KEITH WILSON LEAPS HIGH to sink a basket during a recent game with Clarinda. Teammate Jon Jackson is also in the action as the Boone Campus Bears gave the highly favored team a real run, with a close game throughout.

Puzzling posters pose problem

By BUNNY REED

This is a variation on the Boone Campus "Whodunit" mystery: rather than being a case of vandalism, theft, or breaking-and-entering, it's a case of an anonymous service to the college, at no charge.

One Friday night in late December, approximately 500 posters advertising the Bears Basketball schedule were delivered to the Boone Campus. The posters were left in the hallway, outside the front office.

The school does not know who delivered the posters.

The school does not know who ordered, printed, or paid for the posters.

The school does not know who to thank for the posters.

Advertiser's featured on the posters claim no personal knowledge of the salesman in charge of advertising.

Doug Venney, manager of Tradehome Shoes in Boone, stated, "I don't know the young man's name, but he said he was a student at the Boone Campus and that he originally came from Colorado."

Although a name for the salesman is noticeably lacking in the transactions with all the businesses contacted, they generally agree on his description. Janet Bennett, owner of Leftwich Style Salon, describes him as, "A blonde, curly-haired young man who was very nice."

All of the advertiser's contacted agreed the price for the ad was reasonable and the posters were very nicely printed.

Med term class plan

A class in medical terminology is to be offered at Boone Campus.

The class, designed to assist those interested in the health field with common terms of medical terminology, will carry two credits and is approved by DMACC for 30 CEH's for EMT-As.

The fee for the course is $40, and those interested should contact the main office for additional information.

Grads take note!

Students anticipating graduation at the end of Spring Quarter 1982-83 (earning an Associate in Arts or Associate in Science Degree or Career Education Diploma) must file a Graduation Application with the Student Records office by midterm of Winter Quarter.

Midterm is January 26.

A student will be considered a candidate for graduation only upon proper completion and filing of the "Graduation Application" form. Any applications received after this date run the risk of not having the diploma ordered in time to receive it by graduation day.

While a student may complete requirements for graduation during any quarter, Commencement Exercises will be held only at the end of Spring Quarter, May 25, 1983.

Local printers were contacted, but none claims responsibility for the production of the posters. The administrative staff of the Boone Campus maintains innocence, as does the Bears Athletic Department.

Posters are up throughout the campus and are prominently displayed in numerous Boone community business establishments. They are attractively printed in blue ink on white background. Sandi Johnson, Boone Campus secretary, said, "These posters are certainly among the nicest we have ever had available for our basketball schedules. We do wish we knew who to thank for the service."

CRIBBAGE TOURNAMENT

The first indoor intramural tournament for this year has become a reality. A single elimination tournament has been formed with both single competition and team competition.

The winner of two out of three games will be the victor.

In the single's competition are Scott Kwapik, Tim Scott, Dan Nichols, Jerry Delibreau and Dan Burns, with two teams entered in the team competition.

NORTHEAST MISSOURI STATE INVITES TRANSFERS

Northeast Missouri State University at Kirksville, Mo., has announced that a transfer student may enter the university with an accumulative GPA of 2.00, except in a few cases.

Elementary education majors must attain a GPA of 2.75 to be accepted in the program, and social science teacher education students must have a 2.50 GPA prior to enrolling in the methods of teaching course.

All teacher education majors must have a 2.50 GPA to graduate, except for elementary education majors who are required to have a 2.75 GPA.

IT'S TIME TO BUY A CALENDAR

The DMACC, Boone Campus, Student Senate is now in the process of selling 1983 calendars. The money raised from this project will be put into the Student Senate fund to be used for the the Homecoming dance to be held in late January or early February. Anyone interested in purchasing a calendar, and who has not as yet ordered one, should contact Steve Russell.

WINTER INTRAMURALS

Since the winter months are here, the possibility of some indoor games such as chess, checkers, backgammon, cribbage and other games is here.

According to Pattv Long, a ping pong tournament is planned this month. She said that to make it worthwhile for her and anybody else involved to organize the Intramurals requires some people to GET INVOLVED!

Library theft

By DAN BURNS

Because of the theft of different magazines from the library, the practice of putting these magazines out for the students has been discontinued by the library. Any person that wishes to see certain magazines must now ask for, and then check them out from the front desk. The loss of the magazines not only serves as a loss financially but also leaves a blank in what should be a complete set of magazines that could serve as future reference to those needing information.

Leading the way in the theft are McCall, Glamour, Better Homes and Gardens, Today, Ladies Home Journal, Time, and Newsweek. Any copy of Sports Illustrated that has been placed out is not around very long either.

The theft of books from the library has also become a problem. The library no longer bothers to get any books on jobs, ways to get jobs, or anything dealing with employment. A 1980 set of World Book Encyclopedia has been ruined because of the fact that several editions have "sprouted" wings. The manner that the World Books disappeared leads the librarian to believe that someone was taking them one or two at a time and trying to build his own set. The remainder of the set has since been moved to a position behind the library counter.

Text books are left in the study carrels in the library on a regular basis, it seems. Students leaving their books have returned to find their books missing. The library is not responsible for any books that are lost in this manner.

Due to the thefts and the possibility of further thefts, the library has been taking added precautions in an attempt to catch those individuals responsible. Anyone caught in the act of stealing any books from the library will be charged with theft.

Because of the acts of a few, we must all follow the practice of checking them out. Things would be a little more convenient if the added protection were not necessary.

Holst donates second $50,000 to school

By TIM SAUER

Boone Campus of the Des Moines Area Community College is the recipient of a $50,000 endowment from a local businessman, Bertram Holst.

This is the second such gift that the local philanthropist has donated to the Boone Campus.

Holst's gift will make possible a new program, Farm Management, at the campus. Funding for the program will be from the interest from the gift and will provide training for area farmers interested in upgrading their operations and utilizing the current and future technology available to them.

The course will cover the newest and most efficient management techniques, as well as the uses of computers in the farming industry. When established, the program will be named after the donor who made it possible.

Holst has been engaged in farm management all of his life.

According to Lloyd Courter, Boone Campus Foundation president, the award is "representative of Holst's concern for education in general, and especially for the Boone Campus."

Holst made his first such gift to the school last year, when, after discussions about serious budget cuts and their effects on the school, an organization of local businesspeople "got together and tried to help out."

The interest from the first gift of $50,000 made to the school by Holst has been used to supplement existing educational and scholarship programs.

Students give to Salvation Army

CHRISTMAS — A TIME FOR GIVING. That was the spirit that prevailed over Boone Campus during the holiday celebrations, as students, faculty and staff donated money and food supplies to the Salvation Army for distribution to needy people. On Wednesday night, Dec. 15, during halftime of the basketball game, the boxes of food that had been accumulated were presented to Lt. Williams who accepted on behalf of the Salvation Army. Above, from the left, are Brett Anderson, Les Nelson, Joe Miller, Rusty Case, Dan Brzeninski and Lt. Williams. The food and money was raised from the chili feed and admission to the Christmas party.

How to survive an Iowa winter

By JAY STOFFERS

Winter has hit once again; the time of season when people would rather go into hibernation than to endure another year of winter blahs.

As Dan Nichols sees it, the main objective during winter is to "keep busy."

"Be involved in winter activities, do something, don't be cooped up in a house," added Brett Anderson.

Snowmobiling, skiing, ice skating or sleigh riding are basic ideas to help keep one from boredom.

But all too often one will find himself getting bored with these same old routines and then usually ends up in front of a television with a plate of cookies and a glass of milk.

"There just ain't no cure for winter blahs," quipped Alan Fisher.

If a person is tired of repeating the same winter activities every year, he or she might try one or all of these five, unique cures for uneventful winters.

Blizzard Walking: Take a walk in a blizzard and count the times one seems to be ending up at the same tree from where he first started. (Not recommended for persons with claustrophobia.)

Ice Swimming: Chisel out a hole in an ice covered lake or pond, take a dip and see how long it takes to turn into an ice cube. (Not recommended for those with hydrophobia.)

Fat Cat Rolling: Kidnap the neighbors fat cat and roll it up into a huge snowball, then use the snowball as the bottom boulder for a snow man. (Not recommended for those with a fat dog.)

Car Pelting: Climb on top of a favorite downtown building and count the cars that could be hit without being your caught, and then follow through. (Not recommended for the sheriff's son.)

Snow Filling: Pick out the person one hates the most. Creep to his or her house anytime between 2 and 4 a.m. and fill the person's car with snow. (This is definitely not recommended for those with a car of their own.)

Our readers say...

To the Editor:

The Christmas spirit affected several students and one faculty members in a special way this holiday season.

On Dec. 16, Jeff Ford, Connie Steward, John Harper, Tammy Crispen, Jerry Klemme, Kathy Hanson and George Silberhorn left campus in the school's van to visit area nursing homes.

While strolling through the halls of the Evangelical Free Church Home and the Eastern Star Nursing Home, the students sang traditional Christmas carols and George Silberhorn passed out candy canes to the residents.

Seeing the smiles on the faces of the people visited made the afternoon very special for everyone involved.

Kathy Hanson

To the Editor:

School life is the best!

The best life is school life. As we are students now, we cannot easily know the value of this.

I have always heard people express this opinion. In the real sense, there are so many things we do together in school. We learn together. We dance together. We play together, both at school and at home.

This is the way it is in my country, Nigeria.

At the end of each quarter we stage concerts for our parents, relatives and friends. These concerts are very interesting.

The greatest day in school is the day we finally say goodbye to the school, to the teachers, and to the other pupils who will remain in the school. On that day, the outgoing students, or transfer students, hold concerts and sing songs. These songs are very serious and they make everyone feel very sorry that the students are going.

After "passing out" from the school, the students will be in different places for work and for further education. It may not be possible for a student to see his best friend in the class for a long time. Some students in the same class never see the majority of their schoolmates for the remainder of their lives.

These are some of the reasons that I say "school life is the best!"

How to study varies among campus students

By LORI MCGEE

How does the average Boone Campus student study?

Very little, you might say. Actually, enough do study to find some basic guidelines and patterns other student might copy.

Many student find studying in the lounge amidst the whirring and buzzing of electronic games, and the chatter of students relaxing (?).

Some said they like to study in the lounge because they are within easy access to the vending machines, and the food from these machines "stimulates" their brains. Also, they can play one of the games as a break from their studies.

Other students find the quietness of the library more beneficial in preparing for a class.

Regardless of where they studied, however, the students had different methods for remembering what is needed to pass a test.

The method many teachers, as well as students, recommends is word association, or making up sentences using the first letter in each item needed to memorize. This method is workable, as long as there aren't 35 people in a class, reciting aloud during an exam.

One student said she slept on her books, which was uncomfortable, but it seemed to help.

Still another student said he loves studying — figures, but also revealed he wasn't talking about math!

Many students felt last minute cramming was useful because the information was still fresh in their minds.

"This could create a problem, however," said one student, "if you're unsure of what information it is you are to be cramming."

A basic rule of thumb is that it is a lot easier to study enough when you go to the class to know what it is you are supposed to be learning.

Reasons for attending campus

By TIM SAUER

Sports at Boone Campus, DMACC are a strong attraction for out-of-state students when they consider a college to attend.

Recent interviews suggest that several students chose DMACC specifically for the baseball program. "I came here to play baseball" is how Jerry Delebaeu, a player originally from Kewaunee, Wisconsin, majoring in business, put it.

Basketball is another popular sport. One team member from another state is Jonathan Jackson who came here from Savannah, Georgia, on an athletic scholarship. He is currently studying business and journalism.

Another reason mentioned for coming to DMACC is to be with friends who are already enrolled here.

The general opinion was that, for the most part, Boone is a good place to live, although it is a bit slow paced. Jonathan Jackson said, "it's less distracting, a decent environment," and Jerry Delebaeu said "it reminds me of home."

Pam Hagemann: small size, friendly atmosphere, it offers a wide variety of classes.

Diane Carmen: the people, the nice variety of men-many shapes and sizes.

Jeff Beidler: the free beer at Lynn's Lounge.

Brian Sherwood: small size, teachers help you out if you need it.

Christie Hoehne: teachers help students on a one-to-one basis if they need it; friendly atmosphere.

Saundra Meech: teachers help students individually, meet a lot of people.

Vonna McCauley: "Murder in the Magnolias," because it's a good time and you meet a lot of neat people.

Annie Rattenburg: the men! the men! the men!!!

Lori Novotny: the good-looking guys and the nice people.

Chris Berry: friendly people, good classes

Robbie Robb: different atmosphere than Wyoming, has a nice variety in people

Rec Club sponsors beer-chugging contest

BY DAN BURNS

The team of Rooster and Company prevailed over all in the recent beer-chugging contest held at Lynn's Lounge, sponsored by the DMACC Rec Club.

Competition in the team event ended when the winning team turned in a time of 19.1 seconds in the first round and 20.3 seconds in the second. The second place time was 24.1 seconds.

Five entries in the men's single competition included Bob Powers, Jeff Beidler, Dave Nichol, Al Fisher, and Steve Meadows. After a chug-off between Beidler and Powers, judges selected Beidler as the winner.

The women's single competition was comprised of only two women.

The final contest involved the use of a straw instead of straight-out-the-glass drinking. Entrants included Jennifer Westberg, Scott Lindell, and Dan Burns. Dan Burns was quickly established the winner of this contest.

Prizes awarded for winning doors

By BECKY SAMPSON

Felice Natale, Joyeaux Noel and Vrolijk Kerstmas were only a few of the the Merry Christmas greetings featured on the first prize winning door in the Boone Campus door decoration contest sponsored by the Rec Club.

Cindy Pio, psychology instructor at the school, received the first prize of $20 in the contest.

Although she first started decorating her office door "for the money," she soon became enthused.

"While I was working on it, students would stop and talk with me about the subject I had picked," she explained. "They were interested in it, which made me feel good."

Second prize of a $5 gift certificate to Godfather's Pizza was awarded to Donna Bildner, accounting instructor, and Rosemary Westphalen, journalism instructor. Their door featured a fireplace with Santa's boots emerging at the bottom. Peeping around the corner were the faces of the two instructors as they watched their visitor.

Maggie McCarey-Laird, English instructor, and Jan Aurelius, drama and speech instructor, received third prize, also a certificate to Godfather's Pizza for their door of hats that read, "Merry Christmas" along with the message in other languages.

The doors were each judged on originality, theme and creativity.

Judging was done by Kim MacDougall, Dan Nichols, Gregg Symens and Darla Dixon, all students.

Prizes were donated by the Rec Club.

CINDY PIO stands by her first prize winning door decoration. For her efforts to contribute to the holiday spirit on the campus she received $20.

Coaching Bears fulfills goals

By PAT KRUSE

Larry Hughes has the prestige of being a college coach, a part of his goals since he was a youngster.

Since childhood, he planned on making a career out of either music or coaching. Hughes studied as a music major for one semester at Drake University, and had professional status as a drummer playing for such organizations as the Des Moines Symphony and the school pep band.

Hughes then decided to work towards a degree in teaching and coaching. He received his bachelor's degree and went on for his masters at Missouri.

The list of classes he completed for being fully qualified included: general introduction to physical education, theory courses involving activity, anatomy and physiology, kinesiology (the study of muscle functions), basic courses in education itself, educational psychology, educational philosophy, coaching, first aid, prevention and care of injury, and administration of athletics.

Hughes lived in Adrian, Mich., until the eighth grade. It was then that his father decided to become a minister. The family moved to Carlisle, Iowa, where Hughes graduated from high school.

After college, Hughes got a job teaching in Stanton. After two years in Stanton, he moved on to teach five years in East Greene. Then in 1968, he came to Boone. His duties here included: P.E. teacher, baseball coach, basketball coach, and athletic director.

Hughes then worked in the insurance business for six years. When the vacant job of basketball coach popped up six years ago, Hughes accepted it.

He feels the greatest joy he gets from teaching is seeing his students succeed.

In coaching, he believes the biggest problem is trying to cope with the vast variation between emotional highs and lows. Hughes says that it is necessary for a coach to have his family behind him and involved in his work. Some problems arise when his team is doing poorly and the problems carry over into his home life.

He also said that there is great emotional stress involved. Hughes despises individual failure and not being able to reach certain goals as a team.

Hughes is very happy to see the Lady Bears winning this year. Their only loss this season was the season opener against a still unbeaten Iowa Lakes team.

Hughes feels the men's team has the talent, but hasn't been able to put it together. He finds it discouraging to play well and not win. Hughes believes his team will bounce back after regaining its confidence.

Students predict basketball outcomes

BY TERRI RUHDE

Since the boy's and girl's basketball season is starting, the Bear Facts Staff wondered what people predicted for the season. Following are some of the students' and players' predictions:

Lady Bears ahead in season games

By JAY SAWYER

The DMACC Lady Bear's basketball team opened up a sizable halftime lead and never let that lead get away as they put up their fourth win against one loss, by the score of 68-51 over Sioux Empire of Hawarden.

The Lady Bears had good scoring with four players in double figures. Sherry Fisher had 25 points to lead the way. Lisa Bell hit some long range shots and ended up with 15 points. Other scoring has Canda Ott and Lori Olson with 10 each and Julie Johnson had 4, Carol Godfrey 2 to round out the scoring.

In a game against Clarinda of Iowa Western, the Lady Bears kept rolling with a 78-43 blow out. This win was the fifth in a row to put their record at 5-1.

Sherry Fisher had 18 first half points, and ended up with 30 points for the game to lead the scoring again. Also scoring with high digits was Canda Ott with 21 points. Other scoring was Lori Olson with 11, Lisa Bell with 8, Julie Johnson with 4, and Chris Knight and Eva Vaughn with 2 points each.

Bears are back on winning track

By JONATHAN JACKSON

The Bears are on the way back to a winning season!

On Monday night, Jan. 10, the Bears finely came out of the den by defeating Creston Community College with the final score, 105 to 83.

Scoring in double figures for the Bears were Alan Abrahamson with 18, Jon Jackson with 12, Keith Wilson with 17, Larry Johnston with 13, Jay Sawyer with 17, and Mike Thomas with 18.

In addition to these high scorers, practically every other player for the Boone Campus Bears team scored or contributed their skill to help their teammates sink their baskets in this second game of the season.

Overall the Bears played a decent game, grabbing all rebounds, shooting 58.6 percent from the field and 70.8 percent from the free throw line.

Once the Boone Campus Bears established a lead early in the first half, they never looked back, accumulating point after point.

However, late in the first half, Creston did manage to cut the lead to as little as six points.

On Saturday, Jan. 15, the Boone Campus Bears will play the Kirkwood Community College team at Cedar Rapids. The team's next home game is scheduled on Jan. 26 with Council Bluffs.

Bears down to Sioux Empire team

Boone Campus, DMACC, men's basketball team suffered a tough loss to Sioux Empire of Hawarden in a recent game.

During the competition the Bears were down by as many as 15 points in the first half, but in the second half they stormed back to make a game out of it.

All scoring in the double digits were Mike Thomas, Jay Sawyer and Dan Nichols.

In another game, the Bears faced a tough Clarinda team and gave the 10-1 record team all that they could handle.

Throughout the first half the game was close, but Clarinda pulled away down the stretch to take a 105-89 wind over the Bears.

Double digit scorers for the Bears were Jay Sawyer, Dan Nichols, Larry Johnston, John Jackson and Allen Lee.

Go Bears!

BOONE CAMPUS LADY BEARS during play with Clarinda. Above, Sherry Fisher and Canda Ott are seen in play.

LADY BEARS COACH DICK CRINER discussed the play with team members Lori Olson, Julie Johnson and Chris Knight. The Lady Bears are having a record winning season.

Kelly combines job and interests reporting the Bears

By LORI MCGEE

Nobody is twisting Dick Kelly's arm—he works long hours at his job and loves it.

Kelly has the best of both worlds as he combines his love for sports with his job as sports editor of the Boone News-Republican. He's been a sports fan all his life, playing football, track, baseball, and basketball in high school, as well as golf and tennis in his spare time. He loved to watch games on television when he was younger, and would buy stat books, keep stats on the game, then compare his stats to the box scores to see if he was correct.

Although sports always interested him, Kelly fell into his occupation almost by accident. An accounting and computers major at Kirkwood Junior College, he was a traveling auditor when he saw an ad in the Boone-News for a parttime football reporter. Kelly would go to the games, come home, type up a story, and hand it in on Saturday.

Then he worked as a basketball reporter. In the middle of the basketball season, the sports editor at that time left, and the editor asked him if he wanted the job.

Now Kelly is traveling again, only this time as a reporter. He has been to the Rose Bowl, World Series, and many Iowa and Iowa State games. Although he loves to travel and meet people, he doesn't always go to other college or professional games, because he must cover local sports first.

Local sports include all high school and junior college events, of which there may be several in one night. This makes deadlines sometimes hard to meet, especially when he travels to a game, gets home late, gets up early, and then writes the stories the next day.

Kelly used to travel with the Boone teams quite a bit, but doesn't as much anymore. He claims it is easier to be objective when you don't get too involved.

Part of Kelly's love for sports stems from his admiration for athletes, and their importance in our society.

"I do feel they're important. I feel that if just one kid looks up to an athlete and patterns himself after him, and works to accomplish that goal, there may be one less criminal or killer. For example, Hershel Walker, who just won the Heisman Trophy. If some kid looks at him and decides to develop muscles like his and be like him, he may work hard at it and not turn to crime."

Kelly would eventually like to work for a major newspaper in a large city with a college or professional team, preferably a professional baseball team, his favorite sport.

His advice to those interested in entering the field as a sports writer is to watch high school and college games, then attempt to write them up. Also take a lot of English and Communications classes, and read a lot of sports magazines. He claims you can pick up a lot from these readings. Finally, he suggests getting a parttime job as a reporter. "It doesn't pay that well, but you can't beat it for experience."

New award for campus coach Smith

BY JAY STOFFERS

Success is the one thing that all coaches strive for, and at Boone Campus, DMACC, John Smith has turned the word success into an everyday occurrence.

Smith, who is in his 10th year at the helm of Bears baseball, has won almost 60 percent of the games he has coached. In his nine-year reign at Boone he has compiled a flashy career record of 192 wins against 132 losses.

Last season the Bears tallied a 41-16 record and traveled to Grand Junction, Colo., where they were among the 10 Junior College finalists in the nation. McAllen, Texas, and Mesa, Ariz., dropped Boone from the double elimination tourney as they finished ninth.

Coach Smith's efforts, as well as the teams', didn't go unnoticed, however, as Smith was named North Central District Coach of the Year, Junior College Division.

The award was presented by the American Association of College Baseball Coaches. The district making the award is comprised of these states: Iowa, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, and Wisconsin.

"It's nice to know that other people think you're doing a good job," said Smith.

Smith's success is also noted by the fact that in the past five years he has had 18 of his players drafted, and numerous scouts from different Major League ball clubs attend nearly every game and scrimmage.

"Hard work and getting those people (scouts) to have a little confidence in you gets them to attend games," quipped Smith.

"Primarily, the scouts come to see Boone (of the Iowa JC's). We are the melting pot," he added.

Smith, a native of Burke, S.D., has been teaching at Boone since the fall of 1967. Some of the courses he presently instructs include accounting, Introduction to Business, and Business Law.

"I've enjoyed teaching at Boone," said Smith. "When I first started we had around 250 kids. I've been able to watch it get bigger and bigger." (There were 731 students at Boone Campus this past fall quarter.)

Smith and his wife, Connie, have two sons: John Paul, who is a junior at Boone High School; and Scott, who is in the seventh grade. Both will more than likely attend DMACC at Boone if "Dad" has anything to say about it.

Besides his obvious interest in baseball, Smith is also an avid hunter. "You don't live in South Dakota unless you like to hunt," he remarked. And when he has the patience, one might even catch him doing a little fishing.

The upcoming baseball season could prove to be a productive one for the talent laden Bears. The players will be seeking to give Coach Smith a second straight appearance in Colorado.

"We'll probably do well, but that depends upon how our players will react mentally," commented Smith.

Coach Smith credits his team with having adequate team speed, good hitting, and sound defense. He added that consistency in pitching will be a much needed asset.

"We have a good group of pitchers, but they must be more consistent than last year," said Smith.

"Whoever pitches consistently will be in our six-man rotation," he continued.

The Boone baseball teams have won at least 20 or more games the last five years, and through hard work and determination the Bears will be shooting for six in a row.

As far as taking another bus ride to Grand Junction, Colo., Coach Smith sees it this way, "You always hope you have enough good players to get you there."

Rotaract—a new organization on campus

By DOROTHEA SCOTT

There were all those signs posted throughout the building recently, on almost every door and bulletin board and wall, proclaiming "ROTARACT" and "Important" and "Be there!"

Where? Why? What was I missing? It was puzzling. What was a Rotaract? Was it a "they"? Was it a "who"? Animal, vegetable or mineral? Maybe it was an acronym?

Lee McNair, the new teacher of Sociology at Boone Campus, DMACC, has now explained.

Rotaract is a service club; its purpose, mainly and briefly, is to serve the community.

Ask McNair and you will receive a gray and red-printed leaflet describing the worthwhile endeavor, which says, "Every Rotaract Club works on at least three major service projects annually — one to serve the community, another to promote international understanding, and a third, to stimulate high ethical standards in business and professions."

This new club started strongly, collecting food and raising dollars for the Salvation Army Christmas Drive. Sue Whittlesey was the chairman, Kevin Knight contacted the businesses, and all the members actively helped in the project.

Prizes given included a first of $25 in gasoline from Condon's service station, a second prize of a front-end alignment from R&W Tire & Appliance, and third, a four-wheel-balance job from Town Talk Firestone.

Prize winners were named on the last day of classes, Dec. 17, 1982, with Paul Headley winning the first prize; Kevin Pitman, second; and third, to Dawn McCloud.

The Boone Campus club is promoting international understanding by its existence, as one-third of its membership is from other countries other than the United States. Rotaract is active in more than 80 countries.

The Rotary Club is active in providing scholarships for Boone Campus students, and Rotaract shares this goal by providing vocational information to young people, especially in the professions. Both clubs aim to stimulate and reward high ethics and ideals.

The local Boone Campus Rotaract is young, as it just started at the end of the fall quarter, but strong, as it already has over 15 members.

Elections were held and officers elected include: Theresa Hadaway, president; MacMaurice Ijeaka, vice-president; Julie Ahrens, treasurer; and Linda Hurst, secretary.

Boone Campus, DMACC, is in the forefront in this area, as there is only one other club in the state, that one at Davenport.

Dean Kriss Philips, an active member of the Rotary Club, suggested that Jim Blaney from Des Moines come to the campus to talk to the students — and now Rotaract is a fact.

It is separate from its parent club, the Boone Rotary Club, headed by Max Bell, which sponsored its founding. However, there is a five member committee from the club for liaison.

Although this is not a social club, per se, the social benefits are there and are many. An example is a recent chicken dinner for the new members by the parent club.

Any college student, if an undergraduate, may join, or anyone else in the age bracket of 18 to 28 years. The dues are only three dollars a year, but this assures that participants are full members with the right to vote. The club meets every two weeks, or as needed.

Anyone interested, or merely curious, is invited to attend any of the meetings.

Selective service answers

QUESTION: Will I be prosecuted if I fail to register? If so, what is the penalty?

ANSWER: The Department of Justice is currently prosecuting men who willfully fail to register. Failure to register or to keep Selective Service informed of the current address is a felony, and is punishable by a penalty of up to $10,000 or five years in jail, or both.

IT WAS HOT AND SPICY, good and tasty, and it happened in the Boone Campus student lounge. The DMACC student senate held a chili feed, with the main attraction prepared by Darla Dixon and Terry Marquart, both student senate members. The feed was held to accumulate canned goods to be given to the Salvation Army to distribute among the needy over the holidays. Approximately 160 people took part in the opportunity to swap cans of food for bowls of chili, plus the extras of chips and crackers. Many took advantage of the "all you can eat" part of the deal, returning for seconds and sometimes thirds.

Nursing Department offers unique program

By BUNNY REED

Acting program chairman, Mrs. Nancy Handley, identifies the DMACC Boone Campus nursing course of study as a "very intense, detailed program requiring devotion and intellect from the students."

"Before entering the program," suggests Handley, "a student should be aware that nursing is a stressful occupation in which a person must be able to remain calm and efficient, regardless of how complicated things may become."

Handley also emphasized that Boone Campus "students are prepared in a different curriculum than in any other Iowa Community College." She says that the college is being observed for the program's effectiveness and success by the Iowa Board of Nursing and the Department of Public Instruction.

"This program has taken years to develop and has just been approved recently for this campus," she says.

Boone Campus currently has 40 first level students and 50 second level students working towards a P.N. (qualified to take the state test for a Licensed Practical Nurse), or an A.D.N. (qualified to take the state test for a Registered Nurse license).

Handley is responsible for coordination of the nursing department in the absence of Ms. VonGrabau, who is on a one year leave of absence. In the program chairman's place, Handley interacts with cooperating agencies such as Boone County and Mary Greeley Hospitals, where student nurses practice; participates with the Advisory Committee; assists the nursing faculty; and aids in coordinating the four DMACC nursing programs between Ankeny, Carroll and Boone.

Previously, Handley was a Medical-Surgical Nursing Instructor. After graduating from Iowa Lutheran Hospital in Des Moines, she went back for more instruction from Grandview College to obtain her B.S.N. degree. She has been on the faculty at DMACC since June, 1980. She is not scheduled to teach classes prior to a seminar in June, but she must maintain her own education and keep abreast of new information. She has plans to attend a "Teaching with Microcomputers" class at ISU in January.

Handley is married to Attorney Randall Handley of Jefferson. They have three children: Corrin, 22; Regina, 19, a student at Ankeny; and Ron, 17, a senior in high school. Leisure time activities for Handley include ceramics, bridge, flower arranging and golf.

Other members of the DMACC Boone Campus nursing staff include:

Mrs. Audrey Cooper, a 1981 graduate of Loras College in Dubuque with an M.A. degree in education; a 1977 graduate of the University of Dubuque, with a B.S. degree in nursing; and a 1974 graduate of Kirkwood Community College in Cedar Rapids, Iowa with a ADN degree in nursing. Cooper is now in her second year of teaching at Boone Campus, with a five year total in nursing education. Her husband, Paul, is a student at the College of Veterinary Medicine at ISU. The Coopers have two children: Tracy, 12; and Travis, 3. Cooper collects German christmas plates in her spare time. She teaches Medical-Surgical clinical nursing in the ADN program.

Mrs. Mary Jones is a graduate of Brigham Young University at Provo, Utah. Since graduation in 1971, Jones has taught in New York for one year, at the Lakes Community College for four months, and at DMACC since September, 1982. Her husband, Ron, works with the ISU Extension Service. They have two children: Jeralyn, nine, and Heather, seven. In her spare time, Jones enjoys cross-country skiing and teaching youth groups at church. Jones supervises a Medical-Surgical clinical rotation at Mary Greeley Medical Center in Ames.

Mrs. Cynthia Cory, a 1980 graduate of the University of Iowa, has been teaching at DMACC since September, 1980. Her husband, Michael, is a coordinator at Donnelly Marketing in Nevada. Cory has included furniture making in her outside interests recently, as well as sewing and quilting. Cory teaches Medical-Surgical nursing classes and Mental Health Nursing.

Mrs. Diane Potter is a 1972 graduate of the University of Iowa and has been teaching at DMACC for three years. Her husband, James, is the editor of the Ames Daily Tribune. The Potters have two children: Erik, nine, and Andy, seven. In her leisure time, Potter enjoys reading, needlepoint, cross-stitch, tennis, and swimming. Potter teaches Supportive Basic Human Needs theory, Body Structure, Restoring Basic Human Needs theory, and practicum at the Boone campus.

Mrs. Connie Booth is a 1980 graduate of the University of Nebraska Medical Center at Omaha, and a 1976 graduate of Creighton University at Omaha. She has been teaching for three years, spending the last four months at the DMACC Boone Campus. Her husband, Robert, is a dentist, and they have a two year old son: Nathaniel. Sewing, crafts, gardening and bicycling fill Booth's time away from the campus. Courses in Body Structure and Function, Dimensions of Health and Illness, Restoring Basic Human Needs, and practicum classes are taught by Booth in Boone.

Mrs. Elizabeth Rose Lenehan is a 1973 graduate of the University of Nevada at Reno. She has been teaching for three years at the DMACC Boone Campus. Her husband, Olaf R. Hedstrom, is a veterinarian. They have two children: Keldah, three and Anika, eight months. Lenehan enjoys antiques, refinishing furniture, and sewing in her

Center stage home for Jan Aurelius

By LAURA STOLL

To Jan Aurelius, being on center stage is a natural part of her life.

Ms. Aurelius is the drama, speech and communications instructor at Boone Campus, DMACC, with plans for a talent show to be held Jan. 20.

Auditions for the program, open to all DMACC students, will be Jan. 11 and 12.

Other activities of the department, include work on the spring production of one of Neil Simon's lesser known, but very entertaining, plays; God's Favorite, to be performed April 29 and 30.

In addition, April will be Creative Arts Month with the Iowa Shakespeare Festival observed this year on the Iowa State Campus. It will feature Iowa State, the University of Iowa and the University of Northern Iowa as participants. Aurelius hopes to open up some educational activities to the community to prepare everyone for that event.

Aurelius' goals for the drama department include a new lighting system and getting the auditorium in top notch condition for "quality productions", and invites participation in a strong drama club for the Boone Campus.

Jan Aurelius, a 1973 graduate of East High in Des Moines, attended Augustana University in Illinois where she was active in the choir, speech, debate and various honorary groups. She also attended the University of Iowa for her graduate studies where she was the president's public relations research assistant with a goal of developing the arts audiences.

Aurelius' mother and aunt both are instructors in speech and oratory skills, and another factor that drew her to instructing in these areas was her interest in the University of Iowa's top-ranked classical rhetoric studies.

She began teaching classes in English I and II, and in speech at the Ankeny Campus, and now has added composition III. She says she "gets the same kind of fascination and enjoyment out of it" as when she was studying classical rhetoric.

With a commitment to the ideas of creative dramatics, personal growth through speaking and analyzation and honesty, she feels students have an obligation to be honest with each other.

Her ultimate goal for her students is "to be able to express what is on their minds so that they can gainfully confront conflict successfully." She added that "with creative drama, there is no right or wrong."

Aurelius' hobbies include photography, pottery, weaving, and she enjoys music of various types. In her spare time she is an usher at the Des Moines Civic Center.

Confessing a love for the Christmas season and the desire to learn all she can about her Swedish and German heritage, she advises students to "get the most personally you can out of life."

Decision tips

By PAT KRUSE

Someday you may be asked—"Are you happy with your life? Did you make a sensible decision back in college?"

Ken didn't. He can be found at the local hamburger shop, frying burgers at irregular hours.

The people in colleges today are setting the foundation for their lives to come.

A major, as far as college is concerned, can be defined as a concentration of courses in a chosen field of knowledge.

There are three main ways someone arrives at a decision: 1) can't decide and is forced into major, 2) joins with others just to be a part of it all or, 3) thinking of career and setting goals, which is the most common reason.

Paul Nicklaus, a student at Boone Campus, commented, "I liked accounting in high school and the job opportunities seem good."

For others who are undecided upon a major, there are several steps to take in order to be satisfied.

The first would be to take tests to clarify interests and aptitudes. These results will tell you more about yourself and make the choice easier.

The next step would be to review your career interests and academic skills with your counselor.

After this, read materials that explain career choices and their relationship to major college subject areas. Also, talking to individuals who have made career choices is very helpful.

Finally, the college catalogue should be read thoroughly. This lists major areas with detailed course descriptions plus it tells the number of credits or hours needed for a particular major.

Malaysian student far from home

By MANDY McLAUGHLIN

Malaysia — an exotic sounding place to most Americans — is the distant home for one Boone Campus student.

The Bear Facts student of the month for January is Nurayah (Noni) Moon from Malaysia who came to the United States in 1981 and first attended DMACC during spring quarter of that year.

Born into a family that includes three sisters and one brother, Noni, now 19, was educated in a culture where English is the second language, accounting for her fluency in it. Her mother is a housewife and her father a police officer, now retired.

Noni came to the United States with her sister who graduated from Iowa State University last year and has now returned to Malaysia.

Noni's reason for studying in America is that it is hard to get into a university in Malaysia, and it also gives her an edge in the job market in her country to have studied overseas.

Noni had intended to study at ISU, but her high school records arrived too late. Now Noni says she has enjoyed DMACC. However, she is going to attend ISU next fall. Her major is Business Administration, and her favorite subject is math.

She went home last summer to visit her family. She says that the holidays that she has to spend away from them "is rough," but her friends helped her through them.

spare time. She teaches first level nursing courses, including: SBHN practicum, Introduction to Nursing Process, Restoring Basic Human Needs, and Nursing Process II.

Mrs. Sandra Chacko is a 1976 graduate of the University of Iowa, as well as a graduate of Iowa Lutheran Hospital in Des Moines. She has been teaching for five years, with the last two years being spent at DMACC. Her husband, Thomas, is a professor at ISU, and they have two children: Becky and Rachel. Chacko teaches pediatrics and maternal child nursing.

Mrs. Eleanor Moeckly is a 1980 graduate of Grand View College and the Iowa Methodist School of Nursing in Des Moines. She has been teaching at DMACC since 1980. Her husband, Ray, is a high school teacher and they have three children: Brian, 18; Kevin, 15; and Craig, 11. In her leisure time, Moeckly reads, camps, and sews. She teaches Maternal Child Nursing and Mental Health Nursing at Boone.

From serious to the trivial

By EBEREC. ANYANWU

COLETTE GUNNINK

Have you made a New Year's resolution?
Or have you decided that it wouldn't be possible to keep one if you did make it?

In order to discover what Boone Campus students had in mind for the coming year, several were polled with the following results.

Joy Chevallier: I will study hard in order to graduate in fall quarter, 1983, be more involved in the "Rec Club" program, then try to get other students involved in the program and get them to try some of our fresh squeezed apple juice.

Rich Finnestad: I want to get more involved in golfing so that I can lose five pounds.

Larry Hughes: I never make any New Year's resolutions because I can't keep them.

Juliet Ezigs: As I am majoring in Sociology, I want to pass my exams with good grades and to graduate on time. Then I will be able to go home to see my family.

Patrick Anuna: I will abandon bad behaviors, forgive people and then put more efforts toward my studies so that I can graduate and then go home and take care of my dad's business.

Lillian Megwa: I am majoring in pharmacy and need to study hard to keep my grades up. I want to become friendly to a responsible guy, read more novels, listen to soft music and disco tunes and watch TV.

Laura Stoll: I need to begin waking up earlier to get to school on time. I want to have more fun without discrimination because I like partying, dancing and a Liberal Arts student.

Sue Ellis: I will study hard to get an "A" in mathematics because that's my pitfall. I want to have a nice guy as a friend, because I like dancing, swimming, partying and having fun sometimes.

The holiday spirit observed with spirits

By LAURA STOLL

Monday, Dec. 13 and all through the place, a smile and a laugh from every face, a good time for cheer and well wishes to all. . .

The annual DMACC Christmas party and dance was held at My Place Lounge with KSO providing a sound system from 8-11 p.m. A cash bar was also available to bring out the spirit of the holiday season.

Donations of canned goods admitted students and their guests to an evening of fun and frolic. The canned goods were presented to the Salvation Army during the half-time of the Bears basketball game the following Wednesday.

The Christmas season was officially brought in by the many well wishers, attending the event.

Bill Frakes: Make it to more classes.

Fred Chesney: Promise never to go drinking and driving with Jeff Thornberg.

Jerry Delebrea: To stop gambling.

Laura E. Brown: To beat Tim Scott at Nerf-Hoop ball even if it kills me.

Gail Naberhaus: Go to class, and then party more in the "house of the seven dwarfs."

Nathan Webb: Cut down on my social life.

Laurie Ferrari: To go back to Northwest Missouri State University with my buddy, Arleen, to see Emmanuel one more time so he can call me "Fer-arrrr-rie."

Rena Mills: To be nicer to my mother.

Janet Kleinwolverink: Not to yell at my husband when I can't understand accounting.

Anna Sayre: To quit smoking.

Carol Godfrey: Stay away from the Electric Lady and Maddog 20-20.

Greg Symens: Gain 20 pounds so I can beat up Les.
