Dear Jim:

When I complied with your request for comments on your paper, I knew that I was taking the chance that any critic takes when he gives a frank criticism - but I thought that might be what you wanted.

Let me assure you that I have no desire to edit your paper or curb your freedom of expression. I am sorry you seem to feel that my closeness to the industry disqualifies me as a competent critic, and that you consider me unnecessarily "touchy" in my effort to acquaint you with the facts.

With best wishes, I am

Yours very truly,
