A publication for faculty and staff

In This Issue

CREOL showcases high-tech abilities to industrial community. See page 3 for story.

■ The UCF Faculty Woodwind Quintet will hold a concert Jan. 26 at 3 p.m. in the Music Rehearsal Hall. Admission is $5, but is free to students with a UCF ID. Performing will be: Nora Lee Garcia, flute; Janet Mascaro, oboe; Keith Koons, clarinet; Arnold Mascaro, horn; and Julie Fox, basson.

■ The first meeting of the Faculty Senate for the year is on Jan. 23, 4-5:15 p.m. in the Administration Building Board Room. The meetings for the senate and the steering committee for the spring are as follows:

Faculty Senate

Feb. 20, 4-5:15 p.m.

March 20, 4-5:15 p.m.

Administration Building Board Room

Steering Committee

Feb. 6, 4-5:15 p.m.

March 6, 4-5:15 p.m.

March 27, 4-5:15 p.m.

Phillips Hall, room 206

■ Reminder: Spring semester final exams are April 21-28. Spring break is March 10-15.

Graduates switch their tassels from right to left for the traditional marking of their commencement at one of the four winter ceremonies. The more than 2,000 new graduates bring the UCF alumni total to 79,000. See page 5 for photos.

Delfyett wins presidential grant for nation's top young scientists, engineers

Peter Delfyett, a professor and researcher at the Center for Research and Education in Optics and Lasers, received a presidential award honoring the nation's finest young scientists and engineers.

In ceremonies last month in Washington, D.C., Delfyett, 37, was named one of 60 recipients of the Presidential Early Career Award for Scientists and Engineers, which, according to the White House, is "the highest honor bestowed by the U.S. government on young professionals whose talents and potential are so great that they are expected to be leaders in the frontiers of science and engineering discovery in the 21st century." A research grant up to $500,000 payable over five years in support of Delfyett's research accompanied the recognition.

Delfyett, who came to UCF in the same year he received the "1993 Black Engineer of the Year Award -

Most Promising Engineer" from U.S. Black Engineer magazine, plans to use the funding to support research and education in ultrafast photonics. The technology deals with the vast information carrying capacity of light waves, which, he said, can accommodate as many as 5 billion simultaneous telephone calls transmitted through a single optical fiber about the diameter of a strand of hair. His research program will focus on developing the ultrafast optical devices that enable photonic networks to operate at high data rates.

Delfyett's research plan also contemplates the creation of new UCF engineering and physics courses in photonic technologies, as well as a community education program on optical science technology to be offered to public schools through the Orlando Science Center. The teacher-researcher serves on the Scientific Advisory Board of the Orlando Science Center.

Currently a Geneva resident, Delfyett earned his doctoral degree in 1988 from the City University of New York, where he also earned a bachelor's degree in 1981. He holds master's degrees from the University of Rochester and City University. Prior to joining UCF, Delfyett was a member of the technical staff at Bell Communications Research in Red Bank, N.J., for five years.

Delfyett, who holds six patents, is the inventor of a laser that releases the shortest and most powerful optical pulses ever generated from a semiconductor laser diode. The technology was commercialized through an Orlando company, marking its first availability through a U.S. manufacturer. He also has demonstrated a novel laser system using fast semiconductor lasers and high power solid state amplifiers as a medical imaging tool that can look inside the human body, non-invasively, without using ionizing radiation, such as x-rays.

Quality Education Expands

UCF's quality curriculum is expanding to include three more courses. In addition to the Quality Commitment Series, two customer services classes and a meeting effectiveness class are on the spring roster.

Upcoming courses include:

Quality Commitment Series: Feb. 6, 1:30-4:30 p.m., Research Pavilion, or Feb. 12, 9 a.m.-noon, Administration Building

The Quality Commitment Series is an eight-module workshop that reviews quality management and improvement principles, a systematic problem-solving approach, measurements, UCF's five goals and mission statement, empowerment and characteristics of a quality leader.

Providing Customer Service to Multicultural Customers: Jan. 28, 2-4 p.m., Research Pavilion, or Feb. 18, 2-4 p.m., Administration Building

Providing Customer Service to Multicultural Customers is a two-hour program that focuses on the interpersonal skills required to satisfy the different expectations of internal customers. Participants will also gain an understanding of the importance of effectively serving all customers.

Providing Customer Service to Customers with Disabilities: Jan. 21, 2-4 p.m., Administration Building, or Jan. 29, 2-4 p.m., Research Pavilion

Providing Customer Service to Customers with Disabilities is a two-hour program that will help participants identify some of the needs and expectations of customers with disabilities.

Effective Meetings: Feb. 4, 2-4 p.m., Research Pavilion, or April 1, 2-4 p.m., Research Pavilion

Effective Meetings is a two-hour seminar where the participants will explore the roles and responsibilities of both the participant and meeting leader for keeping meetings on track.

Registrations for these classes are being taken now. Call 275-4301 to reserve your seat.

UCF Art Exhibition Schedule

• "Established and Emerging Visions: Paintings by Arthur Rayford and Sculptures by Jim Casey, Ed Love, and Inell Moten" — Works by two established artists and two emerging artists will be showing through Jan. 31. A reception will be held Friday, Jan. 10, from 6 to 8 p.m.

• "Women, Courage and Resistance: Ravensbruck Concentration Camp Memorial Installation" — UCF Art Department instructor Julie Terwilliger curated this memorial exhibition which celebrates the courage and creative visions of the inmates of the Nazi's infamous concentration camp for women. Terwilliger supplements her own painterly homages with a multimedia presentation which is both a work of commemoration and serves to educate about terror, oppression and resistance. It will be showing Feb. 10-March 7. A reception will be held Thursday, Feb. 13, from 5 to 7 p.m.

Do you have an idea that would save UCF money, generate revenue or just improve campus conditions or safety?

Faculty, students and staff can submit those ideas to the Suggestion Award Program. Adopted suggestions could win you prizes or cash. Whether your suggestions are adopted or not, you could win a prize through the Suggestion of the Month Contest. This contest is ongoing. Suggestion forms are available in the University Human Resources Office, Administration Building, room 230.

Interested in joining the UCF's Women's Caucus?

The group will define primary issues for women in the university community and design an organizational framework to address those issues. For information, call Joyce Lillie at 823-2608 or Kathleen Bell at 823-5416.

Short Takes

APPLICATION DEADLINE FOR STUDENT AWARDS

The deadline for applying for the Florida College Student of the Year Award is Feb. 1. Twenty-three top college students in Florida will win scholarships totalling nearly $30,000. Students from any Florida college or university are eligible. Applicants must have completed at least 12 credit hours of classes during the 1996 calendar year with a minimum current cumulative GPA of 3.2 and be involved in college activities, community service, political activism and philanthropic groups or events. Applicants must demonstrate self-reliance by working to pay part or all of their college and living expenses. Recipients of grants, scholarships and loans are eligible. Students may nominate themselves. Winners will be selected by a panel of judges, including State University System Chancellor Charles Reed; Clark Maxwell Jr., State Board of Community Colleges executive director; James Wattenbarger, founder of the Florida community college system, Wayne Freeberg, State Board of Independent Colleges and Universities executive director; and William McCray, founder of the Florida African American Student Association. Sponsors include First Union National bank, Florida Leader magazine, Busch Gardens, Eastpak, Reason National Review, The American Spectator, Human Events, The Freeman and other companies. For information, call (352) 373-6907.

LECTURE SERIES OFFERS OUTSTANDING WRITERS FROM AROUND THE WORLD

The World Writers Series will feature Nicholas Samaras, Greek poet, author of "Hands of the Saddlemaker" and winner of the Yale Series of Younger Poets competition, on Wednesday, Jan. 22, at 1:30 p.m. in the Administration Building Board Room and at 6:30 p.m. at the Community Center, Holy Trinity Greek Orthodox Church in Maitland. The series will also offer William Matthews, author of "Time and Money" and winner of the 1995 National Book Critics Circle Award, on Feb. 13, at 8 p.m. at the Amphitheater, Holiday Inn-UCF. On April 2, the series will feature Bob Shacochis, author of "East in the Islands," "Domesticity," "Swimming in the Volcano" and "The Immaculate Invasion." Winner of the National Book Award, he will speak at 8 p.m. in the Visual Arts Auditorium. The series is sponsored by the Department of English, the College of Arts and Sciences, and The Orlando Sentinel. All events are free and open to the public. Readings and discussions will be conducted in English.

THIS ISSUE

This issue of The UCF Report is for the weeks of Jan. 10-16 and Jan. 17-23. It is the 12th issue of fiscal year 1996-97.

UPCOMING HOLIDAY

The next holiday will be on Monday, Jan. 20, for Martin Luther King Jr. Day. This will be a universitywide holiday.

CREOL showcases optical science technologies to industry, government for commercial use

The Center for Research and Education in Optics and Lasers is offering a low key but high-tech shopping experience for a select clientele during the post-holiday clearance sale season.

Industry and government officials interested in collaborating with CREOL are having a chance today to size up optical science technologies that have commercial potential in connection with the center's mission of translating research into economy-boosting products and services.

CREOL's high-tech wares are unlikely to become next year's "must have" stocking stuffers unless grassroots demand soars for such technologies as photo-thermo-refractive glasses for holographic optical elements or Fourier transform spectroscopy for rocket engine diagnostics, which are among the presentations of inventors at CREOL's annual partners' meeting, at the center's campus home. Nevertheless, says CREOL director M.J. Soileau, the technologies that are being described are capable of being "productized."

"For the industrial community, this is an excellent opportunity to get a quick summary of CREOL technology available for commercialization," Soileau said. Soileau also urged interested state, local and federal officials to attend the session, which, he said, also provides "an opportunity to assess the return on investment of public funds in CREOL."

Presentations will cover the following technologies:

- Photo-Thermo-Refractive glasses for holographic optical elements

- An x-ray microscope for medical analysis
- New and improved crystalline optical materials
- Fourier transform spectroscopy for rocket engine diagnostics
- Inexpensive ultrashort pulsewidth measurement
- High speed optoelectronic devices
- Parallel computer programs for scientific applications
- A new technique for pointing and tracking thru turbulence
- Development of a surface scatter toolbox
- On-line weld pool monitoring in materials processing
- Laser-Assisted manufacturing and materials processing
- Short pulse generation for diode-pumped solid state lasers
- Techniques for the accurate design of diffractive optical elements
- Advanced EUV source from a water droplet laser plasma
- Pulsed tunable ultraviolet laser
- Photonic security system
- Optical coherence tomography for screening of cervical cancer
- Detecting and tracking humans and recognizing their activities
- Z-scan: a simple method to determine optical nonlinearities
- A new improved performance coherent laser receiver
- The role of lead in the grinding of optical glass
- Probing the chemistry and mechanics of the polishing process

UCF wins six Davis Productivity Awards

UCF received six Davis Productivity Awards, second highest in the university category behind the University of Florida. The annual awards, presented by Florida TaxWatch, honor individuals and work units of Florida state government for innovation, creativity and smart work that measurably increases performance and productivity in the delivery of state services and products.

The awards were established by the late J.E. Davis and his brother A.D. Davis, co-founders of Winn-Dixie stores and founding members of Florida TaxWatch, a non-profit research organization that focuses primarily on state taxing and spending issues.

Betty Martin, office manager for Army ROTC, won an individual award for accepting added responsibilities and the introduction of efficient processes that saved the unit $10,000. The Accounting Review Team, a Quality Management team, was nominated by Linda Bonta for combining efforts of Sponsored Research and Finance and Accounting to improve cash flow in Sponsored Research, saving $30,413 in one year.

Certificates of Commendation were presented to the following individual and work units:

- Work Management and Central Distribution, two units in the Physical Plant, that instituted the automated software system Chiefs Advantage for Windows, expedited the generation of work orders while providing a means of tracking supplies and materials issued.

- Robert Hall, who works in Automotive Services in the Physical Plant, developed a fast oil and lubrication process that reduces vehicles downtime while improving quality and prevention services.

- The Client Server Group of Computer Services developed Document Management applications and work flow, Kiosk application development and support, and Network

An honorable mention was won by the the Alterations and Improvements Department in the Physical Plant for its efforts to improve customer satisfaction through the use of a customer survey.

UCF's participation in the Davis Productivity Awards program is coordinated through the Employee Recognition Programs section in Human Resources. Any UCF employee can submit a nomination for an individual or work unit. Nominations in the exemplar agency category are submitted by an agency head or top manager in a division, service district or state university. Citizens may also submit nominations. Deans, directors and chairs at UCF are sent the necessary information to submit nominations every May.

Athletics tightens financial controls

The University of Central Florida will strengthen the Athletic Department's business staff and has tightened controls over departmental spending to correct weaknesses identified in university-commissioned audits.

Announcement of the measures coincided with UCF advising the Florida Board of Regents of actions taken or planned to comply with audit recommendations of Ernst & Young, the independent accounting firm that audited the 1995-96 Athletic Department financial statements. In its management letter accompanying the audit, Ernst & Young noted "reportable conditions" that ranged from an "absence of appropriate reviews and approval of transactions" to "evidence of potential wilful wrongdoing" by a previously discharged Athletics Department employee.

"We are responding quickly and thoroughly to the findings reported by Ernst & Young and university auditors," Steve Sloan, UCF's athletic director, said. "Nothing less is appropriate. Our athletic program relies on public confidence and support for success. We have to earn that confidence and support in our business operations, just as our teams must in their different sports."

The Athletic Department will add to its business staff and enlarge oversight responsibilities. Plans include:

- Hiring a professional manager to oversee the department's business and financial operations. The administrator, who is expected to be selected within the next few months, will report to Sloan and will hold the rank of assistant athletic director.

- Adding another position to coordinate and manage travel arrangements so that those duties are separated from coaching responsibilities. The position also is expected to be filled soon.

Meanwhile, the department has tightened internal controls to address auditing recommendations. Newly implemented policies include requiring multiple signatures for payment of invoices, disallowing cash advances for paying tournament entry fees, accepting only original receipts for payment, and having administrative personnel handle and account for income from UCF-hosted tournaments.

The Athletic Department also has installed a new computer software program to better track accounts and expenditures and is taking other steps to tighten financial procedures.

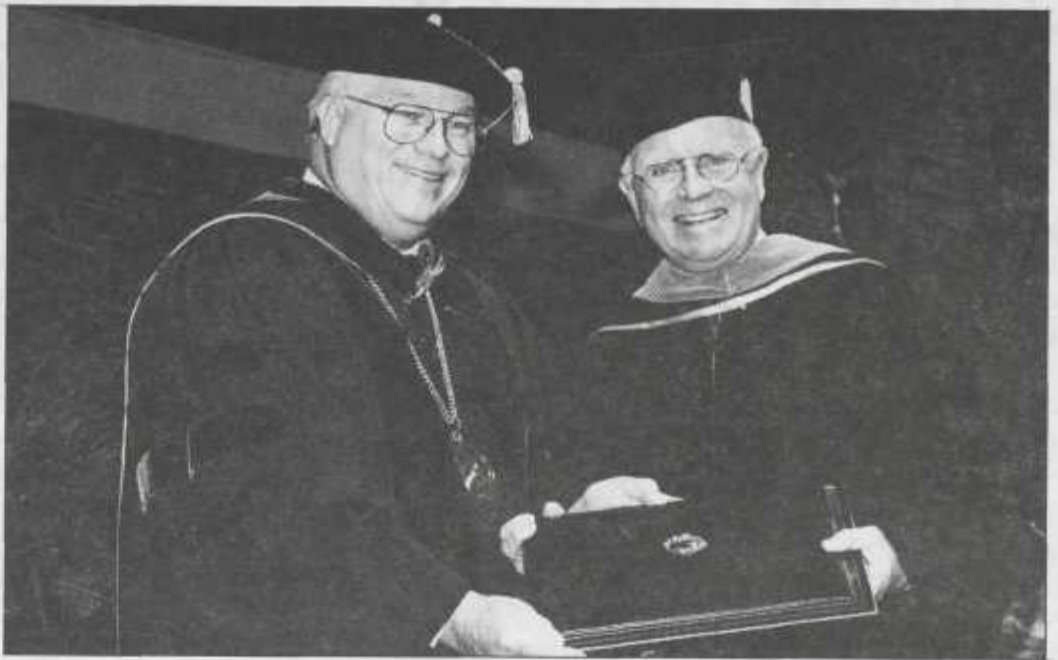

Middle, Bill Merck, vice president for Administration and Finance, presents President John Hitt with a plaque from the Employee Involvement Association, a nationwide organizations that promotes employee involvement in the workplace. UCF's Suggestion Awards Program was named the most improved program in 1995. Also shown are, left to right, Dorris Cannon, manager for Employee Recognition Programs, Laurie Bennett, coordinator for the program, and Peter Ensenat, assistant director for Human Resources.

Fall Graduation Ceremonies

More than 2,000 students received diplomas at the fall commencement ceremonies last month. Four ceremonies were held to accommodate the large number of graduates and attendees. Commencement speakers were Randy Berridge, vice president of CKC Consultants Inc., for the Colleges of Education and Engineering; Dick Nunis, chair of Walt Disney Attractions, for the College of Business Administration; Florida regent Gwendolyn McLin for the College of Arts and Sciences; and Olympic gold medalist Michelle Akers for the College of Health and Public Affairs.

Of the graduates, 1,749 received baccalaureate degrees, 405 master's degrees, 24 doctorate degrees and two specialist's degrees.

President John Hitt presents Dick Nunis with an honorary doctorate from UCF. Nunis, the chair of Walt Disney Attractions, was the commencement speaker for the College of Business Administration ceremony.

Michelle Akers, a 1989 UCF graduate and a 1996 Olympic gold medal winner in women's soccer, was the commencement speaker for the College of Health and Public Affairs ceremony.

PEOPLE

Employee of the Month

Name: Brenda Kashow

Title: Administrative assistant

Department: Academic Affairs

Duties: She reports directly to Frank Juge, vice provost. With him, she works with all of the faculty. They deal with promotions, tenure, sabbaticals, development leaves, grievances, salaries, awards and problems — anything that concerns the faculty. She works with the Faculty Union, Faculty Senate, deans and chairs. "It's interesting because our work encompasses the entire campus." She also manages Juge's travel, correspondence and calendar. Both Juge and she hate Dictaphones and much prefer the old-fashion interaction of dictation and shorthand.

Length of service: She started as Juge's secretary 17 years ago when he was the acting vice president for Sponsored Research and has remained with him over the years as he has been promoted.

Background: She was born and raised in Philadelphia, but spent more than three years in Germany (Frankfurt and Berlin) following World War II when her father was a secretary to one of the Army's generals. Although she attended an American military school, she learned to read and write German. She recalls going to the airport to watch the Berlin Airlift and a visit in 1950 to Bavaria to watch Oberammergau's "Passion Play," which is performed once every 10 years. They returned to the U.S. because her mother was concerned about the family's safety. She and her now-former husband moved to Orlando in 1975, then back to Philadelphia the following year. They returned to Orlando three years later to the property she currently lives on. She has three children: Christina, who is a registered nurse at Orlando Regional Medical Center, Laureen, a dental assistant who is studying to become a dental hygienist at Valencia Community College, and Wayne, who has a commercial towing business. She has five grandchildren: Heather, 17, is a junior at University High School and lives with Kashow; Jeffrey, 15, Steven, 8, Matthew, 8, and Michael, 1.

Hobbies: She and her family attend all the football games at University High School to watch her granddaughter in the marching band. She often acts as a chaperone for the band, traveling to various locations for parades and competitions. Next year, she will chaperone the band to the Rose Parade in Los Angeles. She also does volunteer work for the band. On New Year's Day, she worked at the concession stand at the Citrus Bowl and will do the same for the NASCAR competition at Disney. She loves to read novels. She goes country line dancing with her granddaughter, gardens, takes care of her dog, takes her mother shopping and on errands. She also loves photography and racquet ball.

Quote: "It's funny. I came to UCF years ago because I wanted to work close to my home. I never thought I would be here this long. But I really like my boss and the people I work with, so I've just stayed."

In praise of: "I enjoy working with her because she is so professionally responsible. She knows the job so well that she often reminds me of deadlines and chores that need to be done. Also, her pleasant personality makes her a good representative for Academic Affairs when she deals with people on and off campus. She knows the institution so well that if she doesn't know the answer to a question she usually knows where to find the answer." — Frank Juge, vice provost for Academic Affairs.

Newcomers

Mariangelly Rente, coordinator for the High School and Community College Relations Department in Undergraduate Admissions, comes from the Private Industry Council of Central Florida, where she was an intake counselor. She earned her Bachelor of Arts in Public Administration at UCF. Rente is married and enjoys reading about education and social issues.

Carrie Schuster, senior fiscal assistant for the UCF Foundation, enjoys in-line skating, darts and reading.

Gregory Seaton, director for the Minority Scholarship Office, was formerly a community outreach worker for Orlando Housing Authority. He earned his master's degree in education from Harvard Graduate School of Education.

Blanche Sheinkopf, visiting instructor for the Student Internships Department in the College of Education, comes from Montgomery County Public Schools in Rockville, Md., where she was a quality integration education specialist. She received her M.S. in education and supervision at the University of Wisconsin. Sheinkopf and her husband, Ken, have two children. She enjoys music, walking and bicycling.

Sherri Shields, graphics director for the Florida Solar Energy Center, was formerly the senior graphics specialist at Johnson Controls. She received her B.F.A. in graphic design at UCF. Shields is married.

Stanley Smith, professor for the Department of Finance, formerly held the same position at the University of Arkansas. He earned his Ph.D. in business administration from Arizona State University. Smith is married and has two children.

Vanessa Smith-Dorsey, custodial worker for Building Services, attended the Computer Learning Center in Chicago, Ill. She and her husband, Lucius, have three children. Smith-Dorsey enjoys reading and sewing.

Cynthia Spraker, director for Development and External Relations for the College of Health and Public Affairs, was formerly the development director at Second Harvest Food Bank of Central Florida. Spraker received her M.B.A. at UCF.

HOME PAGE DESIGN FOR THE INTERNET

Does your department need a home page? For just a modest fee, the Technical Writing program students are available for home page design services. To see an example of their work, refer to the English Department home page: <http://pegasus.cc.ucf.edu/~english>

Contact the English Department at 823-2212.

Or you can design your own home page with a little help from the publication "Using the Pegasus Mail Server," which students and staff can purchase at the Computer Store.

Got a new home page? The UCF Report will publish some of the new addresses.
