Violence-related Police Crime

- Police violence is behavior by any police officer—acting pursuant to their authority and/or power as a sworn law enforcement officer—that includes any use of physical force, whether justified or not (Sherman, 1980).
- Situational risk faced by officers influence an officer's decision to use coercive force, non-deadly force, and/or to employ deadly force (e.g., Alpert & Smith, 1999; Fyfe, 1981; Terrill, 2003).
- Officer-involved domestic violence (OIDV) remains a problem (Stinson & Liederbach, 2013).

Method

- Multiyear study on police crime.
- Content analysis of news articles.
- Use Google News search engine and Google Alerts email update service.
- The unit of analysis is criminal arrest case.
- This presentation summarizes the violence-related criminal arrest cases of nonfederal sworn law enforcement officers across the United States during the years 2005-2011.
- Intercoder reliability overall simple agreement between two coders exceeded 97.7% across all variables. Krippendorff's Alpha coefficients are strong ( $\alpha=.9153$ ).

Strengths & Limitations

- Google News is a preferred method to conduct news-based content analysis research.
- The research is limited by the content and quality of information provided on each case.
- The data are limited to cases that involved an official arrest.
- These data are the result of a filtering process that includes the exercise of discretion by media sources in terms of types of stories covered and the nature of the content devoted to particular stories.

On-Duty Gun-involved Murder & Manslaughter Cases

- The study identified 664 cases involving an officer who was arrested during the years 2005-2011 for a crime where the arrested officer was alleged to have “pulled, pointed, held, or fired a gun and/or threatened someone with a gun.”
- As to the criminal cases involving an officer arrested for gun-related murder or nonnegligent manslaughter, less than half of those cases involve crimes that occurred when the arrested officer was on-duty ( $n = 31, 43.7\%$ ), although the majority of gun-related cases where an officer was arrested for negligent manslaughter occurred when the arrested officer was on-duty ( $n = 10, 83.3\%$ ).
