Dear Mr. Meredith:

We have not your courage or fortitude, but we do have the grace to salute you.

The whole world acclaims the feat of an astronaut, but how many cheer the quiet dedication of one who is testifying to the dignity of man, and his right to higher education in the institution of his choice?

We shrivel at all the hostility and hatred which surrounds you, at your loneliness, and yet we know that as you walk the corridors of "ole Miss" you are being sustained by the knowledge that your stand is not for James H. Meredith alone, but for all peoples.

Most sincerely,

Charles and Gertrude Armitage
