Dr. James Silver

University, Mississippi

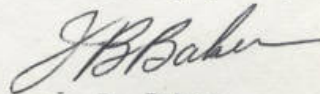

Dear Dr. Silver:

A few days ago a lady brought me some old books that I thought might be of interest to you.

There are two volumes of speeches by John C. Calhoun, delivered in the House of Representatives and the Senate of the United States. These books are edited by Richard K. Cralle and were published by D. Appleton and Company of New York in 1854. I also have a book which contains the works of John C. Calhoun, Volume I, a book containing speeches of John C. Calhoun, and another book containing public letters of John C. Calhoun. All of these books being published by D. Appleton and Company in 1857. Also, I have a book containing the life and speeches of Henry Clay, published by Leary and Getz of Philadelphia in 1857.

These books are in my office and I have no need for them. I had no idea whether you would be interested in them or not, but if you are, I will be glad to give them to you.

Sincerely yours,

J. B. Baker,
Superintendent
