Dear Dr. Silver:

If you would be agreeable, I'd like to come over the first week in February so that we could talk the day before classes resume and I could then look around the campus and audit your class on opening day of the semester. I don't, of course, know what day school starts. I explained your scheduling problems to Morris Rubin of The Progressive and he has re-scheduled the piece from the March to the April issue of the magazine. That would, I believe, mean a late-February deadline so any time in early February would be fine with me if the first week proved a bad time. Will I need clearance from the University administration to be on campus?

Very truly yours,

Patrick J. Owens
