The Grizzly was founded in 1978, replacing the previous campus newspaper, The Ursinus Weekly. It is published by students thirteen weeks each semester. The Grizzly is edited entirely by students and news expressed in the paper are not necessarily those held by the administration, faculty or a consensus of the student body. The staff of The Grizzly invites opinions from the college community and will publish them as time and space permit.

CAMPUS MEMO

Impossible! A semester all but gone! Let me leap past exams and Christmas to the New Year, which will be here before another Grizzly appears. Some early-formed wishes for 1988:

TO STUDENTS, may the new year bring resilience and imagination. With the pressure on colleges everywhere to change the basic approach to Greek pledging and the use of alcohol, a virtual social revolution is taking place all around us. Students, faculty, and administrators alike need to form a new partnership to restructure the way social life among young adults takes place on campus. May students not mire in despair over these pressures. May they develop creative, positive ideas. May they seize the initiative in making new patterns of college life that could last for many years after they graduate.

TO FACULTY, may the new year bring a new clarity and excitement to their professional role in the total life of Ursinus. The Middle States self-study in the spring semester should open up questions about curriculum and about faculty development. In the process, may faculty look beyond conventional definitions of scholarly research. May their professional energy focus on the College's own academic menu. May they make new opportunities as mentors in shared research projects with students. May they infuse the notion of "the joy of learning" with a distinctive meaning at Ursinus.

TO BOARD MEMBERS, may the new year bring a sense of fulfillment richly earned. In 1988 the College should meet and exceed the $20 million goal of the Campaign for Ursinus. May Board members savor the success. May they be buoyed by it as plans for the next chapter in the development of Ursinus are made. May the Board embolden the whole College community to meet our mission with renewed understanding and commitment.

TO THE PROFESSIONAL AND SUPPORT STAFF, may the new year bring a renewed sense of the value of their contribution to the educational life of Ursinus. May they be seen by all as the indispensable partners in a total process of learning that involves every task and every job.

TO ALUMNI, may the new year bring closer ties and greater involvement with today's Ursinus. May their perspective from past campus experience and from current experience in the professions and in the community broaden our collective wisdom and help us make right choices. May the loyalty of alumni of all ages further their willingness to give to the College.

Ending on a personal note, in the new year I hope to find myself reengaged a little more in campus activities.

The $20 million campaign perforce has taken me away from the daily life of the College. With substantial financial needs of the post-campaign period already largely defined, I have few illusions about a decline in fund-raising work.

Nevertheless, may the new year give me some added time to reenter the flow of daily events. The Middle States self-study already has made for some exciting discussion and action on campus, and more no doubt is in store for the spring semester. I would consider it a personal loss if an external schedule kept me from enjoying a good part of the action first-hand.

Early greetings of the season, then, to all.

Editorial

'Tis the season. For most of us, "Bah Humbug" would be more appropriate. Because an unlimited number of term papers and exams are piled upon finals, the Christmas cheer has transformed into the holiday grumble. Perhaps people don't realize that 'tis the season to be jolly....

We could blame it on the weatherman. Snow is not only a wondrous beauty and a source of working off a student's mental stress, but it also cancels classes!

We could blame it on the shopping malls. (See Hartlines page 5.) Those rude salespersons and mile-long lines will add to the anguish of anyone. And the zero balance in bank accounts add to the frustration—how can you shop for your loved ones when the college budget doesn't allow it?

Underclassmen can blame the holiday blues on the seniors. Is it fair that they have only one semester left?!!!

We could blame it on the scrooge professors, who think that their twenty-five page term papers are more important than other scrooge professors' twenty-five page term papers.

Or we could blame it on poor timing. Why was He born when He knew we had exams?!

Regardless of whose fault it is concerning the serious lack of holiday cheer, the Ursinus community must overlook the faults and dive into the season of giving and sharing. We should be rejoicing—not grumbling! Take the time to show someone you care. A simple smile would suffice.

The Grizzly wishes everyone a healthy and happy holiday with best wishes for 1988!

USGA Concerned with Fund Allocation

Dear Editors:

In reference to a recent article written by Dean Kane on the amount of funding available for student activities, it was stated that there was $100,000 available for use. We feel that it is necessary to clarify this statement by providing a more specific breakdown on the money allocated for these activities.

The money given for the Campus Programs for the year is $80,600. From this SAC receives $32,075, CAB—$29,200, Wismer movies—$8,500, Parents' Day—$2,500, Leadership training—$750, resident hall programming—4,000, and student activities office programming—$3,575.

From S.A.C.'s portion, they must then allocate for standard organizations. Athletics receive $2,500, choral organizations—$1,000, instrumental organizations—$500, WVOU—$1,000, student publications—$5,337 and the Spirit Committee—$500. This is for the fall semester. That total, $10,837.50, leaves S.A.C. $5,200 for remaining allocation money.

We hope this article has cleared up any questions you might have had about the student activities fund after the previous article. We also hop that we have clearly shown to you where all of the money is being allocated.

Sincerely,
The U.S.G.A.

Teacher Sidelined

Dr. Louis DeCatur, professor of English, will not return to Ursinus this semester. After undergoing several tests, doctors decided it would be necessary to perform six bypass surgery. The surgery, which was completed Wednesday, November 25, was reported successful.

Sources reported that DeCatur arrived home (Collegeville) yesterday, and is hoping to return next semester.

Get a Grip on Handel

BY ERIKA ROHRBACH

Of The Grizzly

John French takes great pride in conducting "The Messiah".

Ursinus' 102-voice College Choir will present Handel's most successful and best known oratorio, The Messiah, for the fiftieth time on Saturday, December 5th, at 7:30 pm, in Bomberger Auditorium. Under the direction of John French, the choir will be accompanied by a full orchestra and featured soloists: Edwina Dunkle—soprano, Andrea Jaber—alto, Michael Magiera—tenor, and Reginald Pindell—bass.

The Messiah was composed in 1741 in twenty-four days from August 22nd to September 14th. It was first performed at a benefit concert in Dublin, Ireland on April 13th, 1742, with Handel conducting. According to historical evidence, Handel knew that Dublin orchestral and choral resources did not compare to London's and, he therefore, limited the choruses to four-part writing and kept the orchestra in modest bounds (i.e. only violin and trumpet have solos, and oboe and bassoon do not appear in the score, although a later discovery revealed orchestra-parts written for both.)

Beginning on March 23rd, 1743, Handel produced The Messiah each year in London with great response. Over time, Handel made various alterations in the piece, yet left the work as a whole unchanged, both vocally and instrumentally. The fact that The Messiah has lasted these 246 years and has been performed hundreds of times more than that, bears witness that the primitive conception of the work was likewise the enduring one.

This weekend the Ursinus Community takes great pride in continuing the not merely musical, but euphonic tradition Handel began centuries ago.

Aggressive Couple To Move

Special For The Grizzly

The Aggressive Couple will be moved from the front of Wismer Hall to the open west campus. The contemporary sculpture by Igael Tumarkin was placed in front of Wismer last semester to focus campus discussion on art.

President Richard P. Richter appointed an ad hoc committee of students, faculty members and Board members to consider alternate locations.

The committee met with Rob Fleming, landscape architect, who is consultant to the college. He made recommendations, which were then evaluated by the committee.

The sculpture will be located in the open space between the campus drive to Helfferich Hall and the playing field near the swimming pool.

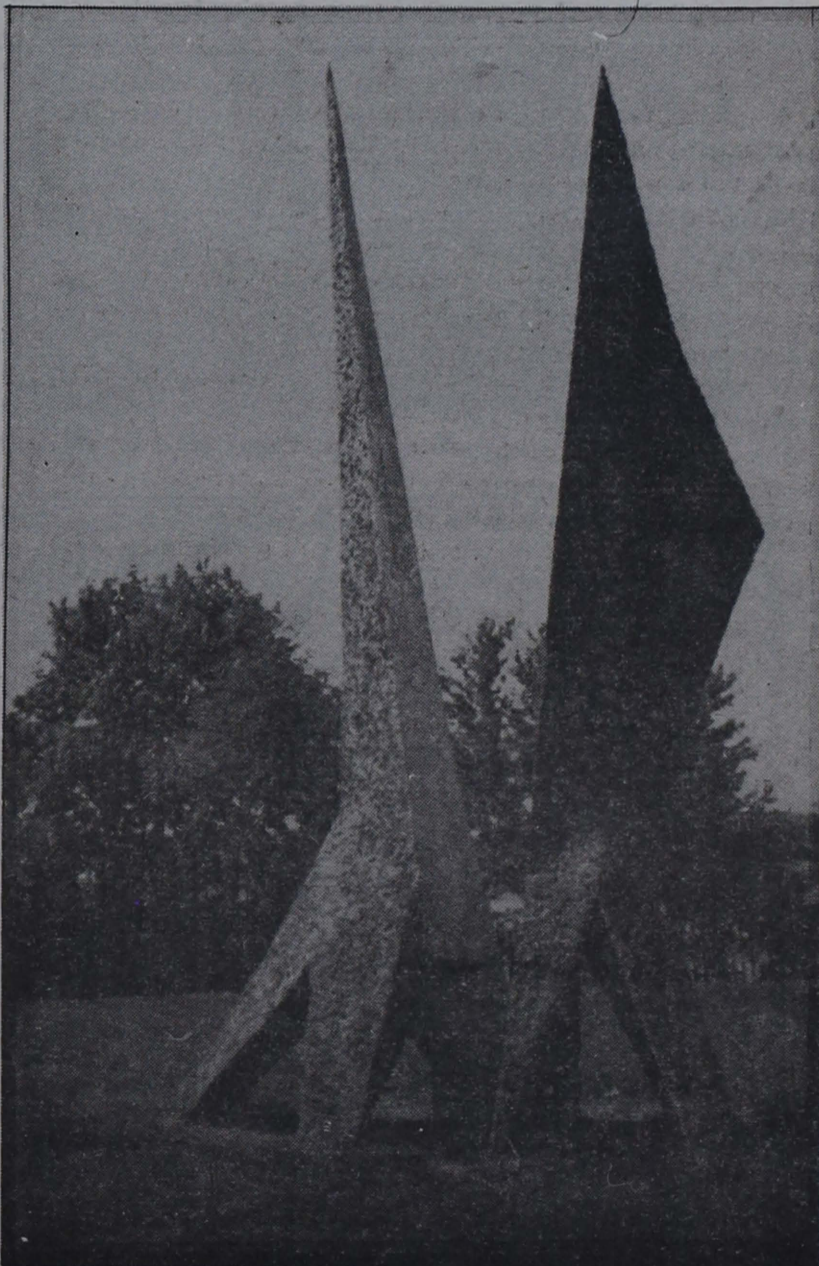

The committee also considered recommendations for the location of the new sculpture, Rising Path by Z. Ben-Haim and settled on a spot in the Residential Village. It will be located between Schaff Hall and 702 Main toward the rear of the houses. Rising Path will stand 21-feet high and make a focal point for the landscaping to be done behind all the houses.

Members of the ad hoc committee were Amy Wayes and Jeannne Radwanski, students; Gladys Pearlstine and Nancy Jeanne Everest, Board members; Jeffrey Neslen and John Cobbs, faculty members. Lisa Tremper, Art Center Director, and John Van Ness, Vice President for College Relations, also took part in the selection process.

When questioned on his opinion about the moving of the statue, Richter stated, "The controversy over The Aggressive Couple has been a good experience for all involved."

Aggressive Couple—GIT!!

Z. Ben-Haim's sculpture, "Rising Path", is the new U.C. acquisition.

Wisner Move Official

Don't look for Zack's in the Student Union next semester. Also removed from the Union will be Student Activities, CAB and USGA offices, and Student Publications. The Philip I. Berman Art Center will be housed in the Union beginning in the spring semester of '88.

All current Union offices and facilities will be located in downstairs Wisner at this time, also. Wisner Hall is being planned as the new student center.

So where will Zack's and Student Activities be found? Starting with rooms 4 and 5, formerly classrooms, the Game Room will now be found in here. Rooms 7 and part of 8 will house Student Activities offices. Zack's will be located in the rest of 8 and rooms 9, 10, 11, and 12. CAB and USGA offices will be located in the rooms behind the stage. A general meeting room will be located to the right of the stairs as one enters the main entrance of Wisner. Student Publications will move to Bomberger III.

While the Commuters' Lounge was originally planned in the Wisner move, there is some concern whether all the facilities they currently have in Bomberger will fit in Wisner.

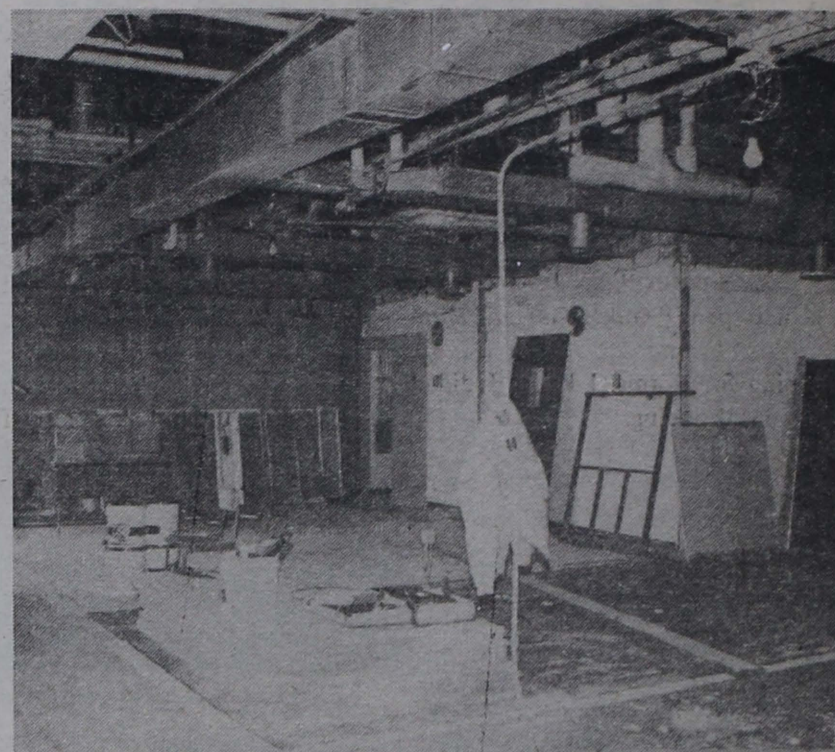

The general opinion about the Wisner move is positive. Dolly Kelsch, manager of Zack's, seems pretty happy about the move. She even has big plans for the new Zack's. Kelsch joked, "Originally, we were shooting for Tiffany lamps, and really classy tables, but I think we're going to have to settle for counterspace and stools. Also, we're hopefully getting more square tables that people can push together when needed."

Kelsh specified, "We're planning a big grand opening for Zack's, with new items. Spread the word that we're accepting any ideas."

Grizzly editors aren't as expansive with their ideas for Bomberger III. "As long as there is a soda machine nearby for Thursday nights, we could decorate in plaid for all I care," commented one editor.

Student Activities is also excited about the move. Karen Hagerstrom, a student worker, stated, "Hopefully we will get more room to expand our recreational facilities. When questioned about the move, President Richard P. Richter cautioned, "Remember, this is a transitional period. In time, we'll have a first class student union."

Christmas Festivities Planned For Campus

BY MATTHEW MAK
Of The Grizzly

All weekend long, there will be numerous events sponsored by the Student Activities Committee and Musser Hall in preparation for the holiday season.

Starting at 6:00 pm Friday, there will be a Christmas Celebration held in the College Union. The event, sponsored by Musser Hall, in association with Student Activities, will have a distinct Scandinavian flavor. This will last until 8:30 pm. Shortly thereafter, at 9:00 pm and continuing until 1:00 am, the annual Christmas Dance will be held in Wisner Hall. Refreshments will be available and as usual this event will be BYOB. This Saturday, at 7:30 pm, Mr. French and the College Choir will present the traditional Messiah concert. On Sunday, at noon, a van will take students to the King Of Prussia shopping mall for a four hour shopping stint to take care of last minute Christmas gifts.

Next Wednesday, the Tree-lighting ceremony will begin promptly at 4:30 pm, with the Meistersingers leading the Christmas carols outside Bomberger Hall. Then at 5:00 pm, a huge Christmas tree in front of Bomberger Hall will be officially lighted for all to see. At 5:15 pm, there will be a reception in the College Union for student leaders and faculty. After the tree lighting ceremony, those who have not gone to dinner can go to Wisner Hall, where the traditional Christmas Candlelight Magic Dinner will have been well-prepared.

This then will bring to a close the campus-wide celebration of the Christmas holiday, temporarily postponed by the vigors of studying for finals, Merry Christmas and Happy Holidays!

Musser Plans Dinner

BY MATTHEW MAK
Of The Grizzly

The Christmas Celebration, open to all students, faculty, and staff, will begin promptly at 6:30 pm, in the College Union. Residents of Musser Hall, who have devoted their time to this program, have chosen to imitate a traditional Scandinavian Christmas celebration. Traditional Scandinavian cookies and pettifoires will be prepared for all to enjoy. Chris Albertus of the Calvary Baptist Church will play traditional yuletide tunes on the piano. There will also be door prizes; first prize being a dinner for two at the Lakeside Inn. This is a CAB-funded event, so come and enjoy this gala event that part of your tuition has gone to support.

Construction for the Wisner Move has already begun.

Finals are coming, in a week to be exact, and I'm sure we are all preparing for them. In fact many of us spent Thanksgiving break finishing last minute work and prepping for exams. I know I did. I went shopping.

Shopping? How is that preparing for exams? Well for one, it alleviated the constant pressure I was under the past few weeks with The Grizzly and school work. Second, I was shopping for clothes to wear to exams. As the concept of dressing up for exams is totally foreign to me, I was in search of some decent new sweatpants so I could roll out of bed and into the exams I was up till 4 a.m. studying for.

So after I avoided the Black Friday mob scene, I went sweatpant excursioning Saturday. However, everyone in my home town went excursioning on Saturday also. What a fiasco the whole day was.

First, everywhere I looked, there were only freaky colors and freaky sizes. Fuschia orange and purple in an XX—large would not even fit my body. Then the sweats I did find in my size in normal colors had PENN STATE emblazoned across them. Now, while I'm sure

Penn State is a wonderful school, I have no intention of supporting a school I do not attend.

So I questioned one of those supposedly friendly sales women as to where sweatpants could be found. She glared at me.

"Swaatpants?" she queried, chomping her gum in my face. I didn't think it was a difficult question that required lots of thought, but apparently I was wrong.

"Sweatpants," I corrected, wondering how offended she would be if I popped the bubble she was blowing.

She popped it for me. "Swaatpants," she repeated.

I stared at her overly made-up face as she racked her small brain for an answer. Is there a corrolation between the amount of make-up a saleswoman wears and the amount of sales she makes?

I tried to help her. "Sweatpants," I prompted. "You know, you exercise in them?"

"OH, hhexercise pants," she exclaimed. I didn't know exactly what the difference was but I soon found out. "You can find them over in the junior department," she continued.

So I trotted over to the junior department. Exercise pants, I discovered to my dismay, are those form-fitting itsy-bitsy pieces of cloth that are found on the bodies of aerobic-like people of which I am not one.

I soon gave up on finding "swaatpants," as no other store in the mall seemed to know what college students lived in, and focused instead on buying something for my sister. Which if any of you know people like Megan, is not an easy task. First you have to find something that is in style, up-to-the-minute—came-out-last-week style, that either no one else owns yet, or something totally off the wall that everyone will stare at her and wonder why her mother lets her dress like that. Or better yet, something that will cause my mother to say, "Oh Megan, please don't dress like no one loves you." I gave up after an hour of looking at the same boring styles, in all the same boring stores I shopped in as a teen-ager.

My Christmas shopping spree was a disaster and as a result, I was feeling somewhat "Bah Humbug" when I returned home that evening. I'm sure my spirit will return after finals are over and I can go home.

Since this is the last Grizzly issue for the semester. I will wish everyone a happy holiday season now. Better luck shopping than I had!

Ursinus Campus — Not What It Used To Be

BY PEGGY HERMANN
Of The Grizzly

Imagine a college campus where freshmen women had to be in by 8:30 p.m. for their first semester, chapel attendance was mandatory, and meals were served by waiters and waitresses. Doesn't sound too familiar? Well, if you had been an Ursinus student twenty years ago those rules and many others would have been the accepted norm.

Both of my parents attended Ursinus in the 1960's. After hearing them reminisce at Homecoming, I was surprised and amused at the many rules and customs that the students on campus lived by.

For example, here is a rule quoted directly from the 1964-65 Ursinus Book of Rules and Customs: "No freshman woman may engage in conversation with a man except to greet him. During the Freshmen Orientation Program, the Sophomore Counselors will decide which women may associate with male students." Believe it or not, this rule was actually enforced and offenders were punished.

Dinner was served in Freeland Hall (where the library now stands). Everyone ate at the same time, seating was assigned, women had to wear skirts, and men were required to wear a sport coat and tie. Women had to wear skirts or dresses to all meals except breakfasts and Saturday lunch. Skirts or dresses also had to be worn by women to all classes.

The social scene had changed quite a bit in twenty years, also. Construction on Reimert Complex had just been completed so suite parties were not yet a Saturday night option. Frat parties were held off-campus because drinking on campus was officially forbidden. Most parties were raided by the police. The popular drinking spots were the Shines and Rocco's

Ursinus Welcomes Chang Back to College Campus

BY STEVE GALL
Grizzly News Editor

While much has happened on our campus this semester, one return anticipated by some upperclassmen stands out. John Chang, injured in a body surfing accident in August 1986, has continued matriculation this fall.

Chang, who is a biology major from Walnutport, PA, above Allentown, was a champion wrestler in high school. Members of the classes of '88 and '89 may remember Chang as a scholarly yet physically active student during his freshman year '85-'86. Unfortunately, his life was changed in a mishap late in the summer of '86. Chang recalls hearing a crack as an ocean wave forced him to the sea floor, crushing his left cervical. Realizing that he had lost physical sensation, Chang thought he was going to die.

He did not die however, and has trekked a long path of recovery. Although he must use a wheelchair, Chang dislikes the use of the word "handicapped" in describing his situation. Chang is a person who does not use his chair to influence the way he perceives people or influence the way others view him. "I do not express myself from a chair," Chang said in an interview recently.

Perhaps one of the greatest difficulties Chang has faced has been dealing with his parents. While Chang knows his potential despite his physical difference, he has seen the need to prove to his parents that he can still succeed in his endeavors. Although he sees the love in their eyes for him, he also remembers seeing in their eyes the realization that he could not achieve as easily or perform in some of the same ways he had before his injury.

While Chang is very independent, he does need help with certain things. His hallmates have been of great assistance, as have freshmen, and his own friends from freshman year.

John Chang is back on Ursinus campus and adjusting well.

The school has attempted to adapt to Chang's needs. The maintenance department revamped the Wilkinson I bathroom, installing a new shower. Furthermore, they added new shelving and a table in his room, and put a door between his and an adjacent room to facilitate accommodation for a helper.

Chang says he has had relatively few problems with attending classes, save the need to be physically lifted into Bomberger Hall. If Chang has any problems, he talks to his coordinator, Scott Landis, or Assistant Dean of Students Lucas.

One of Chang's goals is to attend medical school. He originally wanted to be a pediatrician, but sees some difficulties in entering that field.

Chang's progress has picked up pace since he has returned to Ursinus. He has flowed back into the social life (i.e. parties) and should be getting a specially equipped van to drive before the semester's end. Chang recalls traveling all the way to Philadelphia from Northampton County (above Allentown) to take his driver's test last July.

John Chang's experiences since his accident two summers ago have shown that he is independent with a drive to succeed—both qualities which make successful students and contributing members of society. It is his attitude which makes the difference between him having a physical difference and being physically handicapped.

Take a Realistic Look at the Job Market

BY CARLA MOLLINS RINDE
Director, Career Planning and Placement

If you are a senior, home for the holidays, with plans on working in the Philadelphia area after graduation, take advantage of OPERATION NATIVE TALENT, an annual career/recruiting conference sponsored by the Greater Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce and PENJERDEL Council. The fair is open to college seniors!

This year's fair will be held on December 29 and 30, 1987 from 9:00 AM to 4:00 PM at Wyndham Franklin Plaza Hotel, 17th and Race Streets, Philadelphia. You are encouraged to take public transportation to avoid construction delays. Call SEPTA at (215) 574-7800 for information.

There are no charges and students do not need to pre-register. You should be prepared in professional dress with several copies of your resume. Employers will be interviewing for entry-level positions. Applicants from all majors and disciplines, including liberal arts, will be considered for employment.

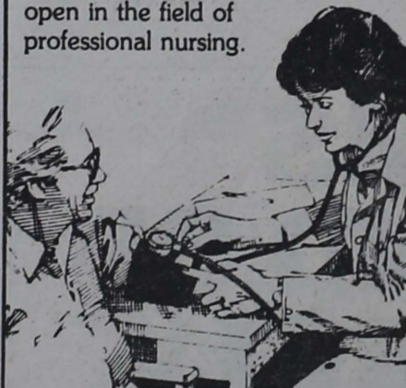

Professional career counselors will be available to talk with students about job search strategies and other job related information. Approximately 70 or more organizations will be represented.

Stop in Studio Cottage before you leave for information and hand-outs on interview preparation. Take these interviews seriously! Many of our alumni had their first contact with their present organizations through Operation Native Talent. If nothing else, just finding yourself in a sea of navy blue suits, attache cases and hundreds of job hungry seniors from other colleges should be enough to get you in gear for your own job search and spring recruiting. Good luck and enjoy your last winter recess as an Ursinus student!

New Club in Spring

BY STEVE GALL
Grizzly News Editor

Ursinus may soon have one more club for students. If some students with an interest in communications have their way, there will be a new Communications Club for next semester.

According to the group's president Doug Carl, the SAC has approved the club's constitution and it will come up for a vote before the faculty in December. The need for the club has occurred because of this year's introduction of the communication arts major.

Carl and Craig DiLouie, the vice-president, have several objectives in mind when the organization becomes a full-blown entity next semester. Carl hopes that internships will be more readily available to students who are members of the club. He envisions a center which will make radio, television, and journalism internships known to interested students. Also planned is a student produced (as opposed to the current professionally produced) video yearbook, and guest speakers. The group's advisor, Dr. J.K. Miller, would like the club to sponsor classic films such as Citizen Kane at least once a week.

These plans are not all encompassing, however. "The club will go as far as the Ursinus students want to take it," says senior Carl. Due to the newness of the communication arts major on campus, he will be unable to graduate with the major, but wants to give DiLouie and the remaining 30 or so club members a good foundation. Elections will be held early next semester, but the current officers include Carl, DiLouie, Dennis Plasha (treasurer), Brian Kennedy and Diane Smith (secretaries) and Lisa Gilmore (activities chairperson).

Hopefully the faculty member will agree with the SAC that the club is needed and will allow it to begin full force next semester. Two speakers are currently planned, including one from KYW-TV in Philadelphia. Additionally, the club plans to produce commercials for WVOU. If all the group members have the determination of Carl and DiLouie, the Communications Club should prove to be an important fixture in Ursinus' attempts to compete with other colleges.

Carl: New club president.

On Saturday, November 14 Ursinus wrestlers Dan Donahoe, Tim Seislove and Dave Durst returned to Collegeville from the fourth Annual LaSalle College Invitational sporting gold medals. The two juniors, who return with impressive records from last year (Seislove, 27-11-2 and Durst, 31-10-2), along with all-America Donahoe, led the Bears to a second place standing among nine schools in this season opener. Widener took first place in the tournament scoring just 3.5 points above Ursinus, 71-67.5.

Five of the Bears placed in this competition including Durst at 167 pounds, Seislove at 118 and Donahoe at 158. Junior Ted Patrick earned a silver medal at 190 and teammate Gerry Spadaccini took the bronze at 142 as well. Finally junior heavyweight Nils Neubauer earned recognition pinning two of his four opponents in 38 seconds and 2:21.

Today the wrestlers traveled to the Lebanon Valley Invitational and on Tuesday they will face Albright at 8 p.m. At Albright the Bears will be attempting their tenth straight win.

Bill Racich returned as head coach once again this season. He entered his eighth year with a 95-26-2 mark. Assistant coaches include Lonny Moore and Rollie Ripp.

Captains this season include Durst, junior Ron Matthew, and senior Chuck Odgers. Seven out of ten starters from last season have returned. The three missing include MAC medalists Brian Hons, Kevin Ross, and Steve Laudermilch. However, with the help of junior John Love and newcomers Vic Zampetti, Larry Howe, Kevin Athearn, and Tom Love, this season's team could equal last year's impressive record of 20-3 in dual meets, which was the best in Ursinus history.

New Attitude Turns Ladies' Fortune

BY RONNI ALGEO
Of The Grizzly

This year the Lady Bears have a new attitude.

The Lady Bears are no longer taking a backseat to the M.A.C. powerhouses Moravian, Muhlenberg, and Albright. They have, already in this young season, made a move towards the M.A.C. South Eastern Division Title. Going into Christmas break, the Lady Bears have three wins and one loss. They are 2 and 0 in the division with key wins this past week over Muhlenberg (69-55), and Albright (70-68). The Lady Bears are no longer falling apart at the end of games and losing the close ones. In their season opener at the York Invitational tournament, they beat Western Maryland (58-49) by extending a shaky 5 point lead, with 1:30 to go, into a 9 point win. On Tuesday night versus Muhlenberg, an unsafe 7 point lead (unsafe especially since all-Conference prolific scorer Anne Searles was playing for the Lady Mules) finished in a 14 point win for Ursinus. Then, perhaps in the most telling game of all, the Lady Bears showed their maturity and growth from last season by rallying to defeat the Lions of Albright 70-68 on a winning jumper by Bridget Algeo with 22 seconds remaining.

The growth process of the Women's Basketball program could seem rather surprising since the varsity roster is sprinkled with six freshmen out of fourteen players. However, there is a unique mix of veterans, led by captains Bridget Algeo and Kris Carr, with the rookies. This blend has a need for camaraderie in order for success to be attained. This is where "the family concept" comes in.

"Last year's team didn't seem to do as much together," said Coach Lisa Ortlip-Cornish, "This year, the girls hang out together, call meetings for just the players...they just seem to do things as one whole group."

This concept is even more positive when such players like juniors Judy Facciolini, Kate Fisher, Kim Graeff, and sophomore Lynne Ashmen are constantly offering support to the six freshmen varsity players. Rather than causing dis-

Home Streak Making Hoopla

BY CHUCK SMITH

Things did not get any better for the Bears the following night. They played Grove City College in the tournaments consolation game and lost 69-55. UC had only one person, center Nick Goodwin with 11 points in double digits. Another thing that did not help the Bears was that they shot only 31% from the field.

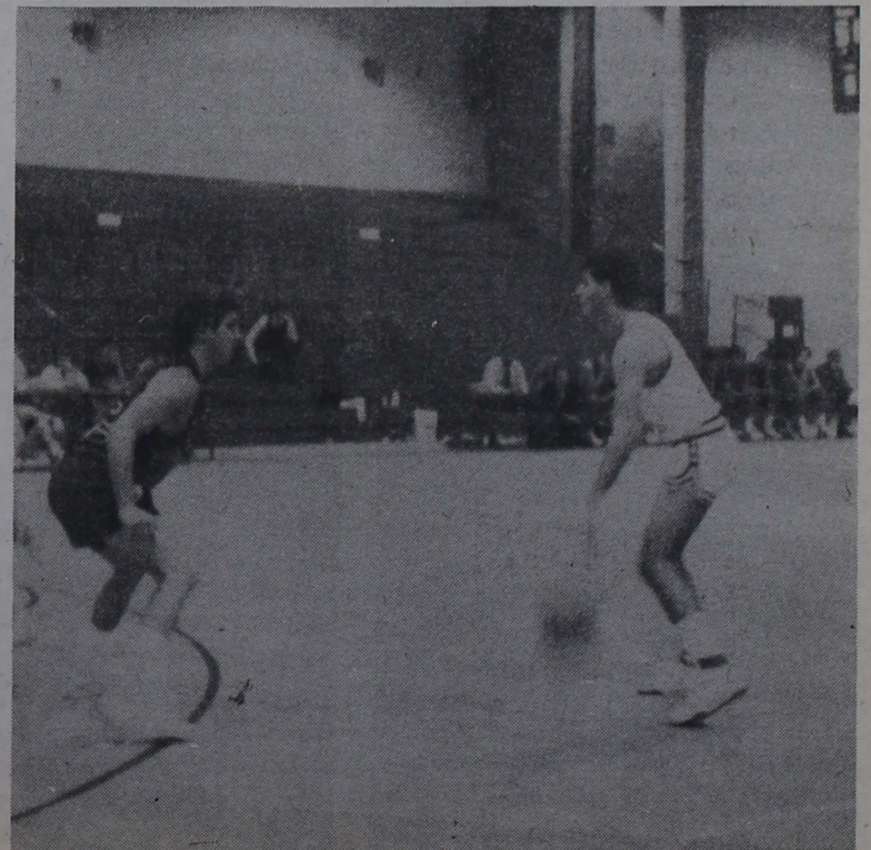

So it was back to Helfferich Hall to play two consecutive home games against Albright and Rutgers-Camden.

In their first home game the Bears crushed Albright, whom the Bears have only been beaten 2 times in their last 14 games, 72-53. It was Ursinus' biggest win against Albright since 1940. UC placed five of its players in double figures. Leading the way were senior captain Paul Udovich with 12 points, 5 assists and forward John Maddox with 12 points also. Udovich shot 4-4 from the three-point area, and Pete Smith came off the bench to chip in 11 points.

Then Rutgers-Camden came in to play the Bears. They should have stayed home, as the Bears walked all over them with a decisive 82-60 victory. The Bears again had five double figure scores as Tom Shivers led them with 20 points, shooting 4-6 from the three-point range. Nick Goodwin looked especially good as he contributed 15 points. The 6'4" sophomore also had 10 rebounds.

After a shaky start, the Bears seem to be played with great consistency and confidence. Hopefully they can keep things going. next home game before break is Tuesday, December 8 against Swarthmore at 8 P.M.

Tw'as the night before Christmas, and all through the house, not a creature was stirring, not even my dog—well it wasn't feeding time.

Under blankets and pillows, I was bundled and tired. To keep from the cold, was all I desired.

I tossed and I turned, as I closed my eyes, not aware of what was to be my surprise.

The silence was broken in less than an instant, the noise I could hear was coming from a distance.

With a bang and a boom the whole roof shook. Who could it be—maybe a croak?

I wondered to myself as the silence became deafening; was it that possible my foe could be threatening?

The clicking of feet traveled down to my room, who could have created such a loud boom?

I jumped to my feet, not to fret or frown, but to witness who just came into town. With a wisk and whirl, my door opened wide. I peeked and I strained to see who stood inside.

A big man stood broad, and a chubby belly he had, but what he was wearing sure made me glad.

Through the hole he left above him, I could see only the "Big Dipper." This could only mean my visitor was the "Gipper."

And in his burly hand he held tight, the pigskin he often gave flight.

As he moved to the side, I stood there in a daze; who was behind him but the legend Woodie Hayes.

The Four Horsemen followed, not to be defiant, and the parade went on—next was Bear Bryant.

I dove in fear and shook like a boy, just to avoid the "Gallop'ing Ghost of Illinois".

My body went numb, I could not feel my knees; you know who followed—Knute Rockne.

With a twinkle in his eye and a shivering stare, who was to speak to me—but the Bear.

"To you I visit," he said as he gleamed. "We need just one more for the team."

"Fourth down and goal; and I'm out of plays," he moaned.

"Oh no," I shouted, "we must run the bone."

He looked in delight as he began to smile. "Boy, with that play, we'll run a mile!!!"

"Go into the game boy, and you take the snap; look for the goal line, that'll be your map."

The crowd stood and cheered, as we lined up the play. "This is what the defense feared," I could hear 'em say.

I took the ball and held it tight; I hoped not to fall as I ran to the right.

I thought to myself, should I pass to the Knute? Or, I thought, behind that block shall I shoot?

I opted for the latter, and dove in the air, and realized that I had to do this for the Bear.

With a boom and a bang I crashed to the earth; lucky for me, I fell on my girth. Me eyes opened wide; did I score for the Bear? But all I heard was, "We're sleeping—be quiet up there!"

I laughed and I chuckled, another attack on me. How can I rid myself of pre-bowl anxiety?

Yes sports fans, it's that time of the year. The time of the year when we indulge ourselves in countless hours of football games, Only to cause undue pressure on ourselves during the PBS. The post bowl syndrome is an unexplained phenomenon, but if you suffer from it, you know the symptoms.

They appear sometime in early to mid January; the victim is irrational, unable to converse and dumbfounded. And in the early evening hours, he seems clueless and lacks reason for living. This can be cured with the witnessing of any sporting event.

So ladies, if you want your marriage or relationship to last, buy that special someone a couple of tickets to the Super Bowl. The Super Bowl is played late in January, just to help cure PBS.

May all your Christmas wishes come true—Merry Christmas.

All-American Honors for Field Hockey's Dicton and Johnson

Ursinus College forward Jill Johnson and sweeper Sandy Dicton have earned all-America honors in field hockey. This marks the second straight year for Johnson — and the fourth time in either hockey or lacrosse.

Johnson has been named to the Division I all-Mideast Region team by the College Field Hockey Coaches Association, giving her all-America status once again.

Johnson led Ursinus (5-11-3) in scoring this season with seven goals and eight assists. Last year she tied the school record with 15 goals in 17 games. As defense wing in lacrosse, she led the Bears to the NCAA title game, their fifth straight appearance in the national final, where they lost to Trenton State in overtime, 8-7. She earned first-team all-America honors and made the U.S. national squad just two years after taking up lacrosse as a freshman at U.C.

Meanwhile Johnson received awards for her off-the-field activities — the Linda McIntyre Memorial Award for leadership and dedication, and the Bruins Club Scholarship for excellence both on the field and in the classroom.

Dicton helped the Bears hold their opponents to 27 goals in 19 games this year. She is also a candidate for academic all-America honors with a 3.7 average as a mathematics major.

V-Baller Honored

Senior Kim Krazewski recently was awarded all-academic honors in volleyball for the second straight year. She was one of only 16 athletes named to the Middle Atlantic Conference's Fall 1987 All-Academic Team. The squad lumped volleyball together with football, soccer, field hockey and cross-country.

The 16 were chosen by the league's sports information directors from among roughly 2,500 athletes competing in the five sports. With 26 colleges, the Middle Atlantic Conference is the largest in the nation.

Krazewski led Ursinus to the first winning volleyball season (12-5) in the program's 13-year history while maintaining a 3.7 average off the court. She was named to the GTE District 2 (Mid-Atlantic Region) Academic All-America Team, the NCAA's official squad. The squad is sponsored by the GTE Corporation and chosen by CoSIDA, the College Sports Information Directors of America.

Scholars Gain All-ECAC

Chuck Odgers, a senior linebacker on the football squad, recently was named to the all-ECAC Southern Region team along with teammate Frank Hennessey, a senior defensive tackle.

Both of these athletes were recognized last month as Odgers earned a place on the first-team all-Centennial Conference I and was named academic all-America while Hennessey also earned first-team all-Centennial League honors.

Odgers is favored to repeat on the national squad, due to be announced December 11. Last year he became one of only 48 first-team academic all-Americans, 24 in the University Division and 24 in the College Division.

Gymnasts Open Season

The Ursinus women's gymnastics team opens their 1987-88 season tomorrow as they will face West Chester. With the return of NCAA qualifiers Mary Sabol, Tricia Curry and Debbie Benner, this should be the finest team in the program's 14-year history.

Almost everyone returns from the group that ran up the second, third and fifth-highest meet totals in Ursinus history. Unfortunately, it won't be reflected in the win-loss record. Several Division III schools have dropped gymnastics in recent years, forcing Ursinus to schedule Penn, Princeton, Rutgers, Army, sensation because of less floor time due to Ortlip-Cornish's "Youth Movement," these players are leaders—both by encouragement and example. They wait for their chance to play and make the most of it with both Facciolini and Fisher being sparks off the bench in the wins over Muhlenberg and Albright.

The women's J.V. program—a new program this year—is undefeated. They play tonight against Penn State—Ogontz, at 6:00 p.m. at Helfferich Hall. The J.V.'s are lead by inside powers Jane Anne McJunkin (J.A.M.!) and Kathy Bowers, both freshmen. At the swing-guard position, 5-8 freshman Robyn Quinn holds her own. The shooting guards are hustlers Missy Mendicino and Nik-Nik Myers, and the floor general is three-point threat, sophomore Stacie DeCencio.

Ray McMahon returns entering his second year with a 6-7 mark. Returning gymnasts include junior bar specialist Heidi Speth and all-arounder Dawn Denison along with Robin Barry, a rapidly improving sophomore. Newcomers are comprised of sophomore Michele Benfer, who sat out last season due to torn shoulder cartilage, and freshman Becky Evans, a vault bar specialist.

He also helped the Ursinus wrestlers go 20-3 in dual meets, their best record ever, including wins over Lafayette, LaSalle, and Villanova. The Bears finished third among 20 teams at the conference championship, their highest finish since 1949.

Odgers was named to the academic all-America team picked by the NCAA Wrestling Coaches Association, and he was the only wrestler on the Middle Atlantic Conference's combined all-academic squad.

Hennessey became Ursinus' "designated sacker" as a sophomore and moved into the starting lineup last year, making up for his lack of height with strength and quickness.

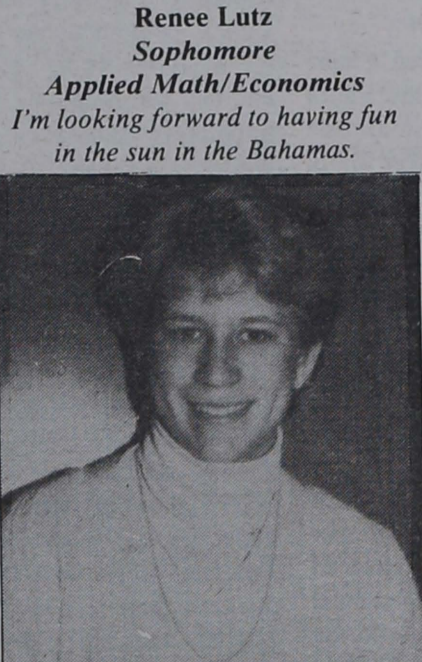

In 1986 Hennessey had 10 tackles and two sacks against Villanova, and this year he was named Centennial Conference Defensive Player of the Week after busting in for two key sacks in a 3-0 win over Swarthmore. He also piled up 17 tackles against league champ Franklin & Marshall.

“Walk This Way,” Says Davidson

BY MICHELLE L. GRANDE
Of The Grizzly

“Heh, heh, heh! You’re taking walking class?”

“What’s the matter; dontcha already know how to walk?”

These comments are representative of the attitudes toward the Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation’s walking class which was instituted in the curriculum this semester in replacement of tennis.

Because they were previously inadequate for recreational and collegiate play, Ursinus’ tennis courts are being resurfaced. The Evergreen Group, under the guidance of president and engineer Richard A. Wieland, was contracted to resurface the courts. According to Dr. Robert Davidson, Director of Athletics, “The contractor has been meticulous. The base of the courts is much better and thicker than what is recommended by the United States Tennis Association. The surface has been hand sanded in some areas, and multiple coats have been applied as hollows are filled in.”

Nelson Williams, Vice President for Business Affairs has estimated the cost of the work at nearly $200,000. Davidson noted, “I’m very much impressed...the procedure is slow, but it’s worth the wait.”

The work was originally projected to be completed by September 15, but it is still not completed.

Delays including arranging to hire the contractor and completing the necessary budgetary procedures, forced the physical education department to replace the scheduled tennis classes with a walking for fitness class.

Walking for fitness will continue to be a part of the gym electives and will be offered again in the fall 1988 semester.

The class is part of the Wellness program at Ursinus whose purpose is two-fold: (1) and expansion of the instruction in walking and wellness and (2) a new class offered next semester which concerns the studies of weight control, nutrition, and stress management—it is a continuation of this semester’s walking class.

Regarding the addition of the two classes, Davidson remarked, “We need different kinds of activities that everybody can succeed in if they commit themselves to the program.”

Davidson mentioned that the stress management techniques will be a useful addition to Wellness 2 and cites the success of Bryn Mawr College’s stress management program.

The Wellness 1 and Wellness 2 programs are designed primarily for non-Health, Physical Education, and Recreation majors and help to fulfill the college’s fitness-related requirements. Dr. Davidson also stated that the wellness program satisfies both the college faculty and department faculty’s goals to promote lifetime sports in meeting “...the goals of fitness and wellness of our students.”

Students who participated in the walking class thoroughly enjoyed it. One student mentions, “I really enjoyed walking outside and seeing nature.” Another student states, “I got to see parts of Collegeville that I never knew existed.” Only one student voiced a disappointment about the class: “I was hoping that we would do some race-walking. I was looking forward to learning how to do it, but we didn’t do it in class.”

Students who have additional questions concerning the Wellness program should seek further information from Dr. Robert R. Davidson in Helfferich Hall at 489-4111, extension 2251.

Concert Last in Forum Series

The Ursinus College Band and the Jazz Ensemble will present their fall semester concert on Tuesday, December 8, at 8:00 P.M. in Bomberger Auditorium on the Collegeville campus.

Free and open to the public, the concert is the final event in the College’s fall Forum series of fine arts and lecture programs.

The Concert Band will perform the music of Prokofiev and Gustav Holst from a repertory of classical and concert band literature. The Jazz Ensemble will feature classical jazz compositions and improvisation including the works of Frank Foster and Count Basie.

Anthony D.J. Branker, instructor of music at Ursinus and prize-winning jazz composer, conducts the musicians, who are students or residents of the local community. He received his Bachelor of Arts Degree in music from Princeton University of Miami.

Branker has served as the instrumental music coordinator for the Arts foundation of New Jersey’s Summer Arts Institute. He has presented workshops in jazz as part of that organization’s Visiting Artist Program and has appeared as guest conductor with Japanese and German Youth Orchestras.

Springsteen Sings In New Style

BY STEVE GALL
Grizzly News Editor

I wish to confess I have never been a Bruce Springsteen fanatic. I used to think his lyrics trite; maybe even second rate. Yet Bruce's latest endeavor, Tunnel Of Love, has shown me that he really is one of the best musical talents this country has to offer.

Buyer beware, nonetheless. If you are expecting powerful rockers like those on 1984's Born in the USA, you won't find them here. You will find, however, simply written songs about American married life (probably because he's married now, right?). Life in America is not new to Springsteen content-wise, but style-wise the album differs from its 1984 predecessor. Acoustic guitar predominates, but a fine production job by Springsteen, Jon Landau, and Chuck Plotkin makes use of keyboards as a supplement. One should also note that Bruce plays alone on some of his cuts, such as "Cautious Man".

Although members of the record industry were wise to stop pushing Springsteen as some sort of new Bob Dylan in the 1970's, one may notice some new similarities today. Several weeks ago, a cohort asked me to change the radio when Springsteen came on. When I asked why, he replied, "Springsteen sings about the common man. That's boring." I beg to differ. Springsteen is talented enough to write fine lyrics and music, and he certainly has a devoted following to prove it. If one feels he or she is being cheated by hearing about American life, he or she needn't buy this album or any others by Springsteen. Bruce may not like to change his content much, but he does change his style now and again. I rather like hearing about male-female relationships in my music anyhow. Bruce Springsteen's Tunnel of Love earns a grade of A.

Excessive rain throughout the fall semester has delayed the completion of the Residential Village's landscaping and the student parking lot between 646 and 732 Main Street. Although a majority of the Richard Highley Company's landscaping east of 702 Main has been finished, the completion relies upon the Drum Construction Company, which is responsible for the parking lot.

Yesterday, Mr. Fred Klee, Director of Physical Facilities, seemed hopeful. "If the ground dries up....it should be finished by the end of the semester," he commented. Klee told The Grizzly that Drum Construction should resume work today, however, last night's rain might change this report.

Dee Shares Business Ventures

BY LORA HART
Grizzly Editor

Robert F. Dee, retired Chairman of the Board of the Smith Kline Beckman Corporation, came to Ursinus on November 23rd, 1987, to talk with the Business Seminar Course. Dee shared some of his experiences as the head of a multimillion dollar corporation. During his 39-year career with Smith Kline Beckman, Dee served as President (starting in 1972), Chairman (1976) and Chief Executive Officer (1972-82).

With a wealth of experience inconceivable to the average student, Dee was fully prepared to relate these complex experiences and concerns encountered during his career for the examination and contemplation of the students.

Dee began lecturing about his duties as Chief Executive Officer of the company. He stated, "It was a lot of fun...95% fun," then said the only aspect of the job he disliked was those rare occasions when he had to fire someone. Otherwise he found his duties, "...challenging and stimulating."

Among the interesting business concerns, Dee selected a few of the more controversial issues. He explained the story behind the Contac cold medicine scare and the decisions he had to make to combat the problem. The scare apparently concerned someone who had poisoned Contac pills—in a copycat Tylenol scare fashion—in order to force the medicine off the market. Dee related his and his task force's reactions, actions and then counteractions to rectify the problem.

Another interesting aspect of the class was Dee's discussion of the company's problem of stockholder's concern with Smith Kline Beckman operation in South Africa. Concerned with apartheid, stockholders were upset the Smith Kline Beckman had continued business operation in South Africa. Dee related facts concerning the operation, and before explaining what actions he and his task force had decided, he opened the solution to the class to see what alternate ideas the students would have generated in the same situation. Only after receiving student feedback did he explain what direction the company took in their solution.

Other topics Dee discussed were the acquisition of the ophthalmic busness Allergan and the discovery and perfection of the now famous ulcer medication Tagomet.

Dee has traveled throughout the country lecturing to business classes in colleges. A very cordial man, Dee kept the rapt attention of his business audience and this non-business minded English major. The most fascinating aspect of this class was the realization the Dee has headed an multinational corporation and he was here, on Ursinus campus, sharing controversial experiences that had actually occurred.

Dee is a member of the Board of Directors of United Technologies Corporation, Air Products and Chemicals, Inc., and Volvo North America Corporation. He is also a member of the Volvo International Advisory Board. He served as Chairman of the National Association of Manufacturers from 1985 to 1986 and is a Trustee of The Heritage Foundation, and a member of the Board of Directors of the U.S. Council for International Business, and the Committee for Economic Development. He is also a member of the Business Council, The Conference Board the Council on Foreign Relations and the Management Executives' Society.

Limited Firebreathing for Lionarons' Dragons

BY MICHELLE L. GRANDE
Of The Grizzly

Dr. Joyce Lionarons, assistant professor of English, is yet another faculty member who has completed her first book. Entitled The Dragon Disassembled, the book focuses on the dragon and its thematic importance to medieval literature, and was completed last summer.

Lionarons is still searching for a publisher and recently submitted copies of her book to Garland Publishing Company and the State University of New York Press. Her research extended over a period of six years and originally developed from her doctoral dissertation. The University of Denver, the Inter-Library Loan, and a computer search also provided her with her information, and she received no research grants for completing her project.

In stating the themes of her book, Lionarons says, "We all think we know what a dragon is...actually it is an imaginative construct." She limited her research to the different theories of dragons in the Western tradition and thus eliminated the theories relating to Oriental dragons. Five dragons from medieval literature are explained in her book, including the dragon from the renowned epic

Beowulf and the four dragons in four different versions of Siegfried's Story, she explores the differences in the works, analyzes similarities, and discusses how the dragon functions thematically in each literary work. Lionarons also chose these particular works based on a premise made by the author J.R.R. Tolkien in 1936, for he said that only two dragons exist, with only one dragon found in each work. She states, "Medieval literature is packed with dragons, but very few have true thematic importance in literature."

Lionarons concentrates on the applications of Old English, Old Norse, Middle and High German, and Modern English translations, most of which are her own. She has presented two different versions of a chapter from her book at medieval conferences, with one version two years ago. Both versions of the chapter were well-received. She also has presented a paper dealing with dragons and twentieth-century fantasies during a conference held at Notre Dame.

Lionarons is eager to see her book published so that she may begin a new project. She says, however, that her book may have limited appeal based on the degree

Play by the Stars

BY LUCINDA L'AMOUR
Of The Grizzly

"Virginity: a big issue over a little tissue." I don't quite remember where I ran across this pithy statement during the annual feast-of-the-fowl-flesh vacation, but I do recall that besides being rather humorous, it did seem to make a lot of sense. You might consider pondering it over the holidays ahead of us, or during an impossible final-whichever is more conducive to deep thinking! All joking aside, that statement surmises the whole virginity issue in a down-to-earth manner. One could probably write a book (at least) on the slang terminology for virginity alone. Some call it the Big V, the ever popular cherry, or plain-old fruit, for example. And, of course, there are also ways to describe the act of discontinuing one's virgin status: losing it, perhaps the most common and direct, getting womped, and the ever-safe assumption, married, to name a few. As to why this subject has such a hyped status would be most interesting to investigate; however, I have neither the time, nor space to get into it at present. Therefore, Lucinda leaves it to you to figure out while you're roasting chestnuts by an open fire, or as Jack Frost nips at your nose. Now as we move on to Sagittarian woman's make up, keep in mind that anything relating to the Big V always makes for lively conversation!

She's the Don Juana of the zodiac. She is broadminded in her choice of lovers—she'll go from one sexual exploit to another with an easygoing approach, so that everyone remains friends. However, she is not capable of deep emotional involvement, and wears her heart on her sleeve. Both straight-forward and honest, she is also good-natured and generous. She loves her freedom and needs constant variety and stimulation. Her frankness in affairs of the heart mystifies would-be lovers; it's not surprising that many Sagittarian women end up as spinsters. She undoubtedly coined the term "communicating through nature," for her favorite playground is outdoors. Tents, campers, or a sandy beach are her choice interlude spots. Sex to her is a friendly act, and she doesn't appreciate lovers who behave as if the whole universe had just been changed. Not limited to Homo sapiens Sagittarian woman is also fond of dogs and horses—or anything else she can change.

Ursinus From P. 5

(now Harpoon Louie's). The biggest social spot on campus was the front steps of Freeland Hall after meals. Traditionally only upper-classmen were "allowed" to sit on the steps at this time. My parents described after-dinner on Freeland's steps as a time to meet new people and get closer to new friends and "a great place to pick up dates."

Women were not allowed in Old Men's (then new dorms) and of course men were not allowed to set foot in the halls of the Quad (excepting fathers and brothers). Girls met their dates in the lounge in their hall. This lounge was monitored by "a little old lady"; she enforced the lounge rules of no dancing and everyone keeping at least one foot on the ground at all times.

Of course there were minor rebellions against this seemingly strict authority. Such activities as streaking across the campus and the Harvest Moon became unofficial "traditions." The Harvest Moon was enacted by twenty or so young men who stood on the wall by the steps in front of the Quad, and, in perfect synchronization, mooned the Quad. Naturally my dad denies participating in this revealing event.

Times certainly have changed. While most of these rules seem ridiculously strict, and we wonder how students had any fun, they were acceptable at the time they were enforced. In twenty years, you may read a similar article saying exactly the same thing about life at Ursinus in the 1980's.

of Chaucer's theories of language and narration. She also plans to study the "striking parallelisms" in how both medieval linguistics and rhetorical theory relate to twentieth-century linguistics.
