FACULTY SENATE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MINUTES

September 17, 2018

3:30 – 5:00 p.m.

Old Main-Champ Hall

Absent: Marilyn Cuch, Jessica Lucero

Guests: Edward Reeve, Interim Vice Provost, Kristine Miller, Director

Call to Order - Rebecca Lawver

Approval of August 27, 2018 Minutes

Minutes approved as distributed.

University Business - Noelle Cockett, President | Frank Galey, Provost

President Cockett notified the committee that candidates are being brought on campus for interviews for the position of Vice President for Marketing and Communications. The first candidate will arrive tonight and will be on campus Tuesday and Wednesday. Next candidate is coming on Wednesday. Another candidate comes next week and the final one will arrive October 3. There will be open forums scheduled for the faculty to attend, if they are interested. This position could be finalized within 3-4 weeks. Today is day 15 of classes and enrollment numbers will be coming out. We do not release those numbers until they have been submitted to the Utah System of Higher Education (USHE) and then USHE officially releases them. The official numbers are actually at the end of a term. The numbers are flat here in Logan and in the regional campuses. The Logan campus does continue to increase on full-time enrollment (FTE). There is also an increase in on-line broadcast classes. Enrollment numbers in Blanding are dropping but the Price campus numbers are increasing. USU would like to focus on FTE to help get students through graduation. Utah Valley University (UVU) continues with a significant increase in enrollment as does Dixie State. It might be a good idea to invite Robert Wagner and Michael Torrens to attend the FSEC and FS meetings to discuss enrollment trends and numbers. An enrollment report will be added to an upcoming FS agenda. Growth is dominating higher education conversations right now. Six of the eight public institutions in the state are now offering master degrees. USU offers the full college experience and has been using scholarships for our main enrollment management tool. Enrollment management and recruitment is now under the office of Academic and Instructional Systems (AIS) and they will follow up with students to ask questions as to why they are or are not coming to USU. Recruiting and retaining students will be looked at and will work hand in hand for the students and the institution. USU tuition is just over $7,000 and we consider this a tremendous return on investment. In state the cheapest tuition is $4,000 and the U of U is at $9,000. We are finding that students and their parents want to go to college and not have any debt. AIS will engage the colleges in more recruiting. The Theatre Arts department has a 100% job placement upon graduation and these kinds of stories need to be told. USU is looking at following students once they graduate and see where they end up. We need to toot our own horn and provide subtle messages regarding the programs and campus life at USU. Community colleges are now pressing to be able to provide 4-year programs/colleges in their towns. This trend forced the University of Wyoming to move programs out to the community colleges. It is felt, however, that this is going to dilute the effort locally.

Provost Galey – The recent accreditation review assessed the various aspects of our curriculum. One item that we need to work on is the General Education program. The Math & English requirements are holding their own for QI/QL and CI, however, we need to do some work on the overall depth and breadth classes. Currently we are in the process of forming a task force to look at this issue. The task force will consist of a couple of Associate Deans, Faculty Members, Robert Wagner and Michael Torrens. We will try to do this as accurate and painless as possible for the faculty members. As we come up with ideas the Provost will communicate the outcome. Provost Galey will provide regular updates to the FSEC.

EPC Annual Report - Ed Reeve

The EPC is made up of 3 committees, General Education, Academic Standards and EPC/Curriculum 776 requests were reviewed for the 2017-2018 academic year.

A Registered Student Policy was approved.

Final exam and no test day policy was updated and approved.

The student code revision was approved.

Motion to move the Annual EPC Report to the Faculty Senate Agenda made by Matt Omasta. Seconded by Kimberly Lott. Moved to Faculty Senate agenda.

Honors Annual Report - Kris Miller

The Honors Program is a place where people can meet and talk. Honors sends out weekly email list for events that are happening on campus to help keep their students informed and up to date. It is important to provide the students with a sense that the USU Honors Program is a great place to be. Socials are set up for faculty and students to mingle and socialize. These socials and other activities help students experience hands on learning. The faculty and student experiences help push the students out of their comfort zones and helps them stretch and grow. The Honors Program is also working and collaborating with the Office of Global Engagement. Last year the program served over 722 students. Approximately 75% of faculty are engaged with the honors students. Honors students and faculty are winning awards for their work and are showcasing USU.

Motion to move the Annual Honors Report to the Faculty Senate agenda made by Matt Omasta. Seconded by Patrick Belmont. Moved to Faculty Senate agenda.

Faculty Senate Meeting Time Change - Becki Lawver

Some faculty have expressed their concern in not being able to make it to the meetings on time due to teaching schedules. In order to make this change it would require a change to the faculty code. We need to obtain information regarding the pros and cons of moving the time. AIS can provide this data regarding classes and bell schedule. Ask the Faculty Senators about the time change. We would ultimately need to have a vote on this.

Motion to hold straw poll to acquire senate interest in moving the time for senate meetings made by Patrick Belmont. Seconded by Matt Omasta. Timothy Taylor has agreed to pull together the numbers and information regarding classes and bell schedule.

Nominating Committee Code – This request deals with finding individuals who can run for FS President-Elect each year. It is felt that there should be more input/participation than just the FS presidency looking for and soliciting nominations. If there is no committee set up to do this then the brunt of the responsibility falls back on the FS president. If we have a few more participants in this process we might have more than one candidate which would call for a true election. Can a few individuals from the FSEC take on that responsibility? If the FSEC pulled together and formed an ad hoc committee three would not need to be a change in the faculty code. It could be as simple as adding a line into the code noting the FSEC will solicit candidates for the president elect position. It was recommended to bring the information earlier to the FS meetings, possibly begin in the February-March timeframe so that an election can be held at one of the April meetings.

Code 403.3.2 Standards of Conduct-Professional Obligations - Kimberly Lott

Motion to move code change 403.3.2 to the Faculty Senate agenda made by Bryce Field. Seconded by Patrick Belmont. Code moved to Faculty Senate agenda.

Motion to move code change 407.1.1 to the Faculty Senate agenda made by Bryce Fifield. Seconded by Patrick Belmont. Code moved to Faculty Senate agenda.

Code 407.11.2 Inquiry into Allegations of Violation Policies 407.8 and/or 407.9 - Kimberly Lott
Leaving guidance in the code in 407.1.1 and add professional counseling.

Motion to move code change 407.11.2 to the Faculty Senate agenda made by Bryce Fifield. Seconded by Patrick Belmont. Code moved to Faculty Senate agenda.

Code 407.11.3 Protection of Complainant and Others - Kimberly Lott

Should this be the provost and president making these decisions? Add the provost as well as the president.

Motion to move code change 407.11.3 to the Faculty Senate agenda made by Bryce Fifield. Seconded by Ben George. Code moved to Faculty Senate agenda.

Matt Omasta is worried that there might be a conflict of interest problem. He felt that this issued needs to be addressed more. Spirit of motion is to open it up so that when it is returned from PRPC we will review and make sure that it is clear.

Call to Order - Rebecca Lawver

Approval of April 16, 2018 Minutes

Motion to approve minutes made by Kimberly Lott. Seconded by Matt Omasta. Minutes approved.

University Business - Frank Galey, Provost

One of Provost Galey's priorities is shared governance and he is happy to be part of the Faculty Senate Executive Committee. He is looking forward to meeting and getting to know each of the members of the committee. He also plans to get out and visit as many departments as he can and get to know the faculty.

Recently, President Cockett made some reorganization changes to Student Affairs regarding the student success programs. The purpose of this change is to get like units working more closely together. Vice President James Morales will now have more time to focus on student life and well-being. The reorg will also provide a central location and cohesive services to the students. The following units will be moving to Academic and Instructional Services under Vice President Robert Wagner: Recruitment and Retention, Admissions, Academic Success, Financial Aid, Registrar's Office and the Disability Resource Center. This move will help keep the marketing groups together and will allow them to work with other state connections to recruit students both on and off campus. The Advising group will be moved under Vice Provost Janet Anderson. Janet will spend 50% of her time in the Provost's office and 50% in Robert Wagner's office. Administrative changes will continue until everything is in place. This reorganization is President Cockett's vision for helping our students. Some offices may be moving, however, most will stay where they are.

Last week there were approximately 600 first generation students on campus for connections. It is the USU's responsibility to help direct these students through their academic journey.

A LatinX Culture Center is being established and will be housed in the basement of the University Inn. This center will report to the Provost's office.

The President is getting ready to announce some new initiatives. These new initiatives will be reported in USU Today. It is important to make sure that everyone has opted in to receive the USU Today notifications so that they can remain informed.

As part of the sexual assault issues, the President has made substantial changes in the AAEO office. Currently they are working on filling three open positions in the office. They are searching for a prevention specialist, AAEO director and Title IX coordinator. The prevention specialist has been hired and will be on board soon. USU will continue to provide training for sexual assault. All students must take this training or they will not be able to register next year. The other two searches should be wrapping up mid-September.

The Department of Justice is finishing their report and results should be coming out soon.

President Cockett would like to move the Graduate School from the Office of Research to the Provost's Office. Provost Galey would like the Faculty Senate to provide him with feedback on this proposal as well as should the leadership position be a Dean or Vice Provost. President Cockett would like to have these comments and be able to move forward in approximately 30 days. Senators should talk with their colleagues and provide information/responses to Becki Lawver. Becki will then bring the input to the Provost. The model in other universities trend toward the Graduate School being on their own or being aligned under the Provost's Office.

Information

Welcome 2018-2019 Faculty Senator Executive Committee - Becki Lawver

New faculty senate and alternate training was held on August 20. President Lawver shared with new senators the importance of their roles in sharing information with colleagues and within departments. Senators are asked to keep their fingers on the pulse of their department/college.

Faculty Senate Handbook - Becki Lawver

Working on new Faculty Senate handbook. Should be printed and ready to hand out at the September Faculty Senate meeting. Provide information to senators regarding their responsibilities and showing where the work goes.

Koch Task Force Update - Becki Lawver

The last semester of the academic year the senate was tasked with setting up a Koch task force to write a resolution. There is not much more information to provide other than the task force has been put together and they have met four times. The committee met with both Mica McKinney and Frank Caliendo to ask/answer questions and gain information. One member of the task force resigned from their duties, did not state a reason. The task force will continue to move forward. The expected outcome will be a resolution presented to the Faculty Senate. The Faculty Senate Executive Committee must approve the resolution to be placed on the agenda before it goes to the whole Faculty Senate for a vote. Some faculty might just want to see a report that is neutral and can provide them with information, however the resolution will be a formal statement with anticipated recommendations.

EPC Monthly Report – April 5, 2018 - Ed Reeve

Approved 168 course requests

Approved nine general education requests.

Approved Registered Student Policy Language through the Academic Standards Subcommittee

Four R401 program proposals were approved.

Old Business

Nominating Committee Code - John Gilbert

The request was sent to PRPC in the spring but nothing has been done with it yet. The suggestions was to develop a nominating committee that will assist in helping to identify individuals who can run for Faculty Senate President Elect. This will allow more faculty input into the process. Potentially we could have more than one nomination and there would be a choice as to who becomes the President-Elect.

New Business

The Faculty Senate meeting scheduled during spring break will be adjusted and rescheduled.

It states in code 402.6.1, that the Faculty Senate meetings will be held at 3:00 pm. However, there is nothing in code regarding the start time for the FSEC meetings. It would be nice to align FSEC meetings with the bell schedule. FSEC would like to move the meetings to 3:30 – 5:00 pm to accommodate faculty who teach until 3:20 pm.

Motion to move start time from 3:00 pm to 3:30 pm for FSEC meeting made by David Brown.

Seconded by Patrick Belmont.

Motion to move item to Information for FS agenda made by Bryce Fifield. Seconded by Benjamin George. Moved to agenda.

The subject of faculty leaving campus and when they return has become an issue. Apparently, there is a problem with some faculty leaving or not working in the office and no one in the department/college knows where they are. Faculty need to report their leave and should be back on campus two weeks before the first day of school, however there is some concern with faculty not being present during their college retreats and departmental meetings. Technically the faculty are required to be on campus except during the official breaks. Nowhere is there a satisfactory answer/resolution in code and this problem sets a precedent. Interestingly enough, under the faculty code there are no consequences or disciplinary action for faculty who do not show up or stay on campus. Deans are unhappy because they do not show up for retreats and some leave before graduation. The students are the ones who suffer from this situation and it is important to think of the students and their perspective. The Provost stated that this issue is on his radar and he is visiting with the President about it. The Provost will continue to study this issue and work with faculty senate presidency. This situation does not send a good message to students nor other faculty and it was felt that this has been a problem as far back as 10 years.

Annual Report

Fiscal Year 2017-2018

Dr. Kristine Miller, Director

September 10, 2018

Compiled by: Andreas Leidolf, Coordinator

Reporting Period: 1 July 2017 – 30 June 2018

A. OVERVIEW

1. Vision, Mission, and Goals

The University Honors Program is charged with placing a diverse group of USU's most ambitious students at the heart of a dynamic intellectual community. Built upon four key pillars of learning (critical thinking, independent research, interdisciplinary learning, and civic engagement), the program trains its students to think deeply about how to make the world a better place. This university-wide program unites a variety of students and faculty across disciplines, whether in the classroom, through research, service, and creative projects, or at the many co-curricular events students attend on campus. Offering a progressive series of small, interdisciplinary seminars that satisfy USU's General Education requirements, the University Honors Program leads students both to wrestle with big global issues and to find practical, creative solutions to local problems. The practical application of academic knowledge is central to the program, which therefore engages students in professional development activities and gives them credit for internships, study abroad programs, research, grant writing, scholarly or creative presentations, and major service projects. All of this undergraduate work culminates in an honors capstone project designed to create both a close professional relationship with a faculty mentor and a final product that showcases the student's academic and professional skills.

The University Honors Program serves USU's stated land-grant mission by fostering the principle that academics come first, cultivating diversity of thought and culture, and serving the public through learning, discovery, and engagement. Actively recruiting a diverse student and faculty body and modeling the kinds of work that all USU students can and should do, the University Honors Program is a centerpiece of USU's educational mission. The university therefore guarantees the program adequate infrastructure resources, including an appropriate budget and faculty, staff, and administrative support as necessary. The university is committed to creating and sustaining a robust honors program that exemplifies the best that USU has to offer.

2. Personnel

In addition to the director, the Honors Program employs three 1.0 FTE professional staff positions: an academic advisor, a program coordinator, and a staff assistant. All professional positions experienced turnover and reorganization during FY 2017-2018. A previous Coordinator of Programs Senior position was split into two positions: an Academic Advisor II and a Program Coordinator II. See Table 1 for a list of personnel employed during the reporting period.

3. 2017-18 Highlights

FY 2017-18 was the fourth year of the university-wide USU Honors Program, which continues to thrive and grow. We offered six new Honors Experience General Education breadth seminars, the first of three new team-taught Honors Think Tank General Education depth courses, and 24 Honors Book Labs (four-week book discussions run for groups of five students by one or more faculty members); we also granted 53 students research and study abroad funding. Honors admitted our largest incoming class to date—158 students—with an average index score of 130 and an average GPA of 3.91; the program served a total of 722 honors students from all eight USU colleges and 37 of 43 departments. We also engaged 217 faculty from 43 departments in teaching, mentoring, advising, service, and assessment. The University Honors Program continues to model the integration of high-impact educational practices (including undergraduate research and capstone work, internships, study abroad, service-learning projects, interdisciplinary book clubs and socials, national scholarship application support, and a robust alumni mentoring program) and collaborates with colleges, programs, and departments to find ways of delivering these high-impact experiences to all USU students. Honors was proud to mentor a Truman scholarship finalist and a Goldwater scholarship honorable mention this year, as well as to nominate Dr. David Peak for the Council for Undergraduate Research (CUR)-Goldwater Scholars Faculty Mentor Award, a recognition he deserved and won. Honors continues to offer students and faculty an interdisciplinary social and academic hub on campus, compiling a university-wide calendar of academic events, connecting students and faculty with research across disciplines, and providing faculty with standardized resumes of their honors work for promotion and tenure purposes. To help students, faculty, and alumni navigate such opportunities, Honors has maintained faculty, student, and alumni listservs and a centralized university events calendar, developed a program-wide Canvas course where students can upload work and track progress toward honors graduation, published our fifth annual alumni newsletter, and continued a concentrated development effort to support student research, practical extensions of classroom work, and international travel. The program also collaborated with USU Admissions to fine-tune a CRM plan for high ability students and to create a new USU viewbook insert for the University Honors Program. We are pleased to welcome three new staff members this year, and our aim with this newly expanded staff is to do more proactive advising and to deepen and expand our quantitative and qualitative assessment of student outcomes. We will also continue to raise awareness about the Honors Program, both on and off campus, with the aim of increasing student, faculty, alumni, and community stakeholder involvement in the program.

4. Outlook for FY 2018-2019

The USU Honors Program, now in its fifth year under the leadership of Director Dr. Kristine Miller, bears all the hallmarks of a mature program poised for growth and innovation. Honors draws its strength from two key groups: a talented and active population of honors students who are fiercely passionate about our program, and an engaged cohort of faculty who care deeply about honors education and support the program with their continued ingenuity and creativity.

Opportunities for expanding the reach and impact of the University Honors Program abound. Honors consistently and increasingly collaborates with other USU offices to develop and share best practices in recruiting and retaining high ability students, engaging our alumni and cultivating prospective donors, and modeling pedagogical innovation, all activities that benefit the campus community at large. Additionally, our faculty, staff, and students actively seek partnerships with stakeholders in our community. The recent hire of a full-time program coordinator with a background in science community management and stakeholder engagement opens up the possibility of formalizing these activities and grounding them in a more strategic and proactive long-term approach to community building.

In building this collaborative community, the ability to demonstrate the impact of Honors on our participants, Utah State University, and relevant stakeholders becomes increasingly important. To that end, we have instituted in FY 2017-2018 a more systematic approach to tracking relevant outputs and outcomes, as well expanded self-evaluation and assessment involving the Director, Program Coordinator, Honors Student Advisory Board (HSAB), and Honors Faculty Advisory Board (HFAB). We hope to supplement self-assessment with external evaluation by a National Collegiate Honors Council evaluation team and formation of an external advisory board in FY 2018-2019, resulting in a rigorous, three-pronged assessment strategy.

Our program does face several challenges in FY 2018-2019. With all staff positions filled in FY 2017-2018, Honors can now implement—fully and in a timely manner—core activities that promote the long-term sustainability of our program, including recruiting, admissions, orientation, theme housing, advising and mentoring, student programming, and development. However, our staff is operating at capacity, such that growing the program beyond its current size of 600-700 active on-campus students would require additional staff resources, particularly in the area of advising. Additionally, if we were to collaborate more closely with regional campuses, we would need to expand our staffing to handle the cross-campus coordination that such an expansion would require. Without increased staffing, we cannot simply maintain the status quo; our successful pattern of engaging and retaining existing students will eventually force us to roll back existing programming and basic student services in order to meet increasingly high demand.

A second challenge is that of dedicated space. The facilities currently housing the Honors Program were never meant to accommodate the number of students, faculty, and staff we currently support: our office is a converted showcase dorm room for the Living and Learning Community. With a full-time director and three 1.0 FTE staff, in addition to a half dozen student employees, we are beyond capacity in this limited space, and the director's office is of necessity down the hall from the main office. Although the space has twice been remodeled to create small enclosed offices (with support from the Office of the Provost), this short-term solution is not sustainable in the long run. Furthermore, a space-sharing agreement with Housing and Residence Life for the honors classroom and conference room, while supported by ample cooperation and good will on both sides, is also not an adequate long-term solution, since it presents numerous logistical challenges for our small staff.

To be clear, these challenges result from the strength of a program that showcases the best that USU has to offer: passionate, curious students; innovative, committed faculty; loyal, enthusiastic alumni; and engaged, caring staff. Given the resources to grow, Honors aims to support all Aggie students, faculty, alumni, and staff willing to take Horace's ancient "Sapere aude"—or Dare to Know—challenge. As our motto, this dare has become a challenge and opportunity for Honors: a true Dare to Grow.

B. PARTICIPANTS

In FY 2017-2018, the USU Honors Program:

- Served an honors student population of 772 students—57% of them female—from all eight of USU’s colleges, 37 of 43 USU departments, and 109 of 200 academic majors.
- Recruited 158 new first-year and 38 current/transfer students to the program from a pool of 369 applicants.
- Graduated 38 students with honors.
- Involved 217 USU faculty from 43 departments in teaching, mentoring, advising, service, and assessment.
- Engaged with 923 honors alumni through its annual newsletter, regular emails, and student-alumni programming.

1. Student Participants

In FY 2017-2018, the Honors Program served a population of 772 students—443 of them female (57%)—making up 5% of the undergraduate student population on USU’s main Logan campus. Compared to the general USU student population, a smaller percentage (4%) of honors students identified as belonging to an underrepresented ethnic minority (URM) or as being first-generation college students (10%, Table 2). However, the increase in percentages for URM and first-generation students in honors current-transfer admissions suggests that some of these students are identified by faculty as outstanding performers once they reach USU. The largest proportion of honors students came from USU’s College of Engineering (ENGR), followed by the College of Humanities and Social Sciences (CHaSS) and the Jon M. Huntsman School of Business (HSB); the smallest percentage came from the Caine College of the Arts (CCA, Figure 1A). Figure 1B shows the student breakdown by college for USU’s general student population. The most notable discrepancy between that general population and Honors is a substantially larger proportion of undeclared students in the general population, which complicates a potential comparison. Still, the honors student population appears to consist disproportionately of students who have settled on a major, with students from ENGR, CHaSS, and the College of Science (CoS) noticeably overrepresented, and students from the Emma Eccles Jones College of Education and Human Services (CEHS) somewhat underrepresented.

B. PARTICIPANTS

This year, Honors admitted 158 first-year students, a 7% increase over FY 2016-2017, and an 11% increase over the 2012-2016 five-year average. The proportions of male and female first-years match those of the incoming general USU student population (Table 2), but again, the percentage of students identifying as first generation or belonging to a URM was lower. However, among current and transfer students admitted to the program, Honors outpaces the university-wide average.

Our program graduated 38 students this year, representing 5% of the total honors student population, 24% of this year's first-year cohort, and 27% of the 2014 first-year cohort (Table 2, Table A-1). The proportions of male and female graduates matched those of the honors student population at large; compared to the gender ratio of all USU graduates, it skewed more female (Table 2). Honors graduated a higher percentage of URMs and first-generation students than USU, as well, suggesting an honors impact on retention of these groups.

2. Faculty Participants

The Honors Program continues to benefit from broad and deep engagement with faculty from all eight colleges and 43 USU departments or programs. In FY 2017-2018, 217 faculty members participated in a range of academic activities: teaching honors courses or Connections sections; leading Honors Book Labs, supervising Honors in Practice contracts and capstone projects (Table A-2); mentoring national scholarship applicants; serving as Departmental Honors Advisors (DHA, Table A-3); reviewing admissions and scholarship applications; and engaging in evaluation and assessment of the program (Table A-4). Almost a quarter of these faculty members participated in our program in more than one category of engagement. Faculty participants included 42% women, and were evenly distributed among the ranks of Assistant, Associate, and Full Professor, with a smaller proportion of Instructors and Lecturers. The highest number faculty involved with Honors were from CHaSS (26%), followed by CoS (14%). The proportion of faculty from the remaining six colleges ranged from 8-12% (Figure 2).

Huntsman School of Business, QCNR = S.J. and Jessie E. Quinney College of Natural Resources.

3. Alumni Participants

The Honors Program draws on the professional expertise and positive attachment of a cohort of 923 alumni, 560 of whom are female (61%). During FY 2017-18, we actively engaged with 60 (7%) of these accomplished individuals in the Honors Alumni Mentoring Program. In addition, we reached out to the entire alumni cohort with the USU Honors Program Annual Newsletter, which was mailed to 1,047 email addresses.

B. PARTICIPANTS

USU honors alumni are evenly distributed among post-graduates (<5 years), early career professionals (5-10 years), and mid/late career professionals (>10 years, Figure 3A), and they come from a range of employment sectors, with most working in private industry, including self-employment (34%), followed by the academic sector (13%, Figure 3B). The small number of alumni continuing their education may be due to underreporting in this sector; anecdotally, it appears that a large proportion of alumni for whom no employment information was available are recent graduates who may be in graduate or professional school or completing internships.

C. PARTNERS

In FY 2017-2018, the USU Honors Program:

- Partnered with a wide range of offices and organizations, both on campus and in the local and national community.

12 USU partners

Five local or national partners

The Honors Program strives to enter into partnerships on campus and within the wider local, national, and global communities, in order to create opportunities for our students and faculty, advance best educational practices, and extend the footprint and impact of USU Honors beyond the boundaries of our program.

1. USU Partners

Academic and Instructional Services, Student Marketing and Communications (SMAC)—The Honors Program director and staff worked with SMAC to create a more targeted recruitment plan for Honors, to identify and market USU’s educational strengths to high ability students, and to highlight honors student success stories for USU marketing campaigns.

Access and Diversity Center, Allies on Campus—All honors staff have completed Allies training, and the Honors Program’s staff assistant, Chelsey Gensel, serves on the Allies advisory board.

Alumni Relations—The director collaborated with USU’s Alumni Relations office as they developed their first USU alumni mentoring event this year. Alumni Relations used the Honors Alumni Mentoring Program as a model and included Dr. Miller on the planning committee for the event.

Center for Community Engagement—Honors partnered with the Center for Community Engagement to implement a Service-Learning Scholar transcript designation and to secure service-learning designations on select honors courses; the program director is part of the core writing team and task force for USU’s self-assessment and application for an institutional Carnegie Community Engagement classification.

Connections—Honors collaborated with the Connections office to staff honors Connections sections, make participation in this transition-to-college program mandatory for all first-year honors students, and co-sponsor a USU Common Literature Experience author luncheon for honors students and faculty.

C. PARTNERS

Dining Services—Honors Professor Rebecca Charlton and her HONR 1350 (“Media Messages in Health and Nutrition”) students collaborated with Dining Services to develop strategies for reducing food waste on campus.

Housing and Residence Life—Honors partners with Housing and Residence Life to provide theme housing for honors students, including scholarship support, recruiting, Resident Assistant (RA) staff training, and programming.

Nora Eccles Harrison Museum of Art—Honors Think Tank professor Dr. Joyce Kinkead (HONR 3020: “Focus on Sustainability”) partnered with the Nora Eccles Harrison Museum of Art in a student-curated exhibit entitled “Growing West: Art, Agriculture, and Land”; the Honors Program also partners with the museum on joint marketing of events and collaboration in planning interactive opportunities for students to meet campus artists, musicians, and speakers.

Office of Admissions—The director and staff worked with USU Admissions to create a more targeted recruitment plan for Honors, to coordinate the recruitment of high ability students across colleges, and to train ambassadors and tour guides to incorporate information about Honors into their tours and scripts.

Office of Global Engagement—The Honors Program partnered with the Office of Global Engagement to pilot a Global Engagement Scholar transcript designation, to explore the possibility of honors study abroad programs, to fund study abroad experiences for honors students, and to track and award honors credit for study abroad.

Office of Research and Graduate Studies (RGS)—Honors works with RGS to help recruit and admit Undergraduate Research Fellows (URF), to coordinate research funding through Undergraduate Research and Creative Opportunities (URCO) grants, and to develop and model best practices for research mentoring across campus.

Orientation—Honors staff coordinated with Aggie Orientation staff to publicize the value of Honors to incoming honors and non-honors students.

University Libraries—Honors staff worked with reference librarians to archive honors student capstone projects through Digital Commons and Honors Think Tank outputs through Digital Exhibits.

2. Non-USU Partners

Apogee Instruments, Inc.—Apogee Instruments staff mentored an honors student for an Honors in Practice contract.

Cache Community Food Pantry—Honors Think Tank faculty (Dr. Joyce Kinkead, Dr. Kynda Curtis, and Dr. Ryan Dupont) collaborated with the Cache Community Food Pantry in their HONR 3010/3020/3030: “Focus on Sustainability” course.

Cache Valley Center for the Arts (CVCA)—CVCA staff mentored an honors student for an Honors in Practice contract.

C. PARTNERS

Hillcrest Elementary School—Honors Think Tank professor Dr. Joyce Kinkead and her HONR 3020: “Focus on Sustainability” students partnered with Hillcrest Elementary School to study and perform the play Seedfolks by Paul Fleischman.

National Collegiate Honors Council—Honors director Dr. Kristine Miller is editing a collaborative essay collection on best practices for honors contracts.

D. PROGRAMMING

CORE ACTIVITIES

Core activities represent the annual life cycle of routine work that promotes the long-term sustainability of the Honors Program and provides critical services to current and prospective students.

1. Recruiting

Honors staff and student volunteers participated in 13 recruiting events during FY 2017-2018 (Table 3). Although no data on the number of students and family members engaged is available, we intend to start tracking this information for FY 2018-2019.

2. Admissions

The USU Honors Program received 319 first-year applications during FY 2017-2018. Applicants had an average high school GPA of 3.91, an average ACT score of 30.78, and an average USU index score of 130.29. Of these students, Honors invited 261 into the program. Students accepted had slightly higher scores across the board (GPA = 3.93, ACT = 31.25, USU Index = 131.46). Students rejected or waitlisted and not subsequently admitted to the program had noticeably lower scores across the board (GPA = 3.74, ACT = 27.22, USU Index = 121.51).

Of the 261 students accepted into the program, 103 declined their place due to a variety of reasons, but most commonly because they planned to attend another institution. The admissions process resulted in a first-year class for FY 2017-2018 of 158 students, of whom 29 deferred their enrollment (Table 4).

D. PROGRAMMING

Diversity of the pool of admissions applicants continued to be a challenge for Honors, with students who identified as URM or first generation making up only 8% and 5% of applicants, respectively (Table 4).

Honors also received 50 applications from current USU and transfer students last year. From this pool, 40 were admitted, with 38 accepting the offer. Interestingly, the percentage of URMs and first-generation students was significantly higher in this group (Table 4), suggesting that some of these students are identified by faculty as outstanding performers once they reach USU.

3. Orientation

As in previous years, Honors participated in Aggie Orientation throughout the summer, which included six events during FY 2017-2018. Each orientation event involved a morning session with an overview of the Honors Program for students and families by the director or staff, as well as an afternoon information booth at the Aggie Orientation Information Fair (Table 3) in the Taggart Student Center, which—in addition to engaging and orienting incoming honors students—also doubled as a recruiting event for students not yet admitted to the program. Although no data on the number of students and families engaged is available, we have begun tracking this information for FY 2018-2019.

4. Honors Connections

Honors collaborated with USU Connections to provide a meaningful transition-to-college experience for 106 incoming first-year honors students. We recruited five top honors faculty as instructors and—with the support of the Office of the Provost—were able to attach Undergraduate Teaching Fellows (UTF) to each of the five Honors Connections sections (Table 5).

5. Theme Housing: Honors House

Honors once again collaborated with USU Housing and Residence Life to provide theme housing for 96 honors students in Building C of the Living Learning Community complex. All floors are staffed by RAs who are also honors students and receive additional training from our program staff so they can more effectively engage with and support their honors residents.

6. Advising and Mentoring

The Honors Program's academic advisor, Lisa Hunsaker, took 952 half-hour advising appointments during FY 2017-2018, for a total of 476 hours or the equivalent of twelve 40-hour work weeks. Advising is required each semester for honors students to ensure that they remain in good standing with Honors and retain their early registration privileges. The distribution of appointments by month is shown in Figure 4. Not surprisingly, the bulk of advising takes place in late fall, as students prepare to register for spring classes, and in late spring, as students approach graduation and registration for the following fall semester. Nevertheless, it is noteworthy that advising is a year-round activity: even in June, our slowest month, the advisor had 21 appointments.

Significantly, the above figure underreports the actual number of advising appointments, since it does not include advising by peer advisors or by email. In FY 2018-2019, we will begin tracking the number of peer advising appointments to reflect more accurately the services we provide to our students.

7. Website

The Honors Program's website, honors.usu.edu, continues to be one of the key ways our program communicates with prospective students, participants, and stakeholders. In addition to providing a wealth of information about the mission and goals of the program, honors milestones, and student opportunities, the website highlights the achievements of our students and alumni and thus generates excitement for and positive attachment to our program. The website also serves as a portal for those submitting applications for admission, seeking leadership and funding opportunities, scheduling advising appointments, or requesting documentation of faculty work for promotion and tenure.

During FY 2017-2018, the honors website received 51,788 page views in 9,777 visits by 3,119 unique visitors, with an average session duration of 4:28 minutes. Most visitors accessed our website from a desktop device (77%), followed by mobile (20%) and tablet users (3%).

8. Development

During FY 2017-2018, the Honors Program worked with USU Advancement and Alumni Relations to send an electronic annual newsletter to all honors alumni. We set up electronic and paper options for donations to Honors on all web solicitations from USU. We also arranged luncheons and facilitated communication between honors student scholarship winners and the donors who supported them. During this fiscal year, Honors received 53 donations or gifts from 15 donors, totaling $11,895.

ACADEMIC PROGRAMS

The honors curriculum features a series of academic milestones that mark student achievements and progress toward honors graduation. These milestones include formal coursework, “Honors in Practice” academic projects, final capstone projects, and reflection upon academically oriented co-curricular events that students attend on campus and in the community.

9. Honors Courses

Honors Experience Seminars (USU General Education Breadth)—In FY 2017-2018, Honors funded the teaching of seven first-year experience seminars. Enrolling a total of 135 students, these courses met a range of USU General Education breadth requirements, including Humanities (BHU), Creative Arts (BCA), Social Sciences (BSS), Physical Sciences (BPS), and Life Sciences (BLS, Table 6). Specially selected by both the Honors Faculty and Student Advisory Boards as outstanding experiential learning opportunities, these classes featured hands-on interdisciplinary experiences for honors students. With enrollments capped at 25, the classes also allowed for meaningful interaction and mentoring between faculty and students. Overall, these courses were well-received, and Honors will offer each course twice more over the next two years before calling for a new round of course proposals.

Honors Think Tanks (USU General Education Depth)—The Honors Faculty and Student Advisory Boards helped the program to select three interdisciplinary, team-taught Think Tank courses last year, and we offered the first one during FY 2017-18. This course met USU’s General Education requirements for both Depth Science (DSC) and Depth Humanities/Arts (DHA), as well as fulfilling USU’s Communications Intensive (CI) and Quantitative Intensive (QI) requirements (Table 6).

Departmental Honors Sections—In addition to courses taught by competitively selected honors faculty, students could take some honors-only sections of required courses in select majors (Table 7). These sections were offered by the departments of Biology, English, and Mathematics, as well as the College of Engineering. These sections had a combined enrollment of 180 students.

10. Honors in Practice

Honors Book Labs—These innovative labs offer faculty and honors students the opportunity to read and discuss books in small cross-disciplinary groups (no more than five students per lab). The labs meet four times for an hour per week in weeks two through five of each term. Faculty and students alike enjoy the flexibility to experiment and talk with people outside their disciplines about books of mutual interest, without grades or faculty evaluation of students. Faculty have led these labs as teams, taken field trips, invited guest speakers, or tied their labs to campus speaker series. Honors supports this high impact informal learning experience by hosting showcases that allow faculty to present their books and recruit students, purchasing books for all participants, and evaluating student reflections for honors points at the close of each round of labs. In FY 2017-2018, faculty from 14 academic departments and six colleges led 24 Book Labs attended by 114 students (Table 8). Both students and faculty express great satisfaction with this unprecedented educational opportunity.

D. PROGRAMMING

Honors Contracts—Contracts are honors milestones structured with work agreements between students, faculty, and the Honors Program. Every contract documents at least 20 hours of mentored experiential learning outside the classroom, and these experiences can include research, creative work, study abroad, internships, service projects, Honors Excel (graduate) courses taken with permission by honors undergraduates, and participation in the Honors Alumni Mentoring Program. During FY 2017-18, honors students completed 142 contracts, engaging with 96 USU faculty and 18 non-faculty, non-USU mentors in the process.

11. Honors Capstones

In FY 2017-18, Honors fine-tuned a one-credit capstone preparation course that allows students to study and reflect upon previous capstone projects in their disciplines, examine prior capstone proposals, draft an idea for their own projects, talk with peers about that idea, meet with faculty to develop the idea, and ultimately, submit capstone proposals in preparation for their final honors projects. This course served 49 students in FY 2017-2018.

To provide ongoing support to honors students working on their capstone projects, Honors instituted a capstone support group as an additional Canvas course during FY 2017-2018. Twice per semester, students were invited to a lunch event, which allowed program staff to facilitate conversations about the capstone process; student progress toward honors graduation; upcoming activities, plans, and next steps; as well as challenges and problems encountered in the final phase of their honors experience.

37 faculty mentored 43 honors students working on their capstone projects. Of this cohort, 38 students completed capstones and graduated with honors during FY 2018-2019 (Table A-1).

12. Co-curricular Events, including Last Lecture

270 honors students participated in, reflected on, and earned honors credit for attending co-curricular events on campus. Honors advertised 201 such events in its weekly co-curricular highlights email to students and hosted one major co-curricular event: the 42nd Annual Last Lecture. Dr. Brian McCuskey was chosen as the 2017

D. PROGRAMMING

Outstanding Honors Professor by a committee of USU honors students and asked to give what he imagined as a theoretical “last lecture” to students, faculty, and community members. Entitled “Alice vs. Sherlock: Which One Do You Trust?” the lecture staged what Dr. McCuskey called an “intellectual smackdown” between two seemingly different ways of thinking: the fantastic imagination of Alice in Wonderland and the rational deduction of Sherlock Holmes in London. The audience of approximately 300 was delighted to discover the similarities, rather than just the differences, between how these two literary characters think, and to consider the impact of those similarities on their own ways of thinking.

ENGAGEMENT, ENRICHMENT, AND COMMUNITY BUILDING

USU Honors strives to do more than administer an effective program and deliver desired outputs and outcomes. Thus, much of the Honors Program’s staff time and effort is devoted to activities that engage our participants, enrich the honors experience, and build community.

13. Weekly Events Email

In FY 2017-18, Honors generated 60 email campaigns, 30 for students and 30 for faculty, that we sent out via MailChimp. These weekly emails, sent each Monday morning, featured important program announcements and deadlines; summarized honors events and co-curricular activities across campus; and advertised office hours and contact information for program staff, peer advisors, and peer tutors.

The student email was sent to an average of 591 recipients and had a 59% open and a 6% click rate, which is over three times the industry average for mail campaigns of this nature. The faculty email went to an average of 358 recipients, getting a 34% open rate, about twice the industry average; the click rate was 2%, which is the industry average. Overall, the Honors Program’s weekly event emails reached 13,810 users and engaged a maximum of 1,182 at any given time.

14. Canvas Course Software

Honors instituted a program-wide Canvas course in FY 2017-2018, allowing students to upload work directly for the director’s evaluation and to track their honors points in real time. This change also allowed program staff to communicate in targeted ways with specific cohorts of honors students. The director’s evaluation of all student work in this Canvas course ensures that every honors learning experience is overseen by three faculty members: a project mentor, a Departmental Honors Advisor, and the Honors Program Director.

17. Donuts with the Director

Dr. Miller hosted one “Donuts with the Director” event each term this year, giving students the opportunity to ask questions, express concerns, and check in with program staff. These morning events took place on October 3, 2017, and January 24, 2018, and were attended by an average of 30 students.

D. PROGRAMMING

18. Honors Brain Break

Honors staff and the Honors Student Council organized a “brain break” during fall and spring semester finals weeks, encouraging students to stop by the office to take a break from studying with a snack and drink. The Spring Brain Break was also combined with the annual Thank-a-thon, which encourages honors students to show their appreciation to the faculty and staff who have made a difference in their lives by writing them thank-you note on cards designed by honors students and provided by the Honors Program.

19. Honors Graduation Celebration

Following the USU Honors Program’s 2018 Medallion Ceremony, Honors hosted a graduation dinner celebration at the Logan Golf and Country Club on May 3, 2018, which was attended by 19 of our graduates and their guests. In addition to hosting the dinner, staff and student volunteers facilitated games and gave away a number of door prizes at this fun annual celebration of our graduates.

20. Faculty-Student Socials

Honors held four faculty-student socials in FY 2017-2018: a fall opening social (August 30, 2017), a holiday social (December 6, 2017), a spring opening social (January 10, 2018), and a spring closing social (April 18, 2018). These well-attended, catered events drew an average of 85 guests, allowing honors students at different stages in the program to meet and interact, and to practice their social and professional networking skills with honors faculty from various disciplines.

21. Faculty Appreciation Social

To thank the many passionate and engaged USU faculty who make this program possible, Honors hosted a faculty appreciation dinner social at the Logan Golf and Country Club on April 25, 2018, from 4:30-6:30 p.m.

22. Annual Newsletter

As in previous years, the Honors Program generated an electronic “Year-in-Review” annual newsletter aimed at an audience of alumni and program stakeholders. The newsletter was emailed to 1,047 recipients and had a 39% open rate. Of that potential readership, 4% clicked on embedded links to access secondary content referenced in the newsletter. These metrics represent twice the industry standard for electronic mail campaigns.

PROFESSIONALIZATION

In addition to fostering students’ curiosity and equipping them with the academic skill to think critically and communicate clearly, Honors also strives to prepare students for the next steps in their educational or career paths. The comprehensive listing below attests to the importance of professionalization in the USU Honors Program experience. Anecdotal evidence suggests that these activities have been largely effective and are well received by students and faculty. Currently, their scope and direction are largely dictated by honors staff expertise and interests, and so this programming has grown organically, yet somewhat haphazardly, over time. A major goal for FY 2018-2019 will thus be the systematic organization of these various activities into a more strategic, purposeful, and comprehensive program.

23. Alumni Mentoring Program

For the third year in a row, Honors ran the Alumni Mentoring Program, pairing current honors students with successful alumni for a structured, curriculum-based mentoring and shared-learning experience. After receiving 60 expressions of interest from alumni, honors staff were able to match 40 students from all stages in the Honors Program (Figure 5) with 30 mentors—13 (43%) of them female—from different employment sectors and career stages (Figure 6). The program was once again very successful, as indicated by the positive tone of student reflections and the high (85%) completion rate. Perhaps more impressively, informal feedback from alumni mentors suggests that they considered the program to be of value and worth their time, with 77% returning for a fourth year during FY 2018-2019.

22. Meal with A Mentor

One of the cornerstones of an honors education at USU is the formation of deep and meaningful mentoring relationships between faculty and students. Last year, Honors supported this process by allowing students to nominate a faculty mentor whom they might join for a meal paid for by the Honors Program. The seven selected students were able to deepen their professional relationship with their mentors during one-on-one Honors-hosted lunches at the USU Skyroom restaurant.

23. Workshops

Former Honors Program Coordinator Mary Beth Barnes used her background in career services and student professionalization to conduct two professionalization workshops during October 2017: “Time Management Strategies,” and “Preparing for Career and Graduate School Fairs.”

24. National Scholarship Mentoring and Application Support

The Honors Program at USU coordinates support for student applicants to prestigious national scholarship programs (with the exception of international scholarships such as Fulbright and Boren, which are coordinated by the Office of Global Engagement). Honors faculty member Dr. David Peak once again conducted a Goldwater Scholarship “boot camp,” mentoring four students, one of whom eventually earned a Goldwater Honorable Mention. Honors Program director Dr. Kristine Miller also mentored Madeleine Waddoups to become a finalist for the Truman Scholarship.

25. Student Employment

Undergraduate Teaching Fellows (UTF)—With dedicated support from the Office of the Provost, Honors was once again able to attach UTFs to all of its courses. Eight honors students were selected and assigned to courses based on faculty recommendations (Table 9). In addition to the standard trainings for all USU employees, these students received valuable training, mentoring, and professional development in the areas of peer mentoring, instructional technology and Canvas, and identification of students of concern.

Peer Advisors—Honors matched dedicated support from the Office of the Provost to hire two peer advisors, Jessica Christensen and Holly Palmer. In addition to the standard trainings for all USU employees, these peer advisors received valuable mentoring, training, and professional development from the Honors Academic Advisor, Lisa Hunsaker, and kept regular office hours to assist in honors student advising and mentoring.

Peer Tutors—Honors provided professional development and training to three honors students by employing them as academic tutors in Mathematics/Statistics and Writing: Emmaline Davis (Mathematics, Fall 2017), Frost Mitchell (Mathematics, Fall 2017/Spring 2018), and Cassidy Gummersall (Writing, Fall 2017/Spring 2018).

26. Student Leadership

Honors Student Council (HSC)—Honors staff, particularly the honors advisor, Lisa Hunsaker, worked with and mentored nine honors student members of HSC during FY 2017-2018 (Table A-5). Participation in the HSC provided opportunities for emerging student leaders to practice teamwork and collaboration and to hone their motivational and leadership skills. The HSC also conducted a wealth of student programming, including an opening social (September 20, 2017), a corn maze visit (October 24, 2017), a “Friendsgiving” dinner in the Living and Learning Community (November 22, 2017), a Fall Brain Break (December 11-15, 2017), a Penny Wars competition benefiting Sub for Santa and the United Nations Foundation’s “Girl Up” campaign (December 2017 and March 2018), as well as the operation of an HSC Instagram account.

Honors Student Advisory Board (HSAB)—Honors contributed to the professional development of eight students (Table A-6), one from each USU college, by inviting them to serve on the HSAB, providing leadership opportunities that included participation with faculty in the honors admissions process for the Fall 2017 incoming class, the development of programming and events for honors students, consultation on the honors curriculum, and identification of key initiatives to engage Honors in the community.

Last Lecture Committee—Honors invited seven students to serve on the 43rd Annual Last Lecture Selection Committee (Table A-7). The committee was responsible for soliciting nominations for Outstanding Honors Professor of the Year from their fellow honors students, reviewing nominations, selecting finalists for interviews, conducting the interviews, and selecting the winner. This year's award went to Dr. Jeannie Johnson from the Department of Political Science in CHaSS.

27. Thank-a-thon

A recurring theme in the Honors Program's preparation of students for the next stage of their educational and career paths is an emphasis on the importance and power of showing appreciation. As in previous years, Honors held two Thank-a-thons during FY 2017-2018, encouraging students to write thank-you notes to faculty and staff members who made a difference in their lives. Each event, on average, generated 50 thank-you cards, which Honors distributed to their recipients on behalf of the students.

E. FUNDING

In FY 2017-2018, the USU Honors Program returned 22% of its budget to student participants in the form of scholarships and awards, research and study abroad funding, and miscellaneous academic and professionalization funding; the program also supported the development and teaching of honors courses by disbursing an additional 15% of total funds to honors faculty and their academic departments.

- $5,500 in scholarship and award funds to seven honors students
- 34 undergraduate research awards totaling ~$14,500 to 33 honors students
- 19 study abroad awards totaling $14,000
- Almost $8,000 in miscellaneous academic and professionalization funding to support mentoring, Book Lab, and scholarship interview experiences
- ~$20,000 in student wages, allowing honors students to gain professional experience as teaching fellows, peer mentors, peer advisors, peer tutors, and office assistants
- $44,500 in direct funding to academic departments to support honors faculty teaching and development of nine honors courses

1. Student Funding

Scholarships and Awards—Honors awarded $4,500 in scholarships through a competitive application and review process to five honors juniors and seniors (Table 10). Pono Sukanuma, a Spring 2018 honors graduate in Journalism and Communication Studies with a minor in International Studies, and Thomas Hill, a Spring 2018 honors graduate in Mathematics, each received the Joyce Kinkead Outstanding Honors Capstone Award, which carries a $500 cash prize.

Research Funding—Honors issued 34 research awards totaling $14,439.42 to 33 students to conduct research and to present the findings of their faculty-mentored capstone or Honors in Practice contract work (Table A-8). This total includes six URCO match awards (Table A-9).

Table 10. Honors scholarship and award recipients during FY 2017-2018.

Scholarship/Award	Amount	Recipient	Graduation Year/Major(s)
Helen B. Cannon Award	$1,000	Hannah Penner	'19/International Studies
Lawrence O. Cannon Award	$1,000	Rylee Jensen	'19/Wildlife Ecology and Management
Douglas D. Alder Scholarship	$1,000	A.J. Walters	'20/Biological Engineering, Cellular and Molecular Biology, Biochemistry
Elaine Alder Service Scholarship	$1,000	Luke Flynn	'18/Marketing, Economics, International Business
Joseph G. and Karen W. Morse Scholarship	$500	Jacob Caldwell	'19/Economics

Study Abroad Funding—Honors issued 19 awards totaling $14,000 to support global learning and engagement, service-learning, and research activities of honor students in Asia, Australia, Europe, and South America (Table A-10).

Miscellaneous Support—Honors provided $5,055 in funding for on-campus printing and copying to 1,011 students over two semesters; of that allocation, $1,154.35 was used. To support honors student participation in Honors Book Labs, Honors purchased books for 114 students for a total of $1,748.77. An additional $307.09 was used to fund the “Meal with a Mentor” program, allowing 12 students and their faculty mentors to network and get to know each other personally and professionally over lunch at the USU Skyroom. Finally, Honors provided $765.02 to support honors student Madeleine Waddoups’s travel to Phoenix, Arizona, as a Truman Scholarship finalist.

Student Wage Support—Honors contributed to the professional development of 16 honors students by offering them employment in our program. In total, Honors allocated $21,054.25, $19,712.40 of which was disbursed, to support two Honors Peer Advisors, two Honors Mathematics Tutors, an Honors Writing Tutor, and two Honors Office Assistants; to attach peer mentors to all five Honors Connections sections in Fall of 2017; and to attach UTFs to all nine honors courses during the Fall 2017 and Spring 2018 semesters (Table A-11).

2. Funding to Faculty and Departments

Honors supported the teaching of nine honors courses (four in fall and five in spring) with $40,500 (Table 6). In addition, five honors faculty received course-development funding of $1,000 per course in Fall 2017 (for a total of $5,000) for the creation of new Spring 2018 honors courses.

F. OUTPUTS, OUTCOMES, AND IMPACTS

In FY 2017-2018, honors students and faculty generated a large number of relevant outputs and outcomes fully or partially attributable to their participation in the USU Honors Program:

- 38 capstones deposited in electronic format in USU Libraries' Digital Commons.
- 35 presentations at national conferences, 11 peer-reviewed publications, and two miscellaneous original works by honors students and faculty.
- Honors students earned 403 national, university, college, or departmental awards and honors.
- Honors faculty earned 28 national, university, college, or departmental awards and honors.

IMPACTS

Honors outcomes and outputs are visible and easy to track; impacts can be harder to discern because they turn Honors Program innovations into normal modes of operation. One such impact this year was the use of the Honors Alumni Mentoring Program as a model for a university-wide alumni mentoring experience. The Honors Director collaborated with members of a USU Advancement and Alumni Relations committee, sharing best practices from the Honors Alumni Mentoring Program, which was in its third successful year. The aim was to create an event, and ideally an ongoing mentoring relationship, that would help give direction and inspiration to struggling USU juniors and seniors. The program served 31 students and involved 14 USU alumni mentors, and they are currently planning its second year with further collaboration from Honors.

Honors also worked to change section 405 of USU faculty code to include “Honors or other independent study work” as evidence of teaching excellence for the purposes of promotion and tenure. The program developed an Honors Faculty Role template, available upon request and familiar to members of USU’s central promotion and tenure committee, that lists in standardized form a faculty member’s complete record of honors teaching/mentoring and service for the purposes of promotion and tenure. This formal recognition of faculty work with honors students at USU has become a model for other areas at the university: the Center for Community Engagement, for example, is in the process of creating similar documentation as part of USU’s upcoming application for the institutional Carnegie Community Engagement classification. USU has also become a model in this area for several colleges and universities who participate in the National Collegiate Honors Council, based on presentations by USU’s Honors Program Director.

12.11 Nominating Committee

(1) Duties

The duties of the Nominating Committee (1) coordinate with the Senate Executive Secretary to identify qualified President-Elect candidates; (2) seek nominations from the senate floor during the 1st April Senate Meeting (402.10.3); (3) prepare a slate of Faculty-Senate President-Elect candidates; (4) submit a Nominating Committee report to the Faculty Senate at the 2nd April/May meeting; (5) assist with voting and tabulation of ballots.

(2) Membership

The Nominating Committee will be Chaired by the Past-President of Faculty Senate and consist of three elected faculty senators serving one-year terms.

Original Code:

403.3.1 Standards of Conduct - Faculty Responsibilities to Student

(1) Faculty members engage in reasonable and substantial preparation for the teaching of their courses, appropriate to the educational objectives to be achieved and consistent with the standards of the discipline.

(2) Faculty members meet scheduled classes. Schedules are altered or classes canceled only for valid reasons and only after adequate notice is given to students and the faculty member's direct academic supervisor. Failure to meet a class without prior notice to students is excusable only for reasons beyond the control of the faculty member.

(3) Faculty members shall select course requirements based on the legitimate pedagogical goals of the course and discipline, and inform students of the general content and evaluation criteria in the syllabus or comparable documentation at the beginning of any course they teach. Faculty members evaluate student course work promptly, conscientiously, without prejudice or favoritism, and consistently with the criteria stated at the beginning of the course in the course documentation and related to the legitimate pedagogical goals of the course. The documentation for the course should identify, to the extent possible, the writings, lectures, films, presentations, performances, or other course requirements in sufficient detail to allow the student to identify requirements that may conflict with the student's sincerely held core beliefs. Faculty will not always be able to predict in advance requirements that may conflict with the sincerely held core beliefs of a given student or group of students. If conflicts arise, Procedures for Alternative Course Requirements due to Conflicts with Sincerely Held Core Beliefs (403.4) provides guidance to students and faculty for the resolution of conflicts.

(4) Faculty members with teaching responsibilities maintain regular office hours for consultation with students, or they otherwise assure accessibility to students.

(5) Faculty members do not plagiarize the work of students. When faculty members and students work together, appropriate credit is given to the students. Faculty members do not limit or curtail the right of any student to publish or otherwise communicate the result of the student's own independent scholarly activities.

(6) Faculty members do not use their positions and authority to obtain uncompensated labor or to solicit gifts or favors from students. Faculty members do not ask students to perform services unrelated to legitimate requirements of a course unless the student is adequately compensated for such services.

(7) Faculty members do not reveal matters told to them in confidence by students except as required by law, and then only to persons entitled to such information by law or institutional regulation. Faculty members may, however, report their assessment of a student's performance and ability to persons logically and legitimately entitled to receive such reports.

(8) Faculty members create and maintain environments in which students are provided the opportunity to do original thinking, research, and writing.

(9) Faculty members avoid the misuse of the classroom by preempting substantial portions of class time for the presentation of views on topics unrelated to the subject matter of the course. Faculty members do not reward agreement or penalize disagreement with his or her views on controversial topics.

(10) Faculty members do not engage in the sexual harassment of students (policy 407.9).

403.3.2 Standards of Conduct - Professional Obligations

(1) Faculty members do not plagiarize nor do they permit the appearance that they are the author of work done by others.

(2) Faculty members do not falsify data either by deliberate fabrication or selective reporting with the intent to deceive.

(3) Faculty members do not misappropriate other's ideas.

(4) Faculty members do not misuse privileged or otherwise confidential information.

(5) Faculty members exercise "reasonable care" (policy 403.3.5) in meeting their obligations to their associates when they are engaged in joint research or other professional effort.

(6) Faculty members do not exploit their positions for personal or pecuniary gain when supervising the professional work of others. Research for pecuniary return should be conditional upon disclosure to and consent of the vice president for research and dean of the school of graduate studies.

(7) Faculty members exercise "reasonable care" (policy 403.3.5) in meeting their commitments to the institution and to funding agencies where appropriate in research, publication, or other professional endeavors.

(8) Faculty members keep informed and knowledgeable about developments in their fields.

(9) Faculty members do not engage in the sexual harassment of other faculty members or any employee of the university (policy 407.9).

Original Code:

407.11.2 Inquiry into Allegations of Violation of Policies 407.8 and/or 407.9

(1) Purpose.

An inquiry into allegations of violation of Policies 407.8 and/or 407.9 shall determine from review of factual evidence whether the initiation of actions described in Policies 407.1 through 407.4 is warranted. The purpose of the inquiry is to establish whether there is a reasonable basis for believing that the alleged violation of this policy has occurred.

(2) Notification of faculty member.

Within 10 days of the decision to hold an inquiry, the provost shall notify the faculty member in writing, return receipt requested, of the specific allegations filed against him/her and the procedures described in this policy regarding the inquiry.

(3) Membership of the inquiry panel.

The inquiry will be conducted by a panel of three faculty members, including two chosen by the chair of the Academic Freedom and Tenure Committee from the membership of that committee or from the Faculty Senate at large, and one to be chosen by the provost. Each member of the inquiry panel shall be impartial and shall be removed and replaced if there are any real or apparent conflicts of interest. Not all members of the inquiry panel shall be of the same sex.

(4) Inquiry panel deliberations.

In conducting the inquiry, the inquiry panel may interview the complainant, the accused, and other persons believed to have pertinent factual knowledge. At all times, the inquiry panel will take steps to ensure confidentiality. The inquiry will afford the accused a full opportunity to respond to the allegations.

The inquiry panel must review the allegations and provide a written report of its findings within 20 days after the provost's notification to the accused. The inquiry panel will review the evidence relating to the allegations and determine whether or not actions as described in Policies 407.1 through 407.4 are warranted.

(5) Inquiry panel report.

The written report of the inquiry panel shall be submitted to the provost. If the report recommends proceedings to take actions described in Policies 407.1 through 407.4, the provost shall forward a recommendation to the president to initiate such proceedings, and will so notify the complainant and the accused. If the inquiry panel report indicates that the allegations are unsupported, the provost shall so notify the complainant and the accused. The outcomes of the inquiry are either a judgment that the allegations are not warranted or the recommendation of actions described in Policies 407.1 through 407.4.

Original Code:

407.11.3 Protection of Complainant and Others

(1) Consent of complainant.

Inquiries will be initiated only with the complainant's consent. The complainant will be informed fully of steps taken during the inquiry.

(2) Protection of witnesses.

All reasonable measures will be taken to assure that the complainant and all others testifying before the hearing panel will suffer no retaliation as the result of their activities in regard to the process. Steps to avoid retaliation might include: (a) lateral transfers of one or more of the parties in an employment setting and a comparable move if a classroom setting is involved, and (b) arrangements that academic and/or employment evaluations concerning the complainant or others be made by an appropriate individual other than the accused, and/or (c) temporary suspension with full pay pending final disposition.

In extraordinary circumstances, after consulting the chair of the Academic Freedom and Tenure Committee, the provost may, at any time during or after an inquiry into a sexual harassment complaint, recommend to the president the suspension with pay of any faculty member or teaching assistant accused of sexual harassment if, after reviewing the allegations and interviewing the accused, the complainant, and, if it seems appropriate, others, the provost finds that it is reasonably certain that the alleged sexual harassment has occurred and serious and immediate harm will ensue if the person continues to work.
