

Our percentage of first-year promotions in English without this system, in the fall of 1922, was fifty-nine; with this system, in the fall of 1923, it was eighty-eight. In the spring terms for the two years the figures were sixty-two per cent and ninety-four per cent. This very decided increase was perhaps partly due to the fact that our C sections consisted of only twenty students, or under, and that we were thus enabled to get at the individual weaknesses of each pupil. This term our classes are larger, and I, at least, am not getting as satisfactory results.

Students of this type will never see college, and will probably leave us at about the close of the second year, unless we can keep them on for commercial courses, or some other form of vocational training. Yet I earnestly believe that they are entitled to such practical training and development in English as will enable them to use their mother tongue correctly, communicate their thoughts clearly and with some degree of force, and to have a sufficient background of good reading to enable them to use a public library as a beneficial means of recreation.

Our experiment in Lynchburg has thus far been worked out only in our first-year classes, but as it is applied through the succeeding years, we believe that it will solve many problems that now vex us. We even believe that our most gifted pupils in English will be constrained to write their appreciation in correct sentences, made up of correctly spelled words. Most of the essentials in written English for the last two years are grouped around sentence structure and the applied principles of practical grammar, with spelling thrown in. If we use them as we should, they will eliminate many of the weak spots and failures in college freshman English, for our pupils must maintain an average of above ninety on these essentials, and so we may even have to fail a senior who has the appreciation of a Keats and the imagination of a Poe.

Never again can one "get by," as did one of our most gifted graduates of 1923, saying, when a misnamed noun clause in his University of Virginia entrance examination was pointed out to him, "Such details never did interest me."

EVELINA O. WIGGINS

ENGLISH NOTES

THE ENGLISH TEACHERS' SECTION OF THE VIRGINIA STATE TEACHERS ASSOCIATION

WEDNESDAY, November 26, at 9:00 a. m., the English Teachers' section of the Virginia Teachers' Annual Conference met in the auditorium of Ruffner School, Richmond, President H. A. Miller, Jr., presiding.

If the greater the difficulties in gaining any desired end the greater the value of that end when attained, then what the English teachers assembled there gained from the meeting at that morning session was the most valuable thing anyone got out of the conference. In the first place the various grade schools in the building were in session and were preparing in the auditorium a substantial Thanksgiving donation for one of hospitals of the city. Various boys were receiving and packing the donations and preparing the stage for a program which was to follow. Then came recess. Meanwhile, the English teachers camped in one corner of the room and waited for a quiet moment.

Really the children made remarkably little noise under the circumstances and were very polite to us, the intruders.

In spite of the interruptions, the meetings of the day were very interesting and profitable and we believe the teachers attending carried away many valuable suggestions, which may well mean much to the betterment of English work in our schools.

The program of the 9:00 o'clock session was as follows:

1. President's report.
2. Discussion of plans for the future.
3. The New English Course, Professor J. M. Grainger, State Teachers College, Farmville, Va.
4. A Survey of English in the Schools of Brunswick County, Miss Gertrude K. Bowler, Lawrenceville High School.
5. Minutes of the last meeting.
6. Treasurer's report.
7. Election of officers.

The president's report showed his active interest in the English Department and offered constructive suggestions for the future. It was decided that the English section should, in a manner to be decided by a committee on publication, publish items of interest to the English teachers of the state. The Committee on Publication, appointed by the president, was Mr. C. T. Logan, Head of the Department of English, State Teachers College, Harrisonburg, Va., Miss Evelina O. Wiggins, Head of Department of English, E. C. Glass High School, Lynchburg, Va., Miss Anna S. Johnston, Head of the Department of English, Woodrow Wilson High School, Portsmouth, Va.

Mr. Grainger's explanation of "The New English Course" was both helpful and interesting. Miss Bowler's survey of English in schools of Brunswick County showed that her district was alive to the needs of the schools and that careful and constructive work was being done. The following officers were elected for 1925:

President: H. Augustus Miller, Jr.
 Vice-President: H. A. Handy.
 Secretary-Treasurer: Anna S. Johnston.

The second session at 2:00-4:00 p. m. convened under a calmer atmosphere than did the morning session and several fine discussions were heard with interest.

Miss Eva Branch, of John Marshall High School, gave a forceful plea for "A Brief Course in Public Speaking for High School Pupils." Among other good points the speaker enumerated were the following:

1. English teachers should be required to take a course in public speaking.
2. Oral reading should be emphasized in high schools.
3. Pupils should be taught the use of the vocal organs, so that they may read and speak clearly.
4. They should be taught to listen well.
5. Stutterers can be greatly benefited by a course in public speaking.
6. The best result obtained by the course at John Marshall has been the pupils' appreciation of its value.

Miss Evelina O. Wiggins's splendid discussion of "Minimum Essentials in Written English" will probably appear in the January issue of THE VIRGINIA TEACHER, so I shall not anticipate here, but let English teachers feast on the original meat when it is offered them.

Altogether the meetings of the English section were interesting and the discussions gave practical suggestions, not fine spun theories, which we expect to bear good fruit in the field, especially of English Composition, both oral and written.

ANNA S. JOHNSTON,
 Secretary-Treasurer.

ENGLISH TEACHERS' ROLL CALL

For years one of the needs of the English Section of the State Teachers Association has been a reasonably accurate list of the names of those Virginia teachers who are professionally interested in the teaching of English. Never has it been possible to undertake such a compilation until this year, when, with the assistance of the State Supervisor of Secondary Schools, there have been accumulated the names here printed. This list, however, is not to be regarded as official, for there are various corrections and revisions which will probably need to be made.

Interested English teachers are requested to inform the secretary of the English Section, Miss Anna S. Johnston, Woodrow Wilson High School, Portsmouth, Va., of errors appearing here, in order that she may revise and correct the list during the present session.

Thus we shall be able to verify names and begin another year with a fairly accurate roster of Virginia's teachers of English.

WORK OF VIRGINIA AUTHORS SUMMARIZED BY NEWSPAPER

VIRGINIA has been especially fortunate this year in the quantity and quality of the books published. James Branch Cabell's "Straws and Prayer Books" was one of the outstanding books of the year. Mrs. Emma Speed Sampson has also had published another book, "Masquerading Mary." A Virginia book which has attracted considerable attention is "The Slave Ship," by Mary Johnston, which has been mentioned in reviews as a remarkable portrayal in fiction of the slave trade in Colonial times.

Mrs. Ruby Vaughan Bigger published this past year her first book, a charming little sketch of Lady Astor's old mammy, called "My Miss Nancy." Other books by Richmond writers which were brought out in 1924 are "Government in Virginia," by Rosewell Page; "The Inn at the End of the Lane," by Addison Lewis; "The Deeper Voice," by Annie Steger Winston; "The Imperialism of John Marshall," by George Bryan; a book of poems by Mrs. Nellie Parker Benson; "Jefferson Davis, President of the South," by Dr. H. J. Eckenrode, and "Scouts of '76," by Charles E. Willis, published by Dietz & Co.

Although Miss Margaret Prescott Montague has had no book published this year, Dutton & Co. has published a booklet of hers, "The Man From God's Country." Miss Montague has also had the honor of having two of her short stories included in Edward J. O'Brien's "Best Short Stories of 1923." These are "The Today—Tomorrow" and "Up Eel River." Both of these were given three stars, the highest mention which Mr. O'Brien gives. Miss Montague has also had several articles, poems, etc., in current magazines.

Other books by Virginia writers which have been published during this past year are: "Virginia Fugitive Poets," by Armistead Gordon, Jr.; "Cotton," by Edna Turpin; "One Way Street," by Beale Davis; "The Painted Words," by Nevil Henshaw; "Peacock Feathers," by Temple Bailey, and "Tidewater Virginia," by Miss Jett, published by Whittet & Shepperson.

Another Richmond writer, now living in New York, who has had a book published this year is Dr. Russell Bowie. His book is called "Open Ways to God." This year also there has been a new edition of that beautiful volume published last year by the James River Garden Club, "Historic Gardens of Virginia."

Books of especial interest to Virginians, because they are about Virginia, are Joseph Hergesheimer's "Balisand," and Lucy Fitch Perkins's "The Virginia Twins," in her series of stories about the twins of all countries.

Richmond writers are exceedingly quiet about what they expect to have published in 1925, and, according to most of them, 1925 will be a very slim year as far as Virginia books are concerned. However, Mrs. Sampson admits that she will have a new Minerva book out some time this spring, although she does not know the title of it.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

A NEW-OLD MAGAZINE

A newsstand magazine with the following contributors listed on the cover should indeed give pause to teachers of English: Heine, Dumas, Kipling, Gaboriau, Stevenson, Bret Harte, Richard Harding Davis, de Maupassant, Tolstoi, O. Henry, de Alarcon, Mark Twain, Owen Wister, H. C. Bunner, Anatole France, and von Heidenstam.

How comes such a list of "aristocrats of letters, an aristocracy not of birth, but of performance," on a magazine cover dated January, 1925?

The Golden Book (its name derived from the Libro D'Oro, official list of Venetian nobility) is a new venture, published by the Review of Reviews Corporation, and edited by Henry Wysham Lanier, assisted by William Lyon Phelps, Stuart P. Sherman, John Cotton Dana, and Charles Mills Gayley. It will be issued monthly, at 25 cents a number, $3 a year.

What will be the fortune of this new undertaking, bidding for popularity on newsstands that display dozens of magazines from whose covers empty-pated girls smile inanely, on whose contents pages unknown authors' names are listed?

Such an experiment will be followed with interest by discerning readers, eager to see success crown this bold invasion of an enemy's camp.

LIBRARY CLASSES IN LYNCHBURG

At the beginning of the term, pupils who have just entered the E. C. Glass High School, Lynchburg, are conducted to the library under the supervision of an English teacher. Here they are instructed by the librarian in regard to the purpose, arrangement, and rules of the library. After the librarian has stated the purpose of the library, she explains to the pupils the cataloguing system, the Dewey Decimal System which is found in all large libraries with the exception of the Congressional Library at Washington, D. C.

Next she explains under the rules of the library such things as registering upon entering, then how to charge at the desk any book which a pupil may wish to take out for any period, during the school day, over night, or for a week. After the librarian charges a book, she places a brown, a pink, or a blue card in the book, thus signifying the length of time it is to be kept out. If the book is not returned on time, the pupil has to pay a fine of two cents a day.

Finally, the librarian discusses that which may be termed in a broad sense discipline. This is explained to consist of silence, order, and proper care of the room and books. Placards bearing suitable mottoes are posted as reminders. One of the librarian's most helpful talks is that given on the proper handling and treatment of books. If such a class is conducted in the library itself, many important problems are solved for the new pupils, who cannot acquire this information so readily in any other place.

—RUTH H. BLUNT.

TIDEWATER ENGLISH TEACHERS MEET

The Tidewater Association of Teachers of English, composed of Norfolk and Portsmouth teachers, met at the Norfolk Y. W. C. A. the afternoon of December 12, and heard reports from the Richmond meeting. Methods whereby the local association may offer real service to the state association were discussed, and plans were formulated with regard to the spring meeting of the Tidewater Association.

EXCELLENT HOME READING LIST

The Illinois Association of Teachers of English through its Bulletin (published at Urbana, Illinois) is planning to push vigorously a campaign for more and better books in Illinois high schools.

"Too frequently," it is announced, "schools have spent freely for other kinds of equipment and have shamefully neglected the building up of the library. Sometimes they have depended on the town libraries for home reading materials; and while in a few instances such an arrangement has been satisfactory, far oftener has it resulted in the pupils' living on the level of the work of Bertha M. Clay or in their regarding Zane Grey as our greatest American writer."

Opposition is expressed to the common notion that a book room may be built up by contributions; "it must not be nourished by chance gifts from those who find in it a haven for their literary junk, nor must it be allowed to suggest a museum of antiquities."

A Home Reading List, compiled by Miss Essie Chamberlain, of the English department, and Miss Bertha Carter, Librarian, of the Oak Park and River Forest Township High School, has just been published by the Illinois Association in a revised and amplified edition. It is a first-rate buying list containing names of publishers and price of books. This sixteen-page pamphlet may be purchased at five cents a copy or $4.50 a hundred. Correspondence should be addressed to Professor H. G. Paul, 322 Lincoln Hall, Urbana, Illinois.

The same list, in annotated form, is issued in a forty-page pamphlet and is sold at ten cents a copy.

PRIZE BOOKS FOR CHILDREN

The John Newberry Medal, named in honor of an eighteenth century London bookseller—the first to publish books especially designed for children, is awarded annually by the Children's Librarians' Section of the American Library Association.

In 1921 the first award went to Hendrik Willem Van Loon for The Story of Mankind (Boni & Liveright, $2.50). In 1922 the medal was given to Hugh Lofting for his The Voyage of Doctor Dolittle (Frederick A. Stokes, $2.50). For the best children's book published in 1923 the medal was awarded posthumously to Charles Boardman Hawes, author of The Dark Frigate. (The Atlantic Monthly Press, $2.00).

The Story of Mankind and The Dark Frigate are best read in junior high school years, but The Voyage of Doctor Dolittle is relished at an earlier age, perhaps in the intermediate grades.

HELPS FOR CHILD READING

Library Work With Children in a new and completely revised edition, by Clara Whitehill Hunt of the Brooklyn Public Library, has just been issued by the American Library Association, Chicago. It is a 30-page pamphlet discussing ways and means of directing children's reading and taking up also some physical problems encountered in every children's room. It is issued as Manual of Library Economy No. 29. (25 cents.)

Two new lists of children's books have also appeared recently from A. L. A. headquarters. Children's Books for General Reading is a basic list of 275 books for a children's library. The list was selected for the Children's Librarians' Section of the A. L. A. by Miss Effie L. Power of the Cleveland Public Library. (Single copy 20 cents—special prices in quantity.) Gifts for Children's Book-Shelves is an annotated list of 200 books selected for the purpose of helping parents choose suitable books for children. Sample copy will be mailed to anyone sending 5 cents in stamps. Prices in quantity on request.

"The innocence and completeness with which the child's spirit is rendered up to the book, its utter absorption and forgetfulness always moves me deeply. A child does not read to criticise and compare, but just in the unsullied joy of finding itself in a new world. And behind every such child is the heart and brain of some teacher, parent or librarian that makes the book possible."
