Student Development says evaluation reflects recent issues, not 10-year period

JENNIFER WIG
DAILY EGYPTIAN

Although the North Central Association of Colleges' report reflected a negative opinion of Student Development, students and the staff of Student Development say it was a matter of timing.

Student Development is a branch of Student Affairs that handles all student activities and interests on campus. It includes all Registered Student Organizations and greek affiliations.

According to Nancy Hunter Pei, director of Student Development, this year, most RSOs are pleased with Student Development, and say the NCA's report focused on one problem instead of covering the entire 10-year accreditation period.

"During the NCA's visit, there were several negative comments by students toward the Office of Student Development especially... the issue of Registered Student Organizations and the accounting problems associated with the Student Development Office," read the report, which was submitted to SIUC in August.

The negative comments likely refer to a November 1997 incident in which a Student Development accountant inadvertently entered Undergraduate Student Government allocations for the National PanHellenic Council into the computer twice, resulting in an excess of

PART THREE OF SIX

This is the third of a six-part DAILY EGYPTIAN series on the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools' accreditation of SIUC.

Part Three explores the NCA's team's concerns about the SIUC Office of Student Development and its relationship with students. Future installments will explore the team's comments about SIUC's institutional advancement, assessment and a final wrap up.

The NCA report can be viewed online at www.siu.edu/~siunash/. DAILY EGYPTIAN reporters Jennifer Wig and Dan Craft can be reached at 536-3311.

Report suggests SIU move beyond negative image

NCA says solutions to alcohol control should come from student culture, not from outside

DAN CRAFT
DAILY EGYPTIAN

The North Central Association report highlighted alcohol abuse as a major concern for college campuses across the nation, and suggests that SIUC take action to combat its own negative image regarding alcohol.

Released in August, the NCA report points out that students in a 1989 self-study at SIUC identified alcohol as a concern, and the University has had several negative experiences related to alcohol since then. While the report said student input should be a part of a resolution to the alcohol issue, no specific suggestions were made.

"Obviously, we need some sort of cohesive approach to alcohol," said interim Provost Tom Guernsey. "The NCA report is really a confirmation of what we already knew, and they're right. We need to do something about it."

The NCA report examines two issues related to alcohol: the effect of alcohol on student culture and the community, and the controversy surrounding the Select 2000 program, which regulates fraternities and sororities.

Select 2000, which has been a cause of controversy since its implementation in 1997, is a nine-part plan regulating different aspects of greek life such as community service, alcohol use and grades.

The NCA report states student participation is needed in implementing such a system, and a new solution is needed for the problems addressed in Select 2000.

Student efforts to abolish Select 2000 took off last year with a push by greek leaders and Undergraduate Student Government to change the current system. As a result of that push, a task force composed of greek leaders and University administrators was

Provost confronts challenges with energy, fortitude

DAN CRAFT

When Tom Guernsey steps into the Anthony Hall office he occupies as vice chancellor for Academic Affairs and provost, he is greeted by an unusual office mate — a three-foot-tall stuffed Goofy doll.

"It's a sort of editorial comment from my wife and son on my having two jobs at once," Guernsey said. "They figure I must be a little goofy myself to take on both positions."

Guernsey currently functions in two roles — as dean of SIU's School of Law and as vice chancellor for Academic Affairs and provost.

Guernsey officially took the vice chancellor and provost position in May. He has worked closely with John Jackson in handling job duties of the provost since February. Jackson was planning to return to teaching political science, and Guernsey was to fill the position until a permanent provost could be found.

Guernsey became the vice chancellor sooner than expected when Jackson was named interim chancellor following the firing of Jo Ann Argersinger by the SIU Board of Trustees June 5. Guernsey also kept his post as dean of the Law School, which he was appointed to in 1996. With his two titles, Guernsey now has two offices, two staffs and two different sets of responsibilities.

"Trust me, two jobs are more than enough," Guernsey said. "Trying to build a schedule without putting me in two places at once is next to impossible. It was especially bad in the beginning, but we've worked most of the kinks out now."

Eugene Basanta is not surprised Guernsey took on such a challenge. In addition to working with Guernsey as a professor and former associate dean in the Law School, Basanta has known Guernsey since the late 1970s, when

THIS DAY IN 1983

- The City Council endorsed the Carbondale Halloween celebration for the first time by dubbing the weekend event City Fair Days and allowing beer to be sold at six booths along East Grand Avenue. But more than 100 community members joined forces to organize what they called The Great Alternative to Halloween, with a Contemporary Christian rock concert held the same nights as the city fair festivities.
- A federal judge struck down a state law requiring a daily minute of silence in public schools, ruling the measure was unconstitutional because it forced students and teachers into a "posture of prayer"
- The Flying Salukis soared past flying teams from five Midwestern colleges to win the 1983 Region Eight Intercollegiate Flying Association championships at Indiana State University.
- The Salukis became the No. 1 team in the NCAA I-AA football poll. A 54-21 victory over Indiana State, coupled with former No. 1 Eastern Kentucky's 10-10 tie with Western Kentucky, thrust the Salukis into the top spot in the rankings for the first time in history.

Student conduct commended

Damage to a tree was the only thing that caused SIU students to get a 'B' for behavior this Homecoming

KAREN BLATTER
DAILY EGYPTIAN

City officials are pleased with the non-violent and calm behavior on the Strip this weekend compared to pre-Halloween and Homecoming weekends of past years.

Councilmen Larry Briggs and Brad Cole and City Manager Jeff Doherty were happy no major fights broke out and the only damage done was to a tree.

"Everybody did a great job," Briggs said. "The students need to be commended. If a fight started, the students just shut it down."

Briggs, Cole and other City Council members and city officials were on the Strip to observe the activities of the traditional crowds.

About 1,000 to 2,000 people crowded into the 500 block of South Illinois Avenue both Friday and Saturday night. Police closed the street with construction barricades between 1:15 and 1:30 a.m. both nights.

Most of the crowd consisted of partiers, bar patrons and onlookers, who stayed past 3 a.m. both nights.

"There was a lot of standing," Cole said. "It wasn't that bad and it could have been worse."

Several people climbed and swung from a tree between LaBamba Mexican Restaurant, 519 S. Illinois Ave., and Stix Bar and Billiards, 517 S. Illinois Ave. Several branches of the tree were broken off as people shook the tree.

"The tree was the only thing that upset me all weekend," Doherty said.

People also dove off the roof of Stix and Sam's Cafe, 521 S. Illinois Ave. After the bars closed at 2 a.m., bouncers from Stix prevented people from climbing on the roof and jumping off.

Mosh pits, crowd surfing and women exposing their breasts also took place Friday and Saturday nights.

The Carbondale Police Department was 100 percent staffed both nights, with 55 to 60 officers on duty. The majority was assigned to the Strip and other student-condensed areas.

As of press time Sunday, the police department had not filed a report about the weekend activities on the Strip.

Multicultural students honored at reception

TRAVIS MORSE
DAILY EGYPTIAN

Raising a child and maintaining a 4.0 grade point average was no easy feat for Tamera Kain, who was awarded an Academic Excellence award Thursday, but she believes if there is a will there is a way.

"Sometimes, it's easy to get discouraged, but if you work hard enough, you can achieve anything," said Kain, a senior in English from Vienna.

Kain and 40 other multicultural students were honored at the fifth annual Academic Excellence Reception sponsored by Student Development Multicultural Programs and Services.

Academic Excellence was created in 1994 by Harriet Wilson Barlow, then associate director of Student Development Multicultural Programs and Services.

The ceremony honors multicultural students who have maintained a grade point average of 3.0 or higher and have been on the dean's list for two consecutive semesters.

Shawn Lampkin, a graduate assistant for Student Development Multicultural Programs and Services, said the award reception was a way to congratulate students on a job well done.

"For us, it's a way to recognize their achievements," Lampkin said. "This is important because, oftentimes, the achievements of multicultural students go unnoticed."

She also said the award should be a source of pride for the multicultural students who were honored.

"They should be proud because this is something they could put on their resume, and in a personal way, they should be proud that someone has recognized them for their achievements," Lampkin said.

Academic deans, chairs and directors from various SIUC colleges were on hand as each student was awarded a certificate of academic excellence.

Richard Rivers, associate dean of the College of Business and Administration, maintained that the awards could act as an incentive for other multicultural students to improve their GPAs.

"I suspect many students who see these people recognized will want to do better themselves to qualify for the award," Rivers said.

To put the award ceremony into context, a guest speaker, Pamela Smoot, was there to extol the virtues of hard work and perseverance.

Smoot, who was just hired at SIUC this semester as an associate professor in Black American Studies, used her own achievements as an example of how anyone can be successful in life if they work hard enough.

Landlord-tenant task force to meet tonight

A task force formed in April to make recommendations to the City Council about how to improve landlord-tenant relations will meet tonight at 7 p.m. at City Hall.

City Manager Jeff Doherty said the Residential Leasing Task Force will meet and decide whether they are ready to present recommendations to the council or need to have another meeting.

The task force was formed in April after three proposed ordinances brought before the council were not voted on. Council members decided to form the committee to further debate the ordinances.

The task force last met the first week of August and this will be the first meeting of the group since the start of the fall semester.

IBM loss could put 218,000 students through Harvard

With the market value that IBM lost when its stock plunged Thursday, its shareholders could have bought more than 85,000 Bentley Azares - the world's most expensive car - at $350,000 a copy.

The stockholders of International Business Machines Corp. may be grim for a while following the stock retreat of 15 percent, which knocked more than $29.9 billion off the value of Big Blue, the world's largest computer maker.

But they should put the loss in perspective. After all, it was less than the gross domestic product of Sudan - $31.2 billion.

And IBM's new, reduced market capitalization - $170 billion - still far exceeds the $70 billion of Microsoft Corp. stock owned by the software giant's chairman and world's richest person, Bill Gates.

Of course, Microsoft's stock market value, $475 billion, far exceeds IBM's. IBM stockholders also might take comfort in the fact that the government's gold stockpile at Fort Knox, Ky., at market prices, totals $44.9 billion, some $15 billion more than Thursday's IBM loss.

IBM shares, totaling more than 1.86 billion outstanding, dropped $16 to close at $91 following a dreary earnings forecast. Put another way, the IBM stock loss was enough to finance 218,000 students for a full four years at Harvard University, an average of $137,000 per student, based on the current college year's tuition and other estimated costs.

Those of a more nautical bent would calculate that $29.9 billion would pay for close to 60,000 Hatteras 50-foot yachts selling at about $500,000.

SIUC a whole new world for some alumni

ANDY EGENSE
DAILY EGYPTIAN

The bartender at an SIUC alumni reception Friday night did not have to worry about carding too many people. Most of the patrons were over the age of 72.

SIUC alumni from the class of 1949 and previous classes attended the Half-Century Club reception and dinner party at their 50th class reunion Friday night at the Student Center.

The Half-Century Club is a landmark group of SIUC alumni who graduated from the University 50 years ago. Two SIUC alumni, both of whom attended the event, graduated before 1933.

David Aiken, a former New York Broadway singer, said he came back to SIUC from his Bloomfield, Ind., home this weekend because he said the institution was instrumental to his successful singing career. He was interested in singing and joined the MacDowell Club, a student choir group, during his sophomore year at SIUC.

"My teacher improved my voice so much, it was unbelievable," Aiken said. "And wouldn't you know it, I ended up on Broadway."

He sang on Broadway for four years while performing in the New York City Opera and summer musicals. Aiken did not realize the changes the University has undergone since he went to school here more than 60 years ago.

"I got lost 50 times coming in here and almost turned around to go home," Aiken said. "I wandered around looking for this place, and it is an entirely different world."

Peggy Jane Dickmann, who was in the 1948 Homecoming court, said her visit to the reunion also sparked some confusion.

"I didn't know anything about the different buildings," Dickmann said. "I just didn't recognize anything here."

Dickmann made the trip from California for the second consecutive year. She attended the Homecoming court reunion last year and had so much fun that she wanted to come again this year. She attended the reception and dinner and rode in the Homecoming parade Saturday morning.

She said the best thing about going to college was her involvement with the Delta Sigma sorority and the drama club.

Aiken said the most important thing about his college experience was participating in different activities around campus. He was a member of the football, basketball and track teams while also singing in the chorus.

"There is a lot more to college than just sitting in the classroom," Aiken said. "I think students today should take it all in."

The cost of tuition in the late 1930s was $16 per semester. A four-year education at SIUC would have cost about $128. Aiken said he probably would not have been able to attend SIUC had it not been for the choir group because the MacDowell Club paid the top 24 singers at SIUC $12 a semester.

"It was important enough that we had to do that," Aiken said. "That was two-thirds of our tuition."

The education of some alumni was interrupted because of the draft during the World War II era.

Lucille Browning, a Half-Century Club member, started at SIUC in 1942 but had to wait until the war was over before graduating.

Browning said she saved all her money to come to college. She even sacrificed time to sit out for a couple of years of college to allow her sister to get their education also.

She was glad to be able to reunite with her former classmates.

"I'm lucky to be here in good health," Browning said. "For the most part, this has been a great turnout."

$7,500 in NPHIC's account. NPHIC officials spent $5,659.32 before the error was noticed.

In November 1998, USG unanimously passed a declaration demanding Student Development not to use the Student Organization Activity Fund or student fee money to correct the problem.

But according to Pei, the blunder was corrected with student fee funds. Pei also said members of the NCA team never spoke with Student Development officials about the problems — something she thinks is unfair.

"I would agree that the [accounting] issues that were raised were issues that I think were of student concern at the moment when the report was written," Pei said.

"I don't know that it covered a 10-year review of Student Development. I don't know that it was a fair representation of Student Development."

As a doctoral degree-granting institution, SIUC is periodically reviewed and accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools. An NCA team visited SIUC from April 12-14 to gather information for its evaluation.

During its visit, the team reviewed documents, including SIUC's self study, course catalogs, handbooks and financial reports, and met with numerous students, faculty, staff, administrators, constituency group heads and fiscal officers.

The team summarized SIUC's strengths and challenges in its official report and offered suggestions for improvements. Accreditation, which SIUC was granted, is based on five criteria, including having clear and publicly stated purposes, effectively organizing its resources, accomplishing its goals and purpose and demonstrating integrity in its practices.

Mario Burton, the finance committee chair for Undergraduate Student Government, said he disagrees with the report comments about Student Development and said he thinks the office has made an effort to work with students.

"I don't think Student Development and students had an ongoing relationship last year," said Burton, a sophomore in management information systems from Chicago. "I think they're trying to improve that and get [the students] involved."

USG president Sean Henry agrees with Burton.

"They have made an improvement in accounting," said Henry, a senior in political science from Chicago. "I heard a lot of complaints last year, and I haven't heard any this year."

Pei said she looks back on the error with regret, but also understanding.

"Things get changed, that's life," said Pei. "We took a lot of hits over it, and I still take a deep breath about it periodically."

Pei said the arrival of Kathy Lunden, a new accountant hired in December, signifies growth and change within Student Development.

Lunden was hired as an Account Technician I. Since being promoted, she has worked on the Oracle accounting program, also known as the Administrative Information System, which should be operational within the next year.

Lunden said by entering the information into the computer system, errors are more easily corrected.

"It would make my day much easier," said Lunden. "Anything I leave, I have to do tomorrow. I'm trying to get through the day and make sure tomorrow is easy."

JEFF CURRY - DAILY EGYPTIAN

Tom Guernsey, dean of the SIU School of Law and vice chancellor for Academic Affairs and provost, enjoys scuba diving and underwater photography when he is not balancing time between his two jobs at SIUC.

PROVOST

they did graduate work together at Temple University.

"He's a high-energy, very dedicated person, and without that, what he's doing just wouldn't be possible," Basanta said. "If anyone could do it, Tom is the one, but I have to wonder how much strain it puts in him."

Guernsey admits his positions leave him with little time for other pursuits.

"The obligations of the job keep me here from early to late," Guernsey said. "It doesn't leave me with a lot of free time."

Guernsey's post in the Law School is demanding enough, Basanta said. Unlike most deans, the Law School has its own Admissions and Records Department, registrar and other groups most deans do not have to deal with.

In addition to checking in with his associate deans in the Law School and ensuring everything there runs smoothly, Guernsey has a wide range of responsibilities as vice chancellor for Academic Affairs.

He is responsible for reviewing the University's curriculum and courses and ensuring SIUC programs are kept at acceptable levels. He also represents the administration on committees and task forces. Some of Guernsey's current projects include serving on the search committee for a new vice chancellor of Student Affairs and working with greek leaders on alternatives to Select 2000.

"All those responsibilities add up to a pretty full schedule just about every day," Guernsey said.

Jackson said the time crunch is not unusual for someone in Guernsey's place.

"I doubt he has much spare time," Jackson said. "One tends not to have a life in these jobs."

With so much of his time devoted to his vice chancellor duties, Guernsey has left much of the Law School in the hands of his associate deans. While he still maintains an office in the Law School and tries to spend at least an hour there every day, most of the routine traffic is in someone else's hands.

"There's just no possible way I could do it without all the help I've gotten from my associates, especially everyone at the Law School," Guernsey said. "They're working just as hard as I am here."

When he's not running between Anthony Hall and the Law School, Guernsey likes to grab a wet suit and an air tank and scuba dive. While he's down there, he also shoots underwater photographs.

"That's my hobby whenever I do have some extra time," Guernsey said. "I haven't gotten out much lately, though. I try to spend what time I do have with my family, and even that has been scarce."

Free time will be easier for Guernsey to find when July 1 rolls around.

"That's when we will be getting a new provost and I can go back to the Law School," Guernsey said. "The Law School is a great place. There's a lot going on there. I look forward to getting back to it."

Guernsey is not a candidate for the permanent provost position. A search for candidates to fill that position is expected to begin within the next two or three months.

"We certainly appreciate Tom's efforts over the last few months," Jackson said. "I don't think it would be a realistic career choice for anyone, but Tom has done everything we've asked and then some in his time as provost."

"That time has been a learning experience for Guernsey, and something he said will serve him well ever, after he goes back to the Law School.

"I think I learned more about the University in the last 10 months than I did in two and a half years at the Law School," Guernsey said. "I have actually been enjoying the position, and I'll miss it."

In addition to packing Goofy for the move across campus, there's one other thing Guernsey will have to deal with when returning to the Law School.

"They gave me a reserved parking space in front of Anthony Hall. That was one of the few perks of the job," Guernsey said. "When I leave here, I'll have to go back to fighting for a spot."

And the winner is...

Selena Johnson, an undecided sophomore from East St. Louis, was crowned Miss Ebony Saturday night during the 28th annual pageant sponsored by the Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity.

Judged on originality, poise, talent and impromptu questioning, Johnson received a $700 scholarship and other assorted prizes.

Following Johnson was first runner-up Kellin Jordan, second runner-up Nikkie Cummings and third runner-up Lynette McCray.

The "most dedicated" award went to Shutoka Jefferson, who received a 50-disc Sony CD changer, a 25" color television set and a DVD player, and Selena Johnson received the "most advertising sold" award and was given a Pentium 3 computer.

formed to explore the problems associated with Select 2000, especially the alcohol restrictions.

"What is currently going on is great because it has been very much student-driven," Quernsey said.

For non-greek students, standards regarding alcohol fall under SIUC's Student Conduct Code. In addition to applying federal, state and local laws pertaining to alcohol and illicit drugs, the University can take additional disciplinary action including reprimand, suspension or probation.

Cases can also be referred to the Student Judicial Affairs Board.

"The crux of the issue, and it can be applied to the wider debate, is determining what kind of alcohol policy we will have on this campus," said Quernsey, who also heads the Select 2000 task force.

"I don't know anybody who actually wants to keep Select 2000, but there has to be some kind of order to fall back on."

The new plan for greeks, called the SIUC Greek Millennium Initiative, was submitted to interim Chancellor John Jackson Oct. 1.

"We're hoping to have this in place by next semester, but at this point, we don't know for sure if that will be possible," said Jon Andrews, president of the Sigma Pi fraternity and a member of the task force.

"The goal is to implement a program that will work for our greek system here at SIU."

Andrews said the plan is a perfect example of students getting involved in their own future. This matches the NCA recommendation that a "solution, if there is one, must come from within the student culture rather than from the outside."

Select 2000 is the only alcohol-control program mentioned in the NCA report. While the report recommended SIUC attempt to move beyond its past negative image regarding alcohol, no specific suggestions were made. The report did encourage student involvement in any new policies or programs.

The Millennium Initiative seeks to change four of the nine goals outlined in Select 2000. In addition to allowing three alcoholic social functions each semester and allowing fraternity members over the age of 21 to possess alcohol in fraternity houses, the initiative calls for higher standards of campus participation and community service by greek organizations.

The minimum grade requirements, currently set by the University, would fall under the discretion of each group's national organization.

Non-greek students would not be affected by the Millennium Initiative.

"I think our proposal is the best-suited program we could give them," said Inter-Greek Council President Brienne Cichella. "We worked out every angle and kink, and it's a solid plan. The student members of the task force really put this one together."

Katie [Sermersheim, Assistant Director of Student Development] and Jean [Paratore, associate vice chancellor for Student Affairs] were supportive of the effort and time we've put into this."

"I don't know if they agreed with us, but at least they listened, and that's a positive thing," Andrews said. "Given the current dissatisfaction with Student Development, it would really be in their best interests to do something that benefits the students."

The Millennium Initiative marks the second time the Greek system has offered an alternative to Select 2000. A plan called The Challenge was not acted on by University administrators in 1997.

Interfraternity Council President Matt Arnold agreed that alcohol regulations are the most controversial part of Select 2000, but said simply banning it will not work.

"Straight-out prohibiting it just won't work," Arnold said. "What we need to do is educate people on how to use alcohol correctly and safely."

"Some people say there is a trend toward substance-free housing across the nation, and they may be right, but that doesn't mean it works."

Given the current dissatisfaction with Student Development, it would really be in their best interests to do something that benefits the students.

JUSTIN JONES - DAILY EGYPTIAN

Though officials described events on South Illinois Avenue as relatively mellow this weekend, mosh pits Saturday night left some Strip-goers bloody and bruised. Other revelers dove from trees and rooftops, and a few women exposed their breasts, but no major incidents were reported.

relaxed as they stayed behind barricades and off to the side of the crowds. Cole said there was a good relationship between the students and the police that has not existed in previous years.

"They seemed to be pretty respectful of each other," he said. "[The police] are non-confrontational and that seems to work."

Sgt. Hank Banyeky of the Carbondale Police Department said the weekend was pretty quiet compared to other pre-Halloween weekends. He said there were no major incidents, and only alcohol arrests were made.

Every weekend this semester, the Strip has been closed around 2 a.m. for 30 to 45 minutes by crowds of 500 to 1,000 people.

Last year, the crowd was deemed peaceful by officials, even though there was a car turned over and bottles thrown at police vehicles. This year, no similar incidents were reported.

City officials are concerned about the upcoming weekend and the infamous Halloween tradition, even though SIUC and the bars on the Strip will be closed for fall break.

This is the last year of the five-year plan of the Presidential-Mayoral Task Force, which is an agreement between the University and the city to close campus and bars on the Strip.

The task force and five-year plan was started after riots by students in 1994 that damaged downtown businesses and other places.

Cole said he is still concerned about what the student body will do this Halloween weekend and weekends in the future.

"It is a part of Carbondale's history and future," he said. "We have to do what we can to ensure there are no major problems."

ceremony, found Smoot's speech very encouraging.

"She was very informative," Flowers said.

"She gave us many great insights on how to set your own goals and also how to achieve those goals."

Hasan Sevim, acting associate dean of the College of Engineering, hopes that these multicultural students will become role models for the rest of the student body.

"These people should be role models," Sevim said.

"Every student should be encouraged by their academic performance."

Saluki volleyball captures a win

CHRISTINE BOLIN
DAILY EGYPTIAN

The SIU volleyball team stopped an eight-match losing streak by defeating the University of Evansville, 3-1 (14-16, 18-16, 15-13, 15-4).

"We were prepared for the match," SIU head coach Sonya Locke said. "We did enough things right to get the win."

The Salukis earned their second conference win and improved to 2-10 in the Missouri Valley Conference and 4-16 overall.

Eight Salukis posted double-digit performances, including freshman Kristie Kemner, who led SIU by nailing down 20 kills and 13 digs.

Senior Debbie Barr posted her eighth double-double with a match-best 56 assists and 13 digs.

Other contributors on the Saluki squad include sophomore Jenny Noel (15 kills, 16 digs), freshman Tara Cairns (12 kills, 17 digs), freshman Qiana Nelson (14 kills), senior Marissa Kimbrough (13 digs) and senior Lenika Vazquez (17 digs).

SIU's next opponent is Bradley University (15-3, 11-2) Friday at 7 p.m. in Davies Gymnasium. The Salukis will look to rebound from the loss suffered in the last match-up (Oct. 2) against the Braves.

"It's a big plus for us to be home again," Locke said. "Hopefully, [our win against Evansville] can carry on the next time we play."

GATWAY RECAPS

INDIANA STATE 39 WESTERN ILLINOIS 36

Freshman kicker Mike Megyesi booted a 38-yarder to give Indiana State (2-5, 1-2) the overtime upset victory over Western Illinois University in Terre Haute, Ind.

Quarterback Sheraton Fox led the Sycamore offense gaining 175 yards on 24 carries, while Jared Sessum tacked on 82 yards to give Indiana State 357 yards on the ground.

Western (5-3, 1-3) was paced by Charles Tharp's 143 yards on the ground, with quarterback Mark Zanders going 14-for-24 for 213 yards.

Megyesi was successful on tries of 45, 42, and 22 yards during regulation, including his game-winning kick at the end.

SOUTHEAST MISSOURI ST. 28 SOUTHWEST MISSOURI ST. 23

SEMO snapped a 12-game losing streak, upsetting Southwest Missouri State 28-23 in Cape Girardeau, Mo.

Quarterback Rashad West led the Indians' (1-7) attack going 12-of-16 for 173 yards through the air and gaining 97 rushing yards on 20 carries.

MSMU's (3-4) disappointing non-conference stumble was led by quarterback Jay Rodgers, who was 20-for-34 for 256 yards, but was picked off three times.

Two of those interceptions came late from SEMO defensive back Brian Hinton to seal the game.

YOUNGSTOWN STATE 29 NORTHERN IOWA 20

Youngstown State (7-1, 4-0) sealed the victory in Cedar Falls, Iowa with an Adrian Brown 67-yard scamper to paydirt to keep the Penguins undefeated and tied for first with Illinois State in Gateway Football Conference play.

Brown led the Penguin ground attack with 147 yards, scoring two touchdowns on the day. Quarterback Jeff Ryan ended his day 11-for-20 for 183 yards.

Northern Iowa (6-2, 2-2) was paced by quarterback Ryan Helming, who finished 20-of-34 for 235 yards and two touchdowns. The Panthers' Adam Benghe had 18 carries for 98 yards.

thrilling games year after year. Saturday's game was a fitting encore to last year's nail-biter in Normal, an overtime victory for the Birds.

"We have a tendency once these two teams get together to make things pretty interesting," ISU head coach Todd Berry said.

But this year's game again made it disturbingly clear that the Saluki football program is a sick puppy in need of a potent vaccine. Regardless of how tough the schedule is, not getting blown out can no longer be labeled progress.

Two weeks before the ISU loss, Quarless was spitting mad in his interview session after an overtime loss to Youngstown State University that mirrored Saturday's game. But the time for blowups has come and gone, and Coach Q was decidedly calmer after ISU snatched a homecoming triumph away from the Salukis.

Quarless is turning his attention to the future and the substantial problems facing his program, while his colleague is busy chasing down a Gateway title.

"I was very pleased once again with our players' heart and with the way that they keep finding a way to win," Berry said.

Too bad Quarless can't say the same.

Yet again, a Saluki football game would be decided in the final minutes.

"We gave up some points today, but when it came down to it, our defense usually steps it up in those situations," said ISU quarterback Dusty Burk, who connected on 27 of his 46 attempts for 346 yards and five touchdowns. "We had a lot of confidence in them, and if we had to go into overtime, we'd be prepared for it."

The Salukis would not be so fortunate. Burk would connect with running back Walter James on a basic screen pass eluding would-be tacklers down the sidelines for a 39-yard touchdown strike with 2:46 to play giving ISU the 55-48 lead.

"We didn't score enough points in the second half," Quarless said. "They had the ball most of the time. I think they had the ball 35, 36 minutes (for the game). We might have had about 22."

Again it was the usual suspects leading the Salukis offense with senior wide receiver Cornell Craig pulling in 11 catches for 170 yards and three touchdowns. Craig's 46-yard touchdown reception in the third quarter was his 33rd of his career making him the all-time career touchdown leader in school history surpassing Amos Bullocks.

Freshman running back Tom Koutsos, behind an 84-yard run, led the ground attack with 132 yards on 16 carries and a touchdown. Koutsos has not exceeded the century mark since suffering a deep thigh bruise against the University of Northern Iowa in week four.

and playing facilities.

Subsequently, Quarless is coaching a team short on depth and a defense incapable of stopping anybody, ensuring that almost every game regresses into a wacky shootout that ends up in scores like 58-51, 67-28, 43-37 and 55-48.

Quarless muzzled most of his discontent with the major obstacles facing his program after the game, choosing to save the battle for another day. Instead, he repeated his disdain for having to keep up with foes each week in offensive marathons.

"I don't like playing football games like we've played this year with so many points on the board," Quarless said. "I don't think you can be a consistent winner."

Quarless was asked how much more on-field disappointment he can stomach, combined with the off-field limitations that plague the program.

"Not much," he whispered.

The Redbirds' 55-48 win over the Salukis wrote another engaging chapter in an SIU-ISU rivalry that produces Point taken.

The Saluki defense was nearly non-existent, leaving the burden on its offense to carry the load. Following an ominous game-opening kick-off fumble, the Salukis ruled off 21 unanswered points not halfway through the first quarter.

The uncharacteristic start for the Salukis (3-5, 4-0) rattled the Redbirds (6-2, 4-0) only momentarily before ISU mounted its own 21-point run. The run followed an off-side penalty on the Saluki kickoff team negating Luther Claxton's fumble recovery return deep in Redbird territory.

"I don't know if I've ever been in a game... that opened up the way that thing opened up," ISU coach Todd Berry said. "That was one of the craziest openings."

As the Redbirds embarrassed the Saluki defense, the SIU offense returned the favor to the ISU defense as junior quarterback Sherard Poteete completed 21 of 39 passes for 305 yards and four touchdowns.

Poteete also squirmed for 80 rushing yards on 15 carries including a 33 yard touchdown run with 9:32 left to play giving the Salukis 48-41 lead. But freshman kicker Scott Everhart's extra-point kick was blocked keeping the Redbirds within seven.

The Salukis are playing a broken record

On the day senior wide receiver Cornell Craig became the Salukis' all-time touchdown leader, it was a different broken record that defined homecoming at SIU.

The Salukis followed their time-tested recipe for a close defeat Saturday, as Illinois State University took their turn abusing an SIU defense that can generously be described as young and uncharitably called a disgrace.

JAY

SPORTS REPORTER

SIU's losing formula is pretty simple. A large dose of lousy tackling. A costly penalty, this time in the form of an offside on a kickoff that cost the Salukis a fumble recovery early in the game. If not for the penalty, SIU likely would have had a 28-0 lead and the Redbirds on the ropes.

Toss in a slumping defensive line and a secondary that is clueless more often than not, and you have a football team that has shown an inability to do the one thing that really matters: win games. SIU did prove they still have some fight in them after last week's 68-27 mauling at the hands of Western Illinois University. They gave the large homecoming crowd of 13,100 at McAndrew Stadium an afternoon of high drama. Craig sparkled as usual, catching three touchdowns to give him 33 for his career, enough to erase Amos Bullocks' 38-year-old record.

But when you've lost as many close games as Quarless and the Salukis, entertaining losses and broken records grows old faster than an opposing wide receiver freeing himself from a Saluki cornerback.

That's pretty darn quick. The Salukis have lost five games in a row after a '98 season in which they lost seven of their last eight games. If you're scratching your head in search of reasons for the annual collapse, Quarless is willing to save you some time.

"We tend to sit there and say, 'There they go again on that losing streak.' Well let's look at the obvious," Quarless said. "We don't have a lot of people, we're not very strong, we're real young and that's what the problem is when you get to this time of the year."

"At a University that..." said Quarless, before allowing silence to finish his message. He wanted to lash out at the lack of financial support for football from SIU administrators, a crippling reality that has left him trying to recruit athletes to a program that can't stack up with competing schools in practice

Saluki defensive end Andre Bailey (97) scrambles after Illinois State University quarterback Dusty Burk (5) during Saturday's game at McAndrew Stadium. Burk dismembered the Saluki defense, passing for 346 yards and five touchdowns. The Salukis lost 55-48.

ISU steals homecoming win from SIU this weekend

PAUL WLEKLIANSKI
DAILY EGYPTIAN

There's not much solace a coach can take from a game in which his team would need to score on every possession to win.

Jan Quarless' SIU football team scored on seven of its 16 drives — and even one on defense — but still endured the same fate for the fifth straight week losing 55-48 to Gateway football conference foe Illinois State University in McAndrew Stadium for Homecoming Saturday. The loss elicited tears for many of the Saluki players following the second consecutive record-setting week in which SIU participated in the Gateway's record for most points in a game. Last week, the Salukis combined with Western Illinois University for 95 points. This week, before 13,100 fans, they eclipsed the one-week-old record with 103.

Quarless only found consolation in his player's post-game tears. Heaven knows he would not be able to find it anywhere besides his offense.

"I hope it hurts them a ton, it should," said Quarless, who instructed his team not to speak to the media. "It's an embarrassment to us, and it's just like so many other things around here I'm embarrassed about, so I'm glad. I'm glad to hear that because there's a lot of things that are embarrassing."

How about 381 rushing yards allowed? — 224 by Willie Watts — by the SIU defense? Or 727 total yards allowed? Maybe giving up 7.6 yards a play? Not to mention the 166 points the
