

Critical Tourism Studies Proceedings

Volume 2019

Article 9

2019

Identity Construction through Tourism Education: Voice from International Students

Carol Xiaoyue Zhang
Portsmouth University, UK

Xiaoqing Chen
University of Aberdeen, UK

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.library.tru.ca/cts-proceedings>

 Part of the Tourism and Travel Commons

Recommended Citation

Xiaoyue Zhang, Carol and Chen, Xiaoqing (2019) "Identity Construction through Tourism Education: Voice from International Students," Critical Tourism Studies Proceedings: Vol. 2019 , Article 9.

Available at: <https://digitalcommons.library.tru.ca/cts-proceedings/vol2019/iss1/9>

This Abstract is brought to you for free and open access by Digital Commons @ TRU Library. It has been accepted for inclusion in Critical Tourism Studies Proceedings by an authorized editor of Digital Commons @ TRU Library. For more information, please contact apaterson@tru.ca.

CTS 2019

Z

Title: Identity Construction through Tourism Education: Voice from International Students

Authors:

Carol Xiaoyue Zhang
Portsmouth University, UK

Xiaoqing Chen
University of Aberdeen, UK

Abstract:

Although tourism and hospitality (T&H) as HE programmes have achieved the “remarkable growth in numbers” (Airey, 2015: 13), their maturity “is still highly debatable” (Hsu, Xiao & Chen, 2015: 142). The downplaying of liberal education and the high reliance on a vocational approach are believed as an inherent challenge that prevents T&H HE from developing “well-rounded, knowledgeable and thoughtful individuals (Tight, 2015: 95)” and instead is seen as a specialist incubator for the industry (Airey, 2013; Tribe, 2002). Upholding the liberal education approach, this research conducts a multimode exploration of international student’s self-identity (re)construction. Specifically, we focus on how Chinese international students understand their self-development through their overseas education on a daily base, looking specifically at tourism and hospitality programmes. Data were collected through the combination with self-portrait and collage-making, being supported with semi-structured in-depth interview. Unlike previous research which has studied international students as homogeneous groups, this research prioritizes the individual heterogeneities—studying individual experiences as integrally embedded in students’ everyday lives.

Airey, D. (2013), “Forty years of tourism education and research”, Poznan University of Economics Review, 13(4),11-19.

Hsu, C. X., Xiao, H. & Chen, N. (2017) "Hospitality and tourism education research from 2005 to 2014: “Is the past a prologue to the future?”", International Journal of Contemporary Hospitality Management, 29(1),141-160.

Taylor, C. (1989) “Sources of the self: The making of the modern identity”, Harvard University Press.

Tight, M. (2015), “Theory development and application in higher education research”, Journal of Educational Administration and History, 47(1), 84-99.

Tribe, J. (2002), “Research trends and imperatives in tourism education”, ActaTuristica, 14(1). 61-81.