erin Klingenberg gave up her floor exercise record and Marny also outdid herself by bettering her uneven bars record to a 9.95.

Oestreng's first home meet brought yet another record under her name. She put herself in a tie for the balance beam record with Heather Ferguson. Marny would later capture that record on Feb. 6 in Denver with a 9.875. The first home meet against Ohio State also saw her improve the all-around record to 39.375.

In the meets to come she would improve the vault, uneven bars, balance beam, floor exercise, and all-around records to their current marks. Marny is also making waves at higher levels. Her scores are currently first in the conference in every event. She is no lower than sixth in the region and is seventh in the country. The 2000 Olympic games in Sydney, Australia may be in the future for Marny. She will begin the qualification process in October.

Oestreng is part of direct turn around for the gymnastic program.

"Marny has helped raise the quality of the program. She has brought us up to another level," said Falcon coach Dan Connelly. The ability to adjust has been essential for Marny's success thus far. There are many differences between life in her native Norway and the United States. Marny has had to get used to some things about being a freshman, like living in the residence halls and the university food. But, there are other things as well.

"People are more open-minded," Oestreng said. "In Norway, people do not wave and say hi when they meet you on the street like they do here. In the gym, I was used to working out by myself, but now I have 20 people I work out with."

She has labeled the other girls on the team as her biggest influence to this point in her college career. Marny plans to get a college degree while taking her gymnastics as far as possible.

Assistant coach J.J. Tolhurst believes Oestreng is great for the team.

"She is a wonderful asset to the program," Tolhurst said. "She leads by example with her training and she is always positive. It is a pleasure to have her in the gym."

If her first season is any indication, she should pay huge dividends in the years to come for the Falcon gymnastics team.

Lewis questions Holyfield, asks for inquiry

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — As a new investigation began Thursday into the controversial draw between Evander Holyfield and Lennox Lewis, the British heavyweight demanded that "everything should be looked into."

A still furious Lewis returned home to London and urged Holyfield to hand over the WBA and IBF titles.

"If Evander's a man, he should admit that he got beat and give me my belts," the WBC champion said. "But he's not that kind of character."

"You could say that Evander Holyfield is holding my belts right now for me. They're actually my belts, but he's holding them."

Manhattan District Attorney Robert Morgenthau has convened a grand jury to issue subpoenas and gather testimony about Saturday's unification bout at Madison Square Garden — one of three investigations into the fight.

A New York state Senate hearing into the fight opened Thursday to focus on the judging and the relationships between the sanctioning bodies and the boxing industry.

The New York state Athletic Commission also is investigating.

One judge, South Africa's Stan Christodoulou, scored the fight 116-113 for Lewis; Eugenia Williams of Atlantic City, N.J., scored it 115-113 for Holyfield; and Britain's Larry O'Connell scored it 115-115. Most who watched the fight thought Lewis had clearly won.

With Williams' judgment in question, court officials confirmed Thursday she filed for protection from creditors under the U.S. Bankruptcy Code on Jan. 25.

Asked about it, she told the New York Post, without elaborating: "I don't know what you're talking about. They told me not to answer any more questions."

Williams has judged boxing for 10 years and works as a $39,200-a-year accounts clerk for the city.

IBF president Bob Lee, whose organization selected Williams, defended her work.

"I am sure they aren't going to find anything irregular at all," he said. "It is a subjective viewing of a fight and you can't tell these judges what to see or what not to see. All I tell them is, 'Do the best you can.'"

Lewis' manager Frank Maloney said he didn't believe bribes had been paid, but he questioned Williams' competence.

"I don't believe there was any illegal payment, they wouldn't have been that stupid," Maloney said. "They may not find money in her bank account, but there was definitely something wrong with her judging."

Soon after touching down at London's Heathrow Airport, Lewis maintained he had been the victim of a "conspiracy" and that the judges had been "incompetent."

"I think everything should be looked into," Lewis said. "There was definitely something going on, some kind of conspiracy we don't know about."

"In this particular fight the public got hurt as well ... I say Don King should apologize and definitely the judges."

"Next time I'm going to definitely bring my two judges, my own two judges," Lewis added.

Tigers top Tribe 7-5

The Associated Press

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. — Karim Garcia hit his fifth homer this spring and Juan Encarnacion tripled in two runs to lead the Detroit Tigers to a 7-5 victory over the Cleveland Indians Thursday.

Garcia hit a two-run pinch-hit homer off reliever Jerry Spradlin in the seventh inning. He has five homers and 11 RBI in just 28 spring at-bats.

Detroit scored all seven runs off relievers Dave Stevens (0-1), Ron Villone and Spradlin after Cleveland starter Jaret Wright worked four scoreless innings.

The Tigers took a 3-2 lead in the fifth when Indians center fielder Kenny Lofton dropped a fly ball off the bat of Joe Sidall and Brian Hunter followed with a double.

Villone walked three of the first four batters he faced in the sixth before Encarnacion tripled into the left-field corner, scoring two.

Tigers starter Seth Greisinger (1-0) gave up five hits over four innings, including Travis Fryman's run-scoring double.

Wright lowered his spring ERA to 2.57, allowing just two singles over four innings. Closer Mike Jackson worked the ninth and has not allowed a hit in five innings this spring.

Jim Thome, Enrique Wilson and Pat Borders had two hits each for the Indians.

Next challenge for Miami: defending champion Kentucky

The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — The Midwest Regional was supposed to feature a rematch of last year's NCAA championship game, before Miami of Ohio crashed the party.

The No. 10 seed that spoiled a Kentucky-Utah repeat Friday night is about a two-hour drive from Lexington, Ky., and light years away in terms of reputation. Coach Charlie Coles did a lot of chuckling when asked whether any of his players had also been recruited by the No. 3 seed and defending national champion.

Coles, whose school is in Oxford, Ohio, said somebody has made a big mistake if he and Kentucky coach Tubby Smith ever end up in the same place checking out prospects.

"No, huh-uh, no, huh-uh,"

Coles said. "We never really cross paths. If I see Tubby out recruiting someone, then I'm in the wrong gym. Nothing against our players, but that's just the way it is."

That even goes for tournament darling and likely NBA lottery pick Wally Szczerbiak, who has totaled 67 points in Miami's first two NCAA victories. Szczerbiak is averaging 24.3 points, 8.7 rebounds and 2.9 assists.

"I wasn't recruited by Kentucky at all," Szczerbiak said.

Miami (24-7) has tied a school record for victories and is in the round of 16 for the first time since 1978. No one outside of Oxford, Ohio can name any of the other four starters.

Everybody knows about Kentucky (27-8), which is the defending national champion and has been in the title game the last three years. The Wildcats have been to 41 NCAA tournaments, more than any other team, and this is their fifth straight appearance in the round of 16.

Kentucky also has won 17 in a row against Miami, with the last loss in 1927.

"The fact we've been here and been so successful gives us confidence," said forward Scott Padgett, who made the winning basket in Kentucky's 92-88 overtime victory over Kansas last Sunday. "At this time of the year we know what it takes to win games."

"Especially the seniors and upperclassmen, we try to pass down what we've learned."

Miami's approach is that's just history. The Mid-American Conference champions feel they belong after climbing on Szczerbiak's back for a first-round vic-

Torre's surgery appears successful

The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — The surgeon who removed Joe Torre's cancerous prostate gland Thursday believes the disease had not spread, and said the prognosis is "excellent" for the New York Yankees manager.

"It was very routine," said Dr. William Catalona, a pioneer in the detection and treatment of prostate cancer. "I think he had a very early prostate cancer and it went very smoothly."

Lab tests on the removed gland and surrounding lymph nodes won't be complete for a few days, but Catalona said, "The way it looked to the naked eye, the prognosis is excellent."

Catalona said the cancer was so small he couldn't see it even as he held the removed gland in his hand. It was diagnosed by the prostate-specific antigen (PSA) test that Catalona developed a decade ago, and confirmed by a biopsy.

Prostate cancer is the most commonly diagnosed cancer in American men and the second deadliest behind lung cancer. The walnut-sized gland is at the base of the bladder in men. Men 50 and older are most at risk.

In cases where cancer is confined to a removed prostate, the patient's prognosis is essentially as good as for a man who never had the disease, Catalona said.

Torre, 58, underwent the 2 1/2-hour surgery at Barnes-Jewish Hospital, where he was expected to remain for 3-4 days. Torre will then recuperate in Florida, said Jeff Wehling, a family friend.

Catalona pioneered a surgical technique known as nerve-sparing radical prostatectomy, which he used on Torre. The procedure generally results in fewer problems than conventional prostate surgery, which can cause impotence.

Catalona said there appeared to be very little damage to the nerves surrounding Torre's prostate.

Torre's wife, Ali, was "ecstatic" after learning about the successful surgery, Wehling said. She then called family members and acquaintances, including Yankees owner George Steinbrenner.

Catalona said Torre seemed at ease before the surgery, talking baseball and joking with doctors.

"He was very upbeat, cracking a lot of jokes — he was really very amusing," Catalona said. "I can see now why everybody likes him so much."

tory over No. 7 seed Washington — he scored 43 of the 59 points — and then beating No. 2 seed Utah despite only 24 from Szczerbiak.

"People think Miami has gotten to the sweet 16, they'll be OK, they won't be sad, they'll be satisfied," Coles said. "I guarantee you if we don't win, there won't be a dry eye in the place."

Szczerbiak certainly isn't in awe of Kentucky.

"No one believed we could get this far but ourselves," Szczerbiak said. "The aura Kentucky has, it's really no different from the aura Utah had."

Kentucky's major strength is a bottomless bench. Four players average in double figures, led by Padgett's 12.5-point average.

and Smith routinely substitutes for the entire starting five after the first four or five minutes.

Morris back on Cincinnati

The Associated Press

SARASOTA, Fla. — They say you can never go back home. That isn't the case for Hal Morris, even though it's true he has returned to the Cincinnati Reds as the backup first baseman, rather than the starter he once was.

Morris, 33, played eight seasons with Cincinnati before going to Kansas City as a free agent last year, where he batted .309 in 127 games for the Royals. But he had just one home run in 472 at-bats.

He returned to Cincinnati as a free agent during the off-season. But he is envisioned as a veteran backup for Sean Casey, a former Cleveland Indians prospect the Reds obtained in a trade just prior to the 1998 season.

Morris was told what his role with the Reds will be this season. But he is confident he still can be an everyday player. He has a career .306 major-league batting average.

"I was brought in to back up Sean, fill-in, whatever," Morris said. "That, though, says nothing about my opinion of myself. I still feel I can be an everyday player."

His free-agent season in Cincinnati was 1997. That year, shoulder problems landed him twice on the disabled list, limiting him to 96 games and dipping his batting average to a career-low .276.

Purnell to coach World University Games team

The Associated Press

DAYTON — University of Dayton Coach Oliver Purnell has been named head coach of the USA Basketball Men's World University Games team, officials announced Thursday.

"It's truly an honor to represent my country in the great sport of basketball," said Purnell, last year's Atlantic 10 coach of the year. "I'm looking forward to working with our nation's best college players this summer."

The World University Games will be held in July in Palma de Mallorca, Spain. They are open to players between the ages of 17 and 28 who are, or have been within the past year, students at colleges or universities.

Finalists for the team will be selected after team trials this May at the U.S. Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs, Colo.

"It will be comprised of the top collegians," said USA Basketball spokesman Craig Miller.

Purnell's selection is subject to approval by the U.S. Olympic Committee.

In five seasons with the Flyers, Purnell has compiled a 67-77 record.

In the 1997-98 season, Dayton finished 21-12 and appeared in the NIT. Prior to coming to Dayton, Purnell was head coach at Old Dominion and Radford.

Raterman earns national honors

Bowling Green State University senior Jacki Raterman became only the fourth member of the women's basketball team to receive a national academic award. Raterman was named to the GTE academic All-America third team.

Raterman on-the-court efforts included averaging 20.8 points per game and finished the season with 360 points. In the classroom, she holds a 3.66 cumulative grade point average as a mathematics major.

Lowery rises above ashes to get into Bay Hill contention

The Associated Press

ORLANDO — The easy part for Steve Lowery was his 5-under 67 that left him one stroke out of the lead in the first round of the Bay Hill Invitational.

The challenge was keeping his blinders on as he walked down the fourth fairway, past his charred and crumbled 5,000-square-foot-home that burned to the ground two weeks ago.

"I made a conscious effort going up No. 4 just to not even look over there," said Lowery, who finished one stroke back of Tim Herron. "It is tough going by there, but we are putting that behind us. I'm just really glad I was able to focus all the way through 18 today."

Not that it was easy. Walking off the third green after Lowery converted the first of six birdies on the day, Colin Montgomerie asked, "Don't you live around here?"

"I said, 'Yeah, my house burned down two weeks ago,'" Lowery said. "He took a look at it and said, 'Well, you'll rebuild it better than it was before.'"

Maybe Montgomerie knew what he was talking about.

"With three more 67s, he'll be able to buy him a new one," Montgomerie said.

On a warm and windless day,

Herron had a stretch of four straight birdies and took only 24 putts for his round of 66.

"I didn't miss too many," he said.

Dicky Pride, a Bay Hill member who got in on a last-minute sponsor's exemption, was at 68, followed by a large group at 69 that included Honda Classic winner Vijay Singh, Justin Leonard, Tom Lehman and Davis Love III.

Defending champion Ernie Els was at 74, and he wasn't alone. Tiger Woods took a double bogey on the par-5 sixth hole and Mark O'Meara hit three balls in the water to join him at 2-over. Tom Watson had two 8s on his card for an 80.

A member of the Bay Hill Club since 1986, a resident on Arnold Palmer's course since 1990, Lowery discovered that the best way to put the fire out of his mind was to put together his best round of the year.

The 67 was his best score in 31 trips around Bay Hill under tournament conditions.

"I hope that it helps put the fire behind me," he said. "I want to be in here because I'm playing good golf, not because of my problems that have happened."

The problems started Feb. 28 when the fire broke out in the attic of his $500,000 home.

DeNiro-Crystal combo proves dynamite

By ERIK PEPPLÉ
The BG News

For anyone familiar with Robert DeNiro's body of work it should come as no surprise that he is exquisitely adept at comedy. His turns in the underrated classic "Midnight Run" and the rightfully lambasted "We're No Angels" prove that he has Swiss clock comic timing. With "Analyze This," the story of a mob boss and his therapist, DeNiro takes much felicity in sending up his screen image as a characteristically intense gangster.

What makes DeNiro's performance as anxiety-ridden mafioso Paul Vitti so special is that he plays it just as seriously and intensely as he would if he were in a Scorsese mob picture. His deadpan demeanor and threatening exterior (the very presence of this man implies that something bad is about to go down) work marvelously with the absurd situations he is placed in.

DeNiro's performance is akin to Marlon Brando's work in another funny mob comedy, "The Freshman." But unlike Brando's fine, if superficial, work in that film (this was before he ballooned into a Big Mac-quaffing human zeppelin), DeNiro takes the opportunity to add shading and depth to what could easily have been yet another gangsterlike cipher.

Take, for instance, the scene where DeNiro has his first significant emotional breakthrough. By his side are his perpetually dyspeptic shrink (Billy Crystal) and Vitti's devoted henchmen. Coming for him are a group of rival mobsters intent on whacking Vitti. Amidst a hail of bullets, DeNiro breaks down in the arms of Crystal wailing about his dead father.

At first DeNiro seems to be going for tears, but slowly and surely as the chaos unfolds around him, his emotional outpouring begins to build into an operatic frenzy of absurdity. DeNiro takes the time to make his character more than a tough guy. He's a tough guy with problems and is doing his damndest to make sure the chinks in his emotional armor go unnoticed. It's a surprisingly subtle choice and it works beautifully.

As terrific as DeNiro is (and he pretty much owns this picture), he is supported by his dynamite comic teamwork with Billy Crystal. Crystal, whose last few films have been painful to sit through (anyone for "Father's Day?") shows a renewed vitality and comic spark on-screen. Perhaps it was being in the presence of a giant like DeNiro that forced Crystal to tone down his shtick and return to the character-driven comedy of things like "City

Analyze This!

NOW says: Director Harold Ramis' mob spoof is a smart, well-written comedy that benefits immensely from outstanding work by Robert DeNiro, Billy Crystal and Joe Viterelli.

Slickers" and "Throw Momma From the Train." There's a subtlety and darkness in Crystal's characterization that has been sorely missing from his recent work.

In addition to DeNiro's and Crystal's on-target work is a veritable rogue's gallery of supporting characters. Foremost is the fantastic Joe Viterelli as DeNiro's rotund bag man, Jelly. It takes a formidable talent to steal scenes from cats like Crystal and DeNiro, and Viterelli clearly relishes the opportunity. Lisa Kudrow and Chazz Palminteri also turn in delightfully loopy performances.

"Analyze This" loses some steam in its second hour, but on the whole, thanks to a smart script, top-notch comedic work and clever jokes ("The Godfather" homage and DeNiro's viewing of a touchy-feely insurance advertisement are instant classics), "Analyze This" proves to be a witty and occasionally hilarious comedy.

Cop flick has complex plot, excellent action

By JAMES ELDRED
The BG News

"The Corrupter" is one of the first movies I've seen in a long time that took me by surprise. It is amazing in its complexity, mainly because it starts off so simple.

It stars Chow Yun-Fat as Detective Nick Chen who, against his wishes, gets a new partner, Danny Wallace (played by Mark Wahlberg). It begins with the two investigating a bombing by a local gang in Chinatown. The plot quickly becomes very complex as we learn of the rival gang in Chinatown, and who they have working for them. In this movie, nothing is as it seems and you really don't know what is going to happen until the last minute.

I thought this was going to be a typical cop movie but I was completely taken by surprise by its amazing depth. It also has several subplots, all of which come together at the end, such as Wallace's gambling father, Chen's attachments to criminals, and intergang rivalries. But, with all of this going on, the movie never gets too complex and it's relatively easy to follow.

Also, while having a great plot, it manages to have excellent action scenes and several exciting gun fights (but they are not as good as Chow's Hong Kong films), and the other staples of every cop movie. Chow Yun-Fat was born to be in these, and he doesn't disappoint here.

He's also great outside of the gunfights, playing calm and collective, then exploding onto the scene with a gun in each hand. This is definitely the movie that will launch his career in America.

And he's not the only actor that gives a great performance. Ric Young is excellent as Henry Lee, the conniving leader of the local gang in Chinatown. He is pure evil. Also, Brian Cox is great as Wahlberg's drunk, gambling father.

However, all of these great performances do create a problem with the film, and that problem is Wahlberg. His performance pales in comparison to everyone else's and it hurts the film.

NOW Says: Great plot and good action guarantee Chow Yun-Fat's stardom in America. Starring: Chow Yun-Fat, Mark Wahlberg, Ric Young

Also, while the gun fights are excellent, they pale in comparison to Chow Yun-Fat's Hong Kong movies, such as "Hard Boiled" or "The Killer." In both of these, literally hundreds are killed in massive gunfights that can last up to an hour. Compared to these films, "The Corrupter" is boring.

But the good far outweighs the bad. For both action fans and those who love a good crime conspiracy movie, "The Corrupter" is a must-see movie. Its great plot and exciting action sequences more than make up for its tiny flaws. It will be the movie that shows that Chow Yun-Fat can be an action star in America.

Oscars aired on Sunday for first time in 46 years

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES— Never on Sunday for Oscar, the film industry said for 46 years. Too risky to air the Academy Awards on the weekend, when people should be buying movie tickets instead of enjoying a free TV show.

The chance to shore up TV ratings — and a growing appreciation of the Academy Awards as an unparalleled promotional tool for Hollywood — finally caused a reappraisal.

When host Whoopi Goldberg steps on stage at 8:30 p.m. EST Sunday, ABC and the Academy of Motion Pictures Arts and Sciences hope that the weekend broadcast will be the start of a new tradition.

"It's a great move," said Gil Cates, who is producing his ninth Oscar ceremony.

"Sunday is a festive day, a day of relaxation. It's a non-work day, and I think that comports well with what Oscar should be," he said. "The whole phenomenon of folks rushing home from work to watch the show is going to be avoided."

Although Oscar ratings rise and fall, the ceremony is television's second most-watched event after the Super Bowl. Commercial rates reportedly have reached $1 million for a 30-second spot, up from around $900,000.
