

The Oval

Volume 9 | Issue 1

Article 16

4-2016

The Preschooler and the Cowboy Killer

Eli Redeker

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarworks.umt.edu/oval>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Let us know how access to this document benefits you.

Recommended Citation

Redeker, Eli (2016) "The Preschooler and the Cowboy Killer," The Oval: Vol. 9 : Iss. 1 , Article 16.

Available at: <https://scholarworks.umt.edu/oval/vol9/iss1/16>

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by ScholarWorks at University of Montana. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Oval by an authorized editor of ScholarWorks at University of Montana. For more information, please contact scholarworks@mso.umt.edu.

THE PRESCHOOLER AND THE COWBOY KILLER

ELI REDEKER

The young girl judges sitting, watching “Perhaps,” she says
watching the carcinogens spew above the lawn

There is no adulthood, no authority in their surroundings
“Perhaps,” she says
with all options on the table

Cool water, from a Kmart hose flows into the Kmart pool
“Perhaps,” she says
we have no reason for leisure

The yard is finally trimmed by outside forces.
“Perhaps,” she says
the grass will die this way.

She put makeup on though she knew she'd regret it
“Perhaps,” she says
The thinness of beauty is to be celebrated

They are never bored because they are young “Perhaps,” she says
youth is exciting

And is there any more to life than sitting in water and plastic?
“Perhaps,” she says
but she doubts it

Inspired by the photograph, “Amanda and Her Cousin Amy,” by Mary Ellen Mark.