What's a university for?

Barnett's four types of university values / knowledge:

- a) 'Ivory tower'
- b) 'The professionalised university'
- c) 'The entrepreneurial university'
- d) 'The developmental university' (Barnett, 2011, p.31)

In (d): 'Knowledge-in-the-world/Knowledge-for-the-world:

This university is... intent on helping to improve the world – its knowledges are put to work for-the-world.'

(Barnett, 2011, p.32)

What's a Business School for?

- The business school: a 'holding environment' for 'identity work' (Petriglieri and Petriglieri, 2010, p.44, citing Winnicott, 1975)
- Provides '... a social context that... facilitates sense making' → 'identity stabilization (consolidating an existing identity)' or 'identity transition' (Petriglieri and Petriglieri, 2010, p.44)
- Increasingly 'fluid organizations' don't provide 'a polished, decisive narrative' for managers (Petriglieri and Petriglieri, 2010, p.56)
- Awareness: 'to see reality in a way that goes beyond superficial appearances... is a necessary precursor to generative thinking.' (Bartunek and Carboni, 2006, p.503)

Why the arts?

- Adler: urged 21st century leadership to find the courage to ‘Envision Possibility’ (2006, p.495): challenged management educators not to ‘collude with illusion... not settle for anything less than our highest levels of aspirations’ (Adler, 2006, p.497)
- Maak and Pless: argued for ‘humanism on a global scale’ in contemporary leadership: ethical action demands self-awareness (2009, p.546)
- The arts, simulations and experiential learning → ‘transformation of experience into new forms of knowing’ (Sutherland et al., 2015, p.616)
- ‘Design thinking’: The arts in the development of spaces or products: management ‘as a research-based design science’ (Starkey et al., 2014, p.281)

Learning as a shift in perception
