CITY BRIEF

Shot fired at Waffle House early Sunday morning

A Toledo man was arrested after shooting a gun outside Waffle House early Sunday morning.

Latwaun Griffin, 23, was arrested for felonious assault after a fight broke out between two groups at the restaurant around 3 a.m., said Emily Snyder, dispatcher for the Bowling Green Police Division.

Griffin allegedly fired one shot toward Waffle House, shattering a foyer window, Snyder said. No injuries were reported.

After police arrived on the scene, Waffle

House closed from 3:30 a.m. to 6:15 a.m. to lessen the possibility of tampering with evidence, said District Manager Jeffrey Lord. Lord said he is unsure how much it will cost to replace the window.

Griffin is currently lodged at the Wood County Justice Center with no bond.

He is scheduled for a video arraignment Monday at 8:30 a.m. at the Bowling Green Municipal Court, said Deputy Steve Wilhelm of the Wood County Sheriff's Office.

Art Walk features variety of art downtown

Community members, students viewed displays of local artists' work Saturday

Bowling Green residents had the opportunity to enjoy a sunny, art-filled Saturday as the city held its 22nd Annual Art Walk downtown to showcase locals' and students' works.

Live performances, photography, glass and quilts were part of the wide display of art people experienced.

"There's a real variety of things to see here; it's a treat," said Alec Reeves, a senior at the University.

More than 30 businesses in Bowling Green participated in Art Walk, whether they had demonstrators on the sidewalk or a gallery in their shop.

Some places raised money to donate, such as BroadWing Tattoo, formerly Studio 14, which hosted its second annual Tattoo for a Cause. It offered two designs to promote awareness, a ribbon ($40)

University Theatre and Film department put its own spin on popular film "Legally Blonde," four shows sold out

By Marissa Stambol
Reporter

Many people have seen the 2001 film "Legally Blonde," about a blonde sorority girl turned lawyer but, this past weekend, the University Theatre and Film department put on a musical that took a new spin on this story.

"Legally Blonde: The Musical" was in the Thomas and Kathleen Donnell Theatre where it sold out four shows Friday through Sunday. The show had a cast of more than 30 members, including two dogs.

The story of Elle Woods was enhanced by 18 songs and dance numbers. These included comical songs like "Bend and Snap" and emotional songs like "Legally Blonde."

Junior Greg Grimes, dance captain and choreographer of "Bend and Snap," said they used many choreographers for the many different dances.

"There are so many different styles [of dance] in the show, and the show is so diverse, so we decided to branch out and get more choreographers than usual," Grimes said.

They did an Irish dance, a marching band style number and a workout dance with jump ropes, to name just a few.

Senior Krysta Bartman, who played the workout guru and defendant Brooke Wyndham, worked with the cast in rehearsals for more than two months.

"It's an amazing experience," she said. "It was so much work but I think it paid off."

Michael Ellison, the director, was happy to see the audiences' reactions to the shows each night.

"The audiences have been really responsive," he said. "I'm really excited

Human use of oil destroys habitats; generates controversy

Harvestation of palm oil may make some animals go into extinction faster

By William Channell
Assistant Pulse Editor

It's in half your food, shampoo and soap, and environmental groups say it's responsible for widespread deforestation in Indonesia, Malaysia and other rainforests worldwide.

Palm oil, an edible vegetable oil taken from oil palms, has been generating controversy. Some say the harvesting of the oil is causing several species to be pushed to the brink of extinction due to the destruction of their habitats, including the sumatran orangutan and sumatran tiger.

Companies that are often criticized for the purchase of "unethical" oil include personal goods companies like Proctor & Gamble, as well as food companies.

Proctor & Gamble is the most recent company to announce a commitment to practicing more sustainable and transparent methods when buying their palm oil. They join a list that includes Mars, Inc. and Kellogg.

"The company is working with suppliers, industry peers, NGOs, academic experts and other stakeholders to promote consistent industry standards and practices for sustainable palm oil sourcing," according to a press release from P&G.

Mars, Inc was not available for comment, and Proctor and Gamble could not be reached for comment.

Joao Talotti, a senior campaigner for Greenpeace, an environmental organization, said these organizations are working to change the way the oil is harvested. Greenpeace claims the status quo of the industry includes several acres of rainforests being cleared to make way for palm oil plantations.

"We're not against palm oil, and we think it's important for a country's development," Talotti said, before explaining Greenpeace's stance and efforts in regards to the issue.

Greenpeace, Talotti said, is focusing its efforts on palm oil harvested from Indonesia, which in 2013 was the leading exporter of the product, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. Organizations who share Greenpeace's concerns are working toward a system that will allow increased transparency about where companies purchase their palm oil.

Talotti said by focusing on the private sec-

EXAM TIPS SERIES 1: GETTING THOSE A'S

Healthy tips to help prepare for exam week

One of the most crucial times in a college student's life is exam week.

Subject area tutors host regular hours in the Learning Commons and are free to all University students. Drop-in tutoring is available for various other subjects at specific times.

University senior Jordan Kilpatrick works as the Research and Information desk assistant. She has seen many students come to the library in need of help on research papers and more.

Her personal list of 5 tips to help prepare for exam week are:

Study in pieces— "Cramming is not good. I personally like to make flashcards beforehand because they are so easy to use and portable. I can take them with me and study on my way to class or work."

Repeat— "I am a visual person so I like to write and re-write things."

Sleep— "If you get a good night's sleep beforehand, you can get up early and not have to rush to your exam. Maybe you can even have enough time to skim over notes on your way there."

Eat— "Breakfast is considered the most important meal of the day. I always seem to concentrate better when I've eaten breakfast."

Attend office hours— "Teachers love office hours. It also helps you understand their values when it comes time to write essay questions."

"One of the most important things to remember during a test is to take your time but prioritize," said University senior Nicole Croft. "Finish the answers you know right away first, and work diligently on the others after. If you continue this method, you should be successful."

"Especially when the government is a new democracy, as is the case with Indonesia."

He said organizations like Greenpeace are making progress. "Change is happening on a global scale," he said. "We expect this change to drive governments to enact stronger policies [regarding palm oil]."

Rainforest Action Network claims palm oil is a large contributor to 2.4 million acres of forest that is cleared in Malaysia per year, as well as a 14 percent drop in the population of the sumatran orangutan between 2004 and 2008.

Greenpeace, the World Wildlife Federation and Rainforest Action Network all have pages on their websites detailing their stances on palm oil.

Freshman Rachel Croswell expressed an interest in researching the issue, though said switching to sustainable practices would be a good idea regardless.

"If it would help to decrease [deforestation], it would be a good transition," she said.

Falcons earn comeback win with 10 late runs, win series against Kent State

By Corey Krupa
Reporter

The Falcon baseball team rallied to win Sunday to take the weekend series against Kent State at Steller Field. The Falcons scored five runs in the seventh and eighth innings to come from behind to defeat the Golden Flashes 12-5 on Sunday afternoon after being down 5-2 late in the game.

In the weekend series finale, the Falcons were able to overcome five errors to defeat the Golden Flashes and win the series.

"Give our guys credit," BG coach Danny Schmitz said. "They found a way to win and that's what good teams do."

The Falcons scored two runs in the first inning off an RBI triple from Jake Thomas and an RBI single from T.J. Losby.

Kent State scored five runs to take the lead into the seventh before the Falcons scored ten runs to give them the lead for good.

Logan Walker and Jesse Rait each had an RBI in the seventh inning to tie the game, until Jeremy Shay hit a two run RBI single to give the Falcons the lead.

"The infield was in so I was just looking for something to drive to put over the infield and get the runners in," Shay, Falcon catcher, said.

Rait had a two run RBI single with the bases loaded in the eighth inning, while Thomas and Losby added more insurance runs for the Falcons later in the inning.

Softball team goes 1-3 during weekend

BG loses 2 to Central Michigan; defeats Eastern Michigan

By Brandon Shrider
Reporter

After losing its first three games, the Bowling Green softball team rebounded on Sunday with a 3-2 victory over fellow Mid-American Conference school, Eastern Michigan.

"We're definitely glad to get the win," head coach Shannon Salsburg said. "It was nice to finish on a high note."

However, Sunday wasn't the only day of success for the Falcons. The softball team played well during the Friday doubleheader against Central Michigan, but just couldn't get a victory.

Bowling Green allowed four earned runs through the two Friday games, with Katie Yoho hitting her 11th homerun, but the seven unearned runs were too much for the Falcons to overcome.

"Friday was a tough day because we had a lot of good things happen we just couldn't come up with the big play or the big hit," Salsburg said.

This result on Friday carried over into Saturday, as the Falcons were never able to get on the scoreboard getting shutout for the 12th time this season.

"Saturday we just didn't come out ready to play," Salsburg said.

This came at the dismay of Salsburg, as she wants to see the Falcons play their style of softball.

"From our standpoint its about playing our game," Salsburg said. "If somebody is going to beat us, they're going to beat us, but we want to play our game and give the best shot we possibly have."

The Falcons were able to hit the reset button on Sunday, as they were able to notch their seventh victory in conference play, while wearing their pink uniforms in support of breast cancer awareness.

Sophomore pitcher, Braiden Dillow played a critical part in the 3-2 victory as she allowed zero earned runs and registered a career-high, eight strikeouts on the day. Junior pitcher, Jamie Kertes came on for the final five outs, earning four via the strikeout

Falcons earn more automarks

Pettigrew leads track and field team at Gina Relays

By Jamar Dunson
Reporter

Led by senior Jeanette Pettigrew, the Falcons hit three more automatic qualifying marks in the Gina Relays.

At the meet, Pettigrew set a new personal best to win the long jump, ran the fastest time in the Mid-American Conference in the 100 meter and improved on her season best in the 200 meter. She started off her day by scoring a 19-foot-8.25 in the long jump, winning the event.

Head coach Lou Snelling was impressed with Pettigrew's performance at the meet and was glad to see her do well.

"Having someone doing that in a BG uniform, it was great to see that," Snelling said.

Her teammate, sophomore Alicia Arnold, finished right behind her in second with a score of 19-feet. Pettigrew's jump moves her into fourth place in the MAC this year and Arnold came within an inch of beating her personal best.

In the 100 meter championship division, Pettigrew added another victory for the Falcons with a time of 11.61 seconds. This was a new personal best for Pettigrew, besting her previous time of 11.84.

That time was .03 seconds faster than anyone else in the conference and only .02 seconds shy of the BG school record and the second-fastest time in program history.

In the 200 meter, Pettigrew finished within the top five, placing third with a time of 23.75 seconds.

Arnold ran a time of 24.14 seconds in the same event, hitting the MAC automatic qualifier mark.

Pettigrew later competed in the 1600 meter relay, along with Arnold, Brianna Johnson and Tiera Parker, they finished in second place with a time of 46.28 seconds.

That was the second-fastest time in BG history, .11 seconds behind the first.

In other events, freshmen Johnson and Gabrielle Edwards finished second in their respective events. Johnson hit a time of 12.26 seconds in the 100 open and Edwards finished the 200 open with 25.45 seconds.

Junior Kristin Reiser had success in the high jump, setting a new personal record with a time of 5-4.25. Freshman Raven Porter also set a new personal record in the event at 5-2.25.

The Falcons also made an impact at the Ashland Alumni Open.

Junior Brooke Pleger remained unbeaten in the hammer throw as she came in first with a distance of 212.6. This throw managed to defeat Akron's Brittany Funk, the second ranked thrower in the country.

In the discus throw, redshirt freshman Kori Reiser and senior Tina Perrine both hit automarks for the Falcons. Resier came in second with a throw of 159-9 and Perrine was fourth with a 154-1.

Reiser's throw also ties her for sixth in BG history in the event.

With the 13 automarks the Falcons almost double that than last year's amount of seven.

Pettigrew, Perrine, Dana Gates, Brea Tinney and Natasha Greggs will be recognized when the Falcons host Toledo Friday for Senior Night. This will be the only home outdoor event of the season for the Falcons. Senior recognition will take place at 4:45 p.m. between the field events and running events.

HEAD COACH Lindsay Basalyga plays in nontraditional women's soccer alumni game this past weekend.

Alumni face off in women's soccer annual game

By Cameron Teague Robinson
Sports Editor

A head coach must do what is in the best interest for their team.

That is what caused Bowling Green women's soccer coach Lindsay Basalyga to change the format of the alumni game.

"It's my job as a head coach to protect our future and our current players," Basalyga said. "I thought this was the best format for them to get something out of it as well as keep ourselves healthy heading into the summer."

This is the first year that the Falcons did not compete against the alumni in the annual alumni game. Instead, the current Falcons were sitting on the sidelines watching and keeping time as the Alumni played in a shortened game.

"It's good for me to put the alum in the face of our current players," Basalyga said. "I still wanted them to be a part of this ... I think it is important for them to be a part of the past."

Beth Reiman was one of the alumna who came back to play in the game. Reiman was the captain of the 2004 team that won the Mid-American Conference Tournament as an eight seed.

That 2004 team started that tournament with a 2-1 overtime win against number one seed Kent State University. They ended their run with a 2-0 win against number three seed Central Michigan in the championship game.

"It's awesome to see everybody here. I want them to get back to the winning ways," Reiman said. "That's the way we left it and we want to see that return."

Reiman, who has only missed one alumni game since she graduated in 2004, said that the game is tradition but understands Basalyga's choice to change the format.

"It was different but I understand the situation of the current team," Reiman said. "I think it was what she needed to do to get us back out here which is a good thing."

Basalyga got in on some of the playing action herself as she prepares for her alumni game at The University of Maryland.

"I was glad they [the alumni] asked me to play with them," Basalyga said. "My alumni game is this weekend so I'm glad I could represent BG playing here."

No matter how the format of the alumni game changes the importance of it will not go unrecognized by any of the Falcons that have been a part of BG women's soccer.

"We have a storied history here at BG. We have players who have come back who were in the first NCAA tournament and won MAC Championships here," Basalyga said. "To have those players back and wanting to come back is really special. This is something we want to continue to evolve overtime."

Graduation nears; job offer gives chance to move across country

DYLANNE PETROS

I graduate in May and I am terrified.

I am terrified of going out into the real world. I am scared of being thousands of miles away from my parents in New Mexico.

Most of all, I am scared of being 20 the day of graduation.

While in high school, I had the amazing opportunity to take college classes through Post-Secondary Enrollment Option, or PSEO.

PSEO allowed me to take college classes, while still being enrolled in high school, and earn dual credit. Best of all, it was free.

I took PSEO my junior and

“I went through the motions of school and never really had fun.”

senior years of high school.

In the two years, I managed to get one whole year of college out of the way.

It is a law, in the state of Ohio, that all public universities accept PSEO credit. So, when I stepped foot on Bowling Green's campus in the fall of 2011, I was already a sophomore.

Having a whole year out of the way was great at first. I didn't have to take silly general education classes like GSW, nor did I have to take speech, psychology or sociology to name a few.

I jumped right into my major and plowed through my classes.

Then, last year, I realized that I was going to graduate in May 2014.

At first, I was excited. Less money in loans, less money to pay back.

The first semester went by in a blur. I knew graduation was coming, but it seemed far away.

Winter break happened. I knew I should be applying for jobs but I figured I still had some time before May came.

It wasn't until spring break came that I started freaking out. It was March and graduation was two months away.

Since March 9, the Sunday of spring break, I have applied for 54 jobs.

I only received two calls for potential jobs. I got one job offer and took it.

My nerves have not settled even though I have a job waiting.

While I have saved a ton of money by doing PSEO, I am terrified of starting my life at barely 21-years-old.

I am also upset that I didn't have the opportunity to be more active on campus more. I rushed through internships both on and off campus. I didn't go on crazy spring break vacations. I didn't have very crazy summers with friends.

I went through the motions of school and never really had fun.

Cherish the time you have in college. Don't complain about how long four years may feel to you.

Take it from the girl that is going through college in three years.

It will be gone in a flash.

Views in religion change throughout time; with education

ABIGAIL KRUSE
COLUMNIST

I have doubts, and lots of them.

The Gospel at church today was all about Thomas and his doubts.

It's not that I don't believe Jesus died and rose from the dead.

I absolutely do. It's just the details I'm a little less secure on.

I never thought I would get to this point.

I was super religious in junior high and through most of high school.

I horrified my older sister when I told her that I would never, ever in any circumstances have sex outside of marriage, and if I did, I would never use birth control — because that would be a double sin.

No matter how many times I heard from my teachers that staying close to the faith in college would be a challenge because of proximity to all sorts of religious views, I did not believe them.

No way would I ever miss Mass, or not wear my Miraculous Medal, or not be secure about communion being the real deal.

And then I got to college. Since I spent my first year at a community college, this is not your textbook tale of a freshman girl gone wild, away from rules for the first time.

My second year, I transferred schools and fell in with the dominant nondenominational group on campus, largely because they were the first people I met there.

That was where I first had my faith shaken in “Things That are Not Explicitly in the Bible” as a category.

These include purgatory, and a bunch to do with Mary.

Who knew Jesus wasn't an only child, or that Mary wasn't always a virgin and died like a regular person without all the glamorous assumption into heaven and coronation as queen of heaven bit?

I am not saying I believed all of this, but I certainly thought twice.

I'd like to say by now I have come to terms with the opposing things I have heard from others and through research, but that would be a lie.

I suppose the moral of my story here is for those out there who have doubts and aren't sure they're sold anymore on what they grew up believing.

This is a time for you to explore and find out for yourself what to believe.

Shop around; there are lots of places to worship on and off campus.

Find something that works for you.

Students should complete work, prove responsibility

AMANDA MATTHEWS
COLUMNIST

Freedom in the classroom can be a great thing, but when due dates aren't given it may offer too much independence.

One of the biggest challenges I have found being a college student is being viewed as a responsible adult and not as an irresponsible child that can't deal with simple tasks.

Classes should not only prepare students how to be able to perform a job in a given major, but it should also teach responsibility, how to collaborate with other workers and how to conduct yourself in a work environment.

The problem with this is that some students are lacking in basic time management skills. I do my best to juggle my school, work and a social life.

I will be the first to admit that I am somewhat of a perfectionist when getting work done.

This means that no due dates in some of my classes is great for me.

I can take my time to complete my work without feeling stressed about having a time limit.

However, some students have a major problem with dealing with this kind of system.

This is the last week of class and some of my classmates are still complaining about having to get projects done that were assigned way before spring break.

The issue isn't caused by them taking their time to complete these projects.

Instead they are using class time to complain about not having due dates and about how they are too crammed for time to get everything done by the end of the week.

Echoes in the classroom can be heard; saying things like “why should I complete this early in the semester?” or “this isn't for a job so why should I worry about getting it done in a timely manner?”

The problem is that students need to get out of this mindset. What are they going to do when they get a job? Will they sit around and not work without a structured timeline?

They should be viewed as great chance of being treated like the responsible adults that college students should be.

So, next time you are treated with respect like a college student should be, prove to them that they made the right choice and that you are ready to thrive as a responsible individual.

THE BG NEWS SUBMISSION POLICY

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letters are generally to be fewer than 300 words. These are usually in response to a current issue on the University's campus or the Bowling Green area.

GUEST COLUMNS

Guest Columns are generally longer pieces between 400 and 700 words. These are usually also in response to a current issue on the University's campus or the Bowling Green area. Two submissions per month maximum.

POLICIES

Letters to the Editor and Guest Columns are printed as space on the Opinion Page permits. Additional Letters to the Editor or Guest Columns may be published online. Name, year and phone number should be included for verification purposes. Personal attacks, unverified information or anonymous submissions will not be printed.

E-MAIL SUBMISSIONS

Send submissions as an attachment to theneus@bgnews.com with the subject line marked “Letter to the Editor” or “Guest Column.” All submissions are subject to review and editing for length and clarity before printing. The editor may change the headlines to submitted columns and letters at his or her discretion.

and puzzle piece ($50) for citizens to choose from. 100 percent of these proceeds were be donated.

In addition to the Tattoo for a Cause designs, people could get whatever tattoo they wanted and 30 percent of the proceeds would be donated to making care packages for children at Toledo Mercy Hospital, Cleveland Clinic and Nationwide Hospital in Columbus.

"Last year we raised six grand and this year we're hoping to raise double," said John Embry, a tattooist and curator of the art gallery at BroadWing. "All the help is really appreciated because it's going to a good cause and helping a lot of people directly."

BroadWing Tattoo also featured a gallery with work from the Two-Dimensional Art Association at the University, featuring "the best work they could bring out for the exhibition," said Embry.

Derek Brennan is a caricature artist who was posted on the sidewalk in front of Jamie's Seams to Fit on South Main Street. Taking a different approach than BroadWing, Brennan was simply looking for a good way to network, show his work and pay respect to his alma mater.

"I graduated from Bowling Green then started doing caricatures at Cedar Point," said Brennan.

For him, "business is pretty good" and he said he has drawn about 20 people within the first few hours of Art Walk.

University student Justin Camuso was out enjoying the weather and didn't know about the event until he got downtown, where he then joined in on viewing some of the local art.

"I like how the community can come together and put this whole thing on,"

Camuso said. "We've been to a couple places so far and the stuff we've seen is pretty cool."

Grumpy Dave's offered live music from 12 to 4 p.m. in addition to showing paintings by Craig Blair and exhibiting work from the University Sculpture and Student Glass Art Association. Down the street at Coyote Beads, Stephanie Guittard Scigliano showed jewelry, fiber art and textiles.

An after party was hosted at Grounds for Thought at 6 p.m. to reveal the winner of the People's Choice Art Awards and a drawing that citizens could enter to win Downtown Dollars.

Sophomore Rachel Court had never seen the show before this weekend's production.

"I was really, really impressed with the show," Court said. "I went last year to see 'Spring Awakening' and their theatrical productions are so well done and professional. I was blown away," she said.

Junior Tader Shipley played the lead, Elle Woods, and blew away the audience with her performance and portrayal of the character.

"It is so fun and such a high-energy show," she said.

"I am glad that the show is helping to raise money for such a great cause."

Michael Ellison | Director

In addition to a night of entertainment, guests were able to learn about and donate to two local charities for animals: Planned Pethood of Toledo and Cutie's Fund. Both groups are committed to helping animals without homes and had booths in the lobby of the theatre where they collected donations and raised awareness for their causes.

"I am glad that the show is helping to raise money for such a great cause," Ellison said.

pitching three innings and allowing no hits and no runs.

"It just feels good to come into the game and get the job done to give the team the win," Singer said. "When we are able to get a big lead going into the ninth, it takes a lot of pressure off and it's nice knowing you have a bigger cushion."

In Friday's series opener, BG lost to Kent State 7-5 after an hour delayed start due to rain. Falcon starting pitcher Mike Frank pitched 7.2 innings, however he got the loss after giving up seven earned runs. The Falcons received two hits and two RBIs from first baseman Shay, T.J. Losby, Patrick Lancaster and Trey Keegan also had RBIs in the Falcon loss.

In Saturday's game, BG scored six runs in the fifth inning to beat Kent State 8-6. Shay, Lancaster and Jake Thomas had RBIs in the fifth inning.

Falcon shortstop Brian Bien was 4-for-4 with an RBI in the win.

With the win, BG improves to 19-20 overall and 10-8 in Mid-American Conference play. Kent State falls to 28-15 overall and 12-6 in MAC play.

The Falcons will face Eastern Michigan Wednesday night in a road game.

and her fourth save of the season.

"I thought our pitchers did a great job today," Salsburg said. "[Erika] Stratton calls Braiden's game so that's a credit to her, but I thought Braiden had great command of her pitches today."

For the weekend, the left side of the Falcon infield, freshmen Chelsea Raker and Aspen Searle, collected hits in each of the four games, combining for 10 hits, five RBI, and just two strikeouts. This gives each of them a seven game hitting-streak, both collecting 11 hits apiece over that span.

The Falcons finished the weekend just 1-3 moving their season record to 21-28-1, pushing them into a tie for ninth in the MAC.

BG will now shift their focus to the season finale next weekend against their rival team up north.

"We need to come out and take care of business and then see what happens from there," Salsburg said. "We're excited for the opportunity and hopefully things work out for us."

The Falcons will look to come out strong next weekend against Toledo attempting to keep their MAC-tournament hopes alive. The first game will begin at 6 p.m. on May 3 at Meserve Field.
