Wages And Hours Limitation Is Campus Congress Subject

Coombs, Mertz to Defend Stabilization by Legislature Against Hickman, Browning Arguments At Debate Next Week

"Should Congress Have the Power to Fix Minimum Wages and Maximum Hours?" will be the "question before the house" at Campus Congress at 7:15 o'clock a week from tomorrow night in the large meeting room. The forum debate will be broadcast from 7:30 o'clock to 8 o'clock over station KGVO.

"This is one of the most important questions the nation faces today. Every student will be affected by it at some time during his life, and the discussion should prove most worthwhile," said Bob Pantzer, Livingston, meeting chairman.

Affirmative speakers will be Walter Coombs, Missoula, president of International Relations club, and Arthur Mertz, Missoula. "Minimum wage and maximum hour legislation is needed because of labor conditions today; it would benefit both labor and business," said Mertz.

The negative side of the question will be upheld by Gordon Hickman, Great Falls and James Browning, Belt. Coombs, Mertz and Browning debated on the same question last year.

"The student discussion after the debate presentation is for many the liveliest part of a Campus Congress," said Ruth Christiani, leader of the congress. "But if you can't be there for the struggle, be sure to listen on the radio."

At the last Campus Congress, a vote showed students favoring campus co-operatives by a large margin.

Teachers' Union To Have Meeting

Faculty Members, Friends Invited To Forum Next Monday

The university teachers' union will have an open meeting 8 o'clock next Monday evening. All faculty members and friends of the university are invited, announces Professor E. A. Atkinson, secretary of the faculty union. Professors F. E. Coad of the law school; A. P. L. Turner and M. C. Turney of the economics school will head discussions on the subjects "taxation problems and methods."

Due to the extremely low tax income of the university and because of the present heavy property tax burden a question whether an additional levy of the property tax would be feasible may be considered. An open discussion by authorities might be of some avail believes Professor Atkinson.

University's Wealth In Land Shown By Acquisition Report

Campus Increases From Gift of Captain C. P. Higgins In 1893 to 730.04 Acres, 321 Lots And Large ACM Grant

Montana State university owns a campus of 730.04 acres and 321½ lots, excluding the 19,000-acre forest tract which the Anaconda Copper Mining company gave the forestry school December 13, a "Special Report Concerning Land Acquisitions" from the office of J. B. Speer, registrar, shows. Eighteen separate gifts and purchases compose the university territory.

The original campus site, on which most university buildings are located, was a gift of the Captain C. P. Higgins estate and the South Missoula Land company in 1923. Main and Science halls, two buildings, were constructed five years later, and placed according to the original plan, formulated by President Oscar Craig and associates, of which the oval was a central feature.

Land Scattered Land gifts on Mount Sentinel and in the Yellow bay region on Flathead lake composed acquisitions between 1893 and 1918. In these three years annual presidential reports emphasized the necessity of getting additional land adjacent to the original 40 acres

Pre-Medic Club Will Hear Hetler

Pre-Medic club members will listen to an address by Dr. Donald M. Hetler, associate professor of bacteriology and hygiene, at 8 o'clock tonight in the Student Union. The talk will deal with Dr. Hetler's experience in bacteriology.

Dr. Hetler did major work in chemistry and bacteriology at Kansas university where he received his B.A. and M.A. degrees. After receiving his master's degree Dr. Hetler spent two years as the National Tuberculosis Fellow in Research at Yale university where he received his Ph.D. Following this he did work at the Rockefeller Institute in connection with the mechanism of lysis of bacteria by bacteriophage.

In 1928 Dr. Hetler joined the faculty of Washington Medical school where he remained until his appointment at the university.

Band to Make Tour of State Cities In May

Members To Finance Trip By Novelty Dances And Tag Day

Forty members of the university band will make a state tour the first of May, according to Clarence Bell, band director. A tag day and several novelty dances will help finance the trip.

Harrison Kellum, Missoula, trip manager, is arranging concerts for the band. Towns being contacted are Polson, Kalispell, Whitefish, Browning, Shelby, Cut Bank, Havre, Fort Benton, Great Falls, Lewistown, Harlowton, Livingston, Whitehall, Butte, and Deer Lodge.

Tentative plans have been made for the band to give several concerts at the music festival in Havre. This festival attracts from 40 to 50 bands from high schools in the northern and eastern part of the state.

Convocations Will Feature Plays, Skits

"Sorry I Bothered You" Is First Production To Be Offered

Alex Tidball, convocations committee chairman, yesterday assured the new Student Union entertainment project that part of its dramatic productions will be used in convocations. Tonight at 8:15 o'clock students interested in the skit and play-producing project will gather in the makeup room of the Student Union theater to organize and start work on "Sorry I Bothered You," a skit written by Robert Gail, Billings, student last year.

"The committee welcomes the chance to present student work, as entertainment of this kind is always appreciated," said Tidball. "This will make convocations even more the product of the student body."

Anyone who likes to sing, act or write scripts is invited to the meeting, Ruth Christiani, director of the project, says. No special talent is necessary. Quill club members are working on a script for the second presentation.

Besides convocation entertainment, the group will provide plays for campus club meetings and may present radio plays. The project has the full support of Masquers, who expect to uncover talent.

"There seems to be a wealth of material to work with, interested and talented students, good scripts, opportunity for production and the equipment we need," said Ruth Christiani. "It looks as if things ought to happen."

"The project appears to be one particularly needed on the campus," said Grace Johnson, Student Union manager, "for it will provide short, easy skits for campus entertainments and will absorb the many students who would like to participate in dramatics but are not now working in Masquer activities."

The Quill club script is entitled "How to Lose Friends and Alienate People," a parody on Dale Carnegie's "How to Win Friends and Influence People."

Dean Deloss Smith of the music school will cooperate in securing musicians.

McGahan Will Conduct Hood's Radio Program

Vernon McGahan, Valier, KGVO announcer, will conduct Miss Marguerite Hood's half-hour "School of the Air" at 2 o'clock Thursday over station KGVO.

McGahan will present a dramatized sketch dealing with a trip through a radio station. The sketch, which the announcer wrote for grade school children, takes up several phases of broadcasting, including technical problems. Advice will be given to children who are interested in radio as a vocation.

Special Train For Ski Fans Nears Reality

Two Hundred Passengers Needed to Assure Sunday Trip

Missoula's first ski special will steam from the Milwaukee station to the Blackfoot valley Sunday morning—lunchroom, heated passenger coaches and a baggage car for skis accompanying—if 200 persons express a desire to make the trip. Those who expect to go are asked to call Walter Morris at the Playmor Sport shop.

President Morris of the newly formed Missoula Ski association announced yesterday that he expected more than 300 persons to take advantage of the special round-trip rate of $1.25. The train probably will leave at 10:30 o'clock for a site in the vicinity of Blanchard Flats, 40 miles from Missoula, and will leave there about 4:30 o'clock. An hour of instruction will be given at the site for beginners.

According to Dr. Edward M. Little, vice-president, more than 100 persons attended the first association meeting last Tuesday at the Chamber of Commerce, where Officers Morris, Little and Secretary-Treasurer Stuart Brown were elected.

Select Site The Milwaukee railroad permitted Bud Vladimiroff, Chicago, and Bob Manchester, Syracuse, New York, members of the Forest Service Ski club, to ride a freight train up the Blackfoot valley Tuesday to investigate possible sites for ski runs. Manchester reported "three very excellent sites."

The association will meet at 7:30 o'clock Thursday in the Missoula Chamber of Commerce to discuss Sunday's trip. A talk on ski equipment will be given. A committee will be appointed to investigate possibility of regular trips into the Bitterroot and Mission mountains. Intermountain Bus lines last week offered a rate of one cent per mile to Mountaineers and ski organizations for such trips.

"St. Joan" Players Send SOS for Can Openers

Authentic replicas of 25 Fifteenth century costumes, direct from Eaves in New York, will clank and swish among the Gothic arches on the set for "Saint Joan," Masquer winter quarter major production.

The costumes, 513 pounds of them, arrived at the Student Union last Saturday, insured for $2000 and renting for $5 each. Silks, satins, plush, fur, leather and metal combine to produce the rich effects for which the Cornell production of "Saint Joan" was noted. Robes and armor are guaranteed to be exact duplicates of those used in the Broadway presentation.

"We're thinking of casting 50 extra squires to dress the knights," said director of dramatics Donal Harrington. "Getting into costume takes about two hours per knight." "It used to take 45 minutes," added Bill Bartley, clanking about the makeup room in his scarlet robe and armor as Captain La Hire, "but now I've practiced."

Masquer players crowded the costume room, dragging plumed hats and flowing robes from boxes, parading up and down, oblivious of ordinary trousers sticking out

LET'S NOT GO BACKWARD

That universities in this country may have to restrict attendance within the next ten or fifteen years has been deemed highly possible by James Conant, president of Harvard university.

In his annual report to the Harvard Board of Overseers, the noted educator said, "It seems evident that we are in danger of reaching the condition already so acute on the continent of Europe, where the problem of unemployment in the learned profession demands attention. It seems to me highly probable that a diminution in the total number of students in the universities of this country is desirable."

Education in some European countries today is truly in a pathetic state. Students converge in large numbers upon educational centers for the benefits of higher education. However, after they receive degrees, they remain in the cities and look for jobs, refusing to return to the country and small rural towns from which they came. The result has been that learned professions have become overcrowded while farming and trades demanding lower forms of labor have suffered immensely.

Naturally, the situation confronting European education must not develop in the United States if it possibly can be averted, but restriction of university enrollment should be among the last preventatives used to remedy the problem. To limit the number of students who may attend university would certainly be a step backward.

Higher education gives to a person a certain culture and knowledge which proves valuable to him throughout life. That culture and knowledge tends to reduce crime and to make better citizens is among other virtues. If the number of students who receive higher education can be increased without overloading certain professions, more co-operation and better communities will be the result in future years.

One possible solution to meet the problem of too many people in the learned professions might be to raise standards for a degree in those professions so that only a limited number could enter the various fields. The remaining students could be given a general university degree which in years to come would probably be necessary to get any kind of a position—even as a farm hand.

DO NOT WAIT FOR RESULTS

Is the university a good place for alumni children? This question is the subject of much discussion, even heated argument, among University of Chicago alumni. There are those who would oust President Robert M. Hutchins for so-called "experimenting" with his university. The situation may in small measure be gauged by the words of two of the alumni:

T. S. Miller, '09, says, "I have another son coming along and many nephews and nieces. They should logically go to the University of Chicago. But until the mists are cleared I shall make no effort to induce them to do so; in fact I may attempt to divert them elsewhere if it still appears that the University of Chicago is going haywire in its search for pure reason, if it over-stresses metaphysics, or if those kids would have to associate on the campus with the nubbins which will be the inevitable result of cross-pollinization with high schools."

Charles Tyroler II, '35, takes this view: "Aristotle, Plato and Aquinas are great philosophers. Their works have stood the test of time. The process of thinking is never out-moded. Great minds, great thoughts. . . This is the heritage of our civilization. It is necessary to understand the past in order to deal with the present and comprehend the future. Now as never before, man needs reason, the ability to think. Our educational institutions sit back undisturbed by a society rushing madly to uncomprehended chaos. Chicago alone has taken steps. In many intelligent circles, Chicago is looked on as the bright hope of American education and thus the hope of America itself. Democracy rots through ignorance. The first essential of a lasting democracy is a virile, conscious, thinking public opinion to direct it; only through thought can it become thinking."

Here is not merely an intra-institutional

squabble. It is the thermometer of a storm which some would call an inevitable educational crisis. To those who seem farthest ahead, this struggle assumes magnanimous proportions. Montana, with its Chicago-planned omnibus courses, would do well to witness, investigate, and even participate in this conflict which may affect the whole educational system.

SACO STRIKERS

Saco high school students are again attending school. A week's strike, begun in protest over the ousting of Harry M. Ross, school superintendent, terminated when Ross asked the student council to return to classes pending further action by the school board.

M. P. Moe, executive secretary of the Montana Education association, demanded an investigation by state and national leaders. Though the contract matter has not been settled, pupils said they would resume their strike if Ross is not hired for next year.

Moe said that "prejudice, bias and petty politics," were the reasons for action by the school board in refusing to renew Ross' contract. That the superintendent is well qualified as an instructor, has taught school for 16 years, and is acting president of the Montana Education association, seems to have no place in the school board's opinion, particularly when it offered no direct cause for its actions other than it had "good reasons."

Credit is due the students for bringing the case before the public eye, and for it is eventually entering the scope of the state education association. They are also to be credited with orderly conduct during the walk-out and the attempt they made in understanding the situation to bring about a temporary settlement.

HOW MUCH EDUCATION

"College education in the United States is still restricted to a fraction of the nation's young people. It falls short of providing even that fraction with the understanding which produces the moral and intellectual excellence which, in turn, is the mark of a free man and a free people. A nation which cherishes the freedom of its citizens will try to give them the kind of education that leads to understanding."

Does this statement sound like the all too familiar rantings of a professional agitator? If it does, Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, falls into that category. For the paragraph quoted above is the concluding analysis of the third in a series of four articles currently appearing in the stanchly conservative Satevepost entitled "Why Go to College?"

During the past few weeks Dr. Hutchins has been conducting a virulent campaign against the so-called institutions of higher learning in the United States. His findings, it might be stated now, apply equally well to the universities of Canada.

The sum and total of this noted educator's remarks are that very few students are able to afford a college education, that more often than not the wrong sort of "student" does attend the university, and, finally, that those who do enter the inner sanctums of learning do not receive an education but a course on the social grades.

There is too much that is true in Dr. Hutchins' denunciation to be ignored, that is, ignored successfully. He carries behind him the weight of the largest university in the United States as well as many years as teacher and educator.

One of the many reasons that Dr. Hutchins points to as a cause of the low calibre of students attending the university is that those whom a real education would benefit are deprived of this great boon through lack of funds. This, he suggests, is due to a large part to the failure of government to recognize the need of developing the mental and moral stature of youth. Much the same thing was implied by the resolution adopted at the National Student Conference at Winnipeg by a unanimous vote. The resolution asks that the "Dominion Government should investigate the desirability of a system of national scholarships to be made available to outstanding students who are financially unable to continue their education." It is fitting that such a resolution, which we believe has been forwarded to Ottawa, should come from a student body representative of every university in Canada. It is to be earnestly hoped that the Dominion Government see the necessity of making some provision on its annual budget for necessary scholarships, the present number of which are lamentably inadequate. For, as Dr. Hutchins points out, true goodness lies only in knowledge. If we are to have good citizens we must first have educated ones.—McGill Daily.

If a man should unfortunately have any vices, he ought at least to be content with his own, and not adopt other people's.—Lord Chesterfield.

Cowardice is the source of half the petty faults that go gradually to weaken character.

EXHUMED

General Intelligence Test

Any student who is not too exhausted as a result of trying to imagine what a ling is or why a well-rounded mind should include in its knowledge the definition of a bereave, may have his general intelligence tested by either of the following three examinations:

Number 1 is intended especially for the student who found most of his answers to the test in last week's Kaimin crucified for the enjoyment of the student body. Our guarantee that anyone who passes it has a keen and active mind ought to turn the worst inferiority complex into a positively obnoxious self-confidence.

Number 2 will make you feel pretty good if you pass it, and if you don't ought to convince you that these tests are no fair estimate of a person's intelligence anyway.

Number 3 includes the type of question that nobody but specialists in various fields can answer. Test-writers put these questions in just to be mean.

ONE

1. What is the last word in this line? "Hickory, dickory . . ."
2. In which of these sentences is the word "helmet" properly used? (a) The helmet Socialism! (b) "Man the helmet," cried the captain. (c) In days of old when knights were bold the helmet helped keep out the cold.
3. Is Landon or Roosevelt president of the United States?
4. How many toes are there on the normal human foot?
5. Who said "This is a war to end war, to make the world safe for Democracy"? Was he right?

TWO

1. What is a schism?
2. Is General Chiang Kai-Shek a Nationalist or a Communist?
3. Trichinosis is caused by: A worm, a germ, imagination, tight shoes, improperly cured pork, Republican sabotage.
4. In what best-seller do we find the characters Carlos Cibo, Vincent Nolle, Napoleon Bonaparte and Faith Paleologus?
5. The Mesabi region is noted for the production of: Livestock, artificial eyebrows, iron ore, watermelons.

THREE

1. Who was Charles Lutwidge Dodgson?
2. If you had a pet koala would you feed it: Cold tea, eucalyptus leaves, fresh bamboo shoots, peanuts and whipped cream, blubber?
3. Suppose you wanted to put on a shin-guard of medieval vintage. Would you select a fennee, himation, masaba, jambeau, spandrel, torii?
4. What is the difference between hyperkinesis and hypokinesis?
5. What have the following in common? Yamasees, Abenakis, Cayugas, Andastes, Acagchemens, Kamtehatkans and Olamentkes. Answers at the bottom of the column. No peeking!

UNITED WE STAND

A swimmer drowning in the sea was sinking for the count of three. And would have fed the fish, no doubt, Had not the lifeguard hauled him out.

As soon as he had brought him to the lifeguard asked the man, "Are you a union man?" "Why, no," he said. The lifeguard sighed and shook his head.

"We rescue only union men; I'll have to throw you back again."

A cop drew out his gun to shoot a burglar staggering with loot. "One moment, sir," the burglar cried.

In tones that could not be denied, And while the copper stood on guard

He handed him a little card. "Affiliated, sir, you see, With Local Seven Ninety-three United Burglars of Today." The copper bowed and walked away.

A moral man (well, good enough) And nice to cats was Joe McDuff. Until about a week ago No man was better liked than Joe. But somehow poor old Joe forgot

Inspired Basketeers Stage Surprise Win Over Groggy Ducks

Highly-Favored Oregon Quint Goes Down To Defeat Before Dahlberg's Accurate-Shooting, Close-Guarding Montana Team

Playing inspired basketball, a fighting pack of Montana Grizzlies last night upset the highly-favored Oregon university quint 58 to 52. Despite heavy odds against them, the Grizzly underdogs outplayed their foes in every department of the game to repel the invasion of the conference leaders.

Montana broke their six-game losing streak with a smashing triumph and evacuated the conference cellar, now occupied by Oregon State. The teams meet again tonight in the windup of four scheduled games.

Deadly accuracy at the charity line and superb backboard play were two big reasons why Montana won. Playing in the first half was nip and tuck as the lead changed hands several times. In the second half, Montana gradually pulled away, penetrating the Webfoot defense with accurate passes for easy set-ups.

Every Grizzly played splendid ball, Jim Seyler and Bill Lazetich being outstanding. Ryan, Churnrau, Miller, Mariana showed well. Lazetich with 17 points was high-scoring. Dribbling of Bobby Anet, shooting of Sarpola, who split the nets for 13 points, sparkled for the Webfooters.

Last night's game rivaled the OSC series in fouls. Officials tooted incessantly, their close decisions being greeted by much booing. Coach Hobson tried to halt the swift pace set by the Grizzlies in the second half, keeping substitutes streaming from the bench.

COACHES COMMENT

Hobby Hobson
"We played the worst game of the season. Our shooting and passing were decidedly off form. Montana Grizzlies played a fine brand of ball. They shot well and their backboard play was outstanding."

Jiggs Dahlberg
"My boys played their best game of the year. Fighting hard, hustling all the way, each man played first-class ball. Oregon did not shoot as well as they did in the series at Eugene."

Whadja Say, John?

By JOHN CAMPBELL

Montana State Bobcats were roughly ousted from the Rocky Mountain basketball league last year. As a result, they were forced to join a second-rate loop with Western State, Greeley State, Colorado Mines and Colorado College. In four or five league games this season, the Cats have run up staggering scores against mediocre opposition. Sport scribes back east wrote that the "Grizzlies" were basking in reflected glory and were picked to win the conference crown.

Provoked Bobcats claimed they got it in the neck so came out with this print, to (the) wit-less: "How can a black surface reflect any glory? And when it comes to basketball the Grizzlies are truly a black surface." For those irksome statements, Mr. Bad Bobcat, we'll say that Montana U and the Harlem Globe Trotters ought to get together. At least Montana doesn't have a lily-white schedule.

A new conference scoring mark was hung up by Montana and Oregon last fortnight at Eugene. Together the two teams scored a total of 112 points. Washington and the Grizzlies didn't do so bad, either, making 111 points in their 59-52 go here in Missoula. Washington and Oregon had a "crosstalk" series last week at Seattle. After being nosed out the first night by three points, Gale, Wintermute, Anet and Co., came back to rout the Huskies, 51-31, and hold on to the Northern division lead.

Last night's game marked the first time in almost a decade that Oregon cagers have played in Missoula. The last time Montana defeated Oregon at home was back in '29. Eddie Chinske, one of the best in Grizzly sport annals, scored a last-minute goal to beat the Webfeet, 28-27.

University Store tossers, State League baseball pennant winners last year, may meet the University of California here next May if financial agreements can be made. California's baseball squad is planning a barnstorming jaunt immediately after school ends.

The Golden Bears, who won the California Intercollegiate baseball conference title last spring, are traveling to Chicago via Seattle, Missoula, Butte and St. Paul. If the Golden Bears want too much gold in the form of a guarantee, the deal is off. Can't see how this proposition would flop. . . . A California team playing any major sport in Missoula would draw a good gate.

CLOSEUPS AND LONGSHOTS

Phi Sig wrecking crew spoiled the erstwhile perfect records of Sigma Nu and Sigma Chi. . . . Hec Edmundson says Idaho had the best defensive team that he's encountered this year. Those Vandals are going to be very tough to beat on their home floor this weekend. . . . Idaho settled in fourth place with two triumphs over Oregon State. . . .

Southern California's basketball team is called "The University of Indiana at Los Angeles." Troy's first string and four substitutes hail from the Hoosier state. . . . Even though Joe Gray graduates, the proverbial Gray Ghost of Oregon State will gallop over gridirons again. Gene Gray is ready to fill the empty shoes left at OSC by Bullet Joe. . . . M club elims start in about two weeks with the Big Show slated for February 21.

Frosh Wallop Business Club In First Start

Healy, MBC Center, Tops Scorers, But Cubs Win 54-35

Cubs drubbed the Modern Business college five 54-35 in a one-sided game on the moisture-covered home floor Friday night. Rain from the faulty gym roof made fast breaking and dribbling play almost impossible.

The yearling squad led the game all the way, with starting men playing only during the first half and the closing minutes. The frosh led 29 to 18 at half-time.

George Croonenberghs and Biff Hall sparked for the freshman attack with 14 and 12 points each. Rae Greene, ball-hawking forward, and Don Allen played effectively.

Bob Healy, MBC sharpshooter, garnered high-point honors with seven field goals and three gift tosses. Smith and Forssen followed for MBC scoring laurels.

Ken Kizer, Jack Dowling, Chuck Rogers and James Rooley led the yearling alternates play.

HE SELLS TOBACCO TO THEM ALL

But Branch Bobbitt, like so many other independent experts, prefers Luckies...

"AT AUCTIONS in my warehouse in Farmville, North Carolina," says Mr. Branch Bobbitt, "Lucky Strike buyers know what tobacco they want and they'll keep bidding right up until they get it.

"Well—in a cigarette—it's the tobacco that counts. I know tobacco and I know what tobacco is in what cigarettes. So that's one reason I've smoked Luckies for over five years now."

Many other experts agree with Mr. Bobbitt. Sworn records show that, among independent tobacco experts, Luckies have twice as many exclusive smokers as have all the other cigarettes combined.

Thomas Sends Radio Scripts For Archives

Spanish Professor Replies To Special Request For Material

Copies of Dr. B. E. Thomas' Monday evening radio "Talks on Panamerica" have gone to join other material on the binding of the new-world countries closer together in the archives of the Pan American Union in Washington, D. C.

Thomas says he wrote last December to the Department of the Interior for source material on his talks, and from there transferred his inquiry to the Union which has been fostering a system of weekly broadcasts such as "Brave New World" in Spanish.

Counselor William Manger of the Union sent Thomas the necessary material and in a letter dated January 31 added, "If copies of your broadcast should be available we should greatly appreciate receiving them for our files."

Thomas says he has sent copies of his first three talks to Washington and that last night's sketch of the struggles of four United States Secretaries of State for Pan American unity will soon be on its way.

Thomas considers that prospects for peace in South America are bright. "Ever since the Buenos Aires Peace conference last year the South American republics have been trying to keep peace. When any trouble occurs, all 20 members of the Pan American Union are informed and all make suggestions for arbitration and consideration. All have an equal voice."

As to the recent establishment of a dictatorship in Brazil, Thomas says, "I think it was done to forestall fascism in Brazil, not establish it."

In Mexico, according to the Spanish professor, the strong hand of President Cardenas will prevent any fascist tendencies from taking root in the government which recently "cleaned out that pest-hole at Tia Juana." Despite Representative Jerry J. O'Connell's statement that a Mexican general is gathering his nazi-supported forces for a fascist coup, Thomas thinks there is little possibility of a change in the Mexican government soon.

Frank Sigman Scores Highest As Team Loses

Soldiers Defeat University Men By Score of 2427-2305 On ROTC Range

Frank Sigman, Great Falls, of the University Men's rifle team, shot 278 for high score of the match fired against the Fort Missoula nine January 27 on the ROTC range, outshooting Skipper, Carlson and Henry, veteran high scorers of the fort team.

According to Major George B. Norris, director of the team, Sigman is doing exceptional shooting, especially when his inexperience on the rifle range is considered.

Fort Missoula won the match from the university men with a score of 2427 to 2305. Skipper shot 277 for high score on the fort team.

Individual scores fired by the university men were: Mel Singleton, 249; John Marsh, 227; Robert Robinson, 258; Robert Van Haur, 269; Arnold Andereg, 246; Frank Sigman, 278; Phil Preston, 267; Richard Griffith, 259, and James Paulson, 252.

Individual scores for the fort gunners were: Beach, 262; Stedler, 261; Carlson, 275; Henry, 275; Haywood, 267; Rogers, 263; Wilson, 273; Skipper, 277; Money-maker, 274.

The next match scheduled for the university men is February 3 against the university forestry team. They will fire against the university women February 8, Forest Service February 16, Officers Reserve Corp February 23 and university freshmen March 2.

Production Prop List Grows "From Chimes to Chains"

Everything from the sound of chimes to a medieval inkwell goes onto the properties list for "Saint Joan" according to Properties Chairman Peg Hayes.

Work on the prop list combines skills in designing, painting, carpentering, research and borrowing. The illuminated book of hours, 24 by 18 inches, a precious possession to any fifteenth century family, will be designed and executed entirely by Masquer artists. Donna Faye Spurling, now engaged in making a tree for the riverbank scene, designed the complicated borders of the pages for the book. She will also work on the illustrated volume of Boccaccio which the king reads as he lies in bed in the last scene.

Religious equipment makes its own long list. First there is the four-foot crucifix before which Joan prays in the cathedral scene. Masquer carpenters will make the cross and Agnes Flint will model the figure of Christ. Then Joan must have a litany desk, also for prayers. This the Masquers borrowed from a local church and repainted. Besides these there are the chain to go around the bishop's neck, a bishop's ring, a crucifix for the bishop to carry and a medieval picture of the Virgin.

pins in the second for high single honors and totaled 600 in three games for the three-game high. Chink Seymour, Phi Delt, was close behind with 599. Sig Alpha bowlers took high day honors for a total of 2520 pins. Sig maple men got high single game team honors with 922 pins in the third.

Sig Alpha keglers established a new Interfraternity three-game total with 2783 pins on January 22. The Faculty team of 1934 held the previous record with 2776 pins. Ted Kessler, Dr. J. W. Severy, Professor J. H. Ramskill, Dr. John Suchy and Dr. B. E. Thomas were on the faculty team.

Sigma Nu took three straight from Sigma Phi Epsilon to draw closer to the top teams.

SAE No. 2 captured three straight games from Phi Sigma Kappa in League No. 2 to head the league with Phi Delt No. 2. Sigma Nu No. 2 again defaulted, this time to Phi Delt No. 2.

Research went into the prop list when it came to looking up the family crest of Charles of Valois, Dauphin of France. "We had the whole library in a dither," said Miss Hayes, describing the amount of work necessary to unearth the fact that Charles wore a bend sinister on his escutcheon as a sign of his illegitimacy. This coat of arms must be on everything of the royal weakling's, even his bed.

More searching was necessary to find pictures of the Joan statues in Westminster Abbey and the Cathedral of Rheims. These will be projected on the back of the stage during the last scene as Joan sees visions of her future sainthood.

Other equipment includes chains for Joan's hands in the trial scene, black hangings for all the furniture used during the trial, a chest ("It just has to be strong enough for someone to stand on," says Miss Hayes), a blue baton covered with white fleur-de-lis for Marshall Dunois, Bastard of Orleans, a halberd for a common soldier, and, in Miss Hayes' own words, "Benches and chairs and benches and chairs and benches and chairs."

Assisting Miss Hayes are Mary Cowell, Eunice Pinkney, Marjorie Arnold and Walter King.

Survey Shows Lectures Make Books Popular

Lectures by nationally known personalities influence popularity of Open Shelf books in the library, according to a recent survey. The study was made by Miss Lucille Speer, assistant cataloger and instructor in library economy, on usage of books last quarter.

The most popular books of fall quarter were Anita Willetts Burnham's "Round the World on a Penny," and Victor Heiser's "A American Doctor's Odyssey." Both Mrs. Burnham and Dr. Heiser have addressed student audiences, Mrs. Burnham at the Theta Sigma Phi Matrix table and Dr. Heiser at an outside entertainment program sponsored by the student body.

Miss Speer discovered the preference of plays, travel and science books. During the past quarter 134 students, 24 faculty members and 19 townspeople built up an Open Shelf circulation of 466.

Fiction books averaged 3.7 readers to rank fourth in popularity, while essays, biography, fine arts, economics and sociology, history and poetry trailed in that order.

Here are the most popular titles, in addition to the Burnham and Heiser books: Repplier's "In Pursuit of Laughter;" Anderson's "Neutersel;" Alexis Carrell's "Man the Unknown;" Phillips' "Skin Deep;" Duranty's "I Write As I Please;" and Lawes' "20,000 Years in Sing Sing."

The shelf is open to all students, faculty members and townspeople.

Simmons Is Back at Desk After Five-Day Trip To Four Cities

Dr. George Finlay Simmons returned Thursday after a five-day visit to central and eastern Montana, during which he addressed several audiences on phases of his trip to the South Seas in search of ornithological data for the Cleveland museum.

The president was able to stop in towns along the route and met many university alumni and parents of university students. He discussed university business matters with Dr. H. H. Swain, executive secretary of the greater university, in Helena, Thursday.

Members of the state fish and game association paid a tribute of a minute's silence to Thomas Marlowe, outstanding Missoula sportsman who died recently, following a eulogy by Dr. Simmons at the association banquet in Great Falls. Dr. J. W. Severy, chairman of biological sciences, William Anderson, Bonner, and the president represented the Western Montana District at the meeting.

Dr. Simmons spoke to a Have high school convocation, a Northern Montana college convocation, a public meeting in Havre, Chinoook high school assembly, the Great Falls Rotary club and the Presbyterian Men's club in Helena.

"St. Joan" Cast Sends Out SOS

arete, while Evans practiced walking up and down stairs without tripping over his Bishop's robe of purple silk.

Campbell struggled into one of his Warwick costumes, battling with Fifteenth century ideas of fastening a cloak, while Bartley concentrated on pulling his helmet visor up and down and drawing the broken stump of a "prop" sword. Harrington and costume mistress Lela Hoffstot flitted back and forth correcting and admiring. "We've never had costumes like this," said Harrington, glancing alternately at the splendor of crimson and gold and at the bill from Eaves.

Costume after costume appeared from the two large trunks, to be checked and classified by Miss Hoffstot. Now a courtier's velvet and plumes, now the English soldier's leather jacket. (Looks more like Daniel Boone to me," said Harrington).

The clank of armor will present difficulties in the way of sound. "We'll have to tone up the whole play," said Harrington, "to drown out the noise." Consider eleven suits of armor clanking in unison.

One of the most complicated costumes will be Archbishop Will Baucus'. Over a scarlet robe he will wear a fitted cassock, a short cape, a long cape and ermine cape-magna, or short, sleeved cape.

Then a scarlet skull-cap, a wide black hat, red shoes and a crucifix.

Besides the 25 imported outfits, Masquer needlemen are busy with the 23 costumes being made here. These will be the Maid's first costume, two suits for the Dauphin, 11 monk's habits, two page's costumes and one garb for a steward.

Harrington expects a successful production, provided his players can solve such minor difficulties as getting in and out of armor without a can opener, deciding which way Joan's contemporaries wore their coats, and last but not least, the problem of Don Hopkins' boots.

Hopkins, dressed as a medieval churchman, but swearing like a Twentieth century actor, struggled with his leather hip-boots which his high arches prevented him from getting on. "It might be done," he said, "with lots of muscle and talcum powder." But if it is done he will very likely die in them, as there seems little chance of getting them off again.

Kappa Psi Fire Chases Pledge

People who play with fire are likely to get burned, according to an old adage and that is, figuratively speaking at least what happened to a recently chosen Kappa Psi pledge Friday night. After all, how was he to know he would not be welcomed at the chemistry-pharmacy building that night.

The weather was severe and because the pledge, whose name will be furnished upon request by any member of Kappa Psi, men's national pharmaceutical honorary wanted to attend a show he came from his home to Main hall in order to catch a bus. Seeing the first floor of the chemistry-pharmacy building well lighted the young man decided to drop in on the boys and see what was going on. How was he to know that pledges going active were being initiated that night?

Stepping through the door the unsuspecting pledge was greeted by several actives. The rest of the story can easily be guessed. Reports circulating through the pharmacy department indicate that the pharmacy student had no desire to sit through a double-feature show after his visit.

...my good reason for smoking Chesterfields

I find they give me more pleasure than any cigarette I ever smoked. And if a man isn't getting pleasure from his cigarette he might as well quit smoking. Chesterfields are milder ... they've got a taste that smokers like ... they have everything to give a man MORE PLEASURE.
