ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The research project within which this report was produced was supported by grants from the Sea Grant Program of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Agency (Grant No. GH-67), U. S. Department of Commerce (formerly of the National Science Foundation) and from the Interdisciplinary Research Relevant to the Problems of Our Society (IRRPOS) Office of the National Science Foundation (Grant No. GI-27323). Our thanks are due to Dr. Robert D. Wildman of the Sea Grant Program Office and Dr. Richard C. Kolf of the IRRPOS Program (now the Research Applied to National Needs Program of the National Science Foundation) whose thoughtful assistance in matters pertaining to the grants greatly aided the work.

Thanks are also due to Mrs. Beverly L. Laird, who verified the data in both the shorter, first edition and this longer version and patiently typed and retyped the manuscripts.

We especially wish to acknowledge the cooperation of the state agencies involved. In preparing information regarding their agency in accordance with our format, always a troublesome and sometimes irritating task, they have assisted mightily. Response from the agencies was excellent; only one did not answer.

That this work began several years ago as a project of the Interagency Water Resources Coordinating Committee, a volunteer group involving those state agencies directly concerned with planning, management, and research on the water resources of the Commonwealth, may partially account for this fine cooperation.

CHAPTER I

Introduction

This annotated inventory of state agencies which have statutory responsibilities involving the Coastal Zone of Virginia [see Appendix I] was prepared as part of our continuing study of problems associated with research and management activities of that most important part of our environment. It is intended to serve as a guide to relevant state departments or agencies, for other governmental entities, for industry, and for private persons.

The first edition, released in small numbers (about fifty) in March 1971, was merely an indexed listing of the principal offices and officers of those agencies then adjudged as being officially involved in the Coastal Zone. It is represented here as the agency listing in Chapter II.

In this, the second edition, we have also attempted more complete coverage by including material on:

- (a) Portion(s) of the Code of Virginia applicable to the agency involved,
- (b) Responsibilities of the agency,
- (c) Resumé of agency activities,
- (d) Statement of informational resources available to or maintained by the agency, i.e. library materials, data files, etc., and
- (e) Informational and technical services available, i.e. information gathered and available to outside agencies, analyses accomplished, and other relevant matters.

In special instances, we have also included information on districts or regional arrangements relevant to coastal zone planning and management in Virginia currently in use by the agency.

In every case but one, the agencies involved have reviewed the material relevant to their own activity, and it is presented essentially as reviewed by them, with certain editing for consistency.

An abbreviated format has been necessary. Complete coverage would have produced a massive volume. Should greater detail be required, it can be obtained by contacting the executive officers of the various agencies, themselves.

It is important to note that, despite the apparent multiplicity of individual units involved, it is more apparent than real since many of those units are integral parts of larger agencies, divisions, or departments. There is some overlap in the principal agencies, but operational duplication is less than one would infer from the listings. Efforts are underway to reduce or eliminate this aspect as much as possible.

Later editions may include additional materials considered useful and pertinent. We would appreciate reasonable criticisms of the present efforts, especially if they are accompanied by suggestions for improvement. Several blank format sheets are included in the back of the report.
