Veterans Benefit Booklet Prepared

A "Veteran's Service Manual" designed to inform returning veterans of the benefits and agencies available in Ottawa County as an aid to the veterans has been prepared for the servicemen.

Gary L. Scholten, director of the Ottawa County Veterans Affairs of the Department of Social Services, said the veterans are not aware of the rights and benefits available to them and the ten-page booklet was prepared to inform them.

The booklet lists deadlines the veterans should remember after release from active duty and for basic eligibility. Also listed are state and federal benefits and 33 agencies dealing with veterans and a brief description of agency work, contacts and resource personnel.

Scholten said his contacts with returning veterans, public agencies and private businesses indicated a need to know where veterans benefits were available.

Veterans groups in Grand Rapids and Muskegon have shown an interest in the format of the booklet and were planning a similar publication for their counties, Scholten said.

The booklets are being made available to veterans at the Department of Social Services office in the county branch building on North River Ave., at the Michigan Employment Security Commission and the Red Cross office in Holland.

Scholten said about 1,000 of the booklets were printed.

Bones Said Those Of Indian Man

Bones found during excavations for a house along Allen Dr. near Lake Macatawa were those of an adult male, about 35 to 40 years, more than likely an American Indian buried in the first half of the 19th Century, according to a report received from Richard E. Flanders, professor of anthropology at Grand Valley State College.

The bones were found Oct. 27 by workmen excavating for a new house. They were recovered from a three-foot square area about 1 1/2 feet under the surface.

Flanders said his examination of the bones indicated the person was a large, robust adult male. He said there was no evidence of trauma or disease and the cause of death was not known.

Based on soil conditions Flanders said burial could have taken place some time before 1850 or about the time the Van Raalte party arrived in the area.

Sunday School Lesson

Sunday, Nov. 12
Nationalism and Internationalism
Isaiah 45:1-6; Amos 9:7-8;
Timothy 2:1-5
By C. P. Dame

In former days, other nations seemed so far away, but today, when we read and hear about what other nations and peoples are doing, they seem close to us. We are more global minded than our ancestors. God is the God of all nations and peoples — this is a Biblical truth.

I. God uses different people. The text is from three writers, Isaiah, Amos and Paul, three great men, all servants of God. Isaiah tells how God called Cyrus, the Mede, an intelligent ruler to be his servant. When Isaiah preached, Assyria was the ruling nation, but the Babylonians overcame them, and they in turn were conquered by the Persians under Cyrus who allowed the Jews to return to Palestine. Isaiah foretold about Cyrus whom God called "his anointed." This honor was bestowed upon a pagan.

God had a twofold purpose in calling this man to power. His act benefited Israel and brought praise to Israel's God who alone ruled all nations, the one God who is sovereign and who uses whomsoever he wills. Cyrus was used of God but he did not know that he was carrying out God's will when he was conquering other nations and overthrowing Babylon. Today God is at work in Asia and in the Mid-East.

II. God uses different nations. Amos warned Israel and foretold its doom. In his book, Amos also mentions Israel's neighboring nations. God called Israel to teach other nations about Him but it failed. Verse seven says that God brought Israel out of Egypt and "the Philistines from Caaphor and the Syrians from Kir" — His concern was international. However, God's eyes were upon Israel, "the sinful kingdom," in a special way because God had made a covenant with Israel which the nation violated. Our nation too has been singularly blessed. But have we served God as we should have? In view of our benefits, our responsibilities are especially great.

III. God calls upon His people to pray for our rulers in a special manner. Why pray for the nation's leaders? The first reason is that we may live a peaceful life; the second is that godliness may be maintained, for sound religion strengthens nations, and the third is for "the care of public decency." The person who sincerely prays also works for the cause for which he prays. A good society is beneficial.

"For there is one God, and one mediator between God and man, the man Christ Jesus" — the God - man who is man's only Saviour and Lord. Is He yours?

Early Birds Hear Talk On City Matters

Mayor L.W. Lamb Jr. presented a long list of subjects City Council is interested in with emphasis on four areas at the monthly Chamber of Commerce Early Bird breakfast Tuesday in Hotel Warm Friend.

Subjects receiving special attention were the city's liquor policy, council pay, goals study and the Police Community Relations Unit.

Containing that a liquor license is a privilege, not a right, Lamb said all such licenses are issued by the Michigan Liquor Control Commission which consults local municipalities. Current guidelines call for a tavern license per 1,500 persons and the city currently has 10, may have 18 or 19 but has until the new census in 1980 for increasing the current figure.

He said there is no quota for SDD (beer-wine takeout) and one to 5,000 for SDD or packaged liquor. There is no limit for private clubs. Careful consideration is given new applicants as to whether he pays his bills, has any alcoholism in his family and arrests. In issuing new licenses for tavern licenses (or liquor if today's liquor-by-the-glass issue passes) current guidelines require liquor to be secondary to food, that each establishment must have seating capacity for at least 100 and that a separate tap room be in the design.

On council pay, he said Councilmen are paid $5 per meeting for a maximum of $180 although $120 or $130 is the average. He said not all councilmen agree on changing the present status, but pointed out that two present councilmen have employers who do not reimburse councilmen for daytime meetings. By comparison, Ottawa County pays its commissioners $40 a day and $20 a half day in addition to the $2,500 base pay.

He also spoke of the Police Community Relations Unit which started as a committee of 10, now 15, dealing mainly with family problems, with some emphasis on minorities. The program is federally funded working through the states.

He called attention to the goals committee which will present reports at a Regional '72 dinner Thursday at 7:15 p.m. in Phelps Hall sponsored by the League of Women Voters. Working under Chairman Ab Martin are section chairmen, Rus Fredericks, John H. Van Dyke, John F. Donnelly, Mrs. Paul de Kruij and John Hollenbach who succeeded the late Marvin Lindeman.

The mayor said City Council has had exceptionally fine cooperation from surrounding townships in the fields of recreation, sewers, storm drains, zoning ordinances and human relation commissions.

Other items on the mayor's list were recreation grants, one-way streets, Equal Employment Act program, parking study, central business district, shopping centers, apartment housing, sign ordinance, street improvements, sewer, ox roasts.

First Ladies' Ball Gowns Featured at Club Meet

FIRST LADIES PARADE — From Martha Washington to Pat Nixon, the First Ladies showed their inaugural ball gowns to members of the Woman's literary Club Tuesday afternoon in a timely and enjoyable program. At the left is Mrs. Donald Rietdyk wearing Martha Washington's gown and at the right is Mrs. Nelis Bade wearing Pat Nixon's gown. There were 20 other gowns modeled by members of the club. (Sentinel photo)

A delightful and timely program Tuesday afternoon at the Woman's Literary Club featured the fashion show "First Ladies on Parade", a collection of the inaugural ball gowns of the wives of past presidents and including the most recent of President Nixon's wife, Pat.

Mrs. Jerome Coumhan, in her narration, picked out the most unusual features of the gowns and their wearers. She told her audience that all the dresses shown were authentic replicas of the gowns which are in the Smithsonian Institution. The fabrics are as close to the originals as possible with the cost of each ranging from $750 to $1,200.

Leading the parade was the first "First Lady," Martha Washington. Mrs. Donald Rietdyk wore the print gown with fine lace trim, deep pleats and a matching lace cap. She wore no wig, as is often mistakenly mentioned. This was from the 1789 period.

Mrs. Robert Kuiper wore the 1797 inaugural gown of Abigail Adams, a full skirted tuckered blue creation with deep lace collar and long sleeves.

Dollie Madison's 1809 gown worn by Mrs. Donald Por was an elaborate gown and coat of gold satin with empire styling. Her headband was a matching turban effect. Mrs. D. Black modeled Mrs. Monroe's red cut velvet with Venice lace and brocaded applique in the Parisian style with a bateau neckline.

Mrs. John Quincy Adams, as portrayed by Mrs. Henry Hekman, wore a silky satin empire gown with silver embroidery at the neckline, the sleeves and the deep hemline.

Royal blue velvet in the hoop skirt style was shown by Mrs. E. Slenk as Angela Van Burven in the 1836 tradition. A big lace bertha collar and a coilure of corkscrew curls were shown. Mrs. Jack Dykstra wore Mrs. Harrison's gown of ivory silk satin with uncut velvet and a deep V neckline. Hers was the first made of all native materials. She wore a jeweled dog collar as an accessory.

Sarah Polk's dress of pale blue uncut velvet brocaded and wide-shouldered was worn by Mrs. James Heerspink. It had overskirts and underskirts. Mrs. J. Workman wore Abigail Fillmore's dress of pink satin, accenting the tiny waist. The low oval neckline was softened with a handmade lace shawl.

Mary Todd Lincoln's Civil War gown of deep purple velvet was eye-catching with its cords of white satin and the hoop skirts billowing out. This was one of the first off-the-shoulder effects with deep lace. It was worn by Mrs. R. Van Zanten.

Mrs. Andrew Van Slot wore Mrs. Grant's inaugural gown of pale green and white brocaded with the first bustle trend, long train and olive green underskirt. A lace ruffle trimmed the off-the-shoulder neckline.

Although President Garfield was in office only four months, his wife wore and ivory satin gown with Brussels lace trim and train with bows. Mrs. J. A. Lubbers was the model. Pink and green was the color combination of Mrs. Grover Cleveland's gown worn by Mrs. A. T. Severson. Its skirt was flared to the floor and trimmed with pink lace and butterflies.

Teddy Roosevelt's first lady wore a blue and gold brocaded gown with deep folds and long train and the popular lace at the neck. Mrs. W. H. Boer modeled the outstanding empire style gown of Mrs. Taft in the 1909 era of white silk georgette over white crepe with embroidery over all and the long train.

Holland's first lady, Mrs. L. W. Lamb Jr., was elegant in Edith Galt Wilson's inaugural gown of black velvet with its narrow skirt, black sequined panels and square neckline with its jet tassels and panels with black net over the shoulders.

Mrs. Warren Harding's gown of buff colored satin-backed crepe was worn by Mrs. Bernard Meeuwesen. It had a low neckline with lace inserts and beads and a long train. With it she wore a black velvet neckband, so popular today.

Grace Coolidge's gown, worn by Mrs. Robert Albers was the first short dress in the collection in red velvet with a low neckline and three tiered skirt. Cap sleeves and a rhinestone belt were featured along with the first long pearl necklace.

Wearing Mrs. Hoover's pale green satin gown was Mrs. Roger Vander Meulen detailing the cowl neck, cap sleeves and pointed overskirt. Two diamond clips were the only ornaments.

Mrs. A. L. Rediger wore Mamie Eisenhower's 1953 ball gown in its classic pink pearl de soie with brilliant sparkles.

In 1961 it was Jackie Kennedy wearing a white floor length straight line skirt with peau d'ange and its embroidered chiffon blouse. A matching cape had a jeweled frog clip. Mrs. R. Kneisly was the model.

A fitting climax was the yellow mimosa satin gown by Pat Nixon for her inaugural gown. Mrs. Nelis Bade modeled the gown with its scroll embroidery, mock turtle neckline, long sleeves, straight A-line skirt and bolero-type jacket.

Mrs. Tom De Pree announced that Mrs. Edward Donovan would give her book review at the next meeting replacing Helen Wong who is ill. She also announced Verma Hill's workshop on Nov. 30.

Coffee and dessert were served after the meeting.

HOLLAND IS DAMP COUNTRY

"Holland (The Netherlands) is a very damp country! According to Compton's Encyclopedia, almost one fourth of The Netherlands used to lie beneath the North Sea before the waters were pumped back behind dikes and dams. And as if things weren't wet enough, Holland gets 150 to 200 days of rain each year! The Dutch who have an international reputation for thrift, know that shoes made of leather would not last long in the damp fields of the Dutch countryside. That is why, when you pass a farmhouse, you may see wooden shoes (klompen) of varying sizes set in a row outside the door.

"Nowadays, with the industrialization of The Netherlands, many Dutch are going to the cities, where they live and dress much like the people of the United States. However, Compton's Encyclopedia assures us, the native Dutch costumes and wooden shoes can still be found. The Women and girls of Volendam still wear the wide, billowy skirts and the peaked bonnets with 'wings.' The men and boys wear baggy trousers and round caps. And various regional costumes are still worn in other towns and isles of the Zuider Zee."

We thought that this would be of interest for our people as we are now in the process of arranging for more uniforms for the next festival in May 1973.

To Continue Working Together

Conference Ends On Confident Note

With no dissenting votes, church leaders of the Christian Reformed and Reformed denominations adopted a seven-point program emphasizing unity rather than union Thursday afternoon at the close of the three-day conference which reviewed the historic split in 1857 with study on how the two groups can work together for better understanding.

Joint denominational meetings or festivals will be held April 8, 1973, the 116th anniversary of the formal separatist movement in 1857. That was the date of a Holland classis meeting in Zeeland which reviewed the schism leading to the split.

More than 100 delegates and observers from all over the country gathered in Holland for the three-day conference. Meetings were held in historic Ninth Street Christian Reformed Church with meals in Durfee Hall.

The conference was the result of several years' study by the inter-church relations committees of both denominations. The central steering committee consisted of Dr. Herman Ridder and Dr. Robert Visscher of the Reformed Church and Dr. Jacob D. Eppinga and the Rev. Arnold Brink of the Christian Reformed Church, all of Grand Rapids.

The agreement calls for joint theological studies in areas of common concern and freedom of denominations to maintain whatever other relationships they have. It also calls for the two denominations to plan one or more joint festivals to promote common tasks.

Letters on the agreement will be sent to all members of the two denominations.

Dr. Ridder, formerly of Holland, said that the conference met or exceeded every expectation of the steering committee and the optimism and acceptance was a plus factor.

There was little or no mention of church merger at the conference. The event was in terms of where the two denominations are in 1972 and what to do in the future. "It's only a date, not a marriage," one leader said.

Rogers Ekes Out Win Over West Ottawa

WYOMING—Rogers Golden Hawks soared to a football victory over the West Ottawa Panthers, 16-8, here Friday night. Both teams are now cellar dwellers with two wins and six losses on their records.

The Panthers drew first blood as they scored with 3:57 left in the first quarter. They recovered a Rogers fumble on the Rogers 35-yard line and in five plays managed to take the ball over the line for the six points. West Ottawa's Scott Tolliver scored the Panther's only points of the evening. West Ottawa failed to kick the PAT, but because of a penalty they were given a second chance and Tolliver took the ball in for the two points.

The Golden Hawks flew back in the second quarter to even up the score. Dave Coates, the work horse for the Rogers' griders, who ran the ball 30 times for 132 yards, capped a 46 yard drive as he swept the right end from four yards out. A fake kick on the PAT was called back by a penalty, but a pass from Tom Underhill to Craig Crawford was good for two and the game was tied with 7:33 left in the half.

The Panthers could not keep the Golden Hawks down in the second quarter as Rogers pulled ahead with 1:29 left in the half. A 37 yard march to the goal-line gave the Golden Hawks another six points and again Coates was Rogers' all important man. His six points gave him the Rogers record for most touchdowns scored in a season, 12.

The action in the third quarter was a grudge match as the two teams fought fiercely on the ground and neither one was successful in moving the ball any great distance.

The Panthers took to the air in the fourth quarter in a desperate attempt to get on the scoreboard, but the Golden Hawk aerial defense was, however was also unable to mount any attack in the last quarter.

The game was a tough one for the Panthers, but next week they have a chance to come back as they meet rival Zeeland at home.

Saugatuck Men To Restore Surfboat

By Bill Vande Water
SAUGATUCK—A metal surfboat, probably 100 years old, buried in the beach sands near Saugatuck for several decades, is being restored as a memorial to past Saugatuck boat builders. The metal hulled vessel with wide keel, sound oar locks and wide seats, had been reconditioned in 1930 for use by a Sea Scout unit at Saugatuck after having been covered by sand for decades. The boat resembles a whale boat and was believed to date back a century when residents pressed the government for a

Coast Guard station or life saving station along Lake Michigan. The boat was said an answer to the local requests. David Van Dis of Saugatuck and C. Patrick Labadie, former curator of the S. S. Kewatin, are seeking information concerning the old surfboat. Van Dis plans to restore the craft as a memorial to his grandfather, Gary Bird, and his uncle, Carl Bird. The Birds had plans years ago of placing the surfboat into its original craftsmanship. In the spring of 1930 the surfboat was removed from the sands by the Saugatuck Sea Scout crew. The unit was in charge of George H. Wright who became a Scout Executive in Michigan and Illinois and who died a few years ago. Wright was assisted with the boat by first mate Nelson Wood and among the scouts was the late Charles Gillman who later took over command of the unit. The scouts of 1930 and some old time Saugatuck residents worked on the surfboat and renamed it the "Gallinipper", a seafaring name for giant mosquito. It was a sight to see the shining hull of the surfboat tracking on the Kalamazoo River with the Sea Souts at the oars. Years later the surfboat apparently fell into disuse and sands again covered the vessel. The only name appearing on the craft is "Saugatuck" on the bow. The metal hull shows little signs of weathering. Labadie says the craft may have been one of the first patent metal surfboats built. In his research, Labadie found one other surfboat but that was a more refined model than the Saugatuck boat. The owner of the other surfboat claims it was built nearly a century ago. Gary and Carl Bird are the sons of an early resident of Saugatuck, Charles E. Bird. Charles was interested in various enterprises in the village including the building of boats. Gary and Carl worked in the shipyard of their father, Rogers and Bird. Van Dis is a descendant of Yankee and Dutch stock and his great grandfather married Dezhia Van House and came to Michigan in a covered wagon and lived at Croton a short time before moving to Illinois. The Birds returned to Saugatuck in 1866 where members of the family still reside.

OLD SURFBOAT — Walter Mondschen of Douglas looks at the old surfboat in Saugatuck. The metal boat, probably 100 years old, was buried in the Saugatuck beach sands for many decades. It is being restored as a memorial to past boat builders by David Van Dis of Saugatuck.

Century Club Learns About Lake Macatawa

Edward H. Goebel, speaker at the Monday night meeting of the Century Club, praised the scientific expertise of the Hope College faculty and the students who are actively studying the water areas in this vicinity. He said Holland is in an enviable position because of the potential leaders in this field. The speaker also commented on the backing given to the college by many business and industrial leaders in the community. Goebel, an associate director of the Great Lakes Foundation, Ann Arbor, has had an interest in the lakes and rivers of this area for many years, growing up in Grand Rapids, studying engineering at Junior College and the University of Michigan and working with the waste systems requirements for Fisher Body at Mansfield, Ohio. It increased his interest and active participation in research. His talk, provocatively labeled "All You Wanted to Know About Lake Macatawa and We're Afraid to Ask" pointed out that studies show that Lake Macatawa had the highest percentage of undesirable content in recorded history in 1970, that it improved in 1971, but was back to almost the 1970 percentage in 1972. Goebel took part in the Inland Seas study of Lake Michigan between Chicago and Hammond, Ind. One alarming finding he reported was that 25 miles from Chicago at a 250-foot depth they found that 40 feet from the bottom the sediment was extremely putrid. The chemical analysis of sediments are constantly changing and contents vary with the areas, he said. Lake Superior is under intensive study, Goebel said, because of the paper mills and one taconite plant which discharged enough waste in 10 years to fill Lake Macatawa twice. He added that 11 other similar plants are processing correctly by discharging tailings in abandoned pits. In relating studies made, Goebel spoke of the problem of slow flow in Lake Superior where retention is 190 years; Lake Michigan, 100 years and Lake Erie only three years, which in time will be only a wide river. Lake Macatawa has 196-day retention. Concluding his informative talk, Goebel said that students estimate the solution on a nationwide and local basis would be expensive, costing $100 million dollars a day for 10 years. He quoted a congressman as remarking "our country will only allot that amount of money for a national emergency and that we may need to declare war on ourselves for the preservation of what we have."

An overwhelming Republican district, Fillmore voters gave Nixon 897 votes to 94 for McGovern. Much the same ratio followed for other partisan positions. All proposals were defeated, the widest margin in the Proposal B abortion issue which was voted down 923 to 48. Daylight saving time was defeated 619 to 346.

Special GOP Luncheon For Latin Americans

By Michael Anthony
"Don't become complacent with the way of life you have here," Bert A. Gallegos told his audience Saturday at the GOP Latin American Luncheon in Durfee Hall.

Gallegos, who is the General Counsel of the Office of Economic Opportunity (O.E.O.), was the guest of honor at this special event organized by the local Latin American community.

Playing the role of a surrogate candidate, Gallegos praised the Republicans and President Nixon. He went on to explain how the philosophy of OEO and Nixon coincide. The focus of OEO is aimed at bringing to local government, government the way government should be. The entire effort of OEO is to decentralize the levels of government and give the individual and local municipality more authority.

Gallegos added that OEO is a "marvelous concept that will eradicate poverty." He said that we must "put in all the input to alleviate poverty in the land of affluence."

The luncheon was at Hope College and attending were many distinguished local Republicans. Among those attending were U.S. Rep. Guy Vander Jagt and Probate and Juvenile Court Judge Mary Coleman.

Commenting on the Hispanic culture, Gallegos expressed a desire for more cooperation between the Anglo-Saxon culture and the Hispanic culture and hoped that the time would come when there would be a greater sharing between the two cultures.

Gallegos reviewed the advances that the Latin Americans have made in America and attributed a large part of their success to the efforts of President Nixon. Gallegos claimed that during the Kennedy Administration there were no Latin Americans in higher governmental offices and that the situation was little better during the Johnson years. Gallegos stated that already 50 Latin Americans have been appointed to higher posts in the government by Nixon.

In his closing remarks Gallegos expressed what he thought the direction of the OEO must be and what he is trying to do for the poor in America. "I want to bring in those that have been left out."

Credits Miracle For Her Sight

By Helen Wright
This is not an age of belief in miracles.

But miracles still do happen, as the recent experience of a former Holland area resident bears out.

The former Marolyn Brink, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry

Marolyn Brink Ford

Brink of 141st Ave., now Mrs. Acie Ford of Farmerville, La., experienced the miracle of complete recovery of her sight, late in August, after being completely blind since 1970 and legally blind since 1960.

According to a letter which she wrote to her parents and friends here, her blindness is the result of a process called "macular degeneration," the destruction by infection of eye tissue, resulting in actual holes in the eye. In addition, Marolyn's eye nerve endings are dead and the retinas have completely dropped off. The Brinks had taken Marolyn to University Hospital Ann Arbor and to Mayo Clinic in efforts to help their daughter keep her sight, or at least arrest the degeneration, but by the time she was graduated from Holland High she was legally blind.

Mrs. Brink says that they were surprised and happy when Marolyn was accepted at Tenn. Temple College in spite of her worsening handicap.

A thread of strong faith runs through Marolyn's own account of her experiences. She feels, "God had a purpose for making me blind and He used by blindness and now He is using the miracle that I can now see, for His glory."

It was at Tennessee Temple that Marolyn met Acie Ford, a young theological student whom she married Aug. 14, 1962. He is pastor of a church at Farmerville. Both finished their studies after their marriage. Marolyn by the use of tape recordings. According to her mother, she has been blessed with an excellent memory which was of great help to her as she became less and less able to see. She also is a gifted musician, majoring in music at college.

After marriage, as they served churches in the South, the Fords continued their search for medical help for Marolyn, visiting the McPherson Eye Hospital in Houston, Texas and an eye specialist in Little Rock, Ark. All held out no hope, and Marolyn attended a training center for the blind in Little Rock, to learn to live in perpetual darkness.

Marolyn has a twin sister, Carolyn, who is now married and lives in Vestal N.Y., and her band Bill were praying specifically while Carolyn and her husband for her, in Twin Orchards Baptist Church, there, that Marolyn's sight was restored.

To her parents Marolyn wrote, "I am having the hardest time trying to get a letter off to you. I cannot express to you on paper how I feel. I want to shout it to the whole world. I wish I could come back to Immanuel (the Brinks' church is Immanuel Baptist Church in Holland) and give my testimony now. Many people want me to write my life story."

"While at the training center yesterday, I watched the blind people as they would walk into furniture and walls, doing the best they could, trying to get where they were headed. It send goose bumps all over me to think that just seven months ago I was in that condition. . . Even two weeks ago, I was just like that, walking into chairs that someone might have moved or toys lying in a door-

ONE YEAR OF GLASS — The March of Dimes — CHAMPS glass recycling project marked its first year last month and officials said more than 300 tons of glass, mostly bottles and jars, have been collected. The glass collected netted $2,500 shared by the two organizations and saved 28,836

Glass Recycling Marks First Year

Working in humid heat, pouring rain and freezing cold during the past twelve months volunteers through the Ottawa County Chapter of the March of Dimes and CHAMPS, a Christian High athletic booster organization have helped recycle more than 300 tons of glass, saved 28,836 cubic feet of valuable landfill area and netted approximately $2,500.

From the beginning this project at Sixth St. and College Ave. was supported and encouraged by Brooks Products, Inc., Jacobus's Refuse Service, Padnos Iron and Metal Co., the Owens-Illinois plant in Charlotte and by those who donated their time to work at the center.

Volunteers came from the Jaycees, Hope for the Earth group of Hope College, the Environmental Action Council, campfire girls, junior high and high school students, teachers, businessmen, housewives and senior citizens.

Although the containers are clearly marked for clear, green and brown glass, volunteers must be extra certain that persons tossing in their own glass have the right container. Many times a full bag of what appears to be clear glass has a brown or green bottle at the bottom thereby necessitating someone climbing into the container to haul out the offending color.

Early in the year one volunteer stopped a person from dumping a bag of mixed colors into the green container. When the volunteer pointed out the sign marked "green" on the side of the container and explained that it meant only green glass the person shook his head and said he thought it was the name of the company.

Usually when volunteers check and find rings left on bottle the remark is "have to get after the kids" of "I'll tell the wife not to mess them the next time" but the one that left the volunteers wondering was when the man said "Oh, that glass came from my wife's in-laws."

One man so anxious to help throw in his own glass tossed in his car keys by accident. Looking for car keys among 22,000 pounds of glass can be like looking for the proverbial needle in a haystack.

Problems were caused by persons who dropped off glass during the week. In the winter it would be frozen to the ground and have to be kicked loose. Other times the boxes and bags holding glass would be soaked from sitting out in the rain or snow and have to be repacked into dry boxes before they could be carried to the large containers.

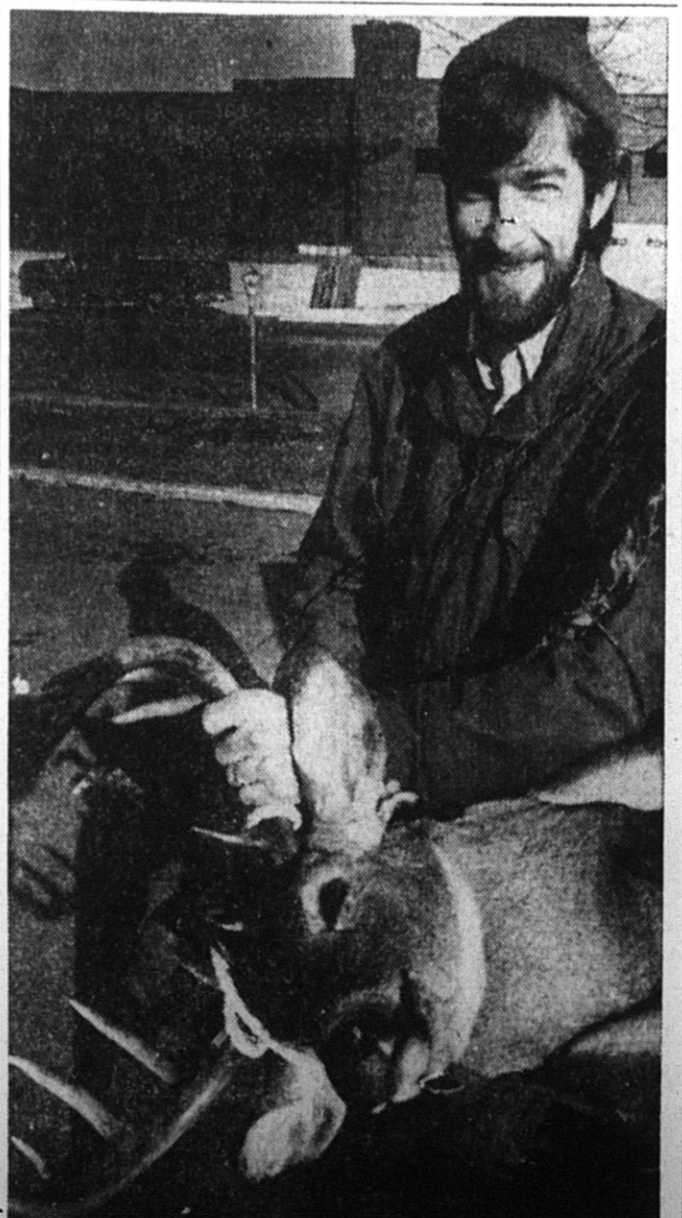

Hundreds of cardboard boxes and paper bags that have transported glass to the center are broken down every week and carried to a large truck where they are stored until they can be picked up for recycling. Volunteers must reject glass that has not been properly cleaned of peanut butter, salad dressing, ketchup, etc., or when two or three colors are crushed and mixed together making it impossible to separate.

Last April containers were added for tin cans, bi-metal and aluminum. Since that time 9,680 pounds of tin and 112 pounds of aluminum have been collected. Items for recycling should be brought only when the center is open on Saturday morning from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. and not dropped off during the week. Glass must be clean and all metal rings removed from the bottle necks. It is helpful to have glass sorted by color.

Most cans with a pull-tab are bi-metal. These should be separated from the tin cans. On tin cans remove all paper labels, cut out ends and crush can. Aluminum pie tins, tv dinner trays and foil must be clean. Aluminum cans have no seam. All proceeds are divided equally between the two groups.

State Educator Seeks Equality and Quality

By Michael Anthony "There must be a change in finance to achieve quality education," Dr. John Porter, state superintendent of public instruction, told his audience at Hope College Monday night and continued saying "We must have financial reform."

Porter, at an afternoon news conference and again during the evening program, stressed the need to vote "Yes" on Proposal C on the ballot. Porter, who is deeply committed to improving the educational system, feels that we must move "toward equality and quality in education."

He went on to explain that the passage of Proposal C would eliminate the usage of property taxes for the general funding of the school's operation. The passage of this proposal would make the school more responsive to the quality of the school's program and the school would not have to worry about its salaries and millage.

Outlining many of the problems that schools face today, Porter cited the following issues as being important: school reorganization, decentralization of schools, salaries, tenure, busing, classroom size, and financing. He added, however, that we must remember the students and that "in the past the issues were so great that we forgot the end product, student learning, the most precious resource."

The next decade is seen by Porter as a difficult one for opening up teaching positions in Michigan. He stated that Michigan was in a worse crisis than other states and that over half of all the students enrolled in Michigan colleges are enrolled in some type of education program. The number of teachers coming out of colleges is too great for the school population to absorb.

When speaking about the direction of education today, Porter feels that we are in a new era and "today education must change, adapt, and modify if it is to do the job in years ahead." Part of this job is the need to establish occupational skills schools, Porter thinks that students should be able to acquire skills that are employable.

Continuing to focus on the future, Porter wants to develop "a new way of thinking." He feels that teachers must rethink their dependence on textbooks, universities must train a new kind of teacher, and schools must be managed like a business enterprise. "We must," he added, "be aware of our successes and failures."

In his closing remarks Porter stressed the importance of education and our responsibility to educate. Quoting Thomas Jefferson, Porter said, "If a nation expects to be ignorant and free, in a state of civilization it expects what never was and never will be."

NOSE Tips

by Leo Martonosi

You may not have noticed but a familiar face is missing on the gridiron this fall.

After 25 years in the business of officiating football and basketball games, Norm Japinga, 42, was forced to hang up his cleats and sneakers because of a knee operation.

Japinga, who worked an average of 25 games per year during the height of his officiating career said, "I really miss not working with all the guys, coaches and athletic directors but the doctor is the boss and he advised me to hang it up before I did more damage to my knee."

The happy go lucky Japinga recalls that when he started working high school ball regularly he was paid about $7 per game for two games each night.

"That's not much," he says. "Compared to today when you work a Class A game and end up getting anywhere from 18 to 21 to 25 dollars."

As an official, Japinga has always tried to be fair with everybody.

"I always try to play it pretty straight to the belt when I'm on the floor or on the field," he says. "I like to think I'm all business and anyone that's looking to make money better not get into it because there really isn't any money in it."

As for giving his all, you're not a credit to the game if you don't put everything you've got into it and that's what separates Norm from the average official.

He's always on his toes at all cal foul. Nor does he believe in ejecting anyone if it can be prevented.

Although he has ejected players, he always felt that an official should be one, whenever possible, to prevent technical fouls.

"He said, 'You're out there to help the players rather than to have a chip on your shoulder so that you stay with one guy the whole game until you can get him out of there. That's not my vision of a good official.'"

Japinga worked football games in the MIAA for a couple of years and also worked some games in the old United Football League with Del Koop and Dick Dolock, two officials who made it all the way to the NFL. In fact, Dolock, is still rated one of the top officials in pro football.

There's a few games that stand out in Japinga's mind. One was 10 years ago when he was working the Alma College-Findlay College game at Alma.

His pretty wife Shirley was due to have their third child any day and wouldn't you know it, she had it during the half-time of that particular game.

"It was really something," said a proud Japinga. "I called the hospital at the halftime which was right after her birth and got to hear her cry."

Julie, who was born on that famous day is now 10 while Japinga's two other children Jeff and Jodi are 15 and 19.

Maybe we shouldn't mention it, but local natives can't forget what happened over at Grand Haven a few years back when Norm blew the play dead when another player had the ball and went in for an apparent touchdown.

"It was really something how the Grand Haven Tribune blew it up on the front page with a picture of me calling the play dead and the other back going into the end zone," Japinga added.

Japinga's mistake was an honest one, the only way he knows, as he blew the play and the other officials were blindsided and couldn't see where the ball was either.

Norm tried his hardest to be able to officiate this fall. After working the season opening Allegan-Grand Rapids West Catholic game, his knee caused him so much pain, he had to give it up and it was a tough decision.

For the past seven years Japinga has teamed in football with Paul Colenbrander, Ray Lokers and Cal Fleser. Joe Jauch replaced Fleser on this year's team because of Fleser working as an exchange teacher in Australia.

"I really miss not being with those guys," stated Japinga. "I enjoyed their fellowship and friendship deeply."

Japinga would rather officiate football than basketball. "Yes, football is more fun and I like the idea of being outside," he said. "You also have less pressure because the fans can't second guess you as much as they can in basketball."

The friendly Japinga who graduated with Holland's Athletic Director Ken Bauman in 1948 means more to Bauman than just any official.

"Norm is more than an official to me," commented Bauman. "He's also a good friend and was a former teammate in high school. I know I depended on him a lot and we're going to miss him on the field and in the gym."

West Ottawa Athletic Director Roger Borr recalled, "Norm came out of the stands in 1970 to work a state district basketball game between us and Christian, when a official didn't show up and I'll never forget that."

"Norm and Lou Van Dyke have probably worked more sport events for us than any other officials," continued Borr. "Some officials are pretty choosy, but not Norm, who would work a junior high, reserve or freshmen game if I asked." "I know he's always done a good job for us."

Clare Pott, AD at Christian stated, "Officiating is a part of life for Norm and whatever sport he worked he always gave his best. I know we were pleased with his work."

Japinga is now on the sidelines as far as being an official goes but fortunately, he's not far from the scene, as he works as equipment manager for Hope College.

He had to give up football and basketball but the doctor says he can still umpire baseball games which is good news to local coaches and athletic directors.

Those black sneakers and cleats that have travelled the basketball floors and football fields of this area have been put away but if they could talk, they would probably add much to the story of Norm Japinga, registered official.

Arson Suspected In Allegan Fires

ALLEGAN — Arson is suspected in a fire Monday night which destroyed an old barn on Dumont Rd. owned by Jim Miller who lives nearby.

Lost in the fire were two brood mares, a yearling colt and a pony. The barn has no electricity.

Allegan firemen also were called out Monday night to a series of leaf fires within the city. Arson also is suspected in the leaf fires.

Norm Japinga missed on field times and gives more than 100 per cent out there. Japinga is not a believer in officials slapping technical fouls on coaches or players just for the sake of assessing a techni-

Exchange Club Has Program On Postal Service

The Holland Exchange Club held its regular meeting Monday at Holiday Inn. The program was in charge of Dr. James Strikwerda who also gave the invocation.

Assistant Postmaster Lester Korten from the Grand Rapids Post Office, discussed with the members "The New U.S. Postal Service," which has superseded the government operation of the post offices and mail delivery. The change over was made July 1, 1971.

He spoke about the enormous increase in mail handled by his new government corporation, and the need for modernization in many areas. In order that the post office may be more effective in serving the people, a research department was established which has led to the installation of much new machinery which handles letters with more efficiency and with greater speed.

He mentioned a new machine which is so efficient that the stamped envelopes no longer need to be put through a cancelling machine with all the stamps in the upper right hand corner but can be fed into the machine and the machine will place the envelopes in the correct position so that all stamps will be cancelled.

This new corporation is operating now with some 30,000 less employees. None has been discharged but some have been transferred to new areas. The difference in number has been the result of retirement.

The post office isn't free from problem because of the strong union and the effectiveness of a powerful lobby, Korten said. In spite of these problems the new corporation has set 1978 as the time when it will be self supporting. The post office is offering additional services to the public as a means of increasing its revenue.

Bill De Maat, Assistant Postmaster in Holland and Superintendent of Mails, was a guest of the club and made some remarks.
