LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL
from
THE SOUTH CAROLINA STATE LIBRARY BOARD

December 1, 1964

To His Excellency, the Honorable Donald S. Russell, Governor of South Carolina, and to the Honorable members of the General Assembly of South Carolina:

Dear Sirs:

We have the honor to transmit the report of the South Carolina State Library Board for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1964.

In this report you will find a resume of the program conducted by the State Library Board during the fiscal year and a summary of the seven years' program conducted under the Library Services Act for the benefit of public libraries in the state. In addition, the report contains statistics for each public and college library in the state.

The report shows clearly that the main support for public library service in South Carolina comes from the local level, but that the great progress made in recent years is due largely to the generous federal grants received under the Library Services Act and administered by the State Library Board. Although much has been achieved, much remains to be done before public library service in South Carolina reaches a generally accepted standard of excellence.

Respectfully submitted,

Hugh L. Willcox, Chairman

TWENTY-FIRST ANNUAL REPORT SOUTH CAROLINA STATE LIBRARY BOARD

July 1, 1963 - June 30, 1964

“—So long as we in the South are content with educational opportunities that lag behind the national averages . . . we shall truly flounder in the path of economic and cultural progress, and we shall deny to our people their proper share in the prosperity of the world in which we live.”

Governor Donald S. Russell
Address to 1963 Graduating Class of Emory University

THE STATE LIBRARY BOARD

Established in 1929 by the South Carolina General Assembly and charged with the responsibility of extending and improving public library service throughout South Carolina, the State Library Board conducts a program which is effectively carrying out this mandate. The plans and policies of the program are set by a board of five members appointed by the Governor. The administration of the program is in charge of a director and a staff of eighteen, eight of whom are professional librarians.

The Board's chief concern is planning and providing for an effective state-wide system of public libraries for the citizens of South Carolina. Its purpose is to insure for every person a level of library service that meets his essential needs, for business and industry reference resources essential for successful operation, and for civic and cultural groups books and materials basic to a successful program. To implement this program of service, the State Library Board provides the following services:

- Grants-in-Aid
- Interlibrary Loan
- Professional Reference Service
- Consultant Service to Library Boards
- On-the-Spot Assistance to Librarians
- Preparation of Bibliographies
- Films on Library Service
- Exhibits of Children's Books
- Professional Library Literature
- Library Placement Bureau
- Service to the Blind
- Scholarships for Graduate Library Training
- In-Service Training Programs
- Junior Intern Program

STANDARD IDENTIFICATION FOR S. C. LIBRARIES

PROGRESS OF THE BOARD'S PROGRAM

The Board began its program twenty years ago when it received its first appropriation, established its first office, and employed a director. Progress made under the Board's program during the past two decades is easily demonstrated in the systems of county and regional libraries which now serve all but five of the state's forty-six counties, in library book stock which has tripled, in public library circulation which has doubled, and in financial support of public libraries which has increased 7 times. Not only has public library service improved in its extent, but it has improved immeasurably in its quality. It is simple to show statistically the extent of library progress, but lasting library progress is in the minds of the people. The public library and its resources have helped to form the intellectual climate which has made possible the acceptance of new ideas and exploration of new knowledge. The present public library program not only contributes to the cultural development of the state, but also to its economic growth. The insistence of new industry on cultural opportunity for its employees and for reference resources for its scientific and administrative staff has made the public library a prime factor in the location of industries in certain communities. At the same time the public library is making an incalculable contribution towards bridging the cultural gap between the rapid industrialization of the state and the general educational level of the people.

HOW ADEQUATE IS PUBLIC LIBRARY SERVICE?

How adequate is public library service? Although the extent of public library service in the state is good and the quality of service continues to improve, much still remains to be done to achieve the level of service which South Carolinians are demanding. The greatest unmet need is for an expansion of reference and research facilities at the state level to serve the executive and legislative branches of state government and the various state agencies. With the information explosion which is characteristic of our time, it is a monumental task to acquire, store, and retrieve for use information pertinent to the conduct of state government. That all state agencies feel a need for reference material and information pertinent to their program is evidenced by the number of these agencies which have attempted to establish agency libraries. No individual state agency is equipped to do this, and the result has been a scattering of valuable material and the frustration of any attempt to use the total collection by the individual interested in research. The State Library Board is equipped to provide this service centrally for all state agencies, to avoid expensive duplication of books and materials, to organize the collection for prompt retrieval of information, and through its staff of professional librarians, to offer assistance in reference and research. All that is needed to open the State Library Board's excellent book and reference collection for the use of state agencies is space, which it is hoped, will soon be provided through an adequate building to house the services and materials of the State Library Board. When space permits, the State Library Board plans to offer a high level of information and reference service to governmental agencies and projects, eventually to provide special information and research service to the executive and legislative branches of state government, and to maintain a strong central collection of local, state, and federal documents.

To meet the needs of business and industry and of the general public for more extensive reference resources than are available at the local level, the State Library Board is considering the establishment of area reference resource centers to be located strategically in the state. These resource centers would give area wide service, and their materials would be available on inter-library loan throughout the state.

At the county and regional level, the greatest need is for more books and more and better trained staff. The average book collection in the state still contains less than one book per capita, and the number of qualified librarians employed in all the public library programs in the state is still far from adequate. Through federally aided programs administered by the State Library Board, both of these problems are being attacked, but they cannot be solved without additional state and local funds.

STATE AID PROGRAM

The state early recognized its responsibility for adequate public library service at the local level through establishing a State Aid Program for county and regional libraries. This program is designed to encourage the establishment and to provide for the improvement of county and regional libraries. The present $1,500 in state aid for each qualifying county library is inadequate to achieve this purpose, but it has encouraged local effort in improving public library service and has been largely responsible for the high standards of book selection followed by public libraries of the entire state.

COMMUNITY BOOK DEPOSITS

With the establishment of county or regional library service in all but five counties of the state, the community book deposit service has been replaced by a "Small Libraries Project" designed to encourage the establishment of either county or regional library service in the five counties which still have not been able to achieve this level of library service. The three counties participating in the Small Libraries Project were Clarendon, McCormick, and Bamberg. The public library in the county seat of each of these counties is served through contract with a neighboring strong county or regional library. The service is financed through federal funds under the administration of the State Library Board and is conducted under a contract with the local library agency. In at least one instance the program has been successful in demonstrating to Bamberg County the feasibility of county-wide library service through cooperation with a large well established public library. On July 1, 1964, Bamberg will become a member of the Aiken-Barnwell-Edgefield Regional Library as a full partner in this extensive and excellent regional program.

INTERLIBRARY LOAN SERVICE

The interlibrary loan service which has been extensively developed through funds available under the Library Services Act is described at length in a later section of this report devoted to the Library Services Act. Basically, the interlibrary loan service is designed to supply the rare, the expensive, and the highly technical book to libraries throughout the state for the use of their patrons. The service is heavily used by all public libraries in the state. In essence, this service provides the resources of a large reference and interlibrary loan library to the people wherever they may live, either in the city or in the country.

SERVICE TO THE BLIND

A jointly operated Regional Library for the Blind is provided by the states of North and South Carolina. Both share the costs of providing the service on the basis of users of the service from each state. At present 700 South Carolinians use the service at a cost to the state of $8,610 based on $12.30 per user. The service is used by residents of every county in the state.

The collection of materials for blind readers is made up of "talking" books and periodicals. Included in the collection is everything from the classics to recent fiction. Even current periodicals can be borrowed in the "talking" book form. There are books for children as well as for adults, and all books are provided by the Library of Congress.

HOME DEMONSTRATION READING

The State Library Board and the Agricultural Extension Service cooperate in conducting a planned reading program for Home Demonstration groups. A list of 200 carefully selected books is prepared by the State Library Board and given wide distribution among members of the Home Demonstration Clubs. Members of the clubs who complete the required reading program receive a reading club certificate. Twenty-six counties have participated in this program during the year with a total of 246 certificates being awarded to members of the clubs.

LIBRARY PROGRESS DURING THE YEAR

Two young women were awarded scholarships for graduate training in library science under the Scholarship Program of the State Library Board.

All public libraries in Florence County are cooperating to establish a unified public library to serve the entire county.

Beaufort County Library began construction of a new headquarters library building.

LIBRARY SERVICES ACT

Under the Library Services Act additional financial support has been provided to state library extension agencies for the development of rural library service. These funds were granted to each state on the basis of a plan for the use of federal funds developed by the library extension agency. The present program will end on June 30, 1964, to be replaced by a new program to be conducted under the Library Services and Construction Act. In the new program funds will not be restricted to rural areas, but may be used for the extension and improvement of general public library service. It seems appropriate at this time to review the accomplishments achieved under the Library Services Act Program in South Carolina during the past seven years. The following report is a resume of the development of public library service in South Carolina made possible through the assistance of the federal government and the Library Services Act.

The years of assistance under the Library Services Act have brought a renaissance of public library development in South Carolina. In 1956 South Carolina had a basically sound public library program, but funds available were adequate to provide scarcely more than token service. State funds provided leadership in planning and some incentive in a State Aid Program, but could do little more. The program's assets were primarily public acceptance of the public library as a good thing and reading as basic to education; a strong legal foundation for public library establishment; statewide acceptance of the county or region as a unit of library service; and a small group of men and women dedicated to the improvement of library service, open to new ideas, and willing to accept change. These assets, coupled with a willingness to accept small gains in the interest of achieving greater goals, sparked the Library Services Act Program in the state.

The final year of the Library Services Act Program finds few goals accomplished—no easy ones were set—but progress toward the eventual achievement of established goals is astonishing. State level services have been improved and expanded to a point which would have seemed impossible a few years ago; one new regional system and three unified county systems have been successfully established; book stocks have been improved in libraries throughout the state; reference service at both local and state levels has reached a new level of effectiveness; and the recruiting and scholarship program is bringing into the public library program top level young people to fill professional positions.

The suspicion implied in Dr. Lowell Martin's address to the American Library Association in the summer of 1964 that much of the LSA funds had been used to aid communities and areas which had made no effort themselves is completely unjustified as far as South Carolina is concerned. Here grant funds have been used to build on strength and local effort. In no case have grants been made to libraries which did not provide at least 50c per capita from local tax funds for public library support. During the past two years this financial requirement has been raised to 60c—the average per capita local support for public library service in the state. This has not meant that grant funds have not benefitted previously unserved areas—the funds were always available upon the community's securing the required level of local support. It has been a principle of the program here to use grant funds to strengthen good local programs and to provide services above and beyond those which could be provided from local funds. Grant funds as a giveaway program without requirements would have been a fatal blow to local initiative and interest. Used as they have been used, they have stimulated local effort and have resulted in a better use of local funds and a more businesslike conduct of the library's financial affairs.

The state level program has improved with age and with staff experience. It is still weak in the areas of special services for adults and children. To develop an expanded program in either of these areas would require experienced staff which we have not been able to secure. Field service is fairly adequate, and field personnel try to divide responsibility for adult and juvenile programs. The reference and interlibrary loan service remains the most appreciated service to date. This year 1,366 reference questions were answered and 6,446 books loaned to fill a reference need. This program's weakness is one of staff—an additional assistant is badly needed, but in present cramped quarters, there is no place for even one more person to work.

Project II, Personnel, continues to produce desired results. The Intern Program had 15 participants this year, but only two scholarships were awarded. Summer training opportunities for in-service personnel were well received. Some 5 pre-professionals attended summer courses, and 5 professional librarians attended a graduate institute at the Library School at the University of North Carolina. The improvement of service at the local level is apparent. Those who have had an opportunity to take part in the training courses are not only more knowledgeable, but more interested in their work. The problem in improving this program is the almost total failure of the graduate school in the Southeast to provide opportunities through summer institutes and workshops for the graduate librarian to improve skills and knowledge in the field of public library services and especially in the field of library extension.

The county library projects (Project III) in Greenville and Beaufort counties have continued to make some progress. Beaufort secured funds under the Accelerated Public Works Program to construct a new headquarters building. Greenville is still concerned over the selection of a site for their building which is expected to exceed $1,000,000 in cost. The Florence County Library will become a unified system on the 1st of July, 1964, and will be the first county library project conducted under the new LSCA Program.

The Small Libraries Project which was a part of the larger Regional Library Project has been successful in at least one instance in bringing a small county into a major regional library system. The Bamberg County Library will become a part of the Aiken-Barnwell-Edgefield Regional Library on the 1st of July, 1964. In the other two demonstrations in Manning and in McCormick, there was little progress towards the eventual establishment of a regional library.

The Book Collection Improvement Project was continued for libraries which had not previously been able to meet the requirements for participation. In addition to this, the major project conducted under this program was a reference project. The object was to provide at the headquarters of each county and regional library system a strong central reference resource for the entire system. Grants were based on the size of the population served, and libraries were required to use the Enoch Pratt list as their selection guide. Sixteen libraries participated in this project at a grant cost of $38,543. To comply with the rural restrictions of the LSA, local libraries paid the urban percentage of the cost of reference materials purchased under the project. The ten libraries having urban populations spent at least $18,738 for this purpose. An evaluation of the project made at the close of the fiscal year revealed that every participating librarian considered the project to fill a real and important need. The most noticeable improvement has been in the areas of business and science.

A new project for this year was the Equipment Project, Project VII. This was designed to assist library systems in achieving greater efficiency and economy of operation through the use of mechanical aids. Grants were made to purchase equipment which was beyond the ability of the library to secure from local funds. Sixteen library systems participated in the program at a total cost of $17,216 of grant funds. Copying and duplicating machines were the most frequently purchased items in this project.

The program of Library Interpretation continued with no interruption. News releases continued to be sent out to both daily and weekly papers and special exhibits were arranged for such occasions as the Clemson Farm and Home Week. Supporting publicity was prepared and released on all of the State Library Board's activities and on many of the activities of the local library.

As the LSA Program has progressed, it has opened our eyes to as many problems as it has solved. Were it not for librarians who refuse to be defeated, whose energy is equal to imaginative planning and whose courage is equal to change, we would indeed be in a sorry plight. As it is, we can report progress and are hopeful that we have a clue to the solution of the major problems.
