P R E F A C E

Just as the American people prize nothing so much as the principles of their democracy, so the students of Ward-Belmont value above all else the characteristics of true Americanism which they receive from every activity of their school.

The purpose of Ward-Belmont has always been, and shall continue to be, the fostering of respect for the liberties and privileges of citizenship, both in the school and in the nation.

Let the MILESTONES, therefore, embody and reflect such respect for a great purpose of a great institution, and let the democratic spirit ring throughout these pages as it shall ring throughout the pages of the history of the American people.

DEDICATION

Each chapter of the long, rambling, and vivid chronicle of American history has within itself the tales of women of courage and foresight who have shaped, through their patriotic idealism, the destiny of a nation.

To such a woman is this book presented, not for participation in national affairs, but for the fact that she has lived her full life simply, yet with unswerving devotion to her school and her girls.

To Mrs. John Diell Blanton, then, the MILESTONES is dedicated, and with it is dedicated both love and admiration for a great American.

ACKLEN HALL, Beautiful home of Belmont girls for seventyfive years . . . rich in history and Southern charm . . . ornately mirrored and carpeted in wine, the marble statue of Ruth, the fragile chairs and the iron grillwork . . . Acklen Hall makes every girl proud of her school.

Page Nine

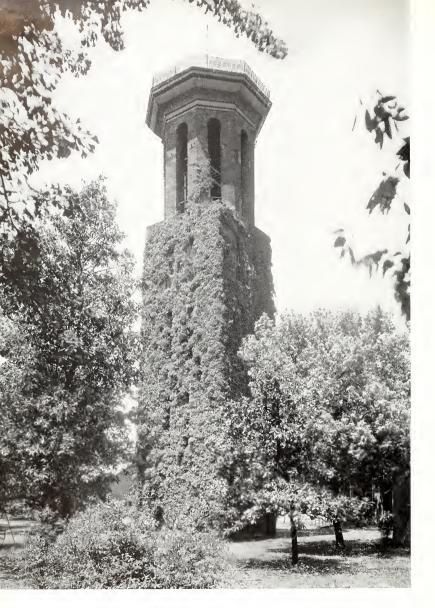

THE CENTER FOUNTAIN, Shaded, quiet, and cool . . . goldfish drift slowly in the shadow of magnolia trees . . . streams of clear water pouring endlessly down the smooth white stone . . . a place to sit, to dream, and to remember.

BLANTON ACADEMIC BUILDING, Etched against the blue of a spring sky . . . tall pillars standing at attention guard the knowledge to be found within . . . French doors arched against the brick . . . stone steps never unoccupied by girls, books, and the deepest of conversation.

Page Eleven

THE SINGING TOWER, Ivy-covered walls reach toward the heavens, and chimes serenade the campus with a crystal harmony of sound . . . tradition and love surround a monument to the passing years . . . sunset and sunrise, vespers and ceremonies, the chimes ring out at Ward-Belmont.

EUSTICE A. HALL HALL, Newest of the dormitories retains the aura of the Old South . . . white pillars facing a green velvet lawn, sunlit rooms overlooking the riding ring or Club Village . . . the meeting place of friendship and cooperation and loyalty.

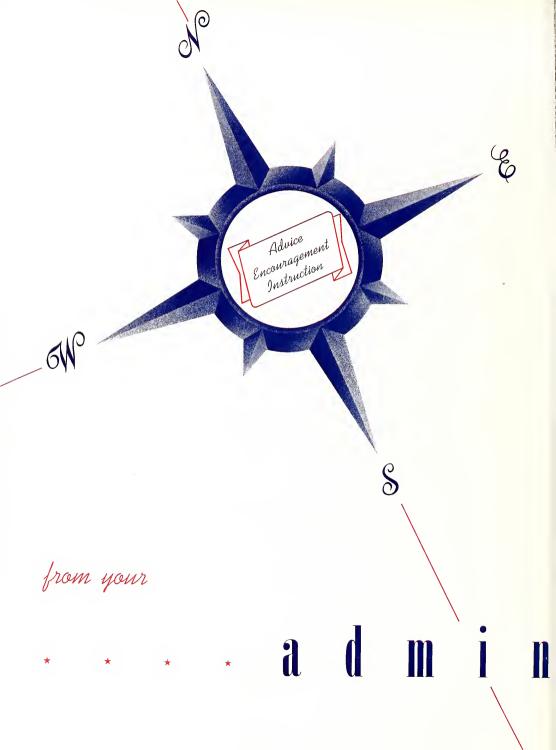

PILLARS OF NORTH FRONT, Tall, serene, stately, they rise on the crest of the hill, giant sentinels of a great institution . . . symbols of ideals and standards which cannot crumble nor fade. . . . bulwarks of the auditorium and gates to a culture a century old.

ENTRANCE TO CLUB VILLAGE, Entrance to life behind the scenes and to club life, the dearest treasure of every girl'... radiant with spring, sparkling with winter, or filled with young voices and the sounds of carefree laughter, Club Village is to every club member a precious memory set in the joy of the past.

The big, kind, fatherly president of Ward-Belmont has a warm spot in his heart for every student and time on his overrun schedule for both their joys and trials. Dr. Burk fills the shoes of president more than amply and provides help and encouragement whenever and wherever it is needed.

Herself a Ward-Belmont graduate. Miss Taylor has in her first year as dean of students brought to her difficult position a charm, poise, and dignity which render her a great addition to the beauty and tradition of the school, while her kindness and fairness have endeared her to both the faculty and the girls.

DR. ROBERT C. PROVINE Dean of Faculty

The dean of the college department personifies that rare combination of the intellect of a Socrates and the patience of Job. No girl leaves Dean Provine's office without a lasting impression of the charm and cordiality with which he treats all alike.

MISS ANNIE C. ALLISON Principal of Preparatory School

Ward-Belmont's sweet and lovely lady, Miss Allison, is a living embodiment of all the grace and tradition of the years. Every graduate who leaves the preparatory school does so with fond memories of "Miss Annie." whose counsel and affection reach out to each girl.

MISS ALMA PAINE Registrar

The ability to meet others and retain lifelong friendships is the special talent of Ward-Belmont's registrar. As charming in appearance as in manner, Miss Paine is the true representative of the Ward-Belmont spirit.

MR. FOREST K. FOWLER Business Manager

The business end of every organization must be kept in order, and this Mr. Fowler has efficiently accomplished for Ward-Belmont. Because of his skillful guidance, the school continues safely on its financial journey through the year.

DR. ALAN IRWIN Dean of Conservatory of Music

Though new to our ranks this year, Dr. Irwin has already proved himself as dean of the conservatory, as an artist in his own right, and as a favorite with all who have known and worked with him. His teaching and personality are a valuable asset to Ward-Belmont.

MISS GENE MOORE Alumnae Secretary

One of the favorites among the newcomers to the campus this year is the youngest member of the administrative body. In charge of publicity, publications, and alumnae, attractive Miss Moore is well worthy of her campus-wide popularity.

Such transformation was due to class activities as a whole and also to leaders such as Margery Wilson who relinquished her position as temporary president to attractive Dale Jellison with Ann Harrison and Ruth Whittlesey as vice-presidents. Maryjo Meacham, tall, bland, and blonde, was elected secretary, and Kitty Felton, drawl and all, was first semester treasurer, with Nancy Awtrey filling the post second semester. Alice Hargis, day student treasurer, and Dot Powell, sergeant at arms, completed the roster of a regiment of history makers for 1940-1941. Under the supervision of "Miss Tillic" Sehmann the purple and white showed itself born to such majestic decorations by beating a confident Senior team in bowling and in many a scholastic event on campus.

Main events stood out like Pat Fry's freckles throughout the Senior-Middle year. Big day number one was the Sunday afternoon coffee in honor of upperclass mates. At a beautifully arranged and filled table the college freshmen presided to repay Seniors for their "big sister" attitude to Ward-Belmont novices. Big night number one was the supper dance when formals were carefully pressed, hair curled in shining waves, and lipstick artfully applied for the class affair of the year.

Now the year has passed, leaving behind an indelible trail of memories of the ideals for which their school stands and for which they are prepared to live and die as the class of 1942.

The preparatory school resides over in Heron Hall and each girl does her own particular bit to make the undergraduates shine.

Under the direction of Miss Widell the Junior class struck a new high this year. Sarah Polk Dallas with her "personality-plus-brain" character served the class as its president. Becky Watson and Miss Crockett were president and sponsor of the Sophomore class. Each helping the other, and the class helping both, the Sophomores went smiling through the year. Patty Greenwood, the younger half of the Greenwood twosome, helped the "youngest class" show their upperclassmen that there's nothing to this "green freshman" talk that you hear. Miss Jacobs was sponsor and advisor for the class.

The preparatory school holds a place all its own in the campus life at Ward-Behmont. Graduation is a great day, but the significance of it lies in those years before that give you that something that can only be found at Ward-Belmont.

The privilege of self-government has been accorded Ward-Belmont students by a farsighted faculty who saw clearly the spirit in which justice is meted out by student to student. It is no easy task nor yet a hollow honor to campus administrative leaders who serve on the council. Taking their duty as seriously as it is met by penitent offenders, the young judges issue decisions stabilized by the approval of the school advisory board. As the trembling lawbreaker seats herself before the council, which meets each Tuesday evening, she realizes that its purpose is not punishment but regulation, not reproof but honor and respect for the standards of her school. The organization, composed of especially elected officers and proctors for both semesters, fills an otherwise gaping hole in school life. Its girls are among the peppiest, most popular on campus, and it yearly sponsors a gym dance as proof of its management ability.

Tuesday at 12:30 may not mean anything to anyone but a group of some seven Ward-Belmont day students who meet each week at that time to hash and rehash the weekly undoings of their day student schoolmates. Headed by Virginia Love Graves, as just as she is capable, the council this year served its school as efficiently as always.

Everything from demerits to majors falls within the scope and watchful eyes of the councilors who dispense justice with the spirit in which it is received. Members are chosen by the day student body as representative of themselves, and their choice is eloquent. Take, for example, Martha Allen, kindly and generous; Jane Woodward, truly popular and clever; Mary Lane Bell, sincere and earnest. All members work toward a common goal: the building up and maintenance of high standards of conduct for Ward-Belmont's day students. So far they have been amazingly successful.

Like its two sister organizations, the boarding and day student councils, the preparatory school council is a shining example of functioning democracy. Prep school misdemeanors find their way, eventually, to the council calendar where they are later handled in the weekly meetings with the greatest of finesse. For, besides being a training ground of the class A variety for wise decisions in later life, the prep school council also gives young students confidence and satisfaction in their own government,

The weekly report of the group passes into the hands of a special advisory board and back again in approved form for posting in Heron Hall. Here the notice is read and reread by the girls who realize that the decision represents the opinion of their classmates and is therefore beyond reproach.

Probably the most devoted followers on the Ward-Belmont campus of the teachings of the Good Samaritan are the members of the committees of the Y. W. C. A. and the executive board headed by Miss Ruby Van Hooser during the first semester and by Miss Rachel Marks for the latter half of the year. In almost every field, the "Y" members have penetrated with such programs as frequent visits to Vanderbilt hospital, industrial meetings, the Crippled Children's Home, and the Florence Crittenton Home.

Leaders of the various committees are chosen for their ability and their interest in the partial alleviation of human suffering in one way or another. Perfect president for such a branch of a world-wide organization is gentle Nancy Young whose cheerfulness and enthusiasm for her job are praiseworthy.

Lucille Ash and Betty Grabiel.

As the hyphen links the name of Ward-Belmont so does the Hyphen, Ward-Belmont's weekly newspaper, link the student to campus activities and the events of the world about her. This year the Hyphen has strived to whip together a new and original make-up, varying with the season and the material. From editorials to "Greener Pastures" and from "Paragraph Press" to "Fizzical Femmes" the year's editions have maintained the high standard set in years past. Although Miss Gene Moore, herself a graduate, was new at the sponsor job, she demonstrated her capability time and again with the more than able assistance of "Cocky" Cochran, editor.

The Hyphen has one of the largest staffs on campus, but each cub reporter trots her feet off almost to the ankles to track down the weekly assemblage of news. With a by-line as the eternal goal and their highest compliment a "nose for news." the Hyphenites carry on the journalistic torch at Ward-Belmont.

Today in America the hands of the clock move swiftly, and as the MILESTONES goes to press Americans grow hourly more conscious of their nation and the rising significance of loyalty to the ideal of democratic government. Because this yearbook has prided itself always on the ability to present major conditions through the medium of campus attitude, 1940-1941 has seen staff members busy with camera, bristol board, and typewriter to set down a picture of the year, sans sentimentality and show. To advisor Gene Moore and talented editor Roberta Dortch goes much of the credit for any achievement this book may merit with its campus public. With sincerity of purpose and an earnest endeavor to reflect their life and times, the staff of MILESTONES worked this year. If parts of their work shall meet with approval from parts of Ward-Belmont students, the editors of this new American MILESTONES will be amply repaid.

Three times each year the literary magazine of Ward-Belmont is published through the efforts of an energetic and original staff and their sponsor, Miss Myhr. Every student of Ward-Belmont is a part of the publication since all contributions are considered, and may the best belle win.

The publication is appropriately named the Chimes because the belles of the campus are its lifeblood. The Chimes serves a double purpose in that the journalists have an outlet for their creative ability, and those less fortunately talented thoroughly enjoy its mixture of literary material. Every girl on the campus looks forward to December, March, and May as the months of the Chimes publication; and its staff this year has not only lived up to preceding years but set a new goal for the years to come.

Any Ward-Belmont athlete striding toward the hockey field, dribbling down the basketball court, or shanning a tennis ball across the net in her best backhand is bound to be a product of the spirit and enthusiasm for sports aroused on campus by the Athletic Association. Organized club teams, interclass tournaments, September campus tours, gym nights, and the renowned Posture Week are all carried out under the skillful direction of the association. Placing credit where credit is due, the group sponsor, Miss Catherine E. Morrison, is responsible for more than one successful scheme planued by the executive board.

Having for its purpose the promotion of moral and physical welfare, healthy competition, and the ideals of comradeship, good sportsmanship, and fair play, the Λ . A.'s value is well illustrated by the genuine interest in athletics on the Ward-Belmont campus.

You will attend and undoubtedly enjoy the monthly Monday meetings in the green room as well as plays. French bridge, outside speakers, and the annual picnic. You will learn to appreciate things French and find in yourself a new appreciation of English as well.

With two sponsors so well versed in the romantic speech of the Spanish, it is small wonder that the story of "Amparo" and the preterite tense fill the waking thoughts of many Ward-Belmont senoritas. Monthly meetings, also held in the popular green room, feature Spanish songs, movies, and interesting talks. Swing time at Ward-Belmont is Captivator time. Thursday nights are eagerly anticipated by each and every jitterbug, waltzer, and music lover. Not only Thursday nights hold a place in the hearts of the belles, but a party is given by this organization during the year, and they give forth on other special occasions. Blonde Shirley Allison wields a mighty baton, and the Captivators "give" in the person of Rae Wright's crooning sax and Berta Dortch's syncopated rhythm at the keyboard. Their music is of that special variety that seems to get under your skin. With so many assets they were bound to have a successful year.

Each year Captivators charm anew the hearts and toes of Word-Belmont belles

ORCHESTRA

Josephine Pardue, soloist, and Conductor Rose lead the orchestra to a 1941 climax Melodious refrains issue from the direction of the chapel each Monday evening under the conductance of Kenneth Rose. Under his capable baton, the fifty-five members of the Ward-Belmont orchestra create music that is distinctive as well as talented. Main event of the nusical year was the concert given during the Fine Arts week with Josephine Pardue as soloist.

Aims of the organization, according to leader Rose, are to afford serious study and experience in actual execution. Fifty-five diligent artists and one expert instructor have this year succeeded admirably.

No doubt the title of this organization was not originally meant to contain a double meaning but the enjoyment that it brings to its large assortment of sopranos and contraltos has been obvious this year. Sponsored and instructed by Mr. Sydney Dalton, the group warbles and chortles its way to mastery of each season's repertoire.

Main event of the Glee Club year was also participation in the Fine Arts week on the first day of April. But far from being an April fool, the program was well worth listeners' keenest attention. The Glee Club is undeniably a great incentive to further music study.

When the frost is on the pumpkin, the Ward-Belmont hockey field reaches its annual season of bloom with a large crop of club shorts and enthusiasm. Practice twice and even three times a week made club teams and class squads itch for action and, although feet were numb and noses blue with cold, the games were played off with vim and vigor.

Individual shiners were, as a matter of course, varsity members, and club outstanders such as Louise Jahncke. Alice Harton, Mozelle Adams, Louise Lord, Diantha Norris, Madge Phillips, Virginia Love Graves, Betty Curtiss, and Marilyn Lookadoo.

Laurels go to the T. C.'s who defeated the Penta Tau's in the final game of the club competition and chalked up a victory to gain the much-coveted trophy. Second-place winners were the day students of the Angkor Club whose superspeed playing left them only a few scores short of victory.

The 1940 season reached its climax, however, with the Senior-Senior-Middle and Junior-Junior-Middle games at its close. In the second half of the Senior-Senior-Middle game, the Senior team, superior in weight and speed, pulled ahead to win the battle with four goals over their scoreless rivals. The Junior-Junior-Middle fracas was also filled with excitement with Guthrie, Lookadoo, Bell, and Burk coming through with flying colors after playing consistently good hockey throughout the season.

All in all, the round of games was immensely successful. The season closed minus hard feelings, minor or major mishaps, and plus a renewed knowledge of the best in sportsmanship.

The final flourish to the dance signature of 1941

DANCING

One of the busiest places on the Ward-Belmont campus, not even barring the personnel office or the post office, is Miss Mary Elizabeth Delaney's dance studio featuring tap, ballet, modern, and acrobatic means of tripping the light fantastic. The studio contains many of the most talented and graceful girls in any department.

Most girls are interested in tap work with an eye to equalling the work of personality-appeal La Vonne Phillips, Betsy Ann Humphries, Georgia Collins, or Frances Hood. Those who prefer toe work will find a finished model in pert little Mary Teetshorn or Connie Clark. Acrobatic dancing has only one peer at Ward-Belmont but her fame is such that no partner is necessary. Boneless Louise Jahncke, agile and relaxed as a rag doll, does nip-ups, unsupported flips, or splits all with equal poise. Her diploma recital with Betsy Ann Humphries provided Ward-Belmont with its chief topic of conversation for weeks before and after the evening of April 4. As a part of the course each girl created one solo and one group dance with costumes and music arrangements. When Betsy Ann appeared in her Hungarian Rhapsody presentation and when Louise Jahncke appeared in Trepak and Ballet du Reve, the first and only night audience could not suppress oh's and ah's of admiration.

Through the year the dance department presented some of Ward-Belmont's best entertainment. Across the country have come dancers to learn in the studio the elements and essentials of dancing at its best.

TENNIS

Early in the fall racquets and tennis balls were in use and the courts were always full of classes or ambitious lassies perfecting their serve, their net, or their return. Miss Cayce taught the beginners the racket and soon they were batting the ball so that it went over instead of under the net.

Some really expert playing was demonstrated at the tennis tournament. Many of the games were close, and many of the sets were long. The smooth and even timing of Peggy Plummer took her a long way in the meet. Alice Harton and Mary K. Clark are both experienced players with fast returns and good footwork.

After weeks of hard playing, eliminating, and more hard playing only two girls remained in the tournament. It was not only Graves versus Wilson; it was Eccowasin versus Penta Tau. V. Love has a low swift return, and a habit of "placing" the ball. Margery has a strong drive and a powerful serve, yet she can tap the ball so softly it will drop just over the net. It was a nerve-racking match, with Wilson claiming a 2-6, 6-3, IO-8 victory.

Twice each year Ward-Belmont moves en masse out to the riding ring to view the semi-annual horse shows produced by beautiful, capable Miss Camilla Nance.

The X. L.'s, veteran cup winners in any event, walked proudly off with the fall trophy after winning the spring show in 1940. Sponsored by the Turf and Tanbark, the single day exhibition was judged by Lucile McDuffie, Carol Bryant, and Mary Jane Becker. First-place winners were Ernie Shears, Katherine Bryant, Helen Marie Camp, Maxine Peterson, Betty Thomas, Jane Scovern, and Sally Conrad, the last two named winners in the pair class.

With the appearance of the first crocus on campus, Nance horsewomen were again in the ring, in the stable caring for prancing steeds, and in the pink of enthusiasm for the spring show. May seventh dawned bright and unclouded and first-place winners beamed almost as brightly as their heavenly contemporary when ribbons were awarded to Lucile McDuffie, Mary Aileen Cochran, Kay Combs, Sally Conrad, Jane Scovern, Ann Frasher, and Mary Jane Learned,

May eighth climaxed the year for riding majors and every gaberdine-clad hopeful entered the ring with a thumping heart and a shaking hand. Carol Bryant cantered away with five-gaited honors, Marilyn Brown won the management blue ribbon, little Mary Smith jumped to victory, Mary Eleanor Ritenour was awarded three-gaited first place, Nancy Fischer and Lucile McDuffie won park ride, and Carol Bryant was made champion rider of the year, an honor which all riders dream of and few merit.

When the basketball season rolls around at Ward-Belmont, practically every other activity is out as far as Helen Marie Camp, "Tommy" Thomison, Nancy Awtrey, and Mary Jane Learned are concerned. Fun to watch as well as to play, basketball this year was one long series of thrills and spills a la Suzanne Gibson.

The Tri K's were the personification of cooperation with fiery-haired "Peaches" Norris and Ethel Butterweck playing spectacular basketball. Most club teams were above average in their playing and sportsmanship, although the X. L.'s had a sextet of sirens who were absolutely unbeatable. Little Dot McCracken proved herself a valuable asset to the team of experts who scored themselves into first place in the tournament.

For the day students, the blue-clad Angkors were most outstanding, whizzing through all opposition only to be downed by the X. L.'s in the semifinals. Day student shiners were Mozelle Adams, unshakable Ariston guard, Alice Hargis, Ann Elizabeth McCarley, and Margaret Burk.

Basketball holds a strong position in the hearts of most Americans, and Ward-Belmont basketbelles are no exception. To them, the epitome of delight is the clean swish of the ball as it slips through the basket—to tie the score of a game well played.

The alleys reverberated long and loud when the time came to roll in those strikes and spares. The gym office simply overflowed with enthusiastic prospects. Miss Cayce gave instructions, then prayed that the floor would still be the same after the beginners dropped the ten-pounders ten times a "row." After the bewildered girls saw the ball in the "gutter" and the pins still upright for about a week the dawn began to break and the scores added to three digits.

After weeks of practice the Seniors and Senior-Middles went down to the alleys to compete for the championship. Mary Frances Charlton and Betty Grabiel were the pride of the Seniors. Both girls have a curve ball with a thunderbolt of power behind it, and they throw it hard and fast without ever stepping across the foul line. The Seniors scored 429 but the Senior-Middles, led by Mary Grabiel, topped it by thirty-eight points. Grabiel was high scorer for the day with 133 points. She was easily the outstanding bowler of the season, although many of the girls marked up many a spare and strike to her credit.

With every splash in the Ward-Belmont pool this year the fish were given more forceful competition by finless adversaries as the beginning and advanced water splashers perfected Eleanor Holm form.

Connie "Speedboat" Clark showed versatility from the first with superior form, diving ability, and speed. The swimning meet, far from washing her up, floated the capering Connie into first place with diver Mary Bauman second. Ann Rolfe aided the T. C's in their victory for second place, the X. L.'s having garnered the silver cup, with a wave-slicing exhibition of speed swimming. Mary Jane Learned, however, was the youngest letter winner, which must prove that even tadpoles can show the big fish how to swim.

FENCING, GOLF

Foiled again the Ward-Belmont fencers gather together twice each week for practice in the gentle art which thrilled Dunas and thousands of readers from Paris, France, to Paducah, Kentucky. Under the direction of Miss Betty Jane Selmann, the upholstered swordswomen thrust and parry in the hope of one day becoming not only prodigies of grace but examples of skill.

Percy Warner Park, pulchritude, and the latest in plus fours all add up to Ward-Belmont golfers almost any spring day. Although golf at the school is at a relatively tender age, it has been adopted with energy by several dozen Patty Bergs a la Nashville style. Pat Adams, Mary Jane Miller, Alice Harton, and Patty Walker all have a steady drive and a sure putting stance which places them among top rankers on the spring greensward.

Archers have been eyes for the target

BASEBALL, ARCHERY

Nothing more heart-warming than "home run" is ever uttered from the mouths of crack umpires Miss Morrison and Miss "Tillie" as Cilly Ash. Mary Jane Learned, or Edith Davis slugs a heavy hit into the hedgerow. However it takes a mighty swing as well as a good eye to wham a Jahncke-pitched ball or one served steaming hot by Tri K Virginia Thomison.

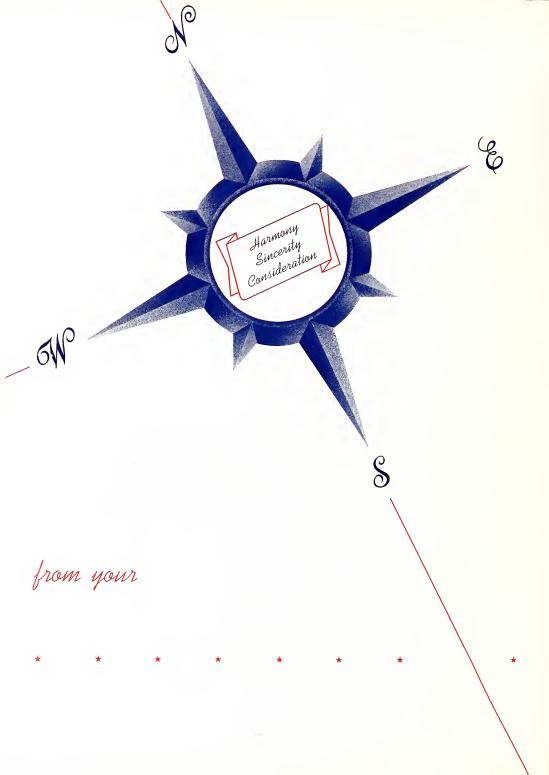

Nothing more gratifying than "bull's-eye" ever reaches the ears of Ward-Belmont archers who exhibit as their pride and joy Mary Elizabeth Henley, with a score of fifty out of a possible fifty-two. But archery is one of the rare sports where practice makes perfect and determination brings success. Other potential William Tells are Jane Woodward, Mary Bauman, and Lois Wright. Such rising athletes agree with vehemence that spring sports are fun, and exercise too.

OWN IN CLUB VILLAGE underneath a magnolia tree stands no village smithy but a Spanish-style bungalow where each week thirty girls gather in the sort of comradeship that makes for workable unity no matter where it may be found. The Agora Club is composed of girls who have found in their organization the ability to shine individually and collectively. Such ability is gleaned not a little from the leadership of popular Miss Gertrude Casebier, sponsor, and lovable, talented Shirley Allison, president.

Proof of the rise and shine project lies in the dependability of blue-eyed Jane Cottom, the generosity and leadership of Marjorie Crowder, the athletic prowess of Alice Harton, Jane Morley's vocal success, and the far-reaching work of Nancy Young as Y. W. C. A. president. Popularity of Agora Club members such as Wray Garth, Suzanne Hazard, Phyllis Lindenbaum, Ellen Spangler, and Lois Wright proves also that Agora talents are not confined within clubhouse doors but have spread by reputation across campus.

Yet the verbal bouquet-tossing that may be accomplished on behalf of the ambitious Agoras will scarcely explain the intangible spirit that will always continue to hold such a group together.

ITH A CLUBFUL of outstanders and a spirit of patriotism, the A. K.'s are bound to keep their standing high in campus activities. To the wellbalanced mixture of the whole, add such special ingredients as the friendly good humor of Jean Johnson, Helen Mitchell, Marion Laue, "Kack" Schmidt, and Kathleen Jaffe, mix well with one extra special basketball team headed by Janet Vohl, sprinkle with the eye-appeal of Doris May, Annette Tarbet, Sybil Parkin, and Bunny Ramsey, and you have six or eight good reasons why the A. K. pudding is so pronounced a success.

Seasoning of the dish might well be the popularity of A. K. girls such as Peggy Arbuckle, or perhaps the dimpled grin of Lynn Caldwell, Betty Cleveland's appeal, and Kitty Felton's irrepressible spirits. For dependability Genevieve Chapman and Sue Steenburg are tops, and for just plain brains, Marion Henn.

A sponsor must always have a finger in anything her club cooks up and such is the case with curly-haired Miss Virginia Richey who resembles one of her Senior-Middles Page Eighty-Three more than they do themselves. It is she who is responsible for the unity of her group, for the parties, week ends, and open houses, and even the new victrola of which members are so justly proud.

The A. K.'s radiate their spirit and their spirit in turn has made for them the reputation of sportsmanship and cooperation in every task they undertake.

ISS FRANCES EWING and Miss Peggy Wright are two of the nicest people you could find anywhere. The fact that they are sponsor and president, respectively, of the Angkor Club only goes to prove that the Angkors are an extra appreciative bunch of people. Besides being a blonde with brains, President Peggy is outstanding in the speech department and a leader of a club which regularly appropriates the scholarship cup, and this year won the bowling cup due especially to the efforts of Mary Frances Charlton and Betty B. Cooney, who both made Senior varsity.

Angkors also hold down varsities in many a sport, and their basketball team was a dream of cooperation. Margaret Burk, Patsy Proctor, Jane Bryan, Ruth Holcomb, Alice Thompson, and Betty Washington held up the athletic end of the blue and white banner with campus-wide publicity. Yet mention must surely be made of Diane Winnia in speech where her unusually beautiful speaking voice has won her justifiable renown, Alice Stovall whose Page Eighty-Five work as day student treasurer of the Senior class shows her ability to handle anything from dimes and nickels to tendollar bills. Nancy Lasseter whose mental ability earns quarterly miracles, Jane Woodward, second vice-president of the day student council, and Betty Washington, secretary of the prep school Senior class.

A clubful of talent and a yearful of responsibility have made the Angkors one of Ward-Belmont's most distinguished organizations, day student or boarder. Such a MILESTONES and campus rating is not to be sniffed at, and the Angkors agree.

S YOU ENTER CLUB VILLAGE the first house to catch your eye is the attractive, friendly-looking Anti-Pandora. The wide porch and spacious doors make you feel welcome at any time and the house is significant of the girls. Virginia Cotten, their capable president, and Mrs. Helen Fidlar, their charming sponsor, are both well known on the Ward-Belmont campus.

Louise Davis and Peggy Gilliam are shining examples of this friendly spirit. No one can resist the temptation to smile when they burst forth with some of their subtle wit. But the Anti-Pans prove that they are more than friendly by boasting such members as Barbara Haggard who is an "A" student as well as an accomplished musician. The Greenwood sisters, Patty and Barbara, are popular girls who also manage to stay on the honor roll. For a song and dance Ardelle Thomas and Georgia Collins both more than qualify. "Tommy" has remarkable ability to thrill with her husky low voice. The Anti-Pans regard with pride Dale Jellison and Pauline Grisso, who both hold important offices on the campus. Dale is president of the Senior-Page Eighty-Seven Middle class while Pauline is secretary of the student council. Both girls are known on the campus as outstanding leaders.

Jean Bloom, who doesn't quite stretch to the five-foot mark, is a fine horsewoman, and you'll see her flashing pictures at all important affairs along with Virginia Roark, who is also adept with the camera.

However nothing can be said to express the loyalty that the Anti-Pandoras have for their club, and it is this loyalty that will keep them always an outstanding club on the campus.

O MORE LOYAL club president ever existed than cheerful, friendly, sincere Mozelle Adams, who is both an inspiration and a guide to her law-abiding Aristons. Individual Aristons are brain-child Mary Elizabeth Henley, tennis star Sarah Polk Dallas, who also heads the Junior class of the preparatory school, walking encyclopedia Ann Elizabeth McCarley, bowling varsityist Jean Maney, brilliant Nancy Stone, violin virtuoso Josephine Pardue, and Chimes editor Jessie Osment,

The Aristons are also noteworthy for the glamour of their scholars, namely Nancy Landis, Elaine Vincent, Nancy Stone, Jessie Osment, and Ann Smith, who also composes with a vengeance. Nominations for most interesting member go to Helen Paty, recently of China, who struck Ward-Belmont belles spellbound with a spring chapel talk.

The Aristons were also undoubtedly clever in their choice of sponsor, for soft-voiced Evelyn Widell is all Page Eighty-Nine that an ambitious club could ask. Largest order of the year for club members was the precedent-breaking day student club dance in which Aristons took a more than active part.

HE DEL VERS, twenty-nine of them, have fun together. They make this possible because they like the same things, have the same interests, know the same people, and see eye to eye on the all-important matter of friendliness. Because their members wanted games and parties: a skating party, a kiddy party, a Valentine party, and a play night once each month resulted. Because the members felt the urge to entertain: an open house and the annual faculty-president's council garden party came about.

Because they like to take trips: two club week ends, one to Rawlings and one to Dunbar Cave, took place in the fall and spring. And the Del Vers enjoyed every minute of all of it.

Since collective success is due to individual ability, such spirit is not hard to understand. Nancy Awtrey, as capable a class officer as she is a basketball player; Molly Bellamy, beautiful Martha of Washington Day; Carol Bryant, first semester chapel proctor and all-year horsewoman; "Kottie" Bryant. HE ECCOWASINS throng forty strong and manage to be one of the most versatile clubs at Ward-Belmont. One of the four day student clubs, it is ably led by blonde Betty Curtiss, whose pleasant smile and Southern friendliness add up to a sum total of diplomacy and popularity. Other officers in the club consist mainly of Cockrills, which proves that Hazel and Adeline are executives par excellence, even to making noise, according to Sponsor Louise Saunders.

Though club members are accomplished in music, scholarship, and every other form of school activity, athletics are their long suit. V. Love Graves, president of the day student council, advanced to the finals in the singles tennis tournament in the fall; Edith Davis has proved her graceful hands mean more than decoration when they grip a hockey stick and flip a basketball. As a champion bowler, Bess Hunt fills the bill, yet direct contrast to athletics finds the Eccowasins with a special group of musicians. Martha Allen has the certain something that puts over a song, and Jeanne Pilkerton is grand on a grand. For brains Mary Ready West and Helen Ransom are ready, willing, and able, and for a pleasant manner and an ever cheerful disposition, Kathryn Keut is the acknowledged master.

So the picture of the exceptional Eccowasins is complete, and it includes every essential of the well-rounded personality so necessary to the character of the perfect Ward-Belmont graduate.

EGARDLESS OF WHAT the F. F.'s consider their title to mean, Ward-Belmont considers it an emblem of double friendliness, not the casual greeting but a warmth of true affection for their club, president, sponsor, and school that go far toward making club members popular across campus.

The F. F.'s respect the rights of others and the appearance of their club. No doubt President Louise Jahncke has much to do with this respect, for a good deal of it is centered about her. Bookworm, acrobat, musician, her popularity with her club is as unchangeable as Niagara. Sponsor Miss Bertha Ruef is also no slouch in the matter of friendship, for even her French classes sing her praises daily.

Of leaders the F. F.'s possess their rightful share. For shining examples one may survey the vocal verve of Frances Brown and Jean Butler, the scholarship of Georgiana Fergason and Ann Frasher, the warm hearts of "Cerny" Herold and Nell Rockett, and the alert brains of Sarah Thomas and Dorothy Stephany. For redheads, we'll take "Pinky" Meer any day in the week, and for athletes of Page Ninety-Five championship caliber, Mary Jane Learned. Beauty ranks high in the blonde charm of Marjorie Niles, dark little Amanda Sarver, popular Bernice Weingarten, wide-eyed Shirley Long. Difficult indeed would it be to find a more mixed club roster—or a more loyal one.

Provided with harp chords by Janet Weimer, dance steps by Lorraine Reid, and wardrobes like those of Jean Waldrop, the composite F. F. girl is a dream walking. But she lives in every F. F. heart.

HE HAS SPARKLING BLUE EYES and a manner of leadership that makes Osirons pleased and proud to point her out as their sponsor, Miss Dorothy Dietrich. Working with her throughout the year has been clever, capable Miriam Cutler, whose calm efficiency has endeared her to Osiron hearts. Through such executives plus Ruth Whittlesey, who also managed the Senior-Senior-Middle banquet, Lois Baum, the most Osironical of them all, and Betsy Ann Humphries, dance major, the club was assured of a year's program both varied and well-planned.

Made up primarily of preparatory school members, the second clubhouse on the right nevertheless contains a group of outstanding girls. Mary Thayer Wilson writes as well as she competes athletically, Katheryn Satterfield showed her organizing ability by managing an all-club dance as well as writing copy for the MILESTONES. Marguerite Reagan has remarkable ability to please the Vesper-attending student body with her readings. Cordelia Lambert and Ermin Guthrie are athletes of no mean ability, Frances Kay Page Nimety-Seven excels in tap, Marjorie Haley is a top-flight Turf and Tanbarker, and Dotty Fitchhorn blows sweet and swing in the Captivator saxophone section.

The way the Osirons figure it is that the cups don't count as much as the spirit with which they are won and the club loyalty evidenced by every member shows the value of such an attitude.

OISED, CHARMING, and beautiful are three words which well describe the Penta Taus. Miss Camilla Nance, sponsor, and Dimple Dunford, president, fit all of them and add several of their own to the list. However, neither their talent nor that of their club members is limited to the cultivation of a gracious manner. Charlotte Armstrong, Mary K. Clark (Dark Agnes), and Jane Voigt (Blonde Agnes) lend harmony to Ward-Belmont ears in tune to the Captivators. The tennis cup sits proudly on the Penta Tau mantel because of the ability of Margery Wilson, tennis champ, and Mary K. Clark and Margie Eichenlaub, who also bring net results. The honor roll never fails to list the names of charmful Nancy Fischer and little Mary Dawson, who is also president of the preparatory school council and a varsity bowler. Nancy has proven her versatility by membership in the council, in the Turf and Tanbark Club, and in the field of betterthan-amateur photography.

In the field of personal appearance, fiery-headed Betty Wilson, Winnie Belcher, Phyllis Jopp, Betty Uhl, Sally Page Ninety-Nine Mayfield, and Margie Lou Thomas, also second semester proctor of Founders Hall.

The Penta Taus prove beyond the shadow of a doubt that the modern American college girl can achieve glamour from sports, executive positions, and scholarship as well as from beauty, poise, and charm. No higher compliment may be paid the Penta Taus than that their appearance is a crowning achievement to their campus life.

LMOST HIDDEN behind the trees in Club Village is the Twentieth Century Club, but the talents of the girls are far from hidden. Athletics seem to prove to be their major interest but the many abilities of the different members of the club make the adjective versatile more appropriate than athletic. Sweet, popular Irma Biel and capable Miss Betty Jane Sehmann, who is just plain "Miss Tillie" to the girls, cooperate in being the chosen leaders of the club.

The T. C.'s are proud of Ann Rolfe, who is president of the boarding council. Ann is not only diplomatic but makes honor roll grades, takes an active part in all sports, and is known all over the campus. The T. C.'s boast many leaders including the two proctors of Hail Hall, sincere Annette Lange, and congenial Ethel Mary Schwartz, who is "Swartzy" to all her friends, which includes everyone. Blonde Carolyn Gwaltney looks more like a glamour girl than the president of the Junior-Middle class, but proves that she's worthy of her office by her high scholastic average. "Ernie" Shears and Rae Wright play hockey as well as they play basketball, and hit a baseball as well as they blow a horn, while Jo Sparks swims and toe dances with equal perfection. Not a sweeter high C is sung than that of tiny Elizabeth Carey, and Mary Arnold shares vocal honors with her. The Grabiel sisters, Mary and Betty, are both lively girls who throw a fast bowling ball, and are often referred to as Gabby and Gabby, Jr.

How can the feeling be expressed that these girls have for their club? You feel it when you walk in the door; a warm atmosphere surrounds you which breathes love and companionship. To realize fully the mutual feeling the members of the T. C. Club have for each other you must hear the ring in their voices when they sing the closing bar of their club song—"So here's to our dear old T. C.—we love you!"

and their name is the Triad Club. A day student organization, the triumphant Triads are proud of themselves for their year's activity and with better than average reason to be. Possessing such members as star athletes Roberta Brandon and Alice Hargis, such beauties as Jane Haynes and little Libby Graves, such popularity queens as Olivia Chilton and Martha Borches, and such potential Einsteins as Mary Eagle and Ann Haley who is day student editor of MILESTONES, the Triads are forging ahead with each year of their exemplary existence.

Because they believe in giving each member her due recognition, Triads have also decided that Mary Walker is the most courteous girl they know, and that Jane Anderson is the most generous. INCE TIME IMMEMORIAL, the Tri K's have been noted for their athletic prowess and the array of cups above their fireplace is proof of their skill. But last year something happened and the astonished club members found that Ethel Butterweck had been chosen president of the Athletic Association, Martha Moore was president of the Senior class, Kathleen Coffey, treasurer; Elva Dver, the new president of the orchestra; Roberta Dortch, editor of MILESTONES; Beverly Froman, assistant art editor; and in short, the major offices on campus had somehow been appropriated by the same club which this year led consistently once more in athletic points.

The Tri K boom was not as startling, however, to those "in the know" who had long ago foreseen that with Miss Catherine Morrison as sponsor and with vivacious Virginia Thomison as president, the club could not avoid making a name for itself in 1940-1941. This year members, of course, made varsity in various sports and won athletic awards right and left. Waver Adams achieved the bowling varsity, "Tommy" and Ethel Butterweck Page One Hundred Five starred in basketball, and Connie Clark made swimming and dancing a joy to behold.

The Senior-Middle members, too, contributed their share. Lindy Baskin and Windy Wagner could be counted on for any emergency. Paula Lecke did her bit on the student council as proctor of Fidelity Hall, second semester, "Peaches" Norris was not to be resisted in any sport. the Scovern twins excelled both in ability and appearance, and Mary Nees proved that she is a harpist of no mean ability. The Tri K's are widening their range of accomplishments in a manner that will make other clubs look to their laurels with an anxious eye.

ROM BAUMAN to Walton, from Masengill to Gregg, the X. L. Club is tops on the campus. Such a bald statement needs only the achievement of Mary Bauman in hockey, basketball, swimming, and as George on Washington Day; or the marvels performed by "Massy" in drama and cosmetology. Sponsored by Mrs. Dorothy Gregg, as gracious as she is clever, the X. L.'s can boast of a riding cup, a swimming cup, and a basketball cup as well. It takes only Mary Jane Becker in the riding ring, Helen Marie Camp on the basketball court, Martha Daniel swinging out with a marimba, Dotty Mc-Cracken, treasurer of the Senior class, Pat Fry, first semester proctor of Founders Hall, "Cocky" Cochran, editor of Hyphen, and "Carlee" Rice, Dot Pascoe, Eloise Jensen, and Libby Hoffman for an out and out good time.

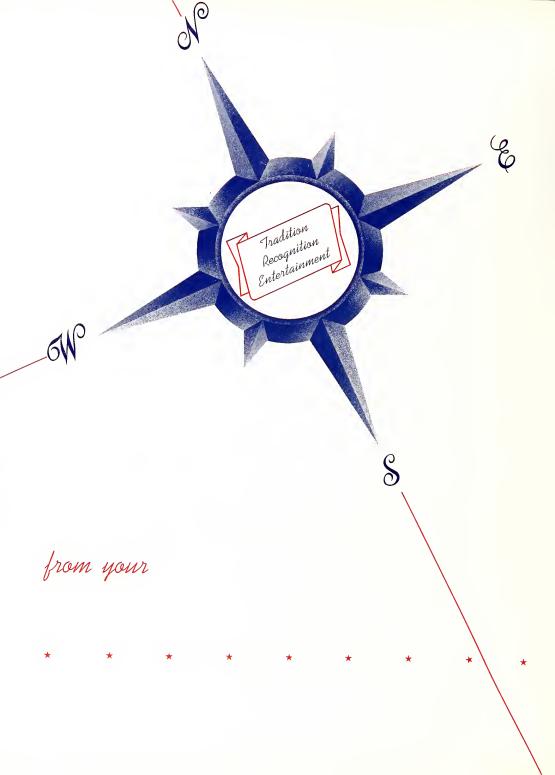

The N. L. open house called out eighty or ninety fraternity heroes; their club week ends have been not only frequent but successful; and the spring spruce-up of their Page One Hundred Seven clubhouse has lasted through the season because the X. L.'s are conscientious and proud of their record.

In beauty, brains, charm, and ability the X. L's excel and in so doing live up to their name in 1941 as in every year, at Ward-Belmont and abroad. There as well as here their records speak for themselves.

FAG DAY

Old girls at Ward-Belmont are in the height of their glory each fall when Fag Day rolls around and new club members are put through hilarious paces in informal initiation into the group of their choice. Startled visitors and bewildered servants are always intrigued by the stupendous, colossal, and enormous absurdity of erstwhile sophisticated young things tripping about the campus garbed in elephant trunks, green crepe paper, or nightgowns of ancient vintage.

Each club has its own tradition as to methods of madness, but all require pledges to report to fag mothers' rooms at seven in the morning, clean the room thoroughly, and trudge about the campus shricking idiotic poetry, songs, and monotonous chants such as "Now I'm an X. L. baby, soon I'll be an X. L. lady."

At long last, exbausted and disheveled, the mob descends on the dining room for sips of orange juice and dry toast handed down to seated initiates by club members who revel in the novelty of being queens of the campus, even if the monarchy lasts only a day.

CLASS RECOGNITION DAY

Unusual to Ward-Belmont is the annual fall ceremony which consists of a recognition of each class in group and individual style. Around the circle march Seniors, Senior-Middles, Junior-Middles, Juniors, Sophomores, and Freshmen dressed in class colors and filled with the importance of the first all-school ritual of the year.

On the broad green lawns of the campus, students stand at attention as representatives of every department are recognized by their school, Dr. Provine addresses his collective protegees and the Ward-Belmont pledge is sung.

Brain child of a former member of Ward-Belmont's vast family circle, Class Recognition Day has come to mean much both to new girls who find class loyalty for the first time that day and to old girls who renew their school spirit in a novel way.

Ward-Belmont is no recent innovation, nor for that matter is Recognition Day. Both have traditions which make them outstanding any time, any place, anywhere.

EBIRTHDAY DINNERS \equiv

A gala celebration marked by beautiful decarations, the best of food, and a circle of friendship

Something new and different for every month of birthdays

To those who spend their first birthday away from home, Ward-Belmont birthday dinners are a vision of delight and the best panacea for "home town blues," Although the evenings are spent formally, there is nothing formal about either the conversation nor the meal, beautifully served.

Guests are met and greeted in stately Acklen Hall by President and Mrs. Burk, Dr. and Mrs. Provine, and Miss Taylor. High spot of the evening aside from fried chicken and rich cakes is always the table decoration, varied to suit the month with roses, chrysanthemuns, and even gilded sprays of leaves. Tiny place cards and unusual favors are trophies carried away by each diner as well as the remembrance of a beautiful evening well spent.

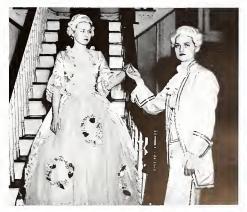

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAYE

Martha and George preside over a lovely evening

* * * * * * * *

An impressive day on the calendar of Ward-Belmont is February 22. For on this day the clock turns back to those beautiful days of colonial America when George Washington and his charming wife, Martha, led the minuet to the strains of one of Strauss' waltzes. The honor at Ward-Belmont of being George or Martha is one of the greatest of the entire year. Mary Bauman was chosen as George, and Martha was brought to life again in the person of Molly Bellamy. The picture of Martha and George walking hand in hand down the staircase in Acklen Hall will never be forgotten. Afterwards the entire student body celebrated the occasion with a birthday dinner in honor of George. The Seniors danced the minuet.

SENIOR - SENIOR -

To the tune of Senior-Middle chants and the Senior class song Senior-Senior-Middle Day swung into action early on the afternoon of April 8. Timidly the sun appeared, then more confidently as an interested spectator to the nonsensical rampage of a college student body gone berserk.

First-year paraders flowed in a long purple line about the circle, bolstered by the appearance of a victory float bearing a triumphant Senior-Middle and a hopelessly outclassed Senior, patiently rocking as she knitted. Yet the Seniors, not to be outdone, marshalled forces to assert ultimate victory inspired by a flower float of officers and mascot, Christina Provine; the limp body of a defeated opponent; and the rigid scholarly figure of Mary Liz Masengill as "Experience '41."

True to their boast, the Seniors won baseball by a comfortable majority; shrieked themselves hoarse in the tennis singles and doubles; were mute in admiration of champions of the bow and arrow; and cheered a damp but undaunted Senior team on to victory in water polo. Previous games in basketball and bowling had resulted in a tie for both classes, but Senior supremacy was assured in the April fracas, although decoration honors were awarded the Senior-Middles.

At the intersection of Fifth Avenue and Forty-Second Street on the evening of March 21, the twin cities of New York and Senior City gathered to celebrate an annual festivity commonly known at Ward-Belmont as the Senior-Senior-Middle Banquet. Diners entered a taperlit dining room past the brightly-lighted shop windows of Saks Fifth Avenue, Tiffany's, and Dobbs. The latest in furniture, suits, and floral display were all exhibited to the bewildered eyes of city dwellers who took their seats at small tables ornamented in approved dinner club style and settled down for an evening's entertainment.

May Day <

★ Made to order both for timeliness and appropriateness to the I941 MILESTONES. May Day this year flaunted Ward-Belmont patriotism in the faces of several thousand students and guests during the latter days of May. Combining the pastel patterns of spring and the colorful brilliance of red, white, and blue, the afternoon's festivities opened with a lengthy procession containing each dancer fittingly arrayed, heralds, pages, preparatory and college seniors, and last but by no means least, the May Queen, Mary Elizabeth Masengill, beautifully gowned in traditional white, seated in the queen's coach with her college and preparatory school attendants, Molly Bellamy and Carolyn Gwaltney, blonde contrasts to the gypsy-haired queen.

Passing from the dreamy rhythm of the Golden Ball, Springtime, the Orchid Ballet. and Ballet du Reve, the dances, under the direction of tireless Miss Mary Elizabeth Delaney, melted into the strident syncopation of Military Tap on Drums, Ballet Militaire, and Red Cross Nurses with the remarkable agility of Louise Jahncke featured in Jack Tar.

Climax of the celebration was, as a matter of course, the May Pole dance presented by dance students to weave the bright strands of Ward-Belmont's most striking pageant into a triumphant whole.

ENSEMBLE GIRL

Mary Bauman, a girl with an aura of being something special, came as a Senior-Middle to Ward-* Belmont and within two weeks was the most talked-of girl on the campus. As the culmination of her history here she has been awarded the greatest tribute within the power of the school. Blessed with an effervescent personality, she is the best of athletes, dancers, and friends. A harmony of golden tan, brunette beauty, and charm, she has walked into each life at Ward-Belmont and left it with a precious memory of the perfect campus leader.

STEP SINGING \equiv

Seniors join in a great tradition to sing out the old and herald the new

Small, dark, and tuneful, Dimp leads the Seniors in a last farewell

May is a mad whirl of events at Ward-Belmont. Every day, every hour finds new jobs, new entertainment for busy belles. But when May melts into June and the hour of parting has come at last, Seniors and Senior-Middles alike are torn between emotions of grief and bliss. Grief in the memory of old friends and bliss in the thought of another year of accomplishment for themselves and their school.

Senior-Middles have no graduation morning but its place is well taken by another ceremony with the Seniors, that of step singing on the pillared porch of Blanton Building a few short days before departure. With the surge of loyalty which music and harmony so aptly express, the Senior-Middles laud their older sisters with a group of familiar melodies against a background of chimes. Parting words are each year tearfully sung by the Seniors, this year led by tiny Dimple Dunford.

Tradition, too, is the annual gift of the graduating class, so this year as always the class of 1941 presented to the school a permanent memory of itself and its respect for Ward-Belmont.

In a ritual as solemn to the young collegians as the inauguration of a president is to a democracy, Ward-Belmont students have a healthy regard for precedent and a love of their school that will not soon fade into oblivion.

EGRADUATION

For the last time they mount the stone steps to beautiful Acklen Hall

Two by two the Seniors of 1941 have marched up the long, magnolia-lined walk from Blanton Building to Acklen Hall and with them walk silently the remembrances of their first years of college life. Each graduate holds in her heart as she keeps time with her partner the thoughts of the first week of school, club pledging, initiating, her class picnic, skating parties, hall parties, dances, and special celebrations that have somehow in the brief two years become so much a part of her life.

Each Ward-Belmont belle of the class cannot help but think, as she passes through the arch of the little iron summer house, of the century of knowledge and charm that have created her school as it is today. Memories crowd her mind, as the diploma is placed in her hand and President Burk smiles his approval, of warm, spring days on the campus, the fun of club week ends, open houses, the palatable delights of her birthday dinner, and a thousand-and-one incidents and heart-to-heart talks never to return.

And so she graduates, this Senior of 1941, and with her graduates a great store of accumulated knowledge, poise, grace, and charm that will mark her for the rest of her life as a graduate of Ward-Belmont.

FISHOLOGY

Fish is health food, Pure and simple— Feeds the mind, Brings out your dimple;

Should you angle after School is out— There's good fish yet As e'er caught out.

Some of these are Seashore fresh, So fish for them With larger mesh.
