Mr. Anderson said that he is not in favor of Gov. Tim Babcock's proposed sales tax because it is not really a sales tax, if anything it will only reduce some property tax. The sales tax wouldn't help Montana's tourist trade, he said, because food, clothing, and shelter are exempted under the tax and these three things provide the big-gest percentage of tourist revenue. If more money is going to be needed for state government it is income taxes, Mr. Anderson said. Anderson ended his speech by saying that he feels there is a need for a governor who knows how to

Racism Recognized

Pres. Pantzer has at last conceded the possibility that there may be racism in Missoula, and has moved, albeit feebly, to counter it.

Getting away from what has until now been the adminis-tration's official "what racism?" stance, Mr. Pantzer has publicly recognized "bad race relations," and to counter the problem he has tapped the UM Foundation for a $500 initial contribution to start one or more scholarships, which he suggests should go to students who contribute to improving race relations.

Also, Mr. Pantzer and seven other administrators have each contributed $25 for the scholarship fund.

Showing unusual wisdom, Mr. Pantzer is giving Action Seminar a voice in who shall get the award.

Granted, Mr. Pantzer's move is at best only a feeble thrust in the counter-racism war being declared in Missoula, but it is at least official recognition of bad "race relations."

The scholarship may or may not contribute to stamping out racism, but at least it will give cash and recognition to some kid who has come to grips with the problem.

Actually the establishment of a little scholarship fund is probably about all that can be expected in the way of antiracism action from the administration.

Obviously it would be poor business for the University to move strongly against discriminatory Greek societies when such a large portion of the aging and financially solvent alumni are nostalgic Greeks.

Somewhere out there in the world there are doddering old Sigma Chis and Kappa Alpha Thetas who may at any moment shuffle off the coil and leave the UM enough money to buy a horde of brass bears.

Accordingly, it would auger ill for the University if an old grad went down to the "house" and found a young suntanned gentleman sitting right at the table like a white man, singing the after-supper-song and practicing the secret handshake.

So perhaps we have our choice, either remain a University in de facto support of racism for the life of the existing alumni, or be a financially poor University.

In this country there is tremen-dous emphasis upon education. This is commendable, for almost all progress is based upon man's ability to learn the secrets of the universe as contained in the sci-ences, languages, mathematics and bistory.

I am suggesting that you make some attempt to represent some of the students who have to go home periodically and explain what is going on over here in Missoula. It is obvious, Mr. Vichorek, where you stand on most of the issues of the present time. You keep us informed on how things are from your point of view in nearly every editorial. FII admit that the University is probably the center of liberalism in this state, even so your brand of liberalism is supported only by a minority of the students on this campus. I would be the last to say that liberalism is bad, however, I dis-agree with liberalism for the sake of liberalism. In other words, I question the purpose of your edi-torial policy. Perhaps in future editorials you would elaborate on the goals of your editorship. I wouldn't dream of telling you what to do, as you have told Mr. Leary to do; but rather, I am only going to hope that you give us something eliciting responsibility and maturity rather than your own personal beliefs. During my two years at the University of Montana, I have had occasion more than once to read your newspaper, and I have been appalled by the presumptuous con-ceit with which the editorials are written—presume no intelligence on the part of the reader; conceited, because the writers feel competent to write about subjects with which they are apparently ill-acquainted. It is not in general terms that I choose to comment, however. choose to comment, however.

It is not in general terms that I choose to comment, however. My reading of your editorial in the "Special Riot Edition" first evoked anger; then, amusement; and finally, disgust. I must assume that the prerequisites for editor-ship of "The Kaimin" bear more relation to political leanings than to journalistic abilities—at least if journalism is supposed to have some basis in fact. The editorial reeked with radical emotionalism, but was conspicuously lacking in documentation. In short, it was calculated to incite—nothing more. You are obliged, by the nature of your position, to search out and print the truth-mot your particular "gut reaction," but facts as you, the editor, interpret them. That, as I understand it, is the nature of an editorial. Bearing in mind that a certain number of people will be influenced by what you say, you have a duty to write not what is fashionable, but to state your views based on an accurate under-standing of the facts. Further, you have an obligation to print op-posing views. This letter presents a opportunity to meet that last obligation. I wish you well. MICHAEL G. ALTEROWITZ Junior, UM Law School

"Much has been written of our failure to gauge the temper and real needs of the people we try to help. It is implied that were our offering of aid comprehensive enough and our manner of giving adequate, we would have the world wholly on our side.

Yet the more one thinks on the subject the more one realizes that the attitude toward us is not mainly determined by the nature of our policy and manner of giving.

Beneath the charges and coun-tercharges of racism today, one is increasingly aware of this enigma. Increasingly aware of this engina. It is not really white against black which is widening the breach and confusing the issues. It is white racism against whites and black racism against blacks who would hold the line against violence

Trying to find Grizzly basketball coaches Bob Cope and Lou Rocheleau for an interview these days is almost a hopeless task

The dynamic pair has been harder to find than a stockholder in the St. Louis Browns. Cope and Rocheleau, college teammates at UM, have been traveling all over the Pacific Coast besides combing Montana for basketball talent.

Recently we happened to catch Rocheleau, the man who made the words "Missoula Spartans" synonymous with great basketball teams, in his office at the Field House.

Rocheleau told the Kaimin that recruiting was going well. but that it was a little too early to know anything definite. He explained that the coaches are trying to find immediate help for next season in junior college transfers. And the Frenchman hinted that the Grizzlies have a good chance to get some of the best available. A prime concern is the center slot, Rocheleau said

As for the recruiting within the state, Rocheleau said the coaches were trying to convince all of the best players to attend one school-the University of Montana.

The staff has already signed one player-Steve Dethman, a smooth, 6-4 guard who played for Wolf Point's state championship team. Dethman was relatively unknown until the state tournament. He was ignored in the all-state selections of the Montana Coaches Association as were other deserving players. At the state tournament, however, Dethman showed his stuff. He was named to the all-tournament first team.

Other high school players from the Treasure State who are on the Grizzlies' "Wanted List" are Ray Howard, 6-7 centerforward, Great Falls; Kendall Hartman, 6-3 forward, Billings West; Pete Lazetich, 6-3 forward, Billings Senior; Curt Le-Roissognol, 6-7 center, Livingston; Guy Huestis, 6-8 center, Great Falls; Kirk Johnson, 6-2 guard, Helena; Craig Stoenner, 6-1 guard, Hamilton, who has already signed a football scholarship with UM; Steve Sullivan, 6-2 guard, Butte Central; Jim Schillinger, 6-2 guard, Circle; Jim Duncan, 6-1 guard, Seeley-Swan, and Wayne McNealy, 6-2 guard, Seeley-Swan.

In addition to these players, Rocheleau said the staff was recruiting high school players from Washington and Oregon. Many of these players will be making visitations to the UM campus in the next few weeks.

Rocheleau said the success of the in-state recruiting might depend on Howard's choice. If UM could land the big ex-Bison, it might sway some of the undecided players to the University.

Despite the coaches' globetrotting, there is still a lot of area which cannot be covered by two men. UM alumni, Rocheleau said, are helping out. This is an encouraging sign to have alum support instead of the second guessing which hampered UM basketball teams in the past. Notre Dame, for example, relies heavily on the good help it gets from its widespread alumni.

The present basketball situation at UM is similar to the football situation when Jack Swarthout and Co. took over. All signs point up, largely because of the efforts of two tireless, enthusiastic coaches
