

University of Mississippi

eGrove

Clippings

James W. Silver Collection

December 2018

Biting Hard [sic] That Butters His Bread

N. S. Brown

Follow this and additional works at: https://egrove.olemiss.edu/jws_clip

Recommended Citation

Brown, N. S., "Biting Hard [sic] That Butters His Bread" (2018). Clippings. 176.

https://egrove.olemiss.edu/jws_clip/176

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the James W. Silver Collection at eGrove. It has been accepted for inclusion in Clippings by an authorized administrator of eGrove. For more information, please contact egrove@olemiss.edu.

OUR READERS' VIEWPOINT

PLEASE SIGN YOUR NAME—KEEP LETTERS BRIEF

nose into the business of the state.

This person who holds out his hand for Mississippi's money and then stabs her in the back — according to the February issue of the New Mexico Electric News — has been peddling his trash in that publication.

Following are a few excerpts from a letter received from a citizen of New Mexico who was incensed at his sorry behavior. I quote:

"Who is this James Silver? This is the best of a series of articles he has written for this magazine. That is, it is the least anti-Southern pro-NAACP and even it sounds like a Bobby Kennedy piece.

"Hate to think of modern car-petbaggers drawing Mississippi taxpayers money.

"Didn't know if you knew he was publishing this series of articles in a New Mexico publication."

The byline of the article referred to was James W. Silver, Professor of History, University of Mississippi.

Why do we have individuals like this, and others of his ilk, teaching our youth?

Well, if we consider the recent actions of the conspicuously vocal Thomas Tubb and his Board of Institutions of Higher Learning we will have the answer to this question.

It now becomes imperative that our citizens — in order to preserve the integrity of our state, the morals, the physical, mental and spiritual well-being of our youth — must elect officials who will initiate legislation to change the present method of control of our educational institutions.

This board was apprised fully three years ago of the efforts of certain members of the "Ole Miss" faculty to create a climate agreeable to acceptance of racial integration of that institution and irrefutable proof was furnished, along with the names of faculty members responsible. But what did this board do about it?

They whitewashed the changes in spite of the evidence before them, thereby giving these persons the green light to continue their activities. The entire state of Mississippi is now suffering from the action of this board and her citizens should demand their resignation.

The history of schools that have been wrecked and ruined by agitators for racial integration documents the fact that these deplorable tragedies have been brought about through the aid of the board of education, school superintendents, and faculty members who have betrayed the trust placed in them.

According to reports coming out of Oxford, a more suitable title for this person who calls

Biting Hard That Butters His Bread

Editor, Daily News — An "Ole Miss" Professor whose bread is buttered by Mississippi taxpayers, but who is widely known for his anti-Mississippi propaganda and who has the despicable habit of running around and biting the hand that feeds him, used the columns of your excellent paper on March 20th, to stick his himself a "Professor of History" would be — Wet-Nurse for Bobby Kennedy's Black Boy.

N. S. Brown
Box 10181
Jackson, Miss.