Class participation. This will be an active class, with an emphasis on discussion as much as lecturing. I will use a Socratic format (like law school), calling upon pre-designated students to draw out key parts of assigned readings. Much of what you learn will come from your classmates. Because of this format, I will expect that students arrive at class prepared, having completed the assigned reading. Part of your grade will be determined by your class participation.

Writing assignments. In addition to the substance of American foreign policy, this class will emphasize writing. In particular, the class will emphasize the type of writing done commonly in policy-oriented jobs (e.g., legislative assistant, White House aide). Each student will complete two short projects, both of which will relate to a ten-minute class presentation in April. In fairness to your classmates, failure to meet a deadline for any assignment will result in a reduction in your grade.

Honors/Graduate increment. Honors students, graduate students (and any other student wishing to do so) will complete an additional writing project ("Writing Project III"), details to be discussed individually.

Grading. Grades will be based on the following breakdown:

Class Participation: 5%

Writing Project I: 25%

Writing Project II: 20%

Final Exam: 50%

(Honors/Graduate Students/Others electing to complete Writing Project III: Same as above except that the final exam will count for 25% and Writing Project III will count for 25%.)

Possible Topics for Writing Projects/Oral Presentation

In consultation with me, you will pick a single research topic that will form the background for Writing Project I, Writing Project II, and the short oral presentation. (In other words, you will not pick a different subject for each of these three projects.) No two people can pick the same topic, so reserve a topic early if you are passionate about a particular subject. Pick your topic by emailing me; the first student to email me gets the topic. Once you have confirmed your topic selection with me, visit me during office hours so that we can narrow your research. Other specifics of these projects will be discussed in class.

You should feel free to propose your own topic, subject to my approval. Possible subjects include the following:
