

Assessing Our Students, Assessing Ourselves
Volume 3 in the Rethinking Negotiation Teaching Series

Published by DRI Press, an imprint of the Dispute Resolution Institute at Hamline University School of Law, with the generous financial support of the JAMS Foundation.

Dispute Resolution Institute
Hamline University School of Law
1536 Hewitt Avenue
Saint Paul, MN 55104
www.hamline.edu/law/adr

© 2012 DRI Press. All rights reserved.
Printed in the United States of America.

Library of Congress Control Number: 2012933424

ISBN 978-0-9827946-2-3

For bulk orders, contact the Hamline University School of Law Bookstore, 1536 Hewitt Avenue, Saint Paul, MN 55104. (651) 523-2369. For reprint inquiries, contact the DRI program administrator, (651) 523-2946.

Assessing Our Students, Assessing Ourselves

Volume 3 in the Rethinking Negotiation Teaching Series

Noam Ebner
James Coben
Christopher Honeyman

Editors

DRI PRESS
SAINT PAUL, MINNESOTA

Hard at work in Beijing preparing for student assessment

TABLE OF CONTENTS

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS	vii
I. The Big Picture
1 Introduction: Assessment as Mirror Noam Ebner, James Coben &amp; Christopher Honeyman	1
2 Evaluating Our Evaluation: Rethinking Student Assessment in Negotiation Courses Noam Ebner, Yael Efron &amp; Kimberlee K. Kovach	19
II. Looking Harder at the Tried and True
3 Pop Quiz: Do You Use This Evaluation Method? Noam Ebner &amp; Yael Efron	43
4 Reflective Journal Assignments in Teaching Negotiation Bobbi McAdoo	65
5 The Black Box of Student Evaluation: Course Participation Noam Ebner &amp; Yael Efron	81
6 Using Video Recordings: A Mirror and a Window on Student Negotiations Melissa Manwaring &amp; Kimberlee Kovach	97
III. New Roles for Teachers, New Roles for Students
7 Negotiating the Assessment Criteria Joel Lee	117
8 Interviews as an Assessment Tool Boyd Fuller	125
9 Simulation Design for Learning and Assessment Noam Ebner &amp; Daniel Druckman	139
10 Empowerment and Recognition: Students Grade Each Other's Negotiation Outcomes James Coben	149

- 11 Making Reputation Salient: Using the Reputation Index with Law Students 173
Nancy A. Welsh

IV. Special Tools for Special Contexts

- 12 Assessing the Adventure 189
Sharon Press, Noam Ebner & Lynn P. Cohn
- 13 Evaluating Email Negotiations 205
Melissa Nelken
- 14 Assessing Negotiation Competitions 213
Nuno Delicado, Horacio Falcão, Ellen Deason, Sharon Press, Shahla Ali, Eric Blanchot & Habib Chamoun-Nicolas
- 15 A Competition Without Winners or Losers? 247
The Ontogeny of a New Negotiation Event Format
Horacio Falcão
- 16 A Benchmarking System for Assessment: An Experiment in Creating More Transparency in Grading 273
Boyd Fuller & Sohni Kaur
- 17 Portfolio Evaluation: Kaleidoscopic Insights into Learning Effectiveness and Change 283
Michelle LeBaron

V. Epilogue

- Assessing Ourselves 293
Noam Ebner, James Coben & Christopher Honeyman

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

More colleagues than we can possibly name deserve our warm thanks here. First and foremost, of course, are the contributing writers in this volume. Less obviously, this book does not stand alone, but is part of a complex strategy: the contributors' work here builds on that of forty-three contributors to 2009's Rethinking Negotiation Teaching and the parallel special section of eight articles in Negotiation Journal (April 2009), and the thirty-seven contributors to 2010's Venturing Beyond the Classroom. Still to come is Educating Negotiators for a Connected World (Volume 4 in our Rethinking Negotiation Teaching series, fall 2012), as well as 谈判 Tán Pàn: The Chinese-English Journal on Negotiation.

None of this would have happened without Giuseppe De Palo, who together with Chris and Jim created the project and served as co-editor for volumes one and two in the series. Also key to this effort have been our steering committee members: it would be impossible to imagine a more perceptive or more incisive team of advisers than Jay Folberg, Roy Lewicki, Carrie Menkel-Meadow, Sharon Press, Frank Sander, Andrea Schneider, Richard Shell, and Michael Wheeler. Thanks also to Kitty Atkins, the Dispute Resolution Institute associate director, for tireless commitment to solve any and all problems. Also essential at Hamline has been Jessica Kuchta-Miller, whose thoughtful edits and careful proofreading helped ensure a quality product, and Debra Berghoff (a/k/a "Magic Hands"), whose mastery of software and graphics once again has made all our lives much simpler.

Separately, this book, like its predecessors, would have been impossible without the support of the JAMS Foundation. The Foundation's early commitment to the project was instrumental to its successful launch, and the Foundation's continued support helps to extend the project's global impact. And we offer special thanks to Andrew Wei-Min Lee and Vivian Feng Ying Yu, who through adroit negotiation and sheer determination managed to get us all to Beijing for the conference that inspired the content you find here. We cannot conceive of more inspiring and gracious hosts.

Finally, Chris and Jim would be churlish not to acknowledge that this volume never would have happened without Noam's vision that a book specifically dedicated to assessment was both sorely needed, and possible. It became possible only because he was able to encourage, motivate, cajole, and (when necessary) insist on wonderful contributions from our colleagues.

To follow future developments of the project, including publication of Volume 4 in the series, please visit <http://law.hamline.edu/dri/rethinking-negotiation.html>. There you will find the latest project updates, lists of participating scholars, and all book chapters generated to date in downloadable pdf formats (at no charge), as well as a link to 谈判 Tán Pàn.

