Poll Shows Humphrey Slightly Ahead of Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP)—The tumultuous 1968 presidential campaign neared its end Monday with Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey buoyed by a new poll placing him in the lead and Republican Richard M. Nixon predicting victory for himself by three to five million votes.

Even with the last-gasp political flurries, the possibility remained that today's voting would be inconclusive — that no candidate would emerge with the 270 electoral votes needed to become the 37th president of the United States.

If no candidate wins a majority the decision will have to be made by the electors, who won't vote until Dec. 16, or, if there is still no majority, by the House of Representatives starting Jan. 6.

In that event, the House would choose a president from among the top three in electoral votes, and the Senate would choose the vice president from the top two. This procedure was used in the 1800 and 1824 elections.

Here's what is at stake for the nation in today's general election.

Congress
Senate: At stake: 34 of the 100 seats, 23 of which are currently held by Democrats. All elections are for full six-year terms starting Jan. 3. Holdover: 40 Democrats, 26 Republicans. Needed for control: 51 seats, which means Republicans would have to make a net gain of 14.

House: At stake: all 435 seats. Current division: 245 Democrats, 187 Republicans, 3 vacancies (2 Democrats, 1 Republican). Needed for control: 218 seats, which means Republicans would have to win 31 additional seats for control. Running without opposition are 37 Democrats and 8 Republicans.

Governors

At stake: 21 governorships, of which 13 now are held by Democrats, 8 by Republicans. Holdovers: 11 Democrats, 18 Republicans.

Past Elections

In the 28 presidential elections

since Republicans first fielded a ticket in 1856, GOP candidates have won 16, Democrats 12. Since 1900, Republicans have won 8 times, Democrats 9 times.

Both the House of Representatives and the Senate have been Democratic for the seven Congresses since the 1954 midterm elections. Republicans have won Congress only twice in the past 36 years, in 1946 and 1952.

Registration-Voting

Election officials and observers estimated that 90,141,438 Americans, or about 75 per cent of the estimated 121.5 million of voting age, are registered to vote. Of these, some 72,987,527 or 81 per cent, are expected to cast ballots. This compares with the previous record turnout of 70,913,673 in 1964.

Poor Image of Law Officers Blamed on College Students

College students are partially responsible for the poor image of law enforcement officers, according to Joseph Hood, Missoula police chief. Mr. Hood spoke at the LDS Conflux Friday noon at the LDS Institute of Religion.

He said policemen are viewed as lower than second class citizens and called "pigs" by educated college students. One result of this poor image is that no one considers law enforcement as an occupation and policemen are criticized when enforcing the law.

Mr. Hood emphasized that laws are made by the people themselves and that the police do what the people want, allow, and direct them to do. He said civil disobedience, active or passive, never accomplishes anything, except repugnant publicity. The Missoula police force, however, will protect any group that wants to demonstrate legally by obtaining a permit.

He said he would recognize only four ways to dissent: ballot, law, petition, and public meetings. He added that he does not think minorities should be allowed to disrupt the business of the majority with demonstrations.

He said college students contribute to disrespect for the police when they allow themselves to be classified with activist groups. He said the majority of the students "don't care, don't think, or look ahead." When he was asked to clarify what students should do, he suggested that they take a greater part in the "nice" traditions of the school, such as Singing on the Steps and singing under the windows of pinned girls.

The hard-working students, he said, don't have time for demonstrations.

Warsaw Ecology Professor Is Guest Lecturer on U Staff

Kazimierz Petruszewicz, a professor of ecology at the University of Warsaw, joined the UM zoology faculty on Oct. 12 as a visiting senior foreign scientist.

A native of Minsk, Poland, Mr. Petruszewicz has conducted graduate zoological seminars and lectured to sophomore ecology classes since joining the department.

Next quarter he will teach a course entitled "Idea of Productivity in Ecology."

The professor's visit is financed by a National Science Foundation fellowship stipend, according to Donald A. Jenni, UM associate professor of zoology and personal host to Mr. Petruszewicz.

Mr. Petruszewicz has studied field and theoretical productivity studies, which concerns the rate at which energy is stored in animals, and population dynamics, which determines wild animal populations.

During his stay at UM, the Polish scientist will lecture at the University of California, University of Georgia, University of Michigan and the Atomic Energy Commission Laboratory, Savannah, Ga.

He will remain at UM until next April.

Campus Presidents Hear Talks On Student Rights, Government

Plans for drafting a bill to lower the state voting, drinking and purchasing age to 19 and a discussion of student rights were the key points at the Montana Student Presidents Association conference held in Missoula last weekend.

Student presidents and leaders from nine Montana colleges met in the two-day conference to plan action the MSPA might take during the upcoming year.

The conference was divided into three discussion sections and two presidential meetings.

During the conference, delegates met to discuss the student newspaper's role with student government and the legal rights of students.

Betsy Scanlin, UM publications board commissioner, explained the function of Pub Board at the University and the possible need for some kind of student government control of the paper.

Dan Vichorek, Kaimin editor, refuted Miss Scanlin's stand and told her that a check of the student newspaper would be unrealistic.

Miss Scanlin said the student newspaper should "at least acknowledge the opposing view." She suggested the Kaimin give student leaders an opportunity to write in the paper.

Vichorek said he asked Ed Leary, ASUM president, to write a column, but Leary has only written one column.

The delegates later discussed how student governments and student newspapers could work together to gain administrative concessions.

In a second discussion, Ken Tolliver and Bill Jensen, UM law students who are compiling a booklet explaining student rights, blamed students for not attaining the rights legally granted to them.

"As a group, students have been ineffective in acquiring rights from the administration," Tolliver said. "You people are really screwed up."

He said students are denied the right of privacy within their dormitory, but police could not legally enter a private citizen's home without a warrant.

Women students are denied rights which they would have as private citizens, Tolliver said. He denounced the "sign-in and sign-out" procedure and the no-hours privilege system.

Mike Barbre, UM sophomore, Pat Hayes, UM senior and Paul Warwick, UM English instructor, were asked as "campus activists" to comment on the lack of student rights and the role of student government.

"Student government is a bunch of s---," Barbre said. "We don't need you."

He said students and faculty should form a community and govern themselves with only a small amount of guidance from the administration.

"Students can't say, 'These are our rights; you must give them to us,'" Barbre said.

Students should say, "Listen baby, you give us our rights or we'll close your university," he said.

To have any kind of administrative rights, Barbre said, is to show that you are the student body.

Mr. Warwick said the university can do without the administration and faculty. He said students could generate education and appoint teachers among themselves.

Student government should divorce itself from the administration and become a part of the student community working for its interests, according to Mr. Warwick.

Student government does not know why it exists because it is too concerned with football games and lowering the drinking age so students can have legal kegers, Hayes said.

Gary Lowe, UM Planning Board commissioner, said activist groups can take action, but student governments can't because "it interrupts the status quo."

"If we do anything that interrupts the status quo," he said, "the fraternities say, don't rock the boat, we want to retain the power."

Delegates to the convention represented Carroll College, College of Great Falls, Eastern Montana College, Montana College of Mineral Science and Technology, Montana State University, Northern Montana College, Rocky Mountain College, Western Montana College and University of Montana.

Pre-Registration Packets Available On November 19

Packets and class schedules for winter quarter will be available in Room 205 of Main Hall beginning November 19.

Emma Lommasson, assistant registrar, said students whose last names begin with the letters "G" through "O" may pick-up their packets that day.

Students whose last names begin with "P" through "Q" can obtain their packets on November 20.

On November 21, the rest of the student body may get their packets.

Actual registration will begin Friday, Nov. 22 at 8 a.m. and continue through December 6.

Main Hall will be open for registration from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., except the first and last days when the offices will remain open until 5 p.m.

Mrs. Lommasson urged students to fill out their second choices on the class selection cards, so that they will be sure to get the classes they want.

All fees must be paid at the time of registration.

UM Poll Picks the Winners

A poll taken by students in professor Thomas Payne's Political Parties class indicates that Nixon will carry the Missoula urban area in today's presidential election.

The poll, conducted as an experiment to show problems involved in public opinion polling and to show difficulties in making precise predictions using only small samples, involved only the Missoula urban area Mr. Payne said.

About 50 students talked in person to 287 people starting with the 61st person on the Missoula voter registration list and taking every 80th person thereafter. One hundred fifty-seven persons responded, representing about 90 per cent of Missoula County.

He said, "I would caution against accepting these figures as predictions to the outcome of the general election. Some unavoidable distortion creeps into the sampling process. Assuming even that all procedures are free of error, inferring conclusions from statistical data does involve sampling error factors."

"For a sample of the size used in this poll, the standard error is in the neighborhood of four per cent, meaning that two out of three times the predicted results would fall within a range of plus or minus four per cent of the values actually indicated by the poll.

"A further element of uncertainty is introduced by the presence of a third candidate, and there is always the unanswered question of what happens to the undecided when and if they actually vote.

"Finally, the sample is simply not the total voting population on election day, but rather a cross section, hopefully representative, polled approximately one week before the election."

For President the results of the poll were:

Nixon	49.04 per cent
Humphrey	35.03 per cent
Wallace	11.47 per cent
Undecided	4.46 per cent

For Congress the results were:

Olsen	48.30 per cent
Smiley	43.31 per cent
Undecided	8.29 per cent

For Governor the results were:

Babcock	49.05 per cent
Anderson	36.30 per cent
Montgomery	9.55 per cent
Undecided	5.10 per cent

For Superintendent of Public Instruction the results were:

Colburg	35.66 per cent
Cox	33.12 per cent
Undecided	31.22 per cent

For State Senate, in which the voter selects two person, the results were:

Deschamps	59.23 per cent
Herdon	26.75 per cent
Waldbillig	24.82 per cent
Northey	45.23 per cent
Undecided	43.30 per cent

Voting on the Six-Mill Levy (Referendum 65) is restricted to those voters paying taxes on real or personal property. In conducting the poll an effort was made to ask this question only of persons paying taxes. From 155 responses, the results were:

For	60.64 per cent
Against	21.29 per cent
Undecided	18.07 per cent

Old Main 'Childish'

To the Kaimin:

On October 31, many part-time student employees of the University received empty envelopes from the Financial Aid Department "notifying" them that certain forms must be filled out before they would receive their paychecks. Although these forms may be necessary, it is doubtful that Main Hall had to wait until the end of the month to notify employees of a change.

Withholding paychecks is a childish way to gain cooperation of responsible people; responsible, we assume, because we are employed by the University. Will Main Hall ever treat us as adults?

Freshmen Deserve Escape-Proof Jesse

To the Kaimin:

Before reading Miss Blakemore's paranoid letter of Oct. 30, I had not fully understood the depth of the class prejudice present in the minds of many upperclassmen. So I feel that I must present a letter on the behalf of all freshmen on this campus.

In answer to Miss Blakemore's first question; the reason that freshmen girls are housed in Jesse is that it is virtually escape-proof. The only way in and out is through four elevators, all under the watchful eyes of the guardians of their virtue. By the way, Jesse was not paid for by the upperclassmen, they paid for their tuition and the University bought a new building. The buildings on this campus are not in existence only for those who specifically pay for them, but for each successive generation of students who will attend UM until it ceases to exist.

Miss Blakemore is under the false impression that she deserves a reward for the ability to remain on this campus other than the awarding of her diploma. Fortunately for the university, the powers that be realize that no university should be run by a caste system. As if today's students didn't have enough traumas already, the introduction of class bigotry into the administration would become yet another stumbling block to the development of the individual student.

As to Miss Blakemore's insinuation that many freshmen are bumbling fools, she does not seem to realize that good grades do not a wise man make. There are still many fools among the upperclassmen, those who survive the annual freshman purge.

I believe that Miss Blakemore would more profitably spend her time by working to improve her own situation rather than covet those of others.

I do not accuse all upperclassmen of being as narrow minded as Miss Blakemore, but I must say one last thing to you upperclassmen. You don't have to like us, but remember that you once trod the same path that we do now.

Weber Plays UM Saturday

WRA Volleyball Schedule

Montana's Grizzlies will have a chance to keep Weber State from winning a share of the Big Sky title this weekend as the Wildcats will invade Missoula on Saturday. Both UM and Weber lost last weekend.

Montana blew a 24-9 lead to Montana State in the fourth quarter and lost 29-24. Idaho handed Weber's Wildcats their first loss of the season as the Vandals won 50-42.

The Grizzlies practically had the game wrapped up Saturday with nine minutes left in the game but Bobcat quarterback Dennis Erickson, tailback Paul Schafer and flanker Ron Bain teamed up to score three times in the final minutes to win 29-24.

MSU opened the scoring with a 27-yard field goal late in the first quarter.

Late in the second period, Erickson hit Bain with a 12-yard scoring pass and the point after touchdown failed to make the score 9-0.

The Grizzlies came right back, marching 75 yards in five plays for a touchdown. Gartha Morgan went in from the 2-yard line with 1:45 left in the half, and Dan Worrell converted to make the score 9-7. Roy Robinson picked up 37 yards on one play and Ray Brum passed to Al Luis for 38 yards to account for most of the yardage on the drive.

Following Montana's score, Schafer fumbled the kickoff and Mace Gray recovered it on the Bobcat 26-yard line. Two plays later Worrell booted a 38-yard field goal to give the Grizzlies a 10-9 halftime advantage.

UM's Mike Buzzard took the opening kickoff of the second half 73 yards before being dropped on the Bobcat 23-yard line. Brum tried a quick-strike pass play that backfired when the Bobcats' Dean Winder intercepted Brum's pass.

The third quarter was scoreless. Early in the fourth quarter,

Brum found Doug Bain, the younger brother of MSU's Ron Bain, open for a touchdown which put the Grizzlies ahead 16-9. Worrell converted to make the score 17-9.

Less than two minutes later, Buzzard broke loose on a 53-yard touchdown run. Worrell again split the uprights on the conversion try to make the score 24-9.

Then Erickson went to the air, throwing to flanker Ron Bain and end Bill Fieldstead to move the ball to the Grizzly 5-yard line. Schafer went in for the touchdown but the 'Cats missed the extra-point try.

Erickson, going to the air again, found Bain free and he scored with 5:01 left in the game. Kalfoss kicked the extra point, and Montana still led 24-22.

The Bobcats held the Grizzly offense again after the ensuing kickoff and then began another drive.

Montana was forced to punt and the defensive unit took over. It looked as if the Grizzlies had stopped the Bobcats on the UM 32-yard line until a Grizzly player was called for grabbing a face mask, and the 15-yard penalty was marked off. The penalty put the ball on the UM 17-yard line. Schafer, the Bobcat workhorse, carried the ball six consecutive times and finally leaped over the goal line to score with 12 seconds left in the game. Kalfoss' kick put the icing on the cake.

The Grizzlies put the ball in play on the UM 20-yard line after the kickoff went into the end zone.

Ron Baines, who usually plays slotback or split end for the Grizzlies, came in at quarterback and carried for 15 yards and the Bobcats were slapped with a 15-yard penalty for unnecessary roughness.

With one second left, Baines raced 37 yards up the middle but was hauled down on the Bobcat 12-yard line as the gun sounded ending the game.

Schafer was the leading ground gainer for the afternoon, carrying the ball a record-setting 58 times for 234 yards.
