The writer, the concourse of Presidents to cheer going on to discuss the gentlemen who during the period named have the new executive on his way. with high honor occupied the executive chair, pays this compliment to Covernor Cobb

"William T. Cobb was elected Governor of Maine in 1904 by a plurality of nearly 28,000 votes. We think a majority of the people of this state will agree that Maine has never had an abler Governor than Mr. Cobb, or one hetter fitted to perform the duties of his office. It is to make no invidious comparisons to sav that a majority of men familiar with public affairs if asked to pick the best Governor the State has had in the last fifty years would name Mr. Cobb. . . . few years later he might have been a United States Senator by saying the word."

A paragraph in another column indicates from what widely separated sections of the country the speaker are in demand. His time for March seems to be pretty well taken up, but would it not be possible to bring him to his old home town some time during April or May? Shortly following the war with Spain, on Gen. (then Major) Lord's return from service in the Philippines, we recall that he lectured upon that country and its people, speaking to a highly interested audience that filled the Farwell dent's wish for simplicity But the opera house. His abilities in that American flag will be thrown to the role have greatly widened since that day. Now he is a national figure. Rockland oughtn't to be satisfied with letting the other noted cities of the country have him, to our exclusion When he was a citizen here Gen. Lord, as well as his family, was conthe Men's League of that church were to bring about an arrangement for his appearance, and make the occasion a public one, we believe our people would be highly gratified.

This is "Know Maine Products Week. In observance thereof our overwhelmed by an incessant strean. people will notice displayed in the show-windows of Rockland merchants a variety of articles produced in this State, to which attention is particularly solicited with view to impressing upon us all the fact that when we make purchases it is the sible a few weeks ago. part of a rightly directed loyalty to give preference to the things which are the products of our own farms and waters and factories and looms This is not to mean that we shall spend our money for nothing except what Maine puts forth-that were too narrow a policy to urge upon any right thinking people-but when we once get hold of the idea that Maine products, if not better are at least the equal of any others there is likely to follow the conclusion that when we buy what our home neighbor has made we not only and to his prosperity but at the same time add to our own. Let us Know Maine Products and give them the right of way in our homes.

Mr. Flint's life story, now being printed in this paper, is meeting with a delightful reception from our readers, as we knew it must do. We are moved to direct in particular manner the attention of young men to the installment of the story printed in this issue. Mr. Flint is not seeking to preach, he is a man of the world and thoroughly acquainted with its ways, but he presents out of his own experience some governing principles that the young man of today desirous of success may with equal profit adopt as safe to follow.

BROWN GETS MEDAL

Central Maine Employe First Maine Man To Win National Distinction.

Announcement has been made be the National Electric Light Associa tion that William E. B own of Rock land, a lineman in the employ o Central Maine Power Company, will be awarded an Insull medal in reconition of his deed last July when he saved the life by resuscitation of another employe, Frank I. Wakefield. at Boothbay Harbor. Brown will be the first man in Maine and the third man in all New England to receive the national distinction of winning àn Insull Medal.

The medal will be presented to Brown by W. A. Buttrick, President of the Twin State Gas & Electric Company, of Boston. He will come to Maine for the occasion and as a special representative of Samuel In-sull, donor of the medal. Appropriate exercises for the presentation, which vill take place sometime in March and which many Company offleials will attend, are now being planned.

The uccident in which Brown proved his courage and knowledge of the application of the prone pressure method of first aid and resuscitation, is described as follows:

At about 5 p. m., William E. Brown Frank I. Wakelield and another em-ploye were preparing to change a set of four-pin arms, reverse work, on pole at the corner of Townsend Avenue and Smith street, Boothbay

Wakefield started up the face of the pole a little ahead of Brown, who climbed up the back side. When Wakefield was near the top of the pole and stood facing the pole over the top of a transformer, he extended his right arm over a pair of 2300 volt primary wires and grasped a strain insulator cut into the outside

When he took hold of the insulator there was no shock. He then reached down to put on his safety belt. This brought his right arm at the armpit in contact with the nearer wire. Wakefield thought he was taking hold of a dead street light pair and used no rubber gloves.

Instantly there was a flash and roar. Brown hurried up on the pole and shoved Wakefield clear. Wakefield fell to the ground unconscious with deep burns on his right hand and under his right armoit.

Brown quickly elimbed down the pole, rolled Wakefield over on his stomach and applied prone pressure Wakefield returned to consciousness in four or five minutes.

In taking Wakefield off the line. Brown handled him without wearing his rubber gloves. Had it not been for good luck and a dry day both men would probably have been set on the line. Fortunately it turned out all right.

For acting quickly and applying the prone pressure method for resus-citating the victim, William E. Brown is cited as deserving the signal honor which he will soon receive. The fact that only two others have received an Insuli medal in New England and that several months have been spent in investigating the accident at Boothbay, are evidences of the value attached to the award. She knew that the tea caddy was in the writing desk, that the cheese biscuits and other edibles beloved of mice were in that box under the sofa, that the alcohol for my stove was in the corner behind the washstand, that the butter and milk were on the window ledge and that the eggs and other foods were in a box on the bottom shelf of the wardrobe. When we were cooking she went straight to the spot und got every one of those things without asking once where they were which is something that a person who has not kept house in one room could never have done."

Sewing Machine Inventor The father of the modern sewing machine was Elias Howe, who died in 1867. The patent for first machine was taken out in 1846, and its principles still form the basis of most modern ones. Howe came from Massachusetts, and earned his living in a factory for making cotton machinery; but the honor of inventing the first sewing machine is not entirely American, since various clumsy machines for sewing leather and stuff had been evolved previously in England and in France. Howe visited England. but only managed to sell his patents for a bagatelle of $1,250. The descendants of his machine can do anything from button-holing and darning to the finest embroidery.

well as self-restraint. The engineer controls his engine, not simply by preventing it from running off the track or from colliding with an obstruction. It is rather by making it do the work for which it was constructed and intendedin rulling the train and getting somewhere-that he establishes his reputation as an efficient engineer. Once give the boys and girls this positive side of the matter of selfcontrol and you set them on the path of development, of operation and a large measure of success. American women have patented nearly 1,400 devices. Women have patented contraptions all the way hooks-and-eyes to artificial eye-lashes, including road-building equipment and intricate machinery. When Howe was trying to invent the sewing machine he reached the point of where he was stumped. His wife, tiring of having him sitting around glowering, shoved him aside, sat down before the machine, gave it a few whirls, and said: "Put the thread evelet in the other end of the needle down by the point," That solved the problem.

Something of Mystery All over Scotland are hundreds of forts built on hilltops. The White Caterthun, in Forfarshire, is a good example of these. It consists of four circles of stone, the diameter of the inner circle being 80 paces. The stones are 25 feet thick at the top and over 100 feet thick at the

Beyond the outer circle is a ditch with an earthen breastwork round it, while beyond this, again, runs a double entrenchment. The entrances to these various circles are zigzagged, so that each remains covered by fortifications. The fort at Bamukin, in Aber-

The Glants' causeway is a group of basaltic rocks on the north coast of Antrim, Ireland. The promontory, which is a portion of the basaltic formations found in the county of Antrim and near Londonderry, projects into the North channel. It is called Giants' causeway, from the legend that it was the beginning of a road which the giants began to build across the channel to Scotland. In past geological periods the basaltic rock seems to have been forced upward. After long periods of erosion a long line of perpendicular cliffs 500 feet high is left. For a distance of about 500 or 600 feet are many thousands of vertical columns. Most of them are six-sided, although some of them have five seven, eight and even nine regularly formed sides. In diameter they range from 20 to 30 inches. The tops of these pillars form an uneven pavement, hence the name "causeway." Strictly speaking, the Giants' causeway is formed of three causeways, the Little, Honeycomb and Grand causeways .- Pathfinder Magazine.

Mistaken Atmosphere

The pastor had been holding re vival services for some time. Much interest had been taken in them, but on this particular evening the meeting had been more than usually interesting.

As the service drew to a close the pastor said in his concluding remarks, "What a heavenly atmosphere there is here this evaning." Happening to glance, as he said it, at the pew where his wife and sister sat, he saw a broad smile overspread their faces.

Our Debt to Children

Better teachers, fuller school equipment, it matters not what they We owe them to our children. And we owe them more. We owe them our example. What we do, and the lives they live with us, will affect them most. Give them a chance to be useful in their childhood, to practice economy, to do for themselves. If the greatest men have usually been born in the country, and later gone to the city, there is a reason. Huxley warns us not to let a child's schooling interfere with its education. It ought to have the best schooling our brains and our purses can procure. But its deepest education is in the hands of its parents.-Norman Hapgood, in Hearst's International.

Sexton Kept Track

"I canna git ower it," remarked a farmer to his wife. "I put a twashillin' piece in the plate at the kirk this mornin' instead o' my usual penny.

The headle had noticed the mistake, and in silence he allowed the farmer to miss the plate for 23 consecutive Sundays. On the twenty-fourth Sunday the farmer again ignored the plate, but the old beadle stretched the ladle in front of him and, in a tragic whisper, hoarsely said: "Your time's up noo, Sandy."-Edinburgh Scotsman.

Plant Relations

If we throw a simple glance on plants, we shall perceive that they have relations to the elements which promote their growth; that they have relations to each other, from the groups which they con-tribute to form; that they have relations to the animals which derive nourishment from them; and, finally, to man, who is the center of all the works of creation. To these relations I give the name of harmonies.—Bernardin de Saint-Pierre.

If, on the other hand, you think that you can change the whole situstion by simply buying a pure bred bull and let the boys raise a few calves, there is no ho e for there is more to be done.

These rich feeds do not grow on sour lands and neither do profits grow for sour land owners. The land and the owner both must be "limed" if permanent good is to result.

How shall it be done?

We can suggest methods which have proved out with the writer and on many other farms.

Make a rough plan of the farm.

Ecod crepts of corn, sunflower, oats and peas.

It is a good bet that the average farmer is not cutting for per cont of its ability to produce, in clover corn and other forage crops, nor can the miracle of increased ten-fold production be worked in a single year. When land is poverty sick, not only does it lack plant food but also the humus that serves to lighten it up and hold the moisture. It takes years to get the maximum amount of humus required for bumper crops into the soil and it can only be brought about by growing crops, each one exceeding the previous one, each liaving more plant roots, stubble, nitrogen, bacteria and lumus behind it to more fully nourish the succeeding crop.

Fertilizer helps the process but fertilizer alone will never produce the maximum crops on "run out" land. Years of cropping and feeding only will do it.

Business Now Made of

Producing Spider Silk Spider farming is one of the little known industries of modern times. The end in view is not the intensive fighting of the fly peril, but the production of spider silk, than which there is nothing better for the cross lines of surveying and other instruments.

Supplies in vastly larger quantities are needed for the manufacture of spider-silk stockings, and it is to meet this demand that special spider farms have been started from time to time, says Tit-Bits. It is no easy matter to keep and feed the spiders, to prevent them from engaging in mortal combat, and to collect their silk in suitable form. The process of "sliking" the spider amounts to playing catch-ball, with the spider as the ball. in its passage through the air the spider instinctively pays out silk, and it can be induced to part with a hundred yards or more during a succession of such flights.

Secret Safe

"Oh, Alice!" Virginia exclaimed, "have you heard about Gladys?"
"No; what about her?" Alice demanded.

"Well, she and Dick Rodney are going to be married in June!"
"You don't say! Well, I always knew Dick thought a lot of Gladys, But I never did think she would agree to marry him."

"And Alice," Virginia continued, "the engagement is a secret just now. I promised Gladys I wouldn't tell a living soul, so don't you breathe a word of it to anyone."

"Why, Virginia," Alice replied,
"you know I wouldn't any more think of telling it than you would!"

IN the report of the first National lished a specific traffic planning commission whose duty it is to study the flow of traffic, make recommendations as to the elimination of hindrances to this flow, formulate plans for the correction of unsatisfactory and unsafe traffic conditions, etc. It may be desirable for this commission to be a division of a city planning body." This is the opinion of men who know. It is sound advice to every community in America.

Fortunately for the public, it is rapidly getting into the consciousness of the American people, that the task of city planning is not a police job. Cities must keep abreast of the times and that means keeping up with ever changing means of transportation and the extent of it

It is the motor vehicle which has complicated the traffic problem and the responsibility rests upon the motor car because such is the cheapest means of transportation. There are innumerable examples of how cities in the United States are meeting this new problem by exercising a bit of imagination knd having an adequate supply of courage to go ahead.

This country is about to see an era of city rebuilding.

Panama Canal Idea Old

The first English book descrip-tive of America is said to be "The Decades of the newe worlde, Wrytten in the Latin Tongue by Peter Martyr of Angleria, and tranflated into Englyffe by Rychards Eden, Londoni, Anno 1555," the London Daily Mail says.

In the "Address to the Render" Eden refers to Peter Martyr's ac-count of the isthmus of Panama, and points out the desirability of constructing a good road from ocean to ocean. He admits that it would be a very expensive under-taking but a benefit to all mankind. "But certeynely the moft trewe and permanent glory procedeth of fuch monuments as bryng fume great and notable comodite and profite to the lyfe of men; rather than of the hugious heapes of ftones of the Pyramides of Egypt, wherein is nought els to fee but the fonde and barbarous oftenation of fuperfluous riches." ---

Death in Triumph Edouard Remenyl was a famous

Hungarian violinist who made several world tours and settled in New York for some years. He died of apoplexy on the stage of the Orpheum theater, San Francisco, on May 15, 1898. This was his first appearance on the vaudeville stage and he was enthusiastically received on playing two or three classical pieces. He responded with "Old Glory," which created tremendous applause. Then he commenced to play Delibes' "Fizzicati," but after a few measures he leaned over and then fell forward on his face, dead. It is interesting to know that at one time the composer, Brahms traveled with Remenyi and acted as his accompanist.

MODERN ATLANTIC LINERS CITIES OF THE SEA

Ocean Travel INOW Has All Conveniencies of Life On Shore, Plus Delights of Sea Journey

By ELIZABETH JEFFRIES

WHEN our fathers and grand-fathers crossed the ocean to found the families of which we are the proud members today, they were not very talkative on landing, of the comfort, cheer and conveniences of the voyage. To them the trip was an adventure, seldom a recreation, and although of the more memorable of these linzardous enterprizes made heroes of the passengers, their experiences were never referred to as cheerful.

There are thousands of people in America, however, who yet envisage an ocean trip in terms of half a century ago. They are "all at sea" regarding the improvements that have come to sea travel in recent

To the true grass-green landsman it comes as a bewildering surprise to step aboard the liner that is to take him for a holiday in Europe. and be ushered by a smart liveried attendant into a beautifully furnished elevator, that takes him up to the deck where his cabin is located. But this is but an insignificant introduction. My travels on the steamers of many lines, have revenled to me, that the competition between cities ashore, to boost the beauty and industry of our great municipalities, is as nothing pared to the manner in which the various Trans-Atlantic Steamship companies vie with each other to give the modern over-the-sea vacationist, all the comforts of home and some of the luxuries that he cannot

When a few years ago, Atlantic liners first became "palatin" there was frequent reference to them as "floating hotels," but such a de-today. They are cities of the sea, floating model communities, possessing all the conveniences of life ashore, with delights that cities ashore can never have. Where is the hotel that will publish your morning hewspaper, provide you with your Sunday Church service or your Saturday night movie with adjuncts of a bank, department store or children's nursery according to your need? Yet these can be found at sea. All the complex needs of a modern American community can he met today in the middle of the Atlantic ocean much better than in the middle of an American prairie. Indeed many a vacationist from reroote American villages has testified that his first experience of the modern conveniences of life was on an

For such readers I insert part of the food supply for one trip of a mod-ern Atlantic liner, and not the largest at that: - 250 sheep and lambs, 150 pigs, 250 turkeys, 125 gcese, 500 ducks, 5000 fowls, 75 head of cattle, 250 pheasants, 500 pigeons, 1000 quails, 300 grouse, 300 partridges, 250 snipe, 5-110 lb. turtles, 1500 lbs. of tea, 70,000 lbs. of flour, 38,000 eggs, 200 crabs, 15,000 lbs. of sugar, 15,000 lbs. of fresh fish, 8000 clams. 500 barrels of oysters, 2500 lbs. of ontmeal, 24,000 lbs. of potatoes 26% lbs. of coffee, and 300 tins of associed biscuits and crackers. In addition to this there are enormous quantities of fruit, jams, vegetables, milk, cream, cheese and all the common necessities of the best equipped American tables, supplemented by a soft dried: fountain and an Ameri-

Lighthouse Story Bishop's light rises near the Scilly islands and gives a grim warning of the dangers of the coast. It is one of the most exposed light-houses in the world and the three tenders have a lonesome time. During a recent storm the beams from Bishop's rock came near to falling. The light weighs several tons and revolves on supports resting in a circular trough of mercury. It is balanced so delicately a child may turn it by a touch of the finger. On this night the tower was so shaken by the heavy seas that much of the mercury was spilled out over the concrete floor of the light chamber. The three guards fell to their knees, scooped up the mercury in their hands and poured riends of Late Carolyn Perry Give Expression To Sorrow At Funeral.

There was a remarkable outpourng of people Sunday afternoon to attend the funeral of Miss Carolyn Perry, a member of the High School graduating class, whose death last Wednesday after a brief but very painful illness, excited so much sympathy. The Congregational church in which the services were held, was rowded with mourners, and the asket was surrounded with one of he largest and most beautiful displays of floral offerings which has ever been witnessed at I local uneral. Among the many who sent

The Senior class of Rockland High School attended in body, and the under classes were largely represented.

Music was furnished by the new vested choir of the Congregational church, which sang the processional and recessional. Rev. C. A. Knickerbocker of the Universalist church read Scriptures and a poem, while member take dishes to save time and Rev. W. S. Rounds of the Congregational church preached the sermon and offered prayer. The eulogies were brief, but affecting. There were few dry eyes in the congregation.

Maurice B., Lawrence C., Benjamin C., John J. and Standish Perry acted as bearers. The interment was in Achorn cemetery.

Community Fair came to a happy conclusion Saturday night with a Phil Jones program of high merit. The big central space was laid off as a class room and the youngsters did their stuff actually as it is performed each time the athletic direc tor visits. There were three groups, the class room, a wand drill and the Hickville crowd. This latter outfit had costumes utterly beyond description and reflected great credit on the originality of their teacher, Miss Eleanor Griffith. At first their actions in response to the director's orders were very erratic but suddenly they snapped into the accurate step and motion which had marked the other classes. The surprising fact is that this show was staged by Coach Jones entirely without practice. The classes and director received an ovation. The concluding number was a last minute contribution made by Miss Adelaide Shepherd in a solo dance.

The afternoon session found the hig hall crowded, with children in majority. The fine clean program made up from several mid-week hits was thoroughly enjoyed. The kiddies owned the hall and had a joyous time in their noisy way.

A sample of the type of citizenship ecessary to put over such an undertaking as Community Fair is seen in the committee members who worked until nearly 2 o'clock Sunday morning and went their weary way only when every stick of lumber was denailed and properly hundled for use another season. The idea was to eliminate the hammering and general hullabalooing which has desecrated the section on the Sunday following the Fair for a score of years past.

It has developed that Clifford Thomas Jr., of 19 Bay View Square is the owner of the handsome blue ribbon St. Bernard listed at the Dog Show. Clifford left early so the ownership of the beautiful animal remained a mystery.

Sees Resin as Basis of Diamond Formation

Similarity between the X-ray pictures of the lattice structure of diamond crystals and of decaterpene, a resinous substance, is the basis for the claim advanced by Herr Decker, a Jena chemist, that dlamonds originated from this material under enormous pressure and possibly heat during long periods of time, according to the Berlin correspondent of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry.

Diamonds have long been known to be pure carbon in crystalline form, but what the original carbonaceous material was out of which they developed has been a subject of dispute. Resins contain hydro-gen as well as carbon, and the Marston's Orchestra and Marsh's theory of the German scientist assumes that, under the conditions of dlamond formation, the hydrogen was literally slowly squeezed out of the raw material until at last nothing but pure crystalline carbon was

Father of Mail Service

Mall coaches were introduced into England in the year 1784 by one John Palmer of Bath. This worthy gentleman suffered much incon-venience from the mail leaving London on Monday, and not reaching Bath until Wednesday. He traveled the country advocating reform, and was set down as a hore. But the system of flying mails he was able to inaugurate lasted until the days of railways. Still, it was not much better than the system of the Roman mails, as established in the Third century, by which it seems possible that letters might have reached Rome, from England in three or four days if relays of galloning charlots could cover a thousand miles at 14 miles an hour.

bad habit of losing umbrellas, and as they were usually expensive ones, he hit upon the happy idea of having his telephone number engraved on the handle. Since then he lost his umbrella half a dozen times, but owing to the telephone number he has always recovered it. The finder does not have to send it back; he rings up the number, and the owner gladly calls for it. If the finder is dishonest he will not feel comfortable with that telltale number, and if he himself loses it, as ten to one he will, a more honest person will eventually inform the original owner. The latter, of course, will know nothing of

Drilling holes in glass is not so very difficult. The old method utilized a discarded triangular file, ground to a sharp point and used in a brace with a slight pressure. The point of contact was moistened with turpentine. The more recent way, and one that is quicker, is to use and one that is quicker, is to use a brass or copper tube with thin walls instead of a file, says Popular Science Monthly. The tube is placed in a brace and drilling is accomplished with powdered carborundum as a cutting agent. A guide of wood
