

1960

Firm tax committee meets in Denver

Donald C. Wiese

Follow this and additional works at: https://egrove.olemiss.edu/dl_tr

Part of the Accounting Commons, and the Taxation Commons

Recommended Citation

Quarterly, Vol. 06, no. 3 (1960, September), p. 25

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Deloitte Collection at eGrove. It has been accepted for inclusion in Touche Ross Publications by an authorized administrator of eGrove. For more information, please contact egrove@olemiss.edu.

What do tax men discuss at lunch? Apparently William Carson's remarks were appreciated by (left to right) Leroy E. Schadlich, Richard G. Shuma, James F. Pitt, Carleton H. Griffin, Donald C. Wiese, Charles Bucy, Wallace M. Jensen, Durwood L. Alkire, and Arthur Samelson. Mr. Carson, arms folded, is at right.

Firm Tax Committee Meets in Denver

by Donald C. Wiese

A meeting of the firm's tax committee was held June 13-14 in Denver. The committee includes Wallace M. Jensen, chairman, Durwood L. Alkire, William K. Carson, James F. Pitt and Leroy E. Schadlich. They met to develop firm policies with respect to tax matters, to discuss research, to disseminate ideas for tax planning to all the firm and to set up policies for training tax personnel.

The committee meets once a year in a formal meeting such as this one. In the past two years these meetings have been held in Chicago and Detroit, but Denver was chosen to give the people at this new office a chance to meet the committee and discuss any problems they might have.

In addition to the subjects mentioned above, the committee also planned the regional tax meetings to be held this fall and talked over recent legislation in the area of travel and entertainment expenses.