FRIDAY, JANUARY 31. CIRCULATION STATEMENT

Table with 2 columns: Date, Circulation. Rows for Dec 1907, Jan 1908, and averages for Dec 1906 and 1907.

My commission expires January 22, 1908. Daily Thought. If you will walk in the fields of sin you will find a long task before you picking off the burrs and cockles.

MILK PAN LEGISLATION. Dairymen should now go to Frankfort and seek to amend that bill, providing for the careful cleaning and scouring of milk pans...

The milk pan cleaning law is so extreme as to be absurd, but it is one of a class that are considered seriously by all kinds of citizens and lawmakers.

McCracken county should be a first-class place to locate that proposed sub-experiment station, the legislature is considering for western Kentucky.

LIBRARIES GET JOLT. Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 31.—The mayors of second class cities met here to consider legislation directly affecting the interests of their municipalities.

ILLINOIS PRIMARY LAW. Governor Deneen, of Illinois, seems to have won a victory in his primary law, while Uncle Joe Cannon is spared in the matter of selecting delegates this year to the national convention.

short of actual theft can thwart their will. One advantage will be that, machine politicians, the kind that have grown barnacle-like on Kentucky Democracy, will have a fight in the open every year for control of the machinery...

The Illinois primary election law is simple. It is to regulate the nomination of all candidates by parties which poll 2 per cent or more of the total vote in town, village, city, county, senatorial district, congressional district, sanitary district, judicial circuit, appellate court district, supreme court district or state.

Home rule for Ireland bids fair to be obscured by the more militant movement for female suffrage in England. What makes Taft's chance all the more secure in Kentucky, is that the opposition candidate for the delegates has no chance of nomination...

ADMISSION TO THE BAR. State after state is making admission to the bar more difficult. Kentucky now proposes to establish a commission under the court of appeals to examine applicants at stated times, with a written examination.

It will keep some pettifoggers from assuming the title of lawyer; but the elevation of the bar depends on its members themselves, not the barriers they place against outsiders. Cash considerations always will prevail among some of them, and in spite of the new commission, the "ambulance chaser" and "piker," who can beat the doctor to the scene of accident...

Now, a nice coat of whitewash and another appropriation would make the new capitol at Frankfort look all right from every point of view.

The following editorial is clipped from the Owensboro-Messenger: "Paducah is wise in undertaking to construct a connecting link with trunk lines in Illinois only a few miles away."

McCHORD MEASURE WOULD DRIVE FACTORIES AWAY. Louisville, Ky., Jan. 31.—The bill recently introduced in the lower house of the legislature by Representative McChord, of Washington county, placing the tobacco companies under the police power of the state...

The bill that passed the legislature and is ready for the governor's signature is the hardest blow at the present system of party bossism dealt up to this time. All committeemen are to be elected by popular vote, from precinct to state committee.

The Spoilers. By REX E. BEACH. Copyright, 1908, by Rex E. Beach. (Continued from last issue.)

"Well, so she has, but what of it? I'm thirsty. She's going to marry McNamara. I've been a fool!" He ground his teeth and reached for the drink with which the boy had returned.

"You're too good a man to drink now, tell me all about it." "Oh, it's too long! I've just learned that the girl is in, hand and glove, with the judge and McNamara—that's all. She's an advance agent of their lookout. She brought in their instructions to Struve and persuaded Dex and me to let them jump our claim."

"More! What more?" he questioned. "Do you remember when I warned you and Dexty that they were coming and clear as a mountain pool, but she's wrong, she's wrong and great God! how I love her!" He dropped his face into his hands.

"You're too good a man to drink" to search your cabin for the gold? Well, that girl put them on to you. I found it out afterward. She keeps the keys to McNamara's safety vault where your dust lies, and she's the one who handles the judge. It isn't McNamara at all. The woman lied easily, fluently, and the man believed her.

"Do you remember when they broke into your safe and took that money?" "Yes." "Well, what made them think you had $10,000 in there?" "I don't know." "I do. Dexty told her."

Gluester arose. "That's all I want to hear now. I'm going crazy. My mind aches, for I've never had a night like this before and it hurts. You see, I've been an animal all these years. When I wanted to drink, I drank, and what I wanted, I got, because I've been strong enough to take it. This is new to me. I'm going downstairs now and try to think of something else—then I'm going home."

HOW TO PROLONG LIFE. Advice of Our Beloved Prof. Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes.

If there is one desire more strongly implanted in the human breast than another as we reach mature years, that desire is to prolong life. Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes when asked how to live long replied: "Get a fat liver and then take care of yourself."

We want to say to the people of Paducah, Ky., who are reaching mature years, if you feel your liver as strong as you used to be, you need not get a fatal disease to prolong life, but keep the digestive organs in good condition, and the bodily tissues from wasting by taking our delicious cod liver and iron preparation, Vinol.

Mr. Joseph Banks, of Decatur, Ill., in his seventy-eighth year, says that owing to Vinol he feels stronger and younger than he has for many years. There are hundreds of old people in this vicinity who need just such a strength maker and tissue builder as Vinol, and we ask them to try it on our offer to return money if it fails to give satisfaction. W. B. McPherson, Druggist, Paducah, Ky.

After coming up on the steamer last spring. Mighty brazen, according to my wife. Mrs. Champlain was on the same ship and says she was horribly shocked. Ah! Gluester had told her only half the tale, thought the girl. The truth was baring itself. At that moment Champlain thought she looked the typical creature of the dance halls, the crafty, jealous, malevolent adventuress.

"And the hussy masquerades as a lady," she sneered. "She is a lady," said the Kid. He sat bolt upright and rigid, and the knuckles of his clenched hands were very white. In the shadow they did not note that his dark face was ghastly, nor did he say more except to bid Champlain goodby when he left, later on. After the door had closed, however, the Kid arose and stretched his muscles, not languidly, but as though to take out the cramp of long tension. He wet his lips, and his mouth was so dry that the sound caused the girl to look up.

"What are you grinning at?" Then, as the light struck his face, she started. "My—how you look! What ails you? Are you sick?" No one, from Dawson down, had seen the Bronco Kid as he looked tonight. "No, I'm not sick," he answered in a cracked voice. Then the girl laughed harshly. "Do you love that girl too? Why, she's got every man in town crazy!" She wrung her hands, which is a bad sign in a capable person, and as Gluester crossed the floor below in her sight she said, "Ah—! I could kill him for that!"

"So could I," said the Kid and left her without adieu. (Continued in next issue.)

ROOSEVELT'S SPEECH

abolish the use of the process of injunction. It is necessary in order that the courts may maintain their own dignity and in order that they may in effective manner check disorder and violence.

It is all wrong, to use the injunction to prevent the entirely proper and legitimate actions of labor organizations in their struggle for industrial betterment, or under the guise of protecting property rights unwarrantably to invade the fundamental rights of the individual.

This matter is daily becoming of greater importance and I can not too urgently recommend that the congress give careful consideration to the subject. If some way of remedying the abuses is not found the feeling of indignation against them among large numbers of our citizens will tend to grow so extreme as to produce a revolt against the whole use of the process of injunction.

Common Carriers.

Not only should there be action on certain laws affecting wage-earners; there should also be such action on laws better to secure control over the great business concerns engaged in interstate commerce, and especially over the great common carriers. The interstate commerce commission should be empowered to prevent any rate or practice on its own initiative. Moreover, it should be provided that whenever the commission has reason to believe that a proposed advance in rate ought not to be made without investigation, it should have authority to issue an order prohibiting the advance pending examination by the commission.

The interstate commerce commission should be provided with the means to make a physical valuation of any road as to which it deems this valuation necessary. In some form the federal government should exercise supervision over the financial operations of our interstate railroads. In no other way can justice be done between the private owners of those properties and the public which pays the charges. When once an inflated capitalization has gone upon the market and has become fixed in value, its existence must be recognized. As a practical matter it is then often absolutely necessary to take account of the thousands of innocent stockholders who have purchased their stock in good faith.

I think that the federal government must also assume a certain measure of control over the physical operation of railways in the handling of interstate traffic. The commission now has authority to establish through routes and joint rates. In order to make this provision effective and in order to promote in times of necessity the proper movement of traffic, I think it must also have authority to determine the conditions upon which cars shall be interchanged between different interstate railways. It is also probable that the commission should have authority, in particular instances, to determine the schedule upon which perishable commodities shall be moved.

In this connection I desire to repeat my recommendation that railroads be permitted to form traffic associations for the purpose of conferring about and agreeing upon rates, regulations, and practices affecting interstate business in which the members of the association are mutually interested. The articles under which such associations operate should be approved by the commission; all their operations should be open to public inspection, and the rates, regulations, and practices upon which they agree should be subject to disapproval by the commission.

In reference to the Sherman anti-trust law, I repeat the recommendations made in my message at the opening of the present congress, as well as in my message to the previous congress. The attempt in this law to provide in sweeping terms against all combinations of whatever character, if technically in restraint of trade, as such restraint has been defined by the courts, must necessarily be either futile or mischievous, and sometimes both. On the other hand, as to some huge combinations which are both vicious and illegal, even if the action undertaken against them under the law by the government is successful, the result may be to work but a minimum benefit to the public. Even though the combination be broken up, and a small measure of reform thereby produced, the real good aimed at can not be obtained, for such real good can come only by a thorough and continuing supervision over the acts of the combination in all its parts so as to prevent stock watering, improper forms of competition, and, in short, wrongdoing generally.

Superficially it may seem that the laws, the passage of which I herein again advocate—for I have repeatedly advocated them before—are not connected. But in reality they are connected. Each and every one of these laws, if enacted, would represent part of the campaign against privilege, part of the campaign to make the class of great property holders realize that property has its duties less than its rights. When the suits guarantee to the employer, as they should, the rights of the employer, and to property the rights of property, they should no less emphatically make it evident that they will exact from property and from the employer the duties which should necessarily accompany these rights; and hitherto our laws have failed in precisely this point of enforcing the performance of duty by the man of property toward the man who works for him, by the man of great wealth, especially if he uses that wealth in corporate form, toward the investor, the wage-worker, and the general public. The permanent failure of the man of property to fulfill his obligations would ultimately assure the wresting from him of the privileges which he is entitled to enjoy only if he recognizes the obligations accompanying them. Those who assume or share the responsibility for this failure are rendering but a poor service to the cause which they believe they champion.

I do not know whether it is possible, but if possible, it is certainly desirable, that in connection with measures to restrain stock watering and overcapitalization there should be measures taken to prevent at least the grosser forms of gambling in securities, and commodities, such as making large sales of what men do not possess and "cornering" the market. It would seem that the federal government could at least act by forbidding the use of the mails, telegraph and telephone wires for mere gambling in stocks and futures, just as it does in lottery transactions.

The Press Bureau.

The attacks by great corporations on the administration's actions have been given a wide circulation through out the country, in the newspapers and otherwise, by those writers and speakers who, consciously or unconsciously, act as the representatives of predatory wealth--of the wealth accumulated on a giant scale by all forms of iniquity, ranging from the oppression of wage-workers to unfair and unwholesome methods of crushing out competition; and to defrauding the public by stock jobbing and the manipulation of securities. Certain wealthy men of this stamp, whose conduct should be abhorrent to every man of ordinary decent conscience, and who commit the hideous wrong of teaching our young men that phenomenal business success must ordinarily be based on dishonesty, have during the last few months made it apparent that they have banded together to work for a reaction. Their endeavor is to overthrow and discredit all who honestly administer the law, to prevent any additional legislation which would check and restrain them, and to secure, if possible, freedom from all restraint which will permit every unscrupulous wrongdoer to do what he wishes unchecked, provided he has enough money. The only way to counteract the movement in which these men are engaged is to make clear to the public just what they have done in the past and just what they are seeking to accomplish in the present.

The administration and those who support its views are not only not engaged in an assault on property, but are strenuous upholders of the rights of property.

We seek to control law-defying wealth, in the first place to prevent its doing dire evil to the republic, and in the next place to avoid the vindictive and dreadful radicalism which, if left uncontrolled, it is certain in the end to arouse. Sweeping attacks upon all property, upon all men of means, without regard to whether they do well or ill, would sound the death-knell of the republic; and such attacks become inevitable if decent citizens permit those rich men whose lives are corrupt and evil to dominate in swollen pride, unchecked and unhindered, over the destinies of this country. We act in no vindictive spirit, and we are no respecters of persons if a labor union does wrong, we oppose it as firmly as we oppose a corporation which does wrong; and we stand equally stoutly for the rights of the man of wealth and for the rights of the wage-worker. We seek to protect the property of every man who acts honestly, of every corporation that represents wealth honestly accumulated and honestly used. We seek to stop wrongdoing, and we desire to punish the wrongdoers only so far as is necessary to achieve this end.

There are ample material rewards for those who serve with fidelity the mammon of unrighteousness; but they are dearly paid for by the people who permit their representatives, whether in public life, in the press, or in the colleges where their young men are taught, to preach and to practice that there is one law for the rich and another for the poor. The amount of money the representatives of certain great moneyed interests are willing to spend, can be gauged by their recent publication broadcast throughout the papers of this country, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, of huge advertisements attacking with evened bitterness the administration's policy of warring against successful dishonesty, and by their circulation of pamphlets and books prepared with the same object; while they likewise push the circulation of the writings and speeches of men who, whether because they are misled, or because, seeing the light, they yet are willing to sin against the light, serve these their masters of great wealth to the cost of the plain people. The books and pamphlets, the speeches by public or private men to which I refer, are usually and especially in the interest of the Standard Oil company. From the railroad-rate law to the pure-food-law, every measure for honesty in business that has been passed during the last six years has been opposed by these men on its passage and in its administration with every resource that bitter and unscrupulous craft could suggest and the command of almost unlimited money secure. But for the last year the attack has been made with most bitterness upon the actual administration of the law, especially through the department of justice, but also through the interstate commerce commission and the bureau of corporations. The extraordinary violence of the assaults upon our policy, contained in these speeches, editorials, articles, advertisements and pamphlets, and the enormous sums of money spent in these various ways, give a fairly accurate measure of the anger and terror which our public actions have caused the corrupt men of vast wealth to feel in the very marrow of their being. The attack is sometimes made openly against us for enforcing the law, and sometimes with a certain cunning, for not trying to enforce it in some other way than that which experience shows to be practical. One of the favorite methods of the latter class of assailant is to attack the administration for not procuring the imprisonment instead of the fine of offenders under these anti-trust laws. The man making this assault is usually either a prominent lawyer or an editor who takes his policy from the financiers and his arguments from their attorneys. If the former, he has defended and advised many wealthy malefactors and he knows well that, thanks to the advice of lawyers like himself, a certain kind of modern corporation has been turned into an admirable instrument by which to render it well-nigh impossible to get at the head of the corporation, at the man who is really most guilty. When we are able to put the real wrongdoer in prison, this is what we strive to do; this is what we have actually done with some very wealthy criminals, who, moreover, represented that most baneful of all alliances, the alliance between the corruption of organized politics and the corruption of high finance. This is what we have done in the Gaynor and Greene case, in the case of the misapplication of funds in connection with certain great banks in Chicago, in the land-fraud cases, where, as in other cases like-wise, neither the highest political position nor the possession of great wealth has availed to save the offenders from prison. The federal government does scourge sin; it does bid sinners fear, for it has put behind the bars with impartial severity, the powerful financier, the powerful politician, the rich land thief, the rich contractor--all, no matter how high their station, against whom criminal misdeeds can be proved. All their wealth and power can not protect them. But it often happens that the effort to imprison a given defendant is certain to be futile, while it is possible to fine him or to fine the corporation of which he is head; so that, in other words, the only way of punishing the wrong is by fining the corporation, unless we are content to proceed personally against the minor agents. The corporation lawyers to whom I refer and their employers are the men mainly responsible for this state of things, and their responsibility is shared with all who ingeniously oppose the passing of just and effective laws, or who fall to execute them when they have been put on the statute books. Much is said, in these attacks upon the policy of the present administration, about the rights of "innocent stockholders." That stockholder is not innocent who voluntarily purchases stock in a corporation whose methods and management he knows to be corrupt, and stockholders are bound to try to secure honest management, or else are estopped from complaining about the proceedings the government finds necessary in order to compel the corporation to obey the law.

The keynote of all these attacks upon the effort to secure honesty in business and in politics is well expressed in brazen protests against any effort for the moral regeneration of the business world, on the ground that it is unnatural, unwarranted and injurious, and that business panic is the necessary penalty for such effort to secure business honesty. The morality of such a plea is precisely as great as if made on behalf of the men caught in a gambling establishment when that gambling establishment is raided by the police. The outcry against stopping dishonest
