OUR FIRST ANNIVERSARY

Born in the rolling hills of the American Middle West on a bleak St. Valentine's Day in 1942, the 316th looks back upon a year crammed with activity and excitement as it marks its first birthday on the sands of the Middle East.

First among the things that stand out in our first year is continuity of command. From the day the unit was activated as the 316th Transport Group, its commanding officer has been Colonel Jerome B. McCauley, who has spent half his life in the Army and who rose to his present position through the ranks.

Two other officers who have been with us since Feb. 14, 1942, are Major William H. Matthews, commanding officer of the 37th squadron, and Captain Bernard C. Nash, adjutant of the 45th squadron. Joining the Group only a short time after it was activated were Major Walter R. Washburn, Jr., Group operations officer. Major Ben A. Garland, commanding officer of the 36th squadron and Major Frank J. McMenemy, Group Engineering officer. Most of the enlisted men were taken from the 10th Transport Group, which was formed in 1937.

During four months at Patterson Field, Ohio, and six weeks at Bowman Field, Ky., the 316th built up its strength, acquired supplies, and prepared for an intensive program of training. The Group moved in August to Lawson Field, Ga., where it received the 52 transport craft around which the entire life of the 316th has been built. At Lawson Field training was conducted in formation flying, carrying parachutists and problems involving airport capture. A record-breaking formation flight of 800 miles, in which all airplanes of the Group took part, was the highlight of its transfer from Lawson Field to Del Valle Air Base in Texas.

While at Del Valle the 316th experienced six weeks of training with the famous Second Division, moving troops, guns, medical equipment and supplies from San Antonio to points on the Mexican border. Ten thousand men were transported without a casualty. Maj. Gen. Robertson, commanding officer of the Second Division, stated at a staff meeting: "The 316th can move me and my men anywhere any time."

Similar commendations were received from Brig. Gen. Fred S. Borum, commanding general of the I Troop Carrier Command, and other high officers.

Only a few hours after the invasion of North Africa in November, the air echelon of the 316th received its overseas moving orders. After five days of preparation, all the airplanes of the Group took off as scheduled. Seven days later they arrived in the Middle East.

316th TROOP CARRIER SQUADRON PERSONNEL IN Egypt

Our airplanes played their part in the phenomenal 1,300 mile drive of the British Eighth Army from El Alamein to Tripoli. Rations, fuel, oil and supplies were flown daily to both United States and RAF fighter units in the forward areas. At the same time our pilots were sent on missions to Eritrea, the Congo, and other far-flung outposts of the war.

The airplanes have landed on fields thick with enemy-planted mines. A field used by the advance echelon has been bombed and machine gunned at night. One plane has been lost and one has been shot up by aircraft fire but returned safely.

Separated for some time, the ground and air echelons are now reunited. As they join in celebrating the first anniversary of the 316th all hope that the group will be able to live up to the high traditions of the Army Air Forces in the future as well as it has during its brief life until now.

This book is dedicated to those men who so gallantly and unselfishly gave all they had to give--- their lives---so that all men might breathe the pure, air of freedom.

"Raise then the hymn to death, Deliverer!
God hath anointed thee to free the oppressed
And crush the oppressor. When the armed chief,
The conqueror of nations, walks the world,
And it is changed beneath his feet, and all
Its kingdoms melt into one mighty realm—
Thou, while his head is loftiest and his heart
Blasphemes, imagining his own right hand
Almighty, thou dost set thy sudden grasp
Upon him, and the links of that strong chain
Which bound mankind are crumbled; thou dost break
Sceptre and crown, and beat his throne to dust.
Then the earth shouts with gladness, and her tribes
Gather within their ancient bounds again."

William Cullen Bryant

1. Under the provision of Section IV, Circular No. 333, War Department, 1943, the following units of the IX Troop Carrier Command are cited for outstanding performance of duty in action against the enemy. The citation reads as follows :

“ The 316th Troop Carrier Group. For outstanding performance of Duty in action against the enemy on 5, 6 and 7 June 1944. On these dates, members of Group Headquarters, and of the 36th, 37th, 44th and 45th Troop Carrier Squadrons of the 316th Troop Carrier Group effected 118 Sorties. Flying in unarmed and unarmored Troop Carrier aircraft, at minimum altitudes and air-speeds, in unfavorable weather conditions, over water and into the face of strong enemy defenses, without possibility of employing evasive action, the planes of this group unloaded their paratroops with extreme precision over vital zones as part of the Troop Carrier spearhead of the Allied Invasion of the European Continent. To the smooth co-operative effort of all members of the 316th Troop Carrier Group is attributable to the tremendous success of its participation in the initial phases of the invasion of Normandy. Their conduct has added luster to the traditions of our military forces.”

1. Under the provision of Section IV, Circular No. 333, War Department, 1943, the following named units of the Ninth Air Force are cited for outstanding performance of duty in action against the enemy. The citation reads as follows :

" The 316th Troop Carrier Group. For outstanding performance of duty in action against the enemy from 25 November 1942 to 25 August 1943. Throughout the course of the Egyptian-Libyan, Tunisian and Sicilian Campaigns the 316th Troop Carrier Group rendered distinguished service in its vital support of the British Eighth Army and the Ninth Air Force. During the Middle East Campaign, during which refueling and rearming problems were greatly aggravated by the attenuated lines of supply through the desert, the unarmed and unarmored aircraft of the 316th Troop Carrier Group played an outstanding part in the success of both aerial and ground operations by transporting vitally needed supplies and replacements to advanced landing grounds only recently evacuated by the enemy. While the air echelons of the group were engaged in undertaking long and hazardous flights without escort over areas where enemy opposition was both anticipated and encountered, the ground echelons of the group, in addition to their normal duties, supported the air echelons of two heavy bombardment groups throughout important operations in the Western Desert. Living under conditions of great personal hardship and danger in the desert, and operating despite the difficulties of unfavorable climatic and weather conditions, as well as enemy aerial attack, the personnel of the 316th Troop Carrier Group, through their courage, perseverance and deep devotion to duty, rendered an invaluable contribution to the success of allied operations in the Middle East Theater of Operations."

The 316th Troop Carrier Group. For outstanding performance of duty in action against the enemy. On the night of 11 July 1943, thirty-five aircraft of this group took off from their base in Tunisia on a paratroop mission and flew a lengthy dog-leg course over the Mediterranean Sea, past the Island of Malta, up the coastline to the vicinity of Gela, Sicily. Flying in tight formation confronted with inclement weather conditions, without navigational aids, intensive anti-aircraft fire was encountered which destroyed twelve of their aircraft and damaged others. Notwithstanding this heartbreaking set-back, these crews heroically continued on through incessant flak to make repeated passes over the drop zone to successfully deliver their loads of paratroopers and thus enable them to disrupt enemy defenses in advance of our sea-borne forces. This action signalized the first large-scale use of American paratroopers and served as an operating guide for future employment of airborne tactics. The intrepidity displayed by the officers and men of the 316th Troop Carrier Group in the accomplishment of a vital mission in the face of overwhelming peril is worthy of emulation.

The 316th Troop Carrier Group has participated in Nine Major Campaigns:

EGYPT-LIBYA: Ammunition, gasoline, water, mail, other supplies and equipment flown to battlefronts during conquest of North Africa; systematic aerial evacuation of battle casualties on return flights was pioneered.

It was in Egypt, while supporting Montgomery's Eighth Army in the critical days when the campaign to throw Rommel westward was launched, that the 316th developed a practice which later came into general use with great success: Air evacuation of the wounded.

The group is credited with establishing the first air evacuation system in any theater of war, but it came into being as a situation attendant to the actual fighting. Lt. Col. Walter R. Washburn, of Cleburne, Texas, now commanding officer of the group, tells the story briefly.

The 316th had the hazardous and vital job of flying supplies and equipment into the battle zone for Montgomery's forces. Killing Germans was the one aim of all the coordinated operations. As the fighting progressed, battle casualties began to show up at the 316th's field at Agedabia. So for the return trip to their base at Tobruk, as many litters as could be laid on the floor of the planes were taken aboard and flown back for hospitalization in the rear areas. Major Francis Z. Reinus, of New York City, group surgeon, had charge of this operation. Colonel Washburn said only two men died en route, and they had been wounded critically in a land mine explosion as they were coming to the base on a truck.

Later, after results of this spur-of-the-moment evacuation had been studied, it became a planned and large-scale operation, resulting in the saving of many lives and in higher morale.

It was for maintaining supply and evacuation lines in that area that the group was awarded its first Presidential Citation.

SICILY: First large-scale use of American paratroopers, who were dropped successfully to enable them to disrupt enemy defenses in advance of seaborne forces in invasion of Sicily.

Tripoli had fallen and the part played by our personnel and planes in the desert campaign was history, a part that looms ever larger in the perspective of time. In the weeks and months that followed the arrival of the ground echelon, a steady flow of supplies was carried an ever-increasing distance as the Eighth Army moved into Tunisia.

Leaving the squadron in the desert to continue the vital work of supply, early May saw the air echelon of the remainder of the group settled in the fertile rolling country of Algeria engaging in the grueling task of night formation flying. As the summer sun grew more fierce, a move to a shadeless burning hot valley of Morocco did not ease the task of training. In the middle of June the group moved once more, this time to Tunisia for the final days of pre-invasion preparations. No one who was there in those days will forget the nightly procession of Wellingtons, the burning heat, and the increasing tension.

At last the hour for which we had trained so long and arduously came. On the night of July 9th the group joined a vast armada of transport planes carrying a spearhead of paratroopers to the southern coast of Sicily. From the ground the sky seemed to be filled with planes and for the first time the ground personnel of the group experienced a night of "sweating out" its combat crews on a mission over enemy-held territory. The memory of that night and the one of July 11th and 12th are still vivid; the incredible courage of the pilots in reaching their objectives, the tragic losses and anxious hours and days of uncertainty alleviated only in part by return of a few who had been given up as lost. The second Presidential Citation came as a result of action on July 11th when the group sustained heavy losses.

After a well earned holiday in Alexandria, the combat crews returned to the task of supply and evacuation on the new front in Sicily. Early in August the task of command passed to Lt. Col. Burton R. Fleet.

NAPLES-FOGGIA: Paratroopers dropped at Salerno to relieve enemy pressure on ground troops at Allied beachhead; aerial supply maintained during northward advance in Italy.

September found the group based in Sicily and a few days after the Salerno landings, a successful night paratroop mission was flown to this area, reinforcing and probably saving the hard-pressed beachhead. Then came the rains which turned our field into a sea of mud. Again the front units, new in Italy, had to be supplied and their casualties evacuated to Sicily and Africa. But the missions were flown despite the hardships of weather.

ROME-ARNC: Ground forces constantly provided with supplies and equipment via air during push into northern Italy.

OUR SECOND ANNIVERSARY

Winter's arrival saw the group again engaged in training and making the most of the advantages to be found in Sicily; an abundance of oranges and tangerines, a native population surprisingly friendly but desperately poor, and a countryside rich in historical and scenic beauties, growing ever greener in the almost constant rains.

As the hour for invasion grows nearer, the group awaits its assignment with some impatience, conscious of the enormity of the task and danger ahead, but matured and hardened by fifteen months of overseas service. This brief review has only touched on the life of the past year, 1943. For some there were weeks of hard work in the red dust of Libya, helping the short-handed heavy bomb groups to operate over Sicily and Italy. For others there was the relative comfort of barracks life in Egypt, an advantage more than balanced by incredibly long hours of flying over the desert. There are many memories; the inexpressible pleasure of a shower after a day of dust and sweat, the first Sicilian white grapes. For some there is the memory of the hell of flying through a flaming sky, feeling the impact of shell-fire shattering the plane but still flying on; for others the safety of the ground, but the torture of waiting sometimes in vain for planes to return.

NORMANDY: Paratroopers dropped during two missions on the Normandy D-Day as part of the Troop Carrier spearhead of the Allied invasion of the European Continent; parapsacks dropped subsequently to supply airborne forces after their landing.

In England we found civilization after 15 months of pretty primitive living conditions. The job here was to get ready for D-Day, and this involved breaking in a lot of new men as the group was operating approximately double the airplanes with which they had left the states.

Finally D-Day arrived and Troop Carrier hit the front pages with a bang.

NORTHERN FRANCE: Thousands of gallons of gasoline, plus many other kinds of supplies and equipment, flown to allied ground forces during their rapid advance into Germany; Air evacuation of casualties carried out on large scale.

HOLLAND: Glider and parachute troops transported into Nijmegen area of southern Holland as part of the First Allied Airborne Army's initial operation; supplies flown in daily afterward.

OUR THIRD ANNIVERSARY

RHINELAND: More than 1,000 paratroopers with full equipment delivered across the Rhine to the area of Wessel, Germany, in the greatest airborne operation of the war.

CENTRAL EUROPE: Many different kinds of supplies and equipment, including vitally-needed gasoline, transported by air to Allied forces in Germany in final stages of the war in Europe.

For their work on D-Day, they received the second Oak Leaf Cluster to the Presidential Citation, and six members of the group received the Croix de Guerre from the French government.

Upon its arrival back to the States, the group consisted of the 36th, 37th, 44th and 45th T C squadrons. Commanding officers of the squadrons are Lt. Col. James L. Roberts, of Knoxville, Tenn., 36th; Lt. Col. Leonard C. Fletcher, of Americus, Ga., 37th; Lt. Col. William S. Keiser, of Union City, Tenn., 44th; and Lt. Col. Bertie W. David, of Logan, W. Va., 45th. Deputy group commander is Lt. Col. Graham Wright, Jr., of Atlanta, Ga.

The 316th was the first Troop Carrier organization to return from Europe as a group. Its first unit embarked for the United States on V-E Day, arriving May 20. The second unit arrived at the port of debarkation four days later.

The 316th group has had four commanding officers:

Col. Jerome B. McCauley: 14 Feb., 1942—12 Aug., 1943

Lt. Col. Burton R. Fleet 13 Aug., 1943—12 May, 1944; killed in action.

Col. Harvey A. Berger: 13 May, 1944—2 April, 1945; killed in action.

Lt. Col. Walter R. Washburn: 3 April, 1945 to the present.

Commendation by Sir Arthur Cunningham, RAF Air Vice Marshal: "This job (the Libyan campaign) could not have been completed without the assistance of the American transport."

Air Medal won by most of group personnel. Soldier's Medal awarded to several members of the group.

Since its activation, the 316th group has been stationed at:

PATTERSON FIELD, OHIO: From 14 February 1942, the time of its activation, to June 1942.

BOWMAN FIELD, Kentucky: June-August 1942.

LAWSON FIELD, GEORGIA: August-September 1942; while there, received 52 transport planes, all of which took part in formation flight of 800 miles when the group moved to its next station.

DEL VALLE AIR BASE (now Bergstrom Field, Texas): September-November 1942, during which time six weeks training with Second Division was completed and 10,000 men transported without a casualty.

OVERSEAS BASES: Air echelon arrived in Africa in November 1942 and ground echelon arrived by boat in February 1943; group returned to the States two and a half years later.

POPE FIELD, NORTH CAROLINA: Since the group's return to this country.

A summary of the 316th's Overseas Operations reveals impressive figures:

Flying time of power aircraft: 122,597 hours.

Flying time of gliders: 5625 hours.

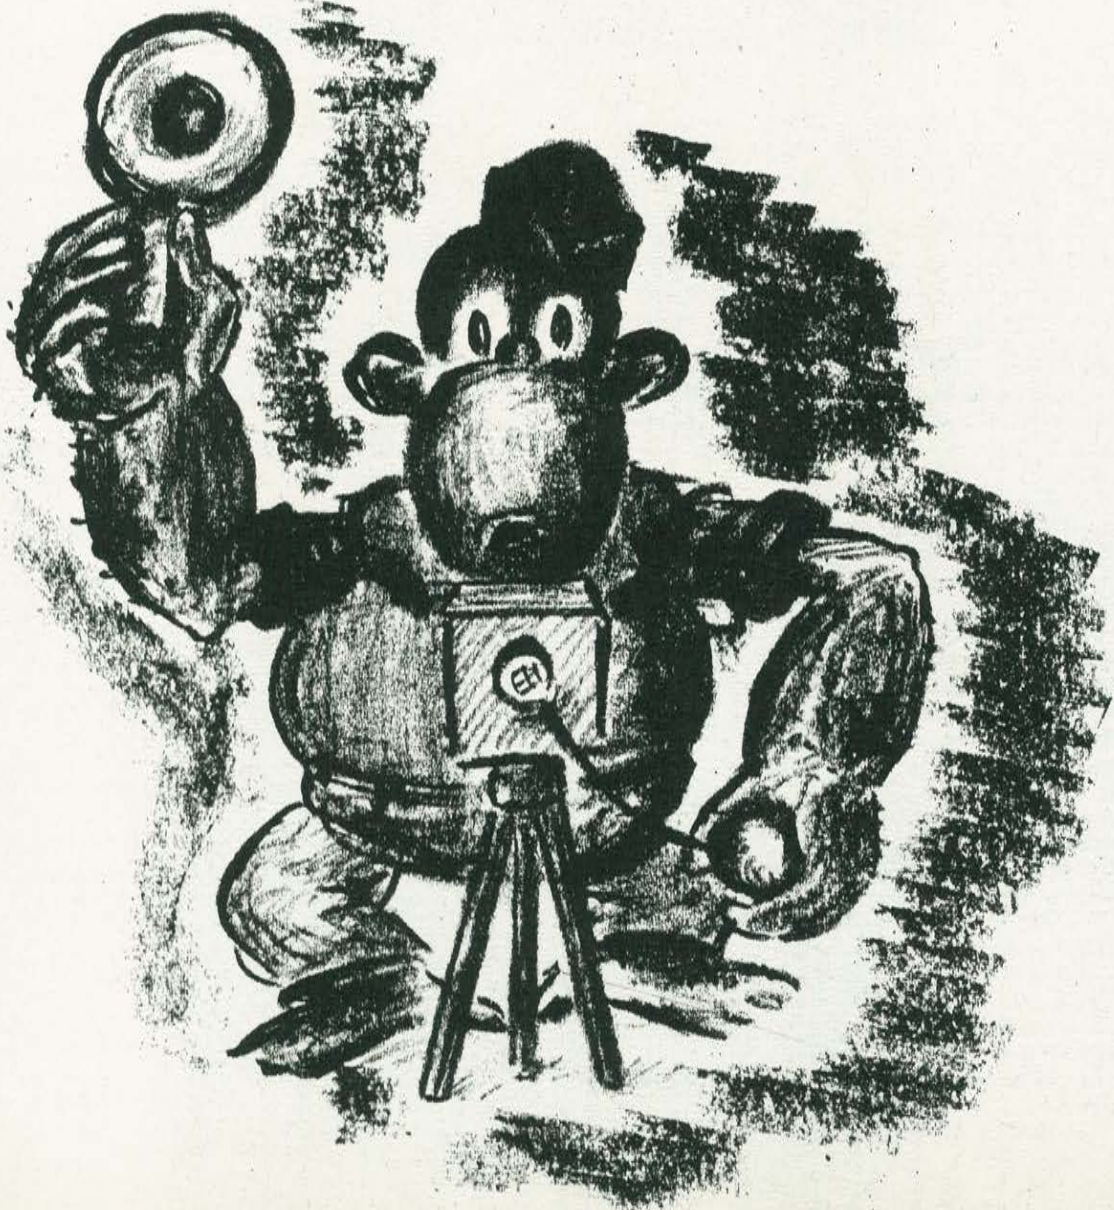

Freight hauled: 50,489,577 pounds

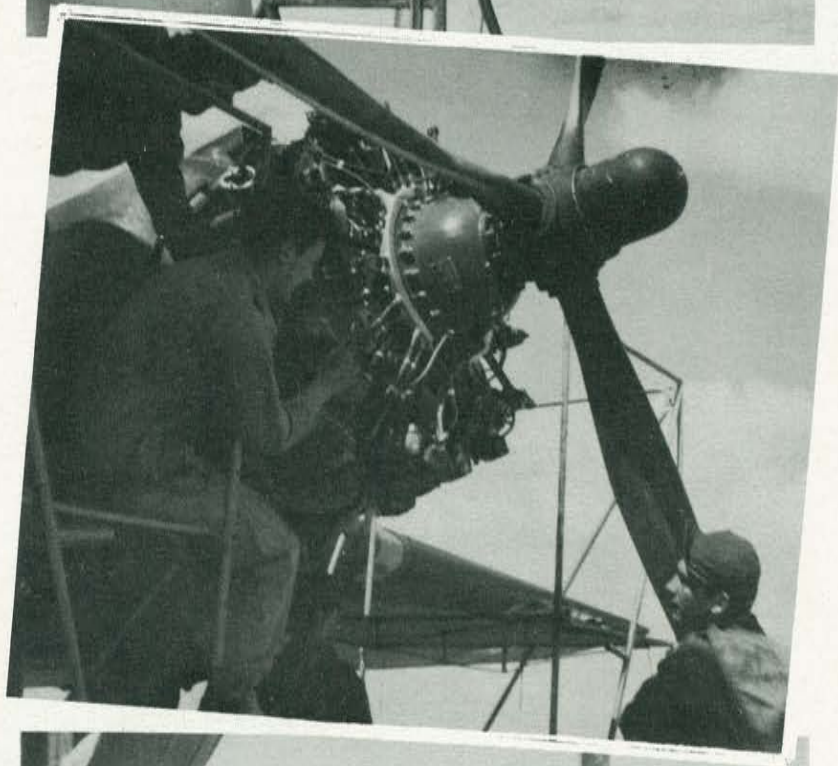

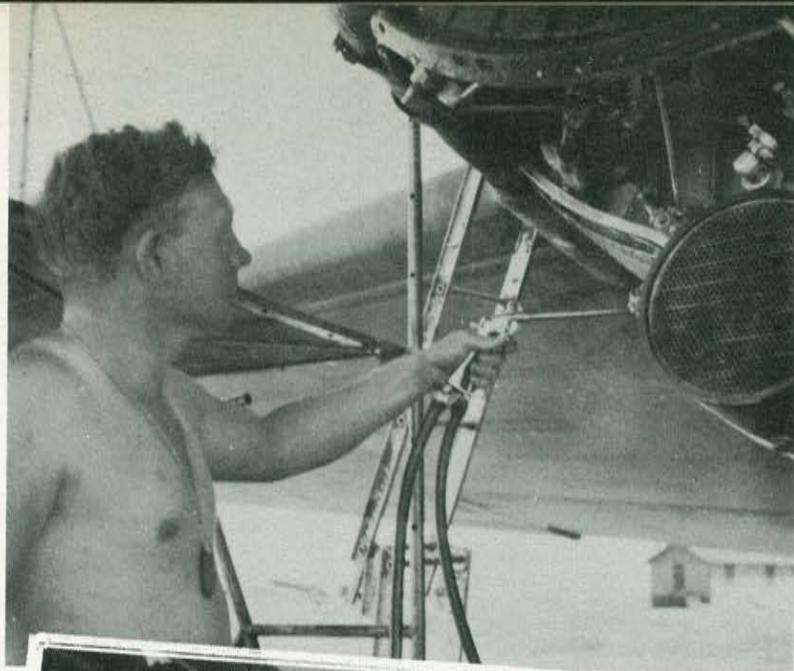

Patients air evacuated: 19,967.

Passengers flown: 106,089.

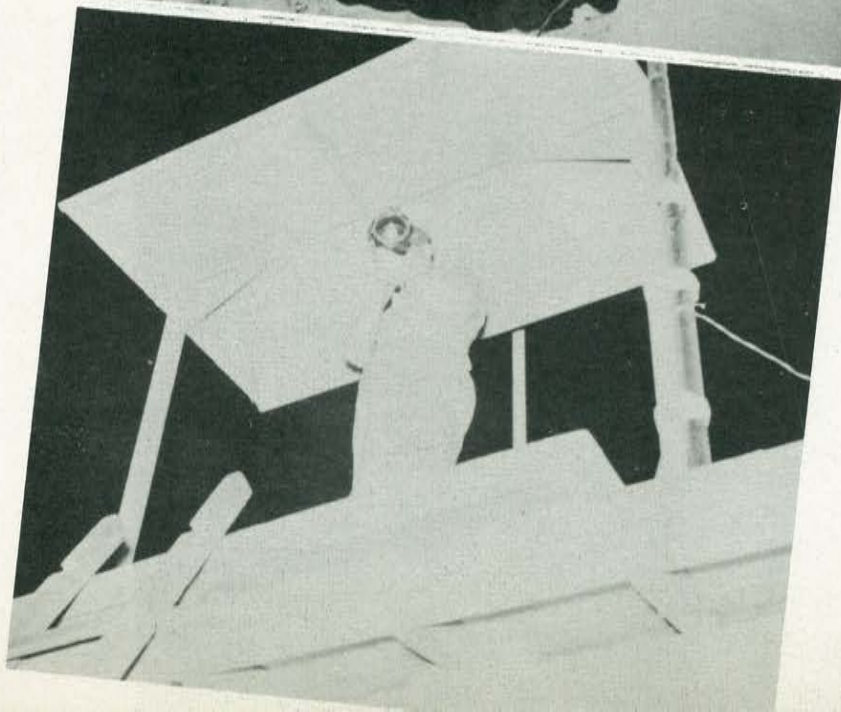

Airborne troops flown on combat missions: 5420.
