A BRIEF HISTORY....

The University of Central Florida opened its doors to 1,948 students in 1968. Originally developed to support the high-tech workforce needed for the Kennedy Space Center, UCF was originally named Florida Technological University. “Florida Tech” soon grew to include other areas of study, and was renamed the University of Central Florida (UCF) in 1978. UCF now offers 212 degree programs to over 60,000 students. UCF has expanded to become a vital force in the region offering quality education at over a dozen locations, including 9 regional campuses and 2 branch campuses at the UCF College of Medicine and the Rosen College of Hospitality Management.

HISTORIC PHOTOS

The UCF 50th Anniversary exhibit features prints of memorable moments in UCF history. Additional photos and a timeline of UCF history are available at: <http://www.ucf.edu/50>
