Special Operations Forces: Key Role in Preventive Defense Commentary by Gen. Henry H. Shelton, USA, commander in chief, U.S. Special Operations Command, <http://www.defenselink.mil/speeches/index.html>.

Remarks by Holmes, H. Allen, assistant secretary of defense for special operations and low-intensity conflict, at the Worldwide Civil Affairs Conference, Chicago, June 6, 1997, <http://www.defenselink.mil/speeches/index><http://www.defenselink.mil/speeches/index>.

Blickstein, Jill M. and Grundman C. Steven; Implementing Special Operations Reforms; report prepared for the Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Program Analysis and Evaluation; adapted from Special Operations Forces; An assessment; Collins, John M.; NDU Press; 1994.

Doctrine Document 35; Secretary Of The Air Force 16 January 1995 Special Operations; This document states operational doctrine for planning and executing Air Force special operations. It describes the mission, force composition, command relationships, and support requirements for Air Force Special Operations Forces (AFSOF). Additionally, it provides guidance for direct participation with other special operations forces and with conventional forces.

Special Operations Forces: Force Structure and Readiness Issues (Chapter Report, 03/24/94, GAO/NSIAD-94-105) As a result of problems with several special operations missions in the 1980s, including the failed attempt to rescue American hostages from Iran in April 1980, Congress created a joint special operations command to ensure the combat readiness of assigned forces. In April 1987, the Defense Department established the U.S. Special Operations Command. This report assesses how the Command determines its force level and mix of active and reserve forces and examines issues affecting the readiness of special operations forces.

Special Operations Forces: Opportunities to Preclude Overuse and Misuse (Letter Report, 05/15/97, GAO/NSIAD-97-85). Pursuant to a congressional request, GAO determined whether the U.S. special operations forces (SOF) are being used in a manner that best supports national security objectives.
