MCKINLEY SHOT.

Buffalo, Sept. 6. President McKinley was shot here late this afternoon and is in a dying condition. The tragedy occurred at the Central Music Hall on the Pan American grounds. A man stepped up to him and shook hands with him, at the same time drawing a revolver with his left hand and shooting the president in the stomach twice. The president was taken to the exposition hospital and is in a dying condition.

The assassin was a young Polish anarchist.

FIRST CAR TO GRAND RAPIDS.

The work of connecting the rails on the electric road from here to Grand Rapids was completed last Saturday and a car was run over the line that afternoon. The trolley wire was not up for a distance between Zeeland and Jenison so that a steam locomotive was used for that distance. By running a car over the line the company saved a $1,000 forfeiture to Zeeland township. The rails are laid for only a single track but work on the double track will be pushed as rapidly as possible. The power house at Jenison will be finished next week and one track will be ready for service in about three weeks, while it will take a week or two more to complete the second track. A station for interurban cars will probably be located in Grand Rapids where passengers for the Holland or Grand Haven roads can wait for cars.

PLANT FOR TOOL WORKS.

On Tuesday G. Wanrooy, the mason, began work on the foundation for the building of the Western Machine and Tool Works which will be located on the bay near the Wolverine Boat Works. The building will be rushed as fast as possible.

SUBWAY TOO HIGH.

The abutments for the subway of the electric railway on Seventh street are found to be over a foot higher than was granted the company by the council. The attention of the aldermen was called to this by Street Commissioner Nauta and the council will see that the company complies with the requirements. The street commissioner has also complained about the condition of the crosswalks between its tracks and Supt. M. J. Kinch has stated that this will be attended to at once.

RACS AND KEROSENE

Used in an attempt to fire Two Allegan Buildings.

Allegan, Sept. 2.—Incendiaries Saturday night attempted to fire the furniture factory buildings of Baker & Co. and the large lumber yard of Sherwood & Griswold. In both cases the fires were discovered and put out before a great deal of damage was done. Rags saturated with kerosene were found placed under the buildings so that they would be sure to burn rapidly. Henry Ross was arrested on suspicion.

A FINE BEET FARM.

On Monday, Manager C. McLean, Directors H. Kramers and D. Yntema, Farm Manager B. Riksen of the Holland Sugar Co., and a representative of the Times, visited the beet farm at McDonald, 40 miles south from here, under cultivation by the company. The farm comprises 390 acres and there are seven separate fields of beets. The crop is in excellent shape, a fine stand, free from weeds and the plants are thrifty. The rows are 29 inches apart and plants about eight inches apart. Of 24 beets pulled, large and small, the average weight was over a pound with three or four weeks to grow yet. Alderman Riksen has had charge of the fields and has made a great success of it. During thinning about 60 hands were employed and in weeding about 80. The soil is black, mostly muck, but heavy, and has clay below it in most places. The company will no doubt harvest a good crop of beets there and Mr. Riksen deserves credit for it.

PROFIT IN STANDARD BREED

A Well Known Breeder Gives Figures to Prove That the Best Pay.

I have been breeding standard bred poultry for about ten years. Previous to this I thought anything that wore feathers and resembled a hen would answer the purpose, but experience has taught me better.

I have been breeding Buff Plymouth Rocks almost from their introduction and have found them very profitable both for fancy and market purposes. I want to tell your readers the results I obtained from an investment of $12 in Buff Rock eggs a year ago this spring, as I have kept a strict account of the chicks raised and the profit derived from them separate from the rest of my flock. I sent a noted western breeder $12 for 45 Buff Rock eggs, and he was to send me eggs from his best birds. These 45 eggs were set the 20th of April, 1900, under some game hens which I borrowed from a neighbor. These hens were the worst things to break eggs I ever had any experience with, for when hatching day came (May 11) there only remained 35 eggs in the nests. From the 35 eggs 30 strong, healthy chicks were hatched. Not satisfied with breaking eggs, these pesky game hens trampled two chicks to death in the nest, which left me with only 28 chicks, and I raised the whole 28 to maturity. Now, to show the profit I have made on these 28 chicks to date (April 20, 1901), I quote from my poultry account book.

After culling out and selling surplus birds I had left nine females and two cockerels, which were kept for breeding purposes. Following is the account as it appears in my account book:

Sold five cockerels at $1, $2.50, 75 cents, $5 and $3 respectively; one pair, $5; 100 incubator eggs, $5; eggs for hatching to date (April 20), $11; sold eggs to stores during winter, $5.15; used in the house four dozen, $1; total, $39.30.

My expenses were: Eggs for hatching, $12; express, 60 cents; feed and other expenses, $11.30; total, $23.90; profit, $15.44, or an average of a trifle over $1.44 per head, including male and females, with the original nine females and two males yet on hand, which, figuring from the average price by which the other stock was sold ($2.15), would be worth about $23.65, or a total profit of $39.09.

There is a prevailing idea among a very large class that a hen is a hen and one is just as good as another, so I quote the above for the benefit of this class. Poultrymen who have and are making the business a success will tell you that standard bred poultry is the most profitable in every way, and this decision comes from knowledge and experience in their business.—Henry Trafford in Poultry Keeper.

Incubators.

Being interested in pure bred poultry and desiring to have part of our chicks hatched early in the season, we found it necessary to purchase an incubator. We had never had any experience with an incubator; but, after having operated one through eight or nine hatches, we have learned a few things that some incubator catalogues don't tell. "Our machine is not affected by outside temperature," is a statement that may be found in more than one catalogue, and if the temperature of the room in which the machine is operated always remained the same the statement would be true enough, but we know from experience that it is more or less affected by the temperature of the room. A machine in a cool room will keep quite an even temperature, but if the room warms up to 80 or 90 degrees the regulator will be of little use, as the live eggs, after the first ten days, will radiate a great deal of heat, and that with the heat of the lamp and the extra heat of the room will overheat the eggs. Sometimes we have to extinguish the light and on real warm days open the machine to keep the temperature even. We have learned that it is not necessary to add moisture to help the hatch, as there is enough moisture in the egg to hatch it if the machine is operated right, but a great deal depends on the ventilation. Too much ventilation will toughen the membrane and harden the shell, so much so that the chick cannot get out.—W. H. O. in Central Farmer.

SPREAD OF IRRIGATION.

Artificial Water Supply Not a Thing For the West Alone.

The great drought of this summer has been in the nature of an eye opener to many who have hitherto passed unthinkingly over the subject of irrigation. Nature herself appears to be pushing irrigation by effectual, if indirect, action. Professor Elwood Mead, the government expert and one of the high authorities of the country in this matter, recently gave some evidence before the industrial commission at Washington which is certainly interesting in view of the weather condition referred to.

Two-fifths of the area of the United States would be benefited by irrigation, in Professor Mead's opinion.

Irrigation is coming to be considered the common adjunct to market gardening along parts of the Atlantic coast. It is not asserted that it is necessary to the farms of these regions in order to grow fair crops of truck, but that it will enable the land to do its very best.

Irrigation in Texas and Louisiana has advanced by astounding bounds and is the cause of increased land values. In other quarters of the humid region the value of systematic artificial irrigation that may double crops and make them a sure thing is pressing itself upon progressive men.

To Professor Mead and other scientists it is attributed the opinion that if the region of the Missouri, Platte and Arkansas valleys, particularly western Kansas, Nebraska and Indian Territory, could be adequately irrigated its agricultural production would be something astounding. Instead of provokingly varying in quantity from year to year, from the so called banner season downward through all the gradations to almost nothing in the extremely bad ones, which not un seldom occur, by irrigation agricultural production would not only be enormously increased, but maintained at an unvarying high standard of quantity and quality. It is seldom the farmers of those regions, say the scientists, have too much rain, but they nearly always have too little. Even in their best crop years their returns would be greatly enhanced by increased water applied with more equality.

Professor Mead says, as quoted by an exchange: "The system in this country is in its infancy, and naturally more or less crude and uncertain. Within few years no American farmer with land capable of irrigation and water available will dream of putting in a crop of wheat and corn without the facilities to artificially water it when needed."

"But one of the best features of irrigation is the increased value it gives to agricultural lands. Under the benign influence of a reliable water supply, areas which previously were worthless wastes have suddenly come to represent fortunes. Even farms in the older states, already very valuable under ordinary conditions, will be immediately and largely enhanced in market value by artificial irrigation."

A GATE WORTH TRYING.

A Correspondent Warrants It to Close Itself and Stay Closed.

I send you the following sketch of a gate that will absolutely close itself and stay closed. Take any ordinary gate and attach hinges as shown (to be made from old wagon or buggy tire), just so the same will work easily on the post. Then attach trace chain at brace A and also to post at B on reverse side from gate. By opening the gate the chain is wound around the post, raising the gate about eight inches. It will close by its own weight. The hinges are cheaply and easily made and attached, using only two small bolts on each. If people will adopt this hinge and method of swinging a gate, they will have no further trouble by having gates left open. I have used three now for four years and have had no trouble. Before it was nearly impossible for me to keep them closed. The gate is suspended by the chain, and the brace at A is for the purpose of letting the weight come on all four slats and should be about 18 inches from the rear of the gate.—Cor. Farm and Ranch.

LATEST THING IN BEES.

Beekeepers Are After the Red Clover Honey—The Long Tongued Bee.

The latest fad in bees is a strain with long tongues that can extract the nectar from the deep tubes of the red clover blossoms. Beekeepers have for a long time coveted the honey in the red clover blossoms, and the Italian bees when introduced into this country were supposed to be able to reach it, and the job was placed in their hands. But after a lapse of time it was discovered that but a small per cent of them did any work on red clover blossoms.

Of late the fact has been developed that some bees have longer tongues than others. Various ingenious contrivances have been made to get the exact measurements of the bees' tongues, and it has been found that they vary in length all the way from fifteen one-hundredths to twenty-three one-hundredths of an inch, the last named being very rare. If I am not mistaken, a few perhaps have exceeded this. It seems that the required length is about twenty-five one-hundredths.

Every beekeeper of note is now busy improving his stock along this line, and if you were to pick up a bee journal of the present you would find in most of the advertisements of queen breeders the announcement of the tongue length of his breeding stock. Everybody is confident that it will require but a little time and patience to add a length to the tongues of all bees, for there has been so much attained in breeding bees in other ways that this does not seem impossible. It is well known that the common red clover is perhaps the heaviest nectar producing plant known, and honey from it is of fine quality. The value will not altogether lie in the honey crop, but the complete fertilization of the bloom will add greatly to the seed crop, thus benefiting the farmer, concludes A. H. Duff in Kansas Farmer.

THE CAREFUL CAPON.

Will Mother Young Chickens, Breed Them, Scratch For and Feed Them.

Besides furnishing an abundance of excellent food capons are very useful in taking care of broods of young chickens. They take them without any trouble and care for them just as well, and we think better, than a hen. We have now three capons with broods of 20 chickens each.

They are always glad to take the chicks. They will scratch for them and feed them in the daytime and cover them at night and take as good care of them as a hen and will carry them as long as the chickens will stay with them.

As soon as the chickens are large enough they can be taken away and another brood given to the capon. Capons never molt as do other fowls, and their plumage becomes very long.

Owing to their large size and long plumage they can carry a much larger brood than a hen. They are especially valuable for taking care of chickens hatched by artificial means. The great trouble connected with artificial incubation has been in raising the chickens after they are hatched. It is not only a great deal less trouble to have capons carry the chick, but a much larger per cent can be raised.

We avoid the crowding that we have in brooders, and the heat, being natural, is of course just what we need. If you do not use an incubator they are very serviceable in taking the first chicks hatched in the spring. You can give the chicks to a capon and either set the hen or put her to laying again. When meat alone is desired, the large breeds, as Brahma, Cochon, Langshan, etc., are best, but for carrying chicks we would advise the use of the smaller and more industrious breeds, as Leghorn, Game, etc. The Plymouth Rock, Dorking and Wyandotte fill the middle ground and are useful for either purpose.—O. M. Watson, South Carolina.

Hydrocyanic Acid Gas Fumigation.

"Stored grains and other seeds may be fumigated with hydrocyanic acid gas of required strength and for sufficient time to insure the destruction of insect pests without injury to the germinating quality of the seeds and without rendering them injurious as foods." This is the opinion of Professor Townsend of Maryland, who has thoroughly investigated the matter.

News and Notes.

Big crops of wheat, oats and barley are reported for the Canadian northwest.

"All signs," says the British consul general, "point to a tremendous development of the sugar industry in Cuba."

The almost total failure of the Siberian grain crop is reported.

Planting for macaroni wheat should be done very early, the preceding summer in case of spring sowing.

In a Baltimore public park they have in the playground section a "kindergarten farm" for giving children some ideas about farming and gardening.

Farming on a large scale as an investment for capital, a strictly business enterprise which offers better profits at less risk than most industries, is a topic of the present.

A commercial wool show will be held at the Pan-American exposition in October.

The above cut represents a new and original design of a special wagon which we are now placing on the market with great success. It is a well-known fact that the price of fruit depends largely upon its condition when presented for sale, and consequently care should be taken in its handling, both in the orchard and in transit. Also, the profits of the grower depend largely upon the ease and quickness in handling the fruit, and any device whereby the product can be handled quickly and safely is worthy of investigation.

It can be easily handled with one horse when fully loaded. The gearing is so constructed that it can be turned in a very short space. The platform is but 34 inches from the ground, and the wheels have a broad tire. The body is made in two sizes, for 18 or 21 bushel baskets. Its good features are numerous and worthy of careful investigation.

Mrs. F. Andree, of 243 West Twelfth street, says: "For a year or more I had a constant aching pain through my loins in the side and also a soreness of the stomach. I could hardly stoop to lift anything without suffering severely. I did not rest comfortably at night and became so lame and sore from lying in one position that in the morning I arose feeling tired and unrefreshed. I was bothered a great deal with headache, spells of dizziness, and the kidney secretions became affected, were irregular, too frequent and unnatural. I doctored a great deal and took many kinds of medicines, but without getting better. I believe I would still be suffering if I had not heard about Doan's Kidney Pills and procured them from J. O. NORMANDY CATTLE.

The Cotentin One of the Oldest Breeds of Europe.

The Cotentin is the noblest breed of French cattle. It is one of the oldest breeds of Europe. Though the blood of the Cotentin is widespread all over Europe, yet the center of greatest production is confined within the area of the departments of Eure, Manche, Calvados and Orne. This strain of blood of Normandy cattle is most noted for butter and beef excellence combined, says a correspondent of Kansas Farmer. They combine the qualities of the Jerseys, the Guernseys and the Shorthorns, for the Cotentin is the progenitor of the two former and furnished blood elements of the latter in its admirable beef superiority. The milking tendency in a portion of the Shorthorns is also directly traced to the Norman, for Normandy is and always has been, except in language, eminently English. Its agriculture is English, and English blood freely flows through the veins of its people. The Norman and English physique is characteristically alike.

In color this breed of cattle is dark red and black, brindled on a white ground. Many have white faces more or less mottled with brindle patches about the head. As in the older races of the Jerseys, there is found the cream fawn with brindled patches on the shoulders and sides. At maturity the bulls range from 1,800 to 2,200 pounds. Fat oxen even weigh as high as 4,200 pounds. Cows at the same periods of maturity range from 1,400 to 1,800 pounds. They are mild, gentle and quiet as a race. They have iron constitutions and are relatively free from tuberculosis and other diseases.

The cow shown in the cut is Dina, and she took gold medals at Paris and De Vereaux, France. She is 10 years old and has a record when flush in milk of 72 pounds in a day.

While not ideal, a good ration can be had from wheat straw, bran and cottonseed meal in the following proportions for a day's ration per cow, says Professor D. H. Otis of the Kansas experiment station: Twenty pounds wheat straw, seven pounds of bran and four pounds cottonseed meal.

A cow fed on this ration ought to give a good flow of milk. The amount of cottonseed meal is a little large, although some dairymen use much larger quantities. If the cow shows any bad effects from its use, the amount can be decreased and if necessary the amount of bran increased. The objection to the above is the cost, but this objection applies to almost any ration this year. In feeding the dairy cow, especially when feed is high, it is well to keep an accurate account of the yield of milk, and just as soon as the cow ceases to pay for her feed the amount of feed should be reduced. It stands to reason that a cow giving a small or medium yield of milk does not need the same amount of feed as a cow giving a large flow of milk.

Cottonseed Hulls.

When alfalfa can be had for $14 per ton, a man cannot afford to pay over $8 for cottonseed hulls. The latter are very poor in protein, containing only three-tenths of 1 per cent, while alfalfa has 10.6 per cent. In feeding cottonseed hulls the Tennessee experiment station found it advisable to feed as high as 15 pounds daily per 1,000 pounds of live weight. This experience, as well as the composition, indicates that cottonseed hulls are not a very concentrated feed and to get good results must be fed in large quantities. At $10 or more per ton this feed would be entirely too expensive to feed dairy cows.

Protein For a Cow.

A cow weighing 1,000 pounds requires a pound of protein a day to keep her in normal condition. If she is giving 20 pounds of milk per day, she requires about 2 1/2 pounds of it.

A Canadian's Views.

Actual experiments have proved that for every 1,000 pounds weight of a live animal 26 pounds of food daily are required in a properly balanced ration that will give enough as a heat producer and flesh former for either beef or milk, says a successful Canadian dairyman. How can that food be supplied at least cost? It is quite possible for every farmer to have each cow give 5,000 pounds of milk a season at a cost of only 50 to 60 cents per 100 pounds. I have reduced the cost of producing milk to 40 cents per hundred. Farmers are losing daily what if properly applied means wealth to them, and increase in wealth, if properly used, is increased happiness. The balanced ration that is costing you 24 cents a day per cow can be had for 9 cents by studying out the requirements of your cows and by loading them both ways. Our railroads and steamships net on that principle. I claim that cows should give 6,000 pounds of milk per year. I feed meal every month of the year to my cows because it reduces the cost of keep and increases production.

STOLE THE JEWELS SUMMARY OF NEWS

A Nineteen Year Old Girl Confesses to Burglary.
BROKE INTO FRIENDS HOUSE
Says She Wanted to Recover a Book She Had Loaned—Saw Some Money and Jewels, Took What She Wanted.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 4.—Martha Elvert, 19 years old, has confessed that she is a burglar. The pretty young woman was arrested last night by Precinct Detectives Golden and Steinhebel on suspicion of having entered the residence of J. F. Richards, at 467 Leland street, yesterday afternoon, and stolen $40 in cash, a $60 diamond stud and a set ring valued at $15.
Richards and his family were absent when a young woman called next door and asked if the Richards family was home. When she was told they were out, the girl burglar deliberately walked over the porch and climbed over the five-foot fence that separates the two yards. When in the Richards yard, she opened the door and entered the house.
Miss Elvert was arrested last night at her boarding place, 306 Alexandrine avenue east. She was taken to police headquarters, where she confessed. According to the girl's story, which she told the detectives in sobbing tones, she went into the Richards house to get a book that she had loaned Mrs. Richards. Seeing the money and jewelry on a bureau, she could not resist the temptation to steal them. Mrs. Richards says that the articles were left in a bureau drawer.
When the Richardses came home they found their home torn to pieces. Every drawer in the house showed signs of having been searched. The matter was reported at the Hunt street police station. The missing stud and ring were found in Miss Elvert's room. The money, Miss Elvert says she did not steal.
Martha was introduced to the detectives at police headquarters this morning and in future she will be in their books. This afternoon she was taken to the police court and arraigned in their books. She was remanded to the jail to await examination and bail was placed at $1,000.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.
Charlotte, Mich., Sept. 3.—The coroner's jury, investigating the death of Leonard Green of Eaton Rapids, returned their verdict at 9 o'clock this evening. After stating the circumstances connected with the affair the verdict says that Howard Burchfield did wilfully and maliciously kill the deceased. On or before Friday, the date set for the hearing on the old warrant, the prisoner will be rearrested charged with the murder. Prosecuting Attorney Dann is authority for this statement. In justice to Mr Hickey, the saloonkeeper, at whom Burchfield threw the bottle, it should be said that the affair took place directly in front of the Williams house and not in the saloon as reported and that instead of a beer bottle the weapon was a heavy pop bottle.
The funeral services of Green will be held tomorrow afternoon at his home near Eaton Rapids. A large delegation of K. P. and Elks from this city will attend.
The Devernes, Guy McIntyre, of Sherwood and Joe Deverne, of Albion, the trapeze men who fell a distance of 25 feet on Thursday, Elks' day at the carnival, have improved sufficiently to return home, although both are suffering from their injuries. A neat sum was collected for them by subscription.

Trouble For Gov. Bliss.
Owosso, Mich., Sept. 3.—The old soldiers of the eighth district are making dire threats against Gov. Bliss for his appointment of Otto L. Sprague as deputy oil inspector for the district. They declare the plum should have gone to either ex-Mayor M. C. Dawes or Chas. N. Race, both old soldiers. Sprague is a brother-in-law of Senator Atwood, to whom is accredited the fine work in pulling down the persimmon.
Suicide at Albion.
Albion, Mich., Sept. 2.—Mrs. Minnie Beman, wife of Hobart Beman, of the firm of Knickerbocker & Beman, committed suicide this afternoon by drinking carbolic acid. Continued ill-health and family troubles are supposed to be the cause of her action. Mrs. Beman was born near this city, and was about 38 years of age. She leaves a husband and one son.
Charged With Assault.
Ypsanti, Mich., Sept. 4.—A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Isaac M. Perrine, the son-in-law of Judge J. Willard Babbitt, of this city, on the charge of attempted criminal assault upon Millicent Horsman, an employee of the Michigan Telephone Co. Perrine has not yet been apprehended.
Believed To Be Dead.
West Branch, Mich., Sept. 4.—The missing Hawley girl, who left her home Aug. 15, has not been found. The blood hounds failed to trail her on account of the recent rains. No hopes are entertained now of ever finding her.
Peculiar Accident.
Port Huron, Mich., Sept. 2.—The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry O'Connor, of Skinner street, swallowed a safety pin to-day. The pin was opened when swallowed, and so far the physicians have failed to dislodge it. The child is resting easy.

FOXYPINCE CHUN.
Germans Are Hot About the Snub Given.
Berlin, Sept. 4.—It is generally conceded here that the settlement of the Chun difficulty marks another success for Chinese diplomacy. A semi-official intimation has been conveyed to the press that the government waived the petition for forgiveness owing to the desire to place China in the attitude of having countenanced assassination. Stress is now laid upon the address which Prince Chun will read to Emperor William. Nevertheless the expedition has been short of all semblance of a national spectacle illustrating German imperial supremacy and has dwindled down to a private reception of a rather unwelcome envoy, who has had matters all in his own way regarding the performance of his errand.
As a matter of fact the government now seems anxious to get rid as quickly as possible of the expatriate incubus and the probabilities are that the mission will leave Berlin soon after the audience.

CARE OF THE CHURN.

Should Be Thoroughly Scalded After Each Churning.

One fruitful source of trouble is the churn. An unclean churn is sure to turn out bad butter, although it may appear all right when fresh, says Creamery Journal. The germs are there and will get in their work, and the butter will "go off" in a short time. A blind man should be able to tell when the churn is kept clean. There is an odor which gives it away, and if he has also lost his sense of smell he can still distinguish, if he has the tactile sense, that of touch, decently developed. If he can neither see, smell nor feel, he is out of place in a creamery, and so it follows that any one fit to run a creamery can tell whether the churn is clean.

One trouble is that the churn is not always scalded the last thing. It needs to be left scalding hot, so it will dry quickly. If cold water is even poured in and used for rinsing after it is thoroughly cleaned and is not scalded afterward, the churn becomes musty and fit for the propagation of mold germs. Hot weather, dampness, lack of air circulation and lack of light favor bad flavors and bad odors, and the creamery man who succeeds is the one who guards against them, while he who makes firsts, seconds and thirds goes on and wonders what is the matter. Hot water, the scrub brush and steam are the three guardian angels of the churn to drive away filth. Scald by conducting steam into the churn with the churn partially closed, not tight enough to spring the wood, but tight enough to force it into every crevice. Use discretion. Do not continue steaming long enough to shrink and open the joints.

The proper location for a dairy stable is one of the most important considerations in the construction of the most important adjunct to the dairy business, says a correspondent of Hoard's Dairyman. To be able to start right it is necessary to consider the subject from different standpoints. Fresh air and a plentiful supply of pure water, good drainage, protection from cold winds, plenty of sunshine and convenience in regard to feeding arrangements are the essential features to be considered.

Fresh air and drainage may be provided by selecting an elevation. Protection from cold winds is secured by planting a tree belt along the northern exposure, but it is not always easy to combine with a location of this nature the proper water supply, which is a very essential feature. Generally speaking, the elevation also assists in providing a water supply, as the pumping should be done by wind power. A rise of ground naturally gives an uninterrupted wind approach, as the derrick may be high enough to lift the wind above the tree windbreak. In no case should the water supply be poor, limited or inconvenient.

In addition to the tree belt a high board fence should inclose a breathing space. This fence should be well constructed and the joints between the boards battened tight. If, in addition to this, a shed roof is provided opening to the south, winter yard conditions will be about as good as they can be made, provided of course that the ground is supplied with proper drainage. The filthy, miry condition of so many barnyards is sufficient excuse for laying so much stress on the importance of this feature. The abomination that is permitted to exist year after year in connection with farm barns and stables is little short of criminal.

Lining For Silo.

When a lining is to be put in a silo, it is well to use a good quality of paper, as a saving here may mean a large loss in silage. The silage will not eat out the paper, but as common building paper will take up moisture and so easily break from any movement of the walls of the silo for this reason the acid proof paper, which is stronger and impervious to moisture, is better for a lining.
