Ohio Beef Cattle Production Testing DIRECTORY

The Ohio Beef Cattle Production Testing Program was started in 1959 and grew quite rapidly until 240 cooperators were enrolled in 1961. At this time, the Production Testing Advisory Committee suggested that all future records be computed via electronic data processing (EDP) and that a charge be made for this service. The number of cooperators was reduced after this action but has had continuing growth until 329 cooperators participate in the program today, located in 3 different states. The Ohio program processes all beef records for Connecticut and Pennsylvania. Of this total, 244 are Ohio operators.

There are 287 purebred breeders and 42 commercial breeders; however, some of them have both purebred and commercial cattle in their herds. Some breeders of the newer breeds (exotics) have not achieved animals of purebred status.

In 1972, enrollment data revealed 78 Angus breeders, Belted Galloway, 62 Charolais, 41 Horned Hereford, Limousine, 1 Maine-Anjou, 1 Murrey Grey, 90 Polled

Hereford, 2 Red Poll, 18 Shorthorn, 9 Simmental and 26 Commercial breeders.

Since beef cattle breeders over the country have requested a more standardized method of expression of measures of economical performance traits and a greater uniformity of measurement procedure, the Ohio Beef Cattle Production Testing Program was slightly redesigned to conform to the recommendations of the United States Beef Improvement Federation. These changes were put into effect as of 1967. Additional phases were added at this time, including an individual lifetime accumulated production record (produce of dam) brought up-to-date each year and a ranking of each cow in the herd via Most Probable Producing ability. (MPPA)

It is the purpose of this directory to list the cooperators of the Ohio Beef Cattle Production Testing Program alphabetically by breed. Its suggested use is for reference of participating breeders, where they are located and how they may be contacted.

| Y = | Belted Galloway | 60 | 55 |

*Birth weights suffixed with an A (actual) indicates that the breeder actually weighed the calf at birth. The above average birth weights for sex and breed of calf are used to compute gains when no actual birth weight is available.

SEX CODE

B = Bull

S = Steer

H = Heifer

CREEP CODE

The letter "C" indicates that the calf was exposed to supplemental feed other than grass and mother's milk for at least 6 weeks prior to weighing and grading date.

TYPE SCORE DESIGNATION

| Grade | Numerical Value | |
|------------|-----------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| + | 17 | Cattle eligible to receive these scores have no more than minor faults in any of the major items of conformation. Cattle in this category are basically correct in their skeletal and muscular structure, are outstanding in muscular development, and have optimum outside fat considering the manner in which they have been developed. Beef character in abundance describes cattle in this series. The top end of this series describes beef cattle of basically ideal conformation. Bulls in this series are strictly herd bull prospects from a conformation standpoint and females eligible for these scores possess the conformation desired for outstanding herd replacements. |
| PRIME 0 | 16 | |
| - | 15 | |
| + | 14 | Cattle eligible to receive these scores have no more than moderate faults in their muscular and skeletal structure. Their muscular development is usually less than outstanding but is average to superior. Skeletal structure is basically sound. Cattle in this category should include a relatively high percentage of the animals in the better purebred herds. The top end of this series represents the lowest end of herd bull prospects and the top end of commercial bulls from a conformation standpoint. The top end of this series describes superior female replacements for purebred herds, the middle of this series describes good female replacements, while the bottom end describes the females that are not more than satisfactory as replacements in the purebred herds. The score of 14 describes superior commercial bulls; 13 describes good commercial bulls and 12 describes satisfactory good commercial bulls from a conformation standpoint. The top end of this series represents the practical top of commercial series. The lower end of this series includes a reasonably high percentage of the better commercial replacements. |
| CHOICE 0 | 13 | |
| - | 12 | |
| + | 11 | Cattle in this category may have moderate to severe faults in some items of skeletal and muscular structure. Muscular development is usually average to inferior. Females in this category should be sound enough in their skeletal structure to perform their function. A high percentage of the female replacements from average commercial herds would be in the middle and top series of this series. The lowest in this series describes poor female replacements for commercial herds. |
| GOOD 0 | 10 | |
| - | 9 | |
| + | 8 | Cattle in this category are usually decidedly lacking in beef character, may have serious structural defects and may be definitely lacking in muscling. Represented here are the extreme bottom end of beef cattle. Stockyard candidates. |
| STANDARD 0 | 7 | |
| - | 6 | |
| + | 5 | Extremely thin-fleshed cattle. Represented here are the thinnest fleshed of dairy cattle. Stockyard candidates. |
