For The First Time

Medics and Red Cross Co-operate In An Inoculation Program

For the first time in the Rockland schools, an immunization program for diphtheria was carried out.

This project was sponsored by The Knox County Medical Association in co-operation with the American Red Cross health program in the schools. That the project was approved by the majority of the parents is shown by the number of children who received the inoculation.

From an enrollment of 1125 children in the grades, 820 were given the inoculation; and 365 from Junior High and High School, making a total of 1185 school children.

The Red Cross nurses thank the Knox County Medical Association for the splendid co-operation for the following physicians who gave the tests gratuitously: Drs. Freeman F. Brown, Alvin Foss, H. V. Frohock, Walter D. Hall, C. Harold Jameson, O. R. Lawry, Charles D. North, Charles B. Popplestone, Gilmore W. Soule, and Herman Weisman.

WHO WILL BE QUEEN?

Who will be Queen of the "Jubilesta?"

Next Thursday night at the Community Building, during the Gay Nineties Jubilesta and Dance, Mayor E. R. Veazie will have the honor of placing a crown upon the head of one of the three very attractive young ladies now in the contest—Glenna Rankin, Celia Crowley, and Victoria Anastasio.

Eight members of Huntley-Hill Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars will form a color guard of honor for the ceremonies, and at 11 o'clock, the name of the Queen will be announced and her honor conferred by the Mayor.

The fortunate winner will also receive an outfit donated by three local firms, Senter-Crane's, the Bell Shop, and Cutler's Garment Shop. The articles from each of the stores will be announced.

Gay decorations—balloons, noise makers, and favors, will mark the affair as being "entirely different."

The spirit of the 90's will prevail—even to the Barber Shop Quartet, handle-bar moustaches, derbys and high wheeled bicycles of the time. The audience will join in the spirit

BURGLARIES IN THE NIGHT

Offenders Brought Up On Short Turn By the Sheriff and Police

Breaks in the Log Cabin filling station on Park street and I. B. Simmons confectionary store at 724 Main street, Sunday night was followed by brief liberty yesterday for the three alleged burglars, Harlan Dinsmore, Earl Blood (alias Earl Le Blanc) and Walter Dudley, Jr.

The investigation resulting in their arrest was made by Sheriff C. Earle Ludwick and Patrolman Carl A. Christofferson and Roland Sukeforth. The officers say they gave a written confession.

The break at the Log Cabin filling station was made at midnight Sunday, the articles taken being two legal vending machines. These, when smashed, provided the burglars with $5 in cash.

From there the trio went to I. B. Simmons store and allegedly stole cigars, cigarettes, playing cards, soda, magazines and a pair of binoculars—all to the value of $43.

The officers recovered all of the loot except a small amount of money which the three say they threw away for fear they might be arrested and the cash found upon them. Simmons store was evidently much more comfortable than out of doors, for the trio stayed there from 1 o'clock to 2:30.

It also developed, the officers say, that Le Blanc and Dinsmore broke into the McLain school building last Wednesday night and stole a stapling machine and some paints. The same night they visited the Purchase street building and stole a pair of spectacles, and some paints.

Dudley and Le Blanc were sentenced to the State School for boys and Dinsmore was held for the February grand jury.

The Three Linkers

District Meeting of Odd Fellows a Highly Successful Affair

Fifty Odd Fellows representing four of the lodges in the 16th District, and three outside of it, assembled at Odd Fellows hall Saturday night and under the direction of District Deputy Allen V. Sawyer had such a happy time as to demand a "repeat" in the near future. The Grand Lodge was represented by Deputy Grand Master Wallace W. Roderick of Waterville, whose sole complaint seemed to be that there wasn't pie with the rendering of old favorites, under the leadership of George Sleeper, master of ceremonies. Altogether an evening of gaiety, frivolity, and fun is promised for the "Gay Nineties Jubilesta."

[EDITORIAL]

BRINGS THOUSANDS TO MAINE

A strong factor of the recreational season in Maine is represented by the hunting and fishing interests which bring into the State thousands of men and women from all parts of the country. The official figures for the past season show that permits were issued for 40,800 non-resident fishermen and 5271 non-resident hunters, or slightly more than last season, despite the fact that it was admittedly an off year. These sportsmen from beyond the State's borders did not come here in vain for the deer kill and the fish catch was of near record proportions. The State made good on the attractive advertising which went forth through the newspapers and magazines.

Conditions are to be made even better if the department heads are permitted to go ahead with their present progressive plans. Take the fisheries for instance! Figures on Maine's 1939 fish propagation program reveal that 14,000,000 trout and salmon eggs are in the hatcheries and that 80% of this number of offspring will soon be ready for the rearing stations. Of the eggs 8,125,000 are from brook trout, 1,100,000 from brown trout, 3,425,000 from salmon and 2,850,000 from togue or lake trout. Only fingerlings and legal size fish will be released. Due to a high mortality rate the department believes that in most cases releasing of fry is impractical.

LOYALISTS APPEAR TO BE LOSING

Nearly two years ago we thought the Spanish War was nearing its end, but thanks to the lucky stand of the Loyalists our deductions were far from the mark. And today the downfall of the Republic seems inevitable. That Barcelona can much longer withstand the terrific onslaught does not seem humanly possible. We hold no brief for the Communists and no sympathy with their policies as represented to us, but our sympathy has frequently been expressed for the Spanish Loyalists and mainly for two reasons. First because they have been the under dogs in the fight, aided by Germans and Italians, whose power will be vastly increased in the event of Rebel victory. Gen. Franco may be fighting a just cause, but it is the heartlessness of his methods—the bombing of towns inhabited by non-combatants where the victims were mainly women and children, the aged and infirm, on which we base our objections.

A CRUEL MIND

Few right-minded persons ever endorse the abuse of dumb animals and they will, we are sure, endorse the action of the judge who fined a New York man $100 for helping his bull terrier kill a cat. The feline had escaped the dog's clutches and made her way through a small hole into a cellar. The owner of the dog removed the barrier, and "sicked" the animal onto the cat until she was fatally mangled. The magistrate denounced the act as one of the worst examples of cruelty to an animal ever to come before him.

TRAINING SAILORS

Building merchant marine ships isn't the only problem which confronts the U. S. Maritime Commission. Men qualified to manipulate them must be found, and to this end the Commission has already secured facilities for training 3000 unlicensed and 300 licensed, Merchant Marine personnel. Training stations will be established in various parts of the country. A recommendation that Congress authorize extension and correspondence courses for cadets aboard ship was made in the report of the Maritime Commission which said it intended ultimately to make these studies available to the licensed and unlicensed personnel of the United States Merchant Marine generally.

"The Black Cat"

By The Roving Reporter

Not long ago: Three of them, from Rockland were registered in a New York hotel. Vaillant men and true, they wrote:

Captain Snow.
Captain Frost.
Captain DeWinter.
And the bored clerk darted at them a trying-to-fool-me look.

A six-lane causeway connects Treasure Island, site of the $50,000,000 California World's Fair, with the $77,000,000 San Francisco-Oakland Bay bridge. Ought to be able to get in.

Did I ever tell you about the story of the Main street merchant who kept a music and variety store. Among other articles exhibited in the window was a reading glass. One day the sun caught it just right, and the glass set fire to a piece of paper. The clerk extinguished the incipient blaze but did not escape the wrath of the proprietor. "Suppose," said he, "that had happened in the night time."

Pulling juvenile teeth is a practice most of us know something about. If it was an upper tooth, a popular method was by attaching one end of a cord or string to the tooth, and the other to a flat iron. When the latter was dropped the offending tooth generally went flying. Another method was by attaching the other end of the string to a doorknob, and then slamming the door.

Why do they call it Presque Isle, asks a reader of The Black Cat, who is quite certain that the Aroostook town is not an island. By the way, what large Maine town is entirely surrounded by water?

Some persons like caraway seed as a flavor for pie, but I will never forget the disappointment which I suffered when a neighbor once gave me a pumpkin pie and I found it was flavored with caraway. That was a great many years ago, but I have never forgotten the incident because I detest the taste of the seed.

The late Oliver Otis, who was regarded as one of the best editors in the State, used to tell the story of how he tried to "crash the gate" at a Masonic meeting in Portland. He was a bit weak in his answers, but the tiler finally admitted him. When the meeting was over the Rockland visitor shook hands with some of his new-found friends, including the tiler.

"Do you know how I happened to admit you?" asked the tiler.
"No," replied Oliver.
"Because nobody who knows as little about Masonry as you seem to, would attempt a bluff."

More than 55,000,000 barrels of beer and ale were brewed in the United States in 1937, according to preliminary reports of the U. S. Census Bureau. Wonder how much stock on hand there was at the end of the year?

The year 1937 was not a prosperous one for the railroads. With the slump in business which started in the fall of that year, railroad traffic and earnings have shown large declines in 1938. Lowered earnings coupled with increased costs of operation have changed the net income of $65,000,000 earned in the first eight months of 1937 to a deficit of $183,000,000 in the same period of 1938. So reports the committee on public relations.

The greatest trouble I have in solving crossword puzzles is to decipher the scarcely legible numbers. Why doesn't the daily newspapers recognize that fact?

One year ago: Rodney E. Peyle completed his duties as Commissioner of Sea and Shore Fisheries—Manager Dondis of Strand Theatre dined with Errol Flynn, the movie star, in Boston, and also met Cecil de Mille.—Mrs. Irene Gould, a pioneer member of the Pleasant Beach colony, died in Medfield, Mass., aged 85 years.—The death of Miss Lois E. Keene was recorded.—The destroyer Bagley was being tried.—A. C. Ramsdell was attending the National Cannery Convention in Chicago.

YOUR FAVORITE POEM

WHEN ICICLES HANG BY THE WALL

When icicles hang by the wall,
And Dick the shepherd bows his nail,
And Tom bears logs into the hall,
And milk comes frozen home in pail,
When blood is nipped, and ways be foul,
Then nightly sings the staring owl,
To-whit, to-who, a merry note,
While greasy Joan doth keep the pot.
When all about the wind doth blow,
And coughing drowns the parson's saw,
And birds sit brooding in the snow,
And Marian's nose looks red and raw,
When roasted crabs hiss in the bowl,
Then nightly sings the staring owl,
To-whit, to-who, a merry note,
While greasy Joan doth keep the pot.

"Out of more than 2000 snakes in the world today, the United States has less than 200 different kinds."

Odd as it may sound, shoes, pocketbooks, handbags, ladies jackets, even rattlesnake meat with supreme sauce in cans are but a few examples of the commercial value of snakes.

On the stage were several cases which contained 15 live specimens of the reptile family several feet long, which Mr. Raymon took out and handled, named and described.

But the most interesting was the song of the full grown Texas diamond back rattlesnake as he vibrated his rattle.

Besides his exhibit of live snakes, Mr. Raymon showed several snake skins of real beauty; he also gave instructions in case of snake bites. The performance was closed by a few whip tricks in which he was assisted by Charles Seaman who received an autographed picture of the lecturer for his aid.

Did you ever see a ship's log? Bertram Snow brought to the Junior Business Training class this week a log kept on board the "Good Schooner John H. Pearsons" of Rockland, commencing April 25, 1884 with R. K. Snow as master.

For the second time in league competition the Rockland Junior High basketball team proved itself a fast, well balanced machine by beating Rockport 8th graders 37 to 4. The game, which was played Thursday night in the Rockland High gym before a large and excited crowd, was well played even though rather one-sided.

Our Congressman To Submit Amendment to Wage-Hour Bill

Representative Clyde H. Smith, member of the House Labor Committee is writing an amendment to the Wage-Hour Bill which would pay every man and woman now employed in interstate commerce, where not in competition with foreign industry, 40 cents an hour for a 40-hour week and, as protective tariffs are added from time to time on goods and produce, the same wage would apply.

He has not decided on the exact phraseology, nor on the exact place in the existing act where the amendment will be attached.

His purpose is to eliminate reciprocal trade agreements and free trade and regards this as the only way to pay American workers reasonable wages where competition with foreign goods does not exist.

Gen. Berry Square To Be Beautified In Honor of Distinguished Soldier

In response to a patriotic public, loyally devoted to the memory of Maine's most distinguished soldier, Major-General Hiram G. Berry, an association is being incorporated known as the General Berry Memorial and Improvement Association.

After removing the building now occupying this site, the Association plans to beautifully grade the plot and place a boulder there with an appropriate tablet in bronze to the memory of General Berry.

The General Berry Memorial and Improvement Association which has been organized to promote and finance this Memorial is now receiving prompt support from an appreciative public in the form of generous donations, which have already been received by its treasurer.

A patriotic public will now be provided with an opportunity to express its devotion to a distinguished soldier and honored citizen who gave his life to safeguard his country during the greatest crisis in its history.

Chick Maynard's Y.M.C.A. "basketballers" invade Rockland Community Building Wednesday night for that much talked about tussle with the Trojans.

After all, Jim has reasons for such confidence—MacLeod, former Portland Boys' Club sharpshooter; Johnny Karl, fleetfooted forward; fiery redheaded Freddy LaCrosse, Trojan high scoring center; Oil Adams, former all-Maine guard; and Will Karl, stalwart guard; and backed by a wealth of equally potential members who can hold their own on any man's court.

For those not being well acquainted with the players or the games, the public addressing system is to be pressed into service, enlightening the fans with lineups, substitutions and scorers throughout the game. So fans, if you want to see a thriller take in the Trojans-Camden Y. M. C. "High Pressure Homer" Feb. 1-2, Bids Fair To Be Record Success

A cast richly deserving the title "all star" features the Community Theatre Guilds ace production "High Pressure Homer" which is to be presented Feb. 1-2 in the Congregational vestry under sponsorship of the Rounds Mothers' Class.

In this riotous modern comedy dealing with the typical Woodruff family one finds the parts taken by these prime local favorites: Grace Rollins, Harold Dondis, Frank Tibbets, Blanche Morton, Madeline Rogers Jackson, Dorothy Sherman, Elmer Staples, George and Margaret Sleeper.

This is to be the first presentation of the Guild under the new regime and the splendid cast named above has been working for absolute perfection. A very real sense of personal achievement pervades the rehearsals, pride in the Guild and pride in craftsmanship of the play. Those who have witnessed rehearsals are outspokenly enthusiastic in their praise.

It is interesting to note, "High Pressure Homer" is being presented on the same night by an Augusta group of players in Capitol Theatre.

Cobb Lime Company 'Jimmy' Rhodes Answers Query Propounded In 'The Black Cat'

Hartford, Jan. 19. Editor of The Courier-Gazette:— I was somewhat interested in the inquiry in 'The Black Cat' recently as to the time when the Cobb Lime Company was formed. The inquiry started a very interesting chain of recollections with me, and I am going to impose them upon you.

We all remember that the issues in the campaign of 1900 were trusts and imperialism. We had the trust issue brought right home to us in Knox County, because the 'syndicate' had just been formed, and the basis of this combination was a merger of the Cobb Lime Company, the Crockett interests, and the Shepherd interests, in Rockport. There may have been other lime burners in it, but I do not happen to remember them. This consolidation was indicative of much larger consolidations in other parts of the country, and so the issue was raised in Knox County, and was, at least partially, responsible for the Democratic victory in the county in September.

I happened to be talking with the late Theodore Simonton during the campaign and he said, 'Why, Jimmie, they raised that same issue on me in 1871, for I was a member of the Legislature in that year, and I introduced a bill for the incorporation of a trust, the Cobb Lime Company.'

Who does not remember dear old Theodore. He was a choice wit, but never wounded anybody by his thrusts. He was tax collector while I was city solicitor of Rockland, and I used to listen to his stories about collecting the taxes with great interest. One of his problems was in collecting poll taxes from local Chinese laundrymen, but he succeeded pretty well in making them understand what he wanted and in getting the money, even though he had to put on a policeman's badge to get it.

When I saw the inquiry in 'The Black Cat' I happened to think of Theodore's remark, and I thought I would go over to the Connecticut State Library and see if it contained a copy of the Acts and Resolves of Maine for 1871. I found it all right, and on page 517 it appears that the Cobb Lime Company was granted a special charter by the Legislature by act approved Jan. 23, 1871. A slight amendment was approved on Jan. 31, 1871, and the act was repealed Feb. 27, 1871 being the last special act of that session. I infer, therefore, that the company was formed under the general law shortly after that time and my inference is that the outcry against it may have been such that the incorporators chose to surrender under the general law, for I had always understood that the corporation was organized about 1871. In trying to fathom the reasons for the opposition, I noticed that some special franchises were granted to lay conduits in the streets, etc., and I suppose that this may have been the reason. A corporation organized under the general law would not have such rights.

The incorporators were Charles W. Snow, Francis Cobb, Hezekiah W. Wight, Edward P. Norton, William A. Farnsworth, Cornelius Hanrahan, Albert F. Ames, George Gregory, Geo. W. Kimball, Jr., A. J. Bird, Hanson G. Bird, John Bird and Sidney M. Bird. The latter was a member of the Legislature with Mr. Simonton at that time. This looks like a cross section of the leaders in business life in Rockland in the Seventies. About the only names that do not appear were those of Maynard Sumner and Davis Tilson. Mr. Sumner was primarily a banker, and Gen. Tilson was a granite man, and so I suppose that they were not interested in the proposition. I have always understood that the Cobb Lime Company was primarily a consolidation of the lime business of Francis Cobb and Cornelius Hanrahan. I think that Mr. Farnsworth, Mr. Ames, Mr. Gregory and A. J. Bird were also lime burners, but I do not know that any of them were ever interested in the Cobb Lime Company.

It has always seemed to me that Francis Cobb was about the broadest gauged man in his interests that Rockland ever saw. Personally I cannot remember him, but I used to hear a lot about him. He made the best use of the talents of others when he surrounded himself with men like Hezekiah Wight and Edward P. Norton, at this time, and later by Fred W. Wight, and his town son, Gov. Cobb, who possessed much of his personality. I have understood that he had other interests away from Rockland, extending even to St. Louis and New Orleans.

Back into its own Came the Knox Fish and Game Association With a Rousing Meeting

With 106 members and guests is holding its efforts through the present Friday night, the membership meeting of the Knox County Fish and Game Association in the Federated Church at Thomaston was one of the largest and most successful in recent years, and savored strongly of other days, when such meetings were always attended by large crowds. The turn-out was highly gratifying to President Arthur E. McDonald, who has been striving ever since his election to bring the organization back onto a normal basis.

In Saturday's issue was briefly told the story of the fishes and the loaves—or in other words, how Ed Dorman and his helpers fed 163 persons out of rations provided for 69.

Joseph Stickney, warden supervisor was present with his latest motion pictures, somewhat dismayed to find that the lighting circuit of the vestry failed to provide sufficient 'juice' for showing the films. Immediately there sprang into action a corps of expert electricians headed by Al Young of the Central Maine staff. The difficulty was remedied but it was found necessary to reverse the seating arrangement, and it was some moments before order was brought out of chaos.

And then Joe showed his pictures, which took a highly interested audience up the Allegash and down the St. John River and down the long lumber river into Machias. Five hundred feet of the film was of special interest to the Boy Scouts who were present in force. It showed Boy Scouts on a camping trip and the fate which befell the company outfit when four bears descended on it, and cleaned out the food supplies. It showed how a 15-year-old Boy Scout became lost in the woods, and how he made himself perfectly at home, rather resenting the efforts of his 'rescuers' to induce him to go back to camp. It also showed how a hunter 28 years old became lost, and went temporarily insane.

'You are organized for what purpose?' asked Mr. Stickney in the course of his preliminary remarks. 'To help the fish and game interests in your community'—answering his own question.

The speaker cited the case of Pennsylvania, which he said was a 'shot cut' state in 1907. Today it is one of the best hunting States in the Union. Mr. Stickney told how the resources were being built up in the Southern part of the State, and declared that if it wasn't for the warden force there wouldn't be a fish or an animal in five years.

Eighteen moose were illegally shot in the southern zone this year, one of them in Richmond shot by a woman. Some sportsman unworthy of the name shot a pet cow moose which the wardens had been guarding five years. Two men were apprehended and were fined $300 each. 'The warden force is going places and doing things,' declared Mr. Stickney, who said that the State

CLIPPER SHIP LIGHTNING

Mr. Bowers is a native of Camden and a graduate of Camden High School and Rockland Commercial College, served as Representative from Portland in the 85th Legislature, is a member of the Howard Memorial Commission which erected the $50,000 Statue on the Battle Field of Gettysburg.

The carving is on exhibition in the window of The Crie Gift Shop. The framing is a special job in gold and solid mahogany and was skillfully designed and executed in Mr. Crie's framing shop.

President's Ball A Social Event Which Helps Fight the Infantile Battle

We dance that others may walk—The anniversary of the President's birthday has been turned since 1934 from an occasion of conventional compliment to a day of National kindness, pity and charity. Through the previous year, the dimes and dollars have been rolling in to carry on, in various ways the fight against infantile paralysis. The campaign must continue and the spirit of generosity spread until the whole country is united in this war on the dreaded disease.

As our grandfathers would have said Mr. Roosevelt is 'thankful for his mercies' but in the noble way of bestowing them upon others. From misfortune, he has learned to succor the unfortunate. No other aspect of his complex personality is so outstanding. The Roosevelt of Warm Springs, Ga., the Roosevelt of Jan. 30, has no enemies, no opponents, no censurers. Let us make this coming Birthday Ball the biggest celebration Rockland has ever had. Let us dance that others may walk.

Deputy Warden Stanley W. McGowan and M. S. Weston were admitted to membership. The opinion was expressed that men of 75 or 80 should be exempt from paying fishing and hunting licenses.

CHAPTER IV

Val Douglas, wagon boss for the 94, leaned against the red rock fireplace of the main room of the ranch house, and looked at Billy Wheeler without admiration.

"I won't ask you what you'd have done in my place," Wheeler said, "because I don't give a hoot. But I'll say this—if you had done much differently it would be because you're a worse fool than I thought."

It was many hours now since Billy Wheeler had upset Kid Bender's horse, pinning that newly-made deputy sheriff under the saddle; the long peculiarly lucid twilight of the Red Hills country now lay cool and lingering upon the range.

Horse Dunn and his wagon boss had now heard the story of the order Kid Bender had given Wheeler and Wheeler's refusal; and of how the Kid had tried to trick Wheeler into glancing away while he drew.

There had been a bad moment for Wheeler after he had overthrown the Kid's horse, for at first Kid Bender had looked as if he might be dead, saddle-crushed by his fallen mount.

Kid Bender, though, had come to with only a broken leg and a dirty crack on the head to show. And Pinto Halliday, shifty-eyed, lanky, had appeared from the Short Creek cuts to take Kid Bender off of Wheeler's embarrassed hands.

"No show-off play like that ever does any good," Douglas said. "It only stacks trouble onto plenty we already got to."

At the window Horse Dunn stirred impatiently. "Understand this, Val," he said. "Billy done just what I would have done in a like case. I'll back Billy's play to the limit, and that goes for any other play he wants to make!"

"Sure," said Douglas. "What else can we do?"

Wheeler sat up, angering again. "Now just a minute!"

Horse Dunn whirled. "Cut it out," he snapped. "Val, that was Old Man Coffee just come in; go take care of his horse, and see that there's grub laid out at the cook shack."

When Val Douglas had gone out Billy Wheeler's anger left him. "He's mostly right, Horse," he said. "Horse Dunn bristled and his voice rose to its familiar roar. 'All I'm sorry for is you didn't kill the little sneak! If I had a couple more riders with enough guts in their bellies to—' His thunder subsided; Wheeler noticed how all the hard fire went out of this old man in the presence of his niece, Marian Dunn, set relaxed at the other window, her eyes in the far hills, and her profile was as motionless as if she were carved of cream-colored marble. Billy Wheeler had that day seen horror and antipathy in her eyes after he had downed Kid Bender; and he no longer wondered why Horse Dunn lost spirit sometimes when she was there."

bows, but made no remark. "I set out to trail the killer's horse," Coffee went on. "I took down-crick; Rock seeking the trail where it come out of the water. Pretty soon he says he's got it, and sets up a beller, and away we go, inching along about two miles an hour. That fool hound takes anyway six, eight miles, all the time hollering just as confident as if he knew what he was at."

Old Man Coffee crammed cut plug into an ancient pipe, the bowl of which was carved to represent hearts and flowers.

"Well?" Dunn demanded at last. "All this time," Coffee said, "I hadn't been able to make out a decent track; but I was getting kind of suspicious because of the way the trail wandered around. Then finally we come on a soft place, where I could see plain. And it was the wrong trail."

"I thought this dog couldn't be fooled," Dunn grunted.

"He was sure fooled this time. The trail your wagon boss showed me was off a cup-hoofed pony; but old Rock took after a pony that was flat-footed as a duck—his feet wore down right onto the frog."

"So," Horse Dunn said, "you ended up empty-handed, same as us ordinary folks?"

"Not altogether and complete," Coffee retorted. "Rock cut cold—wouldn't work no more. But I took and unraveled the other trail by hand." He stepped out onto the gallery and came back with the saddle, which he now threw down among them in a tangle of broken straps.

"There," he said casually, "is the death saddle you was inquiring after."

Billy Wheeler heard Marian's breath rick through her teeth. In the falling light her eyes looked surprisingly dark.

"Good Lord!" said Dunn. "How'd you lay hands on that?"

"Why, I followed the trail of the dead man's horse, until I come to the place he rolled loose from it. How'd you suppose?"

Horse Dunn had dropped to his knees beside the saddle. None of them had realized how deep the room was in twilight until it was brightened by the flare of the match he struck. For a long moment Horse Dunn studied the old worn leather, until the flame burned to his finger tips and went out. He stood up slowly. "You know that saddle?"

"No," said Wheeler. "Do you?"

Behind Horse Dunn's shaggy face the muscles were stiffening slowly, so that although his features remained in some sense a mask, his eyes presently began to gleam with the white heat of the anger which he could not repress. "Yes," he said.

Yet he did not immediately answer their unspoken question. He turned to the window again, and for a little while stood looking out as if he could not yet trust himself to speak. Out behind the barns, Coffee's five other hounds were churning the quiet twilight with mournful howlings, and for a little while they all seemed to be listening to that. Then Marian got up and went quietly from the room, and for once her uncle seemed glad to have her go.

"Here they're setting out to put the hooks to me," Horse Dunn said at last—"hunting a strangle holt on my brand. And it's a shameful thing that this should come onto us because somebody rubbed out maybe the most worthless character that ever rode the Red Hills range."

"You know the name?" said Old Man Coffee.

"What's his name matter?" Horse Dunn exploded. "His name was Lon Magoon—and what of it? A cow thief—in a small, cheap way. He'd go around on different ranges, and he'd steal a beef here, and another there; skin 'em and sell 'em to some butcher a hundred miles away for half price."

"Horse," said Coffee, "who would have killed this man?"

"Anybody!" Horse Dunn roared. "Any cowman with enough guts to rub out a cow thief! I ought to've killed him myself last time I caught him with the carcass of a 94 cow!"

"Did you know he was operating on this range?"

"What's the difference if I did or not? We know it now. Billy, you take that saddle, and kick it under my bunk!"

"You better turn it in to the sheriff, Horse," Coffee said. "You'll be suppressing evidence if you keep it here."

"Damned if I will!" Horse Dunn said. "All they want is to hang this thing on the 94—on me. You think I called you in to help 'em? No, by God!"

Tulare Callahan was a small man, very wiry, with a cheerfully hard face. He had relieved Steve Hurley, who for three days had kept an eye on the state of affairs at the county seat of Inspiration, and he now came roaring into the 94 lay-out in Horse Dunn's heavy old touring car. He was grinning with the delight of an action-hungry man who smells smoke at last.

"I hear Billy Wheeler like to murdered a guy," said he.

"Billy Wheeler slapped Kid Bender with a horse," Dunn said. "You come all the way back here to tell us that?"

"I thought maybe you might want to hear the upshot," Tulare said. "The sheriff's coming out to get Wheeler, either tonight or first thing in the morning. He's going to throw him in the jug."

"MI AND JIMMY"
Latter Explains Why He Didn't Bring Home Ten Cents

Editor of The Courier-Gazette—When I was a child, an old schoolhouse stood near Melvin Heights in the Mansfield district on the road to the Snow Bowl. It has since been torn down.

The teacher, Annabelle Carleton, offered a prize of 10 cents to the pupil in my class who did not miss in spelling for a week. My mother on hearing this, said, "Now I shall expect you to bring home that 10 cents." That night, however, I had to report I did not receive the 10 cents. "Jimmy got it," I explained. "Who is Jimmy?" asked mother. "Oh, he is one who thinks he knows it all." I said "but he is at the head of the class one day and at the foot the next."

"That's strange," said mother. "How many are there in your class?" "Me and Jimmy," I replied.

the place he rolled loose from it. How'd you suppose?"

Horse Dunn had dropped to his knees beside the saddle. None of them had realized how deep the room was in twilight until it was brightened by the flare of the match he struck.

For a long moment Horse Dunn studied the old worn leather, until the flame burned to his finger tips and went out. He stood up slowly. "You know that saddle?"

"No," said Wheeler. "Do you?"

Behind Horse Dunn's shaggy face the muscles were stiffening slowly, so that although his features remained in some sense a mask, his eyes presently began to gleam with the white heat of the anger which he could not repress. "Yes," he said.

Yet he did not immediately answer their unspoken question. He turned to the window again, and for a little while stood looking out as if he could not yet trust himself to speak. Out behind the barns, Coffee's five other hounds were churning the quiet twilight with mournful howlings, and for a little while they all seemed to be listening to that. Then Marian got up and went quietly from the room, and for once her uncle seemed glad to have her go.

The Loiterer

Clara S. Overlock

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:— Jan. 23, a cold, snappy morning. The thermometer on porch says 10 above; outside it's 6 below. Dad's diary of '71 says "Jan. 1, fair and cold; Jan. 2, snowing all day, but went to Belfast with potatoes, hauled 25 1/2 bushels, received 80c a bushel. Jan. 3, cut out the sawmill and filed cutting-off saw. Cut off wood and hauled three loads to the house. As my dad was a farmer and millman, most of his entries were regarding his work. Jan. 8—At J. C. Simmons', Waldoboro got colt sharpener and two rocker hooks fixed, very cold. Jan. 9—Came home from Waldoboro, froze both ears, exceedingly cold."

I also found a copy of The Farmers' Almanack for 1846, published and sold by Jenks & Palmer, Boston. "Fitted to the city of Boston, but will answer for the adjoining States." It seems to me the weather, taken all in all, is not much different now than it was in 1846 or 1871.

How many times something is brought up which calls for the memory of some day perhaps a year or perhaps five years ago. Does it come back; can we remember just that particular day and its happenings? I have kept a diary for nearly every day since 1901 and it is really a history of my life work during that time and has also served well in many other ways. On one occasion it was used as evidence in a court action and saved the paying out of nearly $200.

To change the subject let me quote from the 1846 almanack a few wise sayings and facts: "Do you want to put your hat on a prosperous man's head every morning? If so attend quietly and energetically to your own business." "Charity begins, you know, at home? Don't, however, let real charity end there." Do you know any better way to control other people than by showing them that you can control yourself? The new postal bill which went into operation July 1, 1845 said, letters not over one-half ounce, 300 miles or less, 5 cents; if over 300 miles, 10 cents; drop letters, not mailed, 2 cents.

The population of America in 1846 was 55,000,000. In 1840 there was one slave in New Hampshire and five in Rhode Island; also 17 in Connecticut, but plenty in other States except Ohio and Indiana, which had three each. Michigan and Vermont had none. Court set in Wiscasset the fourth Tuesday of May, and Wednesday following the second Monday in September; in Belfast the eighth Tuesday next after the fourth Tuesday of May.

"There will, and there must be occasionally little every-day debts, as Uncle Jonas used to call them in a neighborhood, but these should not have too long a run. Do you owe for your newspaper? Punctum Instans should be the rule here, which means (so say Latimers) pay in advance; and every time the year comes around, pay again and make no grumbling." N.C.C.3. Washington, Jan. 23.

Necessity is the mother of invention all right but sometimes it isn't necessity that mothers a bright idea. It's just a weary woman's longing to do the things she has to do every day a bit differently. Or her desire to add a decorative touch to the cookies, the pie or cake. The food will disappear, decoration and all, in short order but she has had the fun of "dickying" it up and the family gets new confirmation of its idea that mother is a genius.

We've told you for a long time the easiest way to make cookies if you have to turn out batches of them is to drop the cookie dough on a sheet, then press it flat with a glass instead of endless cutting out of rounds. Marian Stahre discovered her china closet yielded tumbler with star-shaped cut glass bottoms and little pressed glass dishes that stamped out very decorative cookie designs. You save rolling out and cutting and extra flour isn't rolled into the cookies to make them tough. Do you ever add stale cake or cookie crumbs to the batter to make crunchy cookies? Mary Connors of Lynn likes tiny slivers of onion added to piping hot, creamy mashed potatoes and so do I when chives can't be had. She adds a dash of nutmeg; we like extra black pepper when onions or chives are added and the onion must be in tiny wisps, not chunks. Florence Haskell in Georgetown tried the cream of mushroom soup with bits of ham served on toast or crackers or as a sauce for vegetables and liked it. Another of their Jan-

Whip cream and add to the flour mixture. Blend lightly with a fork. Turn out on floured board and knead gently. Pat out 1/2 inch thick. Cut with small biscuit cutter and bake in hot oven, 425 degrees F. for 10 to 12 minutes. Makes 12 medium sized biscuits. Barbecued Chicken: 3 pounds frying chicken, 6 tablespoons fat, 3 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1/2 cup Blue Label Tomato Ketchup, Dash of tabasco sauce, 1 garlic bud, 1 medium sized onion. Split the chicken in half; brown on all sides in melted fat. Mix the Worcestershire sauce, vinegar, sugar, ketchup and tabasco sauce and add. Mash garlic and chop onion, tie in cheesecloth and add to sauce. Cover and cook one hour. Remove garlic and onion and serve. Serves four. Cape Cod Pudding: 1 quart cornflakes, 1 quart milk, 2 eggs, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup Brer Rabbit Molasses, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 teaspoon ginger, 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon, Vanilla. Stir all together and put pieces of butter on top. Place the dish in which it is to be cooked into a pan of water and put both in the oven. Bake for 1/2 to one hour in a moderate oven. uary favorites is "picked fish dinner" or Cape Cod turkey. Do you ever have that? Codfish, freshened and boiled, crispy pork scraps, boiled potatoes, baby beets, carrots and buttered onions or perhaps cream gravy to go with it. Cole slaw or a mixed green salad for extra vitamins and there you are. Does it awaken any fond memories? We ran across a new gadget the other day you might like to hear about. It re-knits snags or runs with the original stitch in silk stockings and costs a quarter. And here's a question. What does one do about the little worms in the soil of house plants that seem to hatch out into small winged creatures? Here's that grease-stained wall-paper question again. It happens sooner or later in the best of families so clip and save and do be careful when you use benzine but it's all we know that does the trick. First clean the paper with the deugh-like substance paint stores sell for the purpose. Then make a paste of fuller's earth and a half-and-half mixture of benzene and carbon tetrachloride. Spread the paste over the spot 1/4 inch thick and allow to remain over night. Remove with a soft brush and repeat if necessary. Friend's Combination Baked Bean Casserole: 1 medium can Friend's Baked Pea Beans, 1 medium can Friend's Red Kidney Beans, Blue Label Tomato Ketchup, 3 large slices bacon. Arrange the beans in alternate layers in casserole, having two layers of each. Spread the ketchup over each layer in small amounts. Cut the bacon slices in half then arrange over the top. LET UP... LIGHT UP A CAMEL

SMOKERS FIND THAT CAMEL'S COSTLIER TOBACCOS ARE SOOTHING TO THE NERVES

101 STORIES UP on the world's tallest building, Sidney Evert swings in the wind with only a frail scaffold between him and—well, it's 1100 feet to the street. His work is to repair windows in the tower of the Empire State Building. Nerve straining, you bet, but as Sid Evert says: "A fellow with jumpy nerves wouldn't last long on my job. So I ease the tension on my nerves whenever I can. I let up—light up a Camel. I find Camels are soothing to the nerves." Smokers in a wide variety of nerve-nagging occupations, nerve-straining sports turn to Camels for the same reason. They find it pays to ease nerve tension often. So they let up—light up a Camel!

TRAPPED ON A BLAZING WRECK, Captain Hans Milton displayed courage and nerve-power that won him head-lines from coast to coast. He says: "On the schooner Pioneer, after 400 miles out of Halifax, we had a little food and water and some Camels. Those Camels were a great comfort through the nerve strain of worry and danger. It's a rule with me, whenever I feel my nerves getting tense, keyed-up, to let up—light up a Camel."

"RUNNING A HOME is a full-time job," says Mrs. Frank E. Smith, housewife and hostess, "and every minute of it can be nerve straining. Cleaning up, planning meals, social affairs would run me pretty ragged (and add years to my looks) if I didn't make sure to protect my nerves. My way of avoiding jumpy nerves is this: The minute I feel tense and 'edgy,' I pause—I let up—light up a Camel. I find Camels really soothing to the nerves."

(above) A GORDON SETTER is pictured here—a handsome, muscular dog to be proud of. It's a thrill to watch his flashing action. And it's a valuable lesson to observe that after strenuous activities, this dog suddenly halts... relaxes! Though his nervous system is high-strung like our own, the dog responds quickly to the instinctive urge to rest. We don't usually look after our nerves that well. Perhaps you have often willed yourself on... hour after hour at a task... ignoring nerve strain. Try breaking that nerve strain occasionally—pause now and then—LET UP—LIGHT UP A CAMEL! Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS... Turkish and Domestic.

Alan Marshal and Luise Rainer in "Dramatic School"

Serving as an inspiration to all young people fired with ambitions to become great actors and actresses "Dramatic School" opens Wednesday for two days. With an impressive cast headed by Luise Rainer and Paulette Goddard, "Dramatic School" takes the world into the little known classrooms of a typical dramatic school in Paris where the daily life and struggles of two score dramatic students are revealed for the first time. Adapted from a popular European play, the story is woven around Louise Mauban, a poor factory worker, and her determination to become a great actress. She labors in the factory at night to pay her daytime class dues, meanwhile living in an imaginary world to conceal her poverty. Romance enters the story when she is suddenly thrust face to face with the sweetheart of her dreams, a handsome and wealthy Marquis portrayed by Alan Marshal—adv.

Educational Club

Learns Facts of Interest About Legislature and Spuds

The Woman's Educational Club began its winter program, Friday with a gratifying attendance, the club members and guests filling the hall to capacity.

National political figures were discussed and the stand of Gov. Aiken of Vermont on State Rights was commended. The importance of freedom of the press was also a subject for discussion by Mabel Holbrook, Etta Sanborn and Emma Bradstreet who spoke on the Town Meeting of the Afr. Ickes and Frank Gannett who debated on this matter.

Mrs. Nellie Ballard, principal of the Ballard Business School spoke on the subject of "Young Men and Women in Business." The young person trained as a stenographer or bookkeeper has an opportunity to learn whatever part of the business interests him. The bookkeeper may become a partner in the business or the owner, and the stenographer may become the private secretary or hold some other responsible position. Even if one intends to own a business and can pay for competent help, it is an advantage to start in a minor capacity and learn it from the bottom up as in this way a better understanding of the condition of the business may be attained, she pointed out.

Among important factors for success in business, she listed accuracy, reliability, honesty and other important qualities such as courtesy, neatness of appearance, patience, cheerfulness, self control, and the proper use of time, reading an article on the last quality. Instead of complaining how un dependable the younger generation is parents should early train their children to take a certain amount of responsibility and in nine cases out of ten she believes that such confidence would be well placed.

Red Cross Meeting

Semi-Annual Report Shows a Great Amount of Activity the Past Year

The Rockland branch American Red Cross met last night, seven members present. Miss McQuade, Red Cross Field Director, was unable to be present on account of illness.

The two Red Cross nurses reported for the past six months as follows: July 1, 1938, to Dec. 31, 1938: 1926 visits made, including 718 welfare visits in homes; 37 were to persons with tuberculosis, for examinations, X-rays, etc. The Hoovik Club which acts as agent for the Maine Public Health Association in the sale of Health Seals, have received to date $333 for seals and bonds, over-running their quota by a few dollars. This is the money used to pay for work among tuberculosis patients in Rockland, after the State deducts 5 percent for running expenses of the department.

Forty-five visits were made to persons with social hygiene records, getting them to clinics, and treating other members of their families; 49 deliveries were attended; 261 pre-natal cases; 544 mothers and newborn visited; 417 morbidity and acutely ill seen; 31 adults supervised; 1265 home visits; 11 mothers' clubs held; 2 crippled children clinics held; summer round-up of 82 pre-school children 26 children have had their tonsils and adenoids removed, and 149 babies have been brought to our well-baby clinics held once each month.

Three dental clinics have been held thus far this fall. It is hoped to reach children in the first four grades before spring. Details of the Toxoid Clinic is reported elsewhere in this paper. Twelve members are enrolled in the class for Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick, and two lessons have been given. Members of the Nursing Activities Committee are urged to attend one or more of these classes, which are held Tuesday and Friday of each week, 2 to 4 in the afternoon, at 447 Main street.

Mrs. Gordon D. Briggs of Hampden was guest speaker yesterday, at an open meeting of Rockland League of Women Voters, at the home of Mrs. Donald H. Fuller. She was accompanied by Mrs. Paul Savage and Mrs. Donald McGary of Bangor. Mrs. Briggs discussed interestingly The Legal System of United States, and Mrs. Fuller reported on the study group findings. Miss Charlotte Buffum and Mrs. Carl Sonntag served, assisted by Mrs. Cleveland Sleeper, Mrs. Claude Bishop, Mrs. Frederick Bird, Mrs. Harold Leach, Mrs. Maurice Lovejoy and Mrs. Joseph Emery.

the qualities for success would sprout wings. Mrs. Ballard explained that it was her aim to have her pupils able to stand on their own feet and that it was important to bring these factors of success to the attention of the young person starting out in business. Other suggestions were forthcoming from the audience.

At 6 o'clock the club members and guests went to the dining hall where they found a beautiful supper awaiting them, the room being decorated in patriotic colors and lighted by white candles. The supper was under the capable management of Mrs. Ellura Hamlin with an able group of assistants.

It being Gentlemen's Guest Night there was a larger attendance at the evening meeting.

Mrs. Cora Haraden who gave a list of the year's speakers and a synopsis of the meetings and picnics of the past year.

Mrs. Zaida Winslow's report showed the results of the membership drives, there being 59 new members since the May report with more to be voted upon at the next meeting.

Mrs. Mary Perry Rich and Mrs. Zaida Winslow have been present at all the interim meetings. The Critics' reports given by Mrs. Nettie Stewart, Mrs. Ellen Dyer, Mrs. Diana Pitts, and Mrs. Nellie Ballard showed the following words to be mispronounced—advisable, drama, words ending in ing, elite, eligible, history, adult, often, telepathy, dictator, Courier-Gazette, exquisite, abdomen, industries, address, magazine, finance and condolence. Most of the trouble seemed to be in placing the accent, although some were deceived by the spelling of the word into giving it the wrong pronunciation.

Mrs. Rich recited a fitting poem while the club members bowed heads during the In Memoriam exercises.

Harvey Pease of Wiscasset, Clerk of the House of Representatives of the State Legislature, gave a detailed account of the activities of the State lawmakers. Contrary to wisecracks seen in certain newspapers, legislators do not, as a rule, spend their time indulging in play, he pointed out, for the big majority of the winter spent at Augusta is the hardest of their lives. As is usually the case where a large group of people are thrown together with occupations of widely different nature some time is needed in becoming adjusted to each other and getting into the routine.

He also expressed the opinion that contrary to general belief, lobbyists do much good. As agents of certain interests they have expert knowledge of their specific affairs and can often detect defects in bills in time to prevent them from becoming laws.

All matters that come before the Legislature that are likely to become laws are to be referred to committees, as the Legislature acts only on those questions presented by its members. After a bill has passed a two-thirds vote of one branch it is referred to the other to see if they agree. Citizens desiring to get a bill before the Legislature must get their question before a committee as non-members are not allowed to address the Legislature. The privilege should be exercised more frequently by citizens who find much to criticize concerning the laws as the committee will at least give them a hearing, both sides of a case being considered.

This Legislature is going to have a difficult time raising money enough for old age pensions without increasing taxes. If they try to cut down on some of the functions of the State Government, there are sure to be powerful interests rise up in defence of every department, he pointed out.

William A. Wheeler of Portland gave an illustrated talk on the subject of "Spuds to You." While showing attractive motion pictures in color of the potato industry in Maine, he explained the importance of this industry to the State by remarking that the average crop of Aroostook is sufficient to supply every family in the United States, Alaska, and Hawaii, with a bushel each. A train a mile in extent carrying the potatoes to market where they are deposited in commission merchant's warehouses along the tracks in the cities, was shown. The railroads are dependent to a great extent in this State on the success of the potato industry, he explained as it has been found to be the most successful method of getting the spuds to market.

Pay Tribute To Departed Leader In Frances Willard Meeting

The W.C.T.U. was entertained Friday afternoon at the home of the Misses Young, with 29 members present. Devotions were led by Miss Mabel Seavey, theme "The Open Door." Vocal solo Mrs. Lillian Joyce, "Pass It On."

The report of the membership committee was read and accepted. The plan divides the members into groups of three, each group to be a committee to solicit and obtain new members (the Rockland Union's quota is 25). The group first reporting five new members will receive special recognition. Attractive new pledge cards, bearing a picture of Frances Willard, are ready, and all new members will be known as Frances Willard members.

A very interesting program on the Frances Willard Centennial was presented by Mrs. Clara Emery. Introducing the program she said the object was to show how the many phases of Frances Willard's activities as a pioneer in the field of human relations had developed into many groups, still carrying on for the ideals she espoused for betterment of the home and individuals. In the membership of the W.C.T.U. are found those who are members or affiliated with all the other human welfare groups who this year through their national leaders are extending greetings on the centennial of Frances Willard.

Greetings from the National Temperance and Prohibition Council, represented by Mrs. Edith Tweedie, were read by Mrs. Minnie Cross in the absence of Mrs. Tweedie. From the National Council of Women, of which Miss Willard was a co-founder, and in which all W.C.T.U. members are represented by their national president, extended by Mrs. Hope Brewster.

From the National Education Association, represented by Miss Belle Spring, who has recently returned from her position as teacher of English in the schools of Fall River, Mass., which she occupied for 18 years, besides reading the tribute by Joyce Elmer Morgan, Miss Spring gave interesting instances from the life of Frances Willard as a young woman and teacher.

The American Association of University Women, of which Frances Willard was dean, was represented by Miss Margaret McKnight, an Alumnus of Boston University, who read the greetings from the National President, Margaret S. Morris, and paid tribute to the influence of Frances Willard in her own life.

Greetings from the National Council of Church Women were read by Mrs. Velma Olds, representing that great body of Christian women from whom are recruited the leaders and members for carrying on the W. C. T. U. and allied welfare work.

A tribute by John Nevin Sayre, president of the National Peace Conference, was read by Miss Alena Young, director in W.C.T.U. Department of Peace. Greetings from Sarah Corbin Robert, president general of the D.A.R., of which Frances Willard was a charter member and founder of the Chicago Chapter, were read by Mrs. Etta Stoddard of the Lady Knox Chapter, D.A.R. Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

Thinking back about 30 years reminds me of the day when Ambrose Mills took me to Islesboro to show me the several fine cottages which had been built for the summer people. We went to put the shutters on doors and windows for the winter. Arthur Shea and helper went along to shut off the water.

We took the boat from Rockland and ran into thick fog. On the return trip we chartered a power boat to get us across to Camden, and just made the last car home. Thus ended a delightful sight-seeing day.

The Road to the DIVORCE COURT Is Paved With

CARROTS and

PEAS

Remember that old song: "Monday hasenpfeffer! Tuesday string beans! Wednesday s-oo-OUP! Thursday roast beef! Friday fi-ISH!"
Surest way to lose a husband is to let him know what to expect for dinner every night in the week!

"She sued a rare juicy steak for alienation of affections." You've never seen that in the papers—but don't smile, lady,—it might happen to you some day. Just go on serving carrots and peas every Thursday, come rain, snow or maid's-night-out; just persist in your potato-patty pattern every Monday and the halibut habit on Fridays—keep at it long enough—and you'll lose your man!

You may be awfully proud of the way you fix tapioca pudding—but tapioca can taste pretty flat, served too often. Even the best of foods quickly lose their savor to a hungry husband when they come at him regular as clockwork on a weekly merry-go-round. And there lies danger! For "ration routine" has ruined more marriages than the fabled mother-in-law; it has broken up more homes than the bluest-eyed chorus girl who ever crossed Times Square!

"Ration routine" is doubly dangerous because it's so insidious; your husband himself may not consciously realize what's wrong. But while he picks at his food he is probably muttering, deep in his heart, "Vicious vittles!" and dreaming of a cottage in a magical land where he can get something wonderful and different and new for dinner every night.

You pride yourself on being a wise and thrifty shopper! Do you know that it's thrifty, economical shoppers like you who are most likely to be at fault? They buy cautiously, they save money, they shun extravagance and sooner or later they fall into a food rut. Then beef stew goes on the table every Wednesday or maybe every other Wednesday, fried perch becomes a regular Friday nightmare, and that's when the trouble really begins.

Men like variety! They like to be surprised. They want food that is tempting and different even more than they want low grocery bills. To your husband dinner time is, or should be, the high point of the day. It's the pivot about which his whole home life turns, and in the interests of his love and affection you just cannot afford to trifle with his appetite—you can't afford to risk "ration routine."

Especially when the cure is so simple. Maybe you've forgotten that there are anywhere from 65 to 90 different kinds of vegetables and fruits, canned and fresh, in a well-stocked food store; dozens of different kinds of meats, fish, sea foods; spices galore; prepared foods by the score—every one lending itself to several delicious recipes! Maybe you've forgotten, too, that there is a cook book somewhere in your house, brimming over with ideas that are really fun to try out. Maybe you've forgotten that one of the reasons your husband married you was because he thought you'd serve him a swell dinner every night. Have you forgotten? He hasn't!

If you doubt it, try this little experiment! Let your husband do the shopping next Saturday afternoon when he has the time. Don't tell him what to buy; let the choice be his. It's ten to one he'll come home with things you would never dream of buying yourself—delicious palate-teasing items—foods that will make dinner time a real event—and they won't be hard to prepare either!

Are you guilty of "ration routine?" If you are, you probably don't know it and you'd better watch your step before it's too late. Forget carrots and peas! Forget those insipid, inevitable, tiresome dishes that have become a habit with you and may well become a curse! Forget—for just a little while—the staples, the "standards" and the "here-we-are-agains," and step out and go to town! There are "surprises" a-plenty waiting for you in your favorite food store, listed for you today in The Courier-Gazette food ads—glorious, marvelous, delicious things to eat! Invest in them for your husband's sake. Resolve now to feed him handsomely and well.

Cut loose, lady, and treat yourself to some luxury buying at the grocery! Do it today—and knock his eye out with something super-delicious tonight!
