DURHAM, NH – On the eve of the New Hampshire primary, Vermont Senator Bernie Sanders's slim lead over former South Bend (IN) Mayor Pete Buttigieg among likely Democratic voters is holding in the high single digits. Former Vice President Joe Biden and Massachusetts Senator Elizabeth Warren are vying for third. There has been little movement over the past six days, with support for each candidate within two percentage points of where each began. Minnesota Senator Amy Klobuchar seems to have benefitted most from the Democratic debate on February 7, but she remains in fifth place. Half of likely Democratic voters still have not definitely decided whom to support.

These findings are based on the latest CNN 2020 New Hampshire Primary Poll, conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center. Seven hundred five (705) randomly selected New Hampshire adults were interviewed in English by landline and cellular telephone between February 6 and February 9, 2020. The margin of sampling error for the survey is +/- 3.7 percent. Included in the sample were 365 likely 2020 Democratic Primary voters (margin of sampling error +/- 5.1 percent) and 212 likely 2020 Republican Primary voters (margin of sampling error +/- 6.7 percent). Trend points prior to July 2019 reflect results from the Granite State Poll, conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center.

2020 Democratic Primary

Despite voting in the New Hampshire presidential primary beginning in less than twenty-four hours, there remains considerable uncertainty among likely Democratic primary voters as to whom they will vote for; half (50%) say they have definitely decided, largely unchanged compared to the two previous polling periods (Feb 4-7 & Feb 5-8). Twenty-one percent say they are leaning towards someone, while 28% say they are still trying to decide. Among likely Democratic primary voters, registered Democrats (52%) and voters who are registered as undeclared (48%) are about equally likely to say they have definitely decided.

* We ask that this copyrighted information be referred to as the CNN 2020 New Hampshire Primary Poll, conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center.

If the 2020 New Hampshire Democratic primary were held today, 29% of likely primary voters say they would vote for Sanders, 22% would vote for Buttigieg, 11% would vote for Biden, and 10% would vote for Warren. Seven percent would vote for Klobuchar, 5% would vote for Hawaii Congresswoman Tulsi Gabbard, and 4% would vote for entrepreneur Andrew Yang. One percent say they would vote for businessman Tom Steyer, and less than 1% each would vote for former New York Mayor Michael Bloomberg or Colorado Senator Michael Bennet. One percent say they would vote for another candidate while 10% of likely Democratic primary voters say they are undecided.

Compared to the period from February 5-8, support for Warren (+1.2 percentage points) has increased very slightly while support for Biden (-1.1) has very slightly declined. Overall, results have remained quite stable over the three most recent survey periods, with support for each candidate remaining within two percentage points of where they began during the February 4-7 polling period.
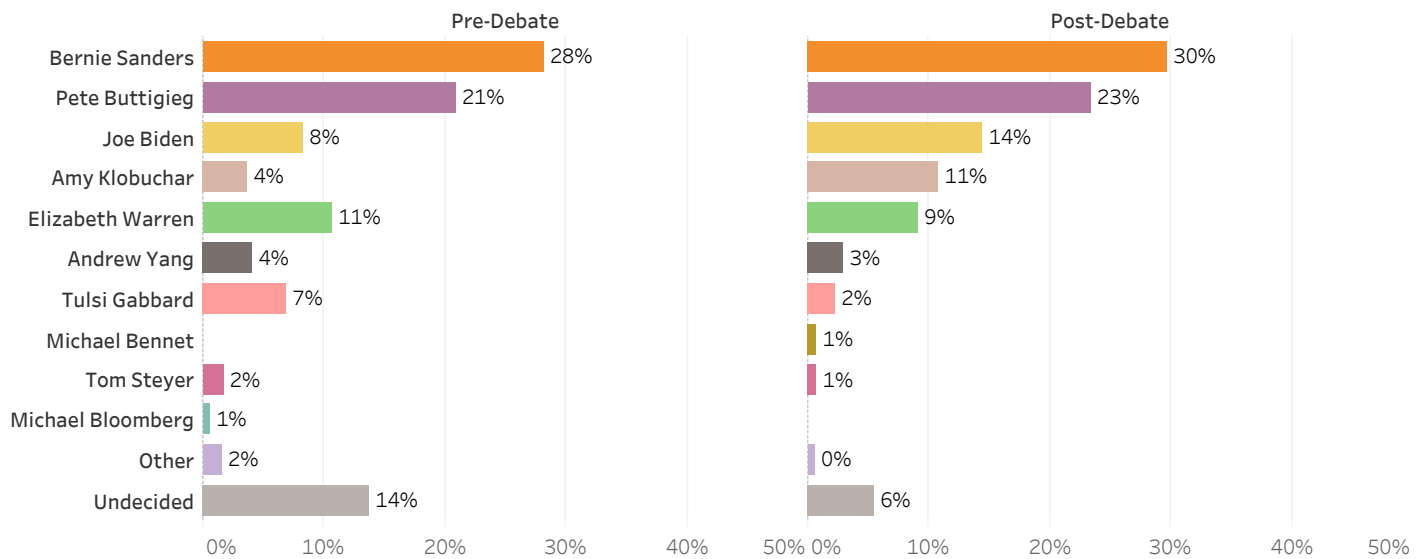

Preferred Democratic 2020 Presidential Nomination Candidate - October 2017 to February 6-9, 2020
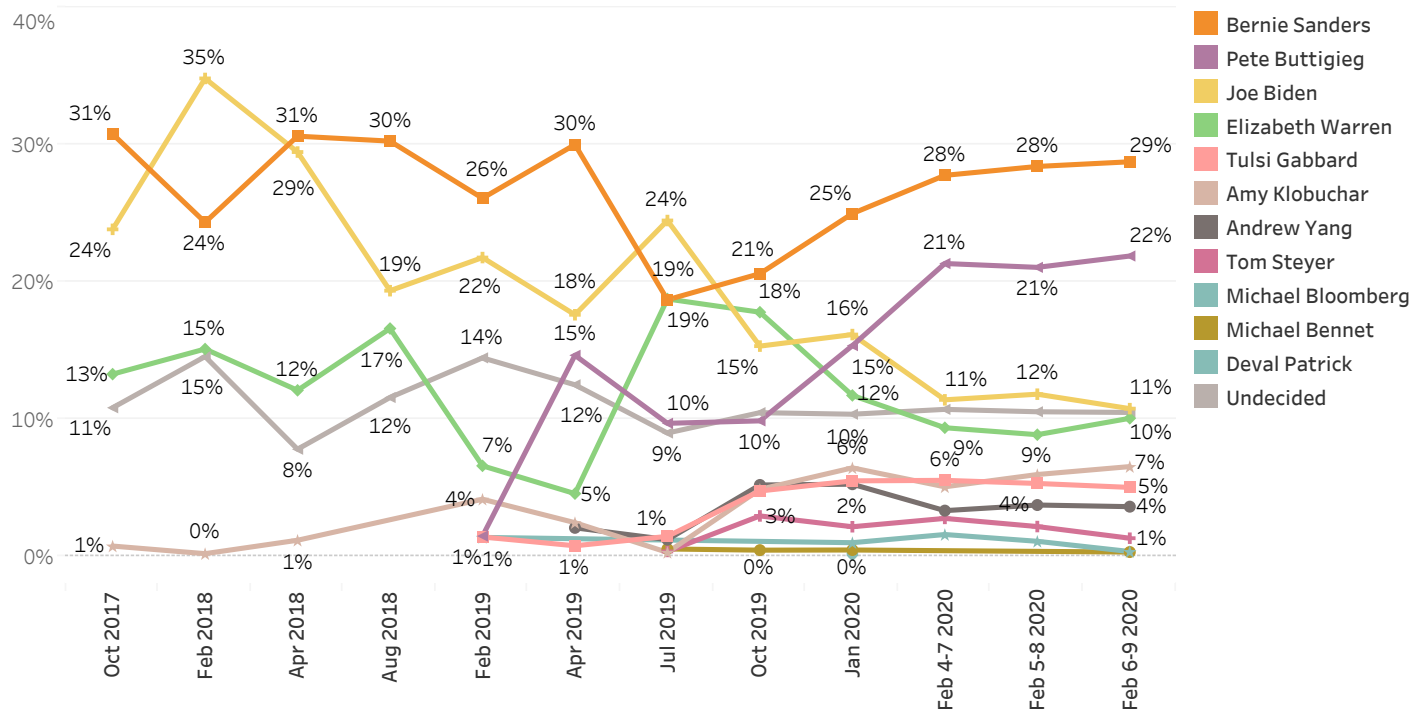

Because Michael Bloomberg is not running in the New Hampshire primary, his name was not included in the list of candidates who were read aloud. However, responses from those who volunteered Bloomberg as their choice are included. Deval Patrick was included in the read list of candidates but did not receive support from any respondents.

Seven leading Democratic candidates met for a debate in Manchester, New Hampshire, on February 7. Klobuchar (+7.1 percentage points) and Biden (+6.8) have experienced a good deal greater support in the two days after the debate than they did in the two days leading up to the debate, while Buttigieg (+2.5) and Sanders (+1.5) have seen smaller increases in support after the debate. Gabbard (-4.6) and Warren (-1.6) meanwhile have fared slightly worse since the debate.

Among likely Democratic voters who are self-described liberals, 39% support Sanders, 21% support Buttigieg, 16% support Warren, 7% support Biden, and 5% support Klobuchar. Support for Sanders among this group has declined by six percentage points since the period from February 5-8 while support for Warren (+2.4) has slightly increased.

Among self-described moderates and conservatives, 23% support Buttigieg, 19% support Sanders, 14% support Biden, and 8% each support Klobuchar or Gabbard. While support for Sanders has slightly declined among liberals, his support among moderates and conservatives has increased such that he now challenges Buttigieg among this group. Biden, who in January was tied with Buttigieg among this group, now sits in third behind Buttigieg as well as Sanders.

Preferred Democratic Candidate by Ideology - February 6-9, 2020

Support for Sanders continues to be highly concentrated among younger voters, particularly female voters under the age of thirty-five, though he has lost ground among this group since the February 5-8 period. Sanders also leads the field among men aged thirty-five to forty-nine and has increased his share of support among this group by seven percentage points since the last polling period.

Buttigieg's support continues to be more balanced; he leads the field among women aged fifty to sixty-four and closely trails Sanders among men aged fifty to sixty-four and women thirty-five to forty-nine. However, Buttigieg remains a distant second to Sanders among women under thirty-five and men under fifty.

Biden now leads the field among men and women aged sixty-five and older, but elsewhere Biden enjoys very little support. Support for Klobuchar has increased since the February 5-8 period but her supporters are even more concentrated than Biden's among voters fifty and older, particularly women sixty-five and over.

Sanders continues to lead Buttigieg among men and women without a college degree, with Biden and Warren trailing among both groups. Buttigieg continues to lead among women with a college degree or more education but trails Sanders among men with a college degree or more. Klobuchar's support is more than twice as high among men and women with a college degree than among those without a college degree.

Warren continues to lead when respondents are asked for their second choice. Twenty percent say they would support Warren as their second choice, 15% would support Sanders, 14% would support Buttigieg, and 9% each would support Klobuchar or Biden. Fewer respondents say their second choice would be Gabbard (6%), Yang (6%), Steyer (4%), Bloomberg (2%), Bennet (1%), former Massachusetts Governor Deval Patrick (1%), or someone else (2%). Six percent say they are undecided while 5% say they don't have a second choice.

Second Choice for Democratic 2020 Presidential Nomination - February 2019 to February 6-9, 2020
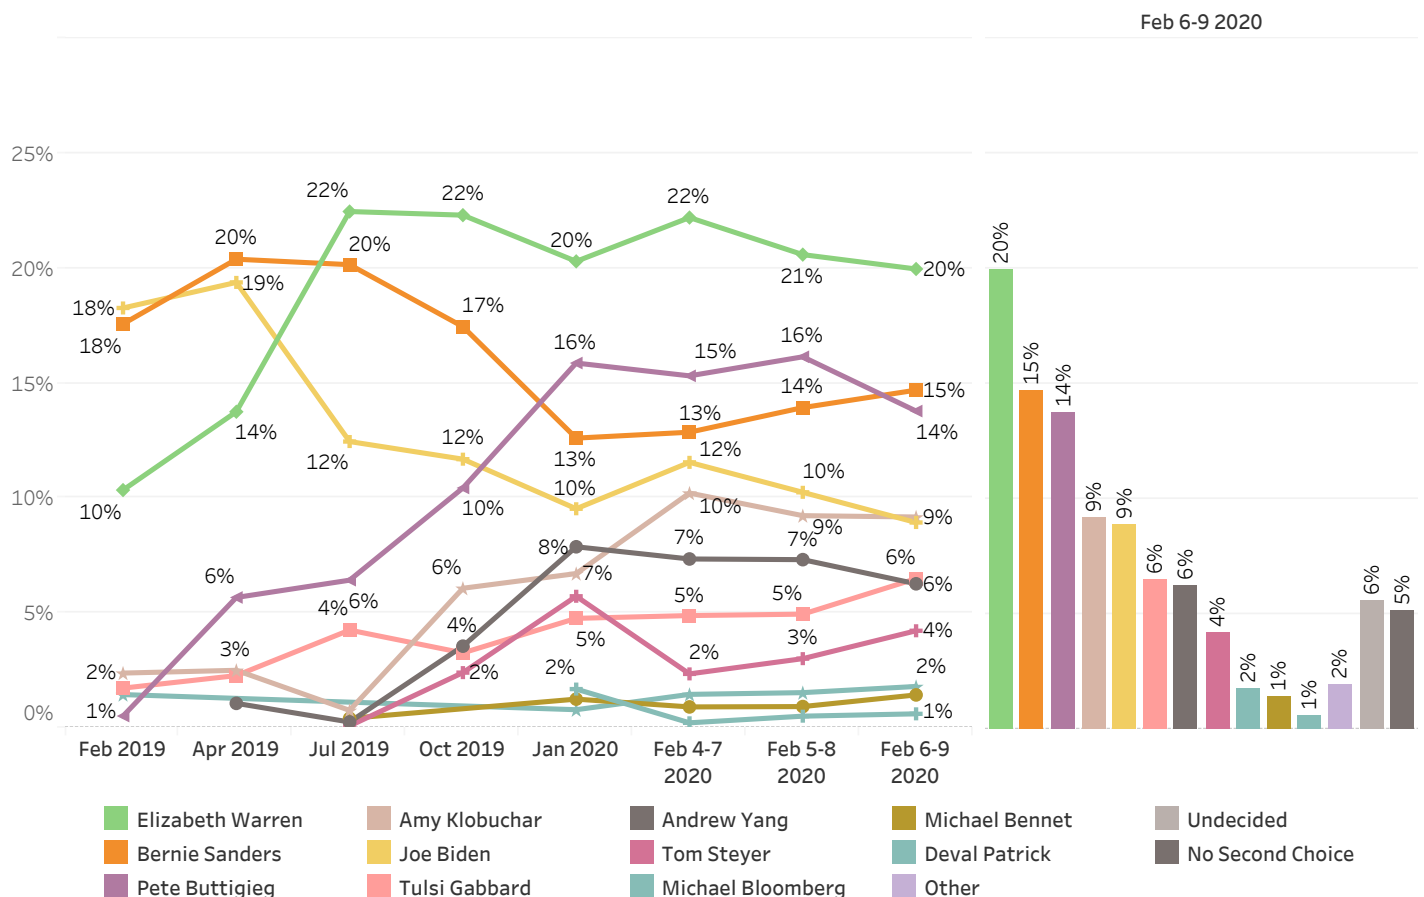

A plurality of Sanders supporters (40%) continue to say Warren is their second choice, while 14% would support Buttigieg and 5% would support Biden. In January, nearly half of Warren supporters selected Sanders as their second choice, but now only 18% say so, as Klobuchar (28%) and Buttigieg (27%) have supplanted Sanders as the second choice for many Warren supporters.

However, a plurality of Buttigieg supporters (28%) say Sanders is their second choice, slightly up since the previous polling period. Nineteen percent would pick Biden as their second choice, 16% would select Warren, and 11% would pick Klobuchar. Among Biden supporters, 23% say Buttigieg is their second choice, 19% pick Klobuchar, 17% would pick Warren, and 11% would select Sanders. Buttigieg (30%) is also the leading second choice for Klobuchar supporters, though he has lost ground as the second choice for this group since the previous polling period.

Second Choice for Democratic 2020 Nomination by First Choice - February 6-9, 2020
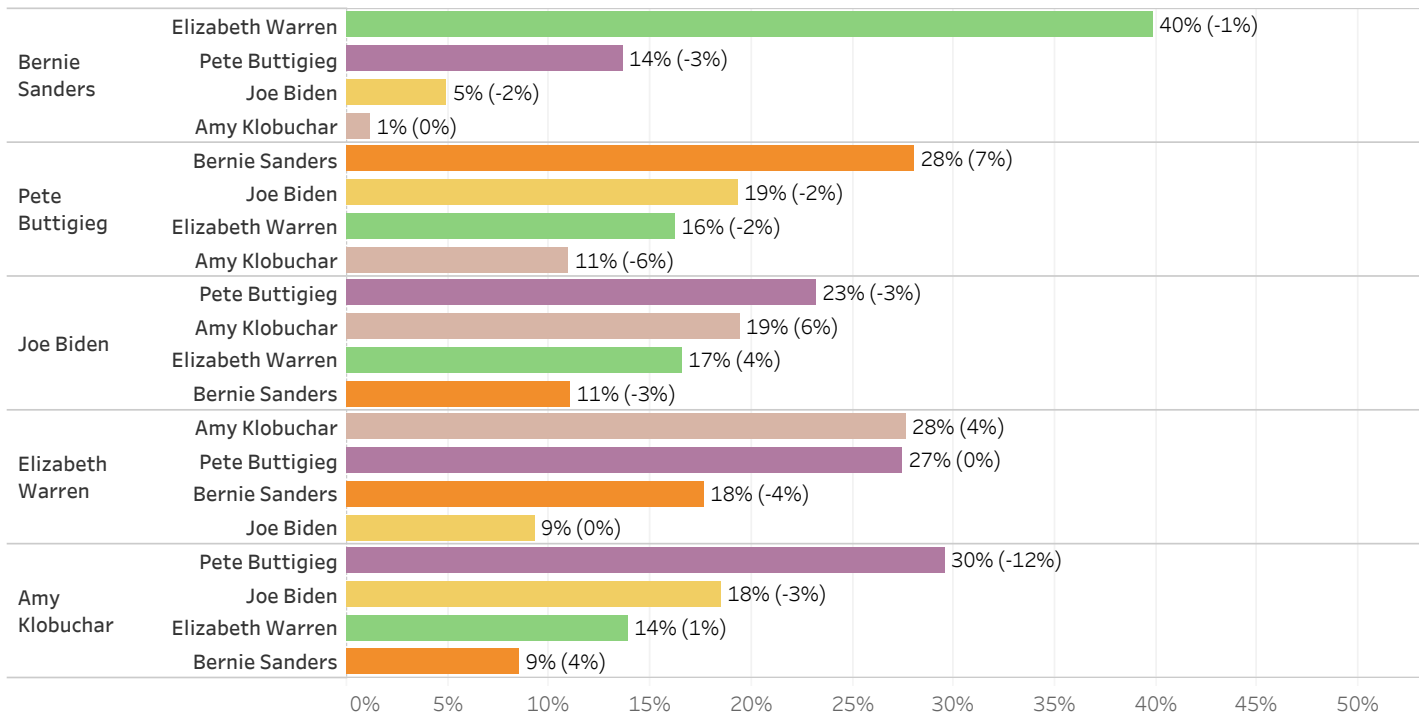

Among the top-five candidates in New Hampshire, Sanders supporters are most likely to say they have definitely decided whom they will vote for. Three-quarters (75%) of Sanders supporters say they have definitely decided, while just over two-thirds of Biden (68%) supporters say the same. Warren (50%), Klobuchar (47%), and Buttigieg (42%) supporters are less likely to say they have definitely decided whom they will vote for. This suggests that support for Buttigieg and Klobuchar could decline, as less than half of their supporters have definitely decided on them, but they could also gain support, as they are the second choice candidate for many voters who are still deliberating on whom to support.

Definitiveness of Decision by Preferred Candidate - February 6-9, 2020
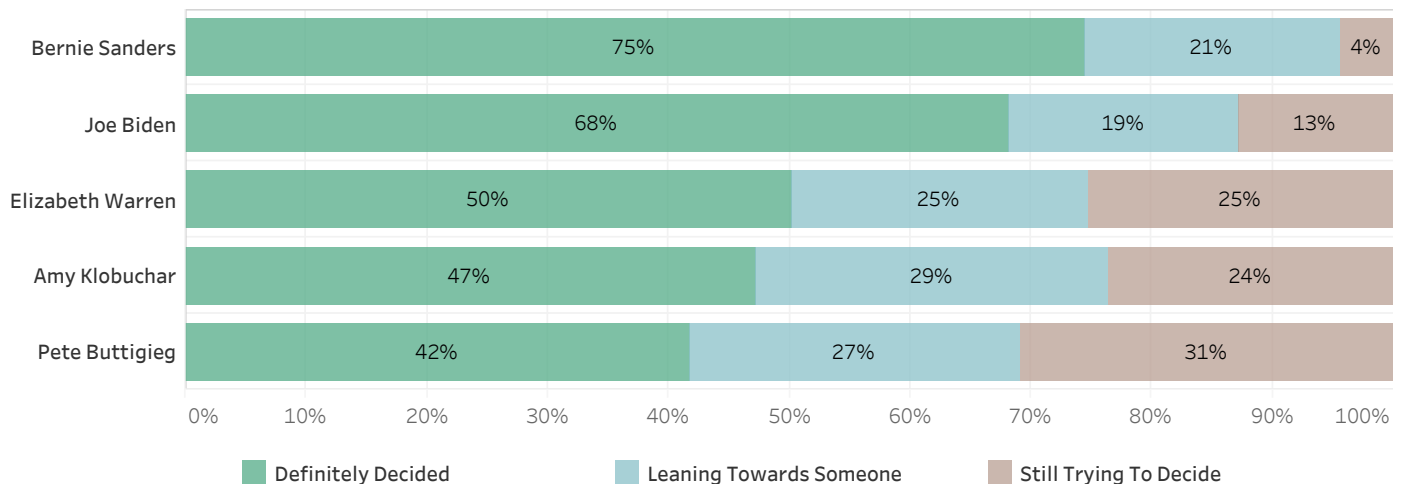

When asked which candidate they would not support under any circumstances, 26% of likely Democratic voters say that all of the candidates are acceptable to them. Seventeen percent say that they would not under any circumstances vote for Biden, 13% would not vote for Warren, 9% would not vote for Gabbard, and 8% would not vote for Sanders. Fewer likely voters say they would not vote for Steyer (5%), Buttigieg (4%), Yang (2%), Bennet (2%), Klobuchar (1%), Patrick (1%), Bloomberg (1%), or another candidate (<1%). Ten percent don't know or are unsure whom they wouldn't vote for under any circumstances.

Would Not Vote For Candidate Under Any Circumstances - February 2019 to February 6-9, 2020
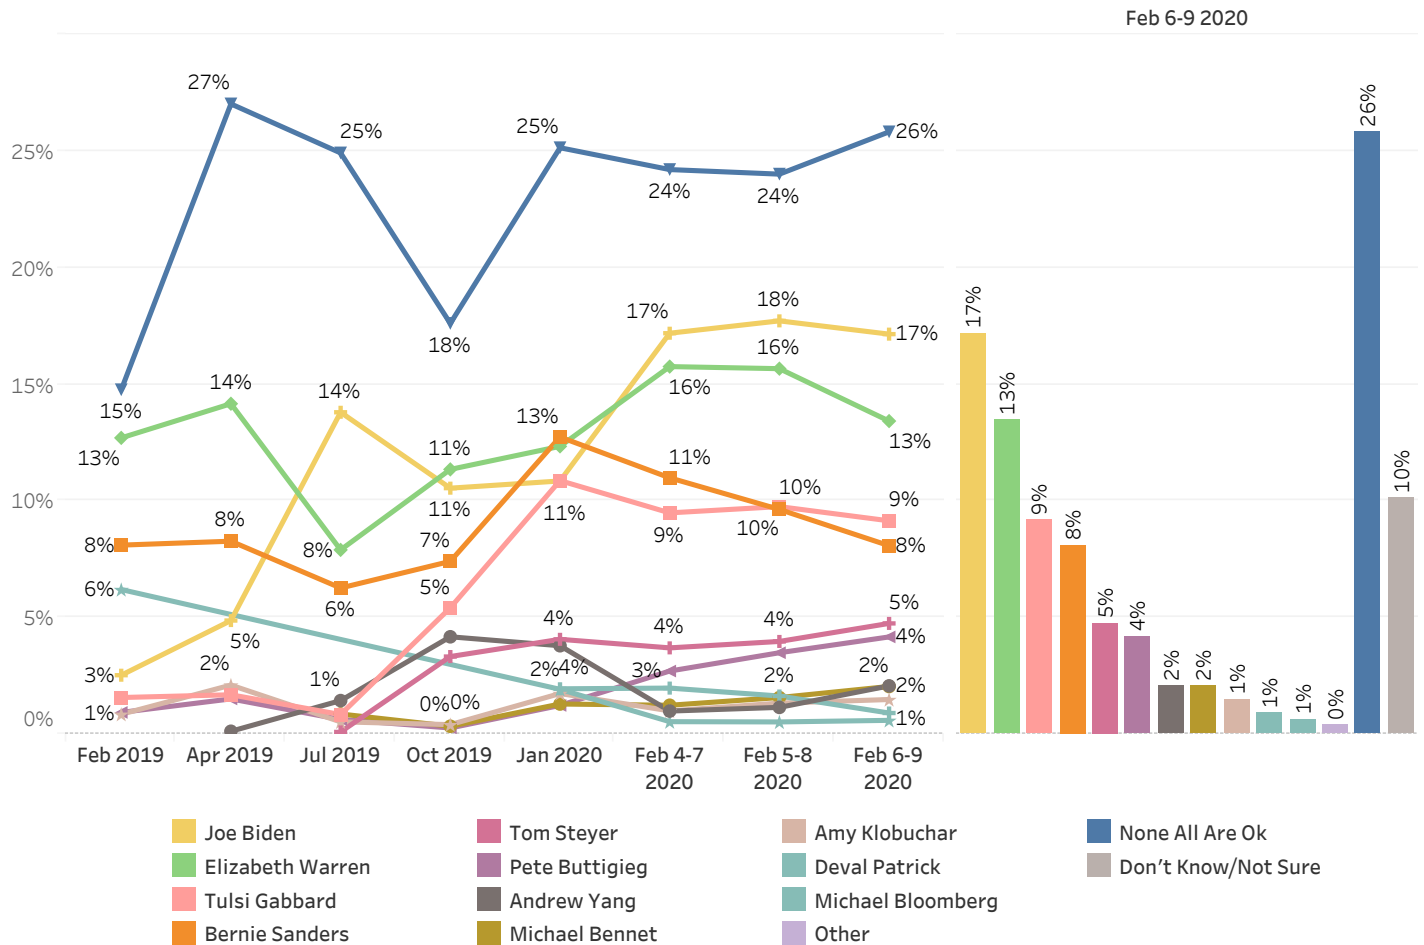

The percentage of likely Democrats who say that all of these candidates are acceptable to them has slightly increased compared to the period from February 5-8. Slightly fewer respondents than in that polling period say they would not vote for Sanders or Warren.

Best Chance to Win in November

Thirty percent of likely Democratic New Hampshire primary voters think that Sanders has the best chance to win the general election in November, while 22% think Biden has the best chance to win the general election. Biden had held a clear lead on this question from July 2019 until January but is now eight percentage points behind Sanders. Thirteen percent meanwhile believe Buttigieg has the best chance.

Fewer likely voters think that Warren (6%), Klobuchar (3%), Bloomberg (2%), Gabbard (1%), Steyer (1%), Patrick (1%), Yang (<1%), Bennet (<1%), or someone else (<1%) is most likely to win the general election, while 21% don't know or are unsure.

Candidate With Best Chance to Win General Election - February 2019 to February 6-9, 2020
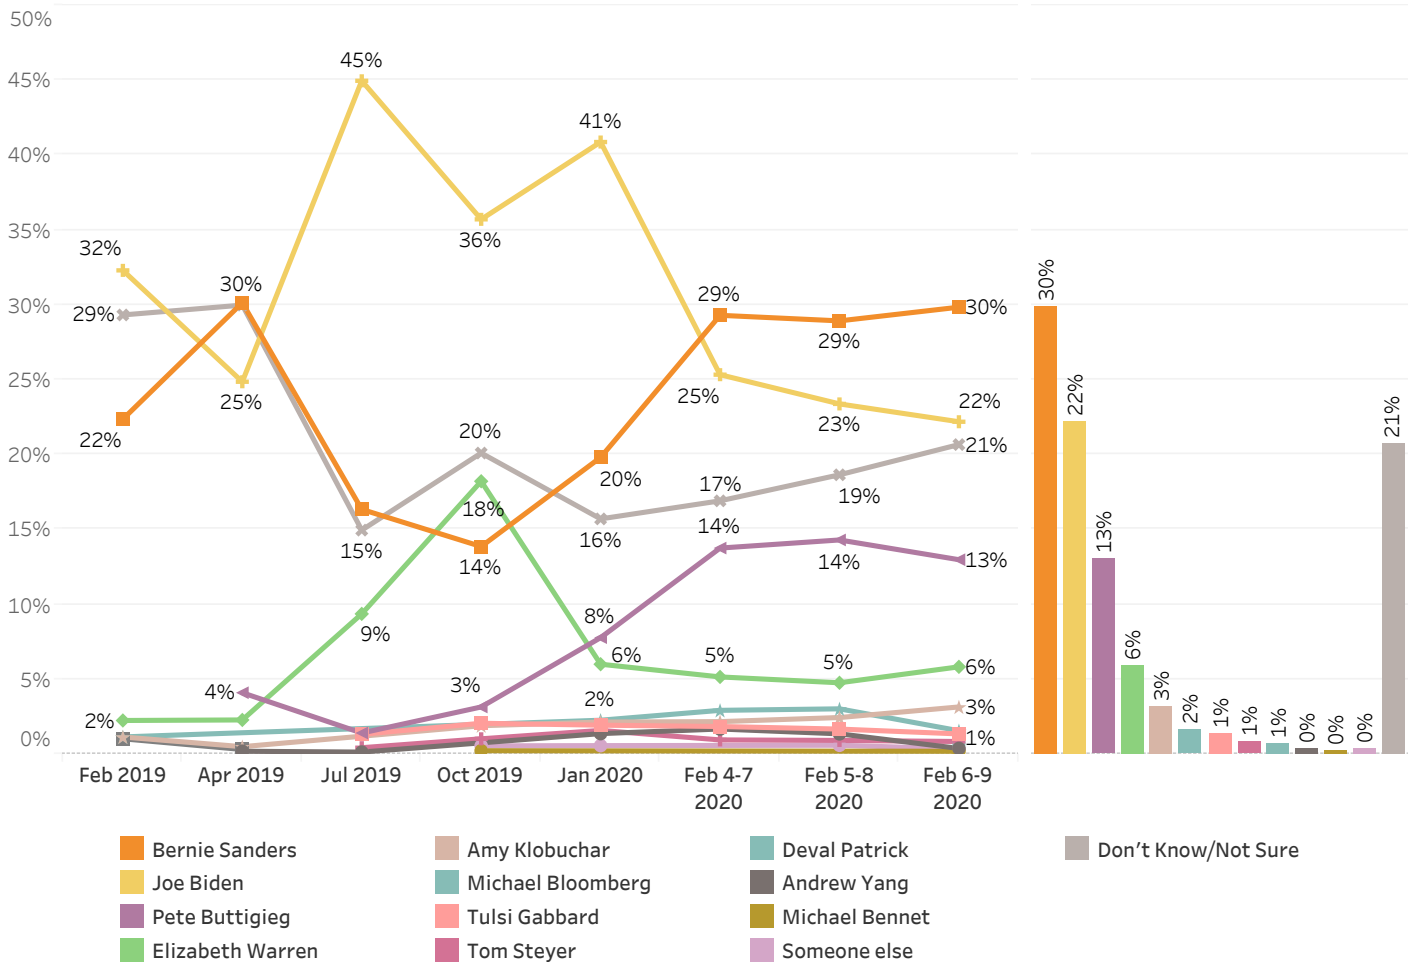

The vast majority of Biden (86%) supporters believe their candidate has the best chance to win the general election, while 73% of Sanders supporters feel the same way about him. Less than half of Warren (44%), Buttigieg (40%), and Klobuchar (29%) supporters believe their candidate has the best chance of winning the general election.

Believe Preferred Candidate Has Best Chance to Win General Election - February 6-9, 2020
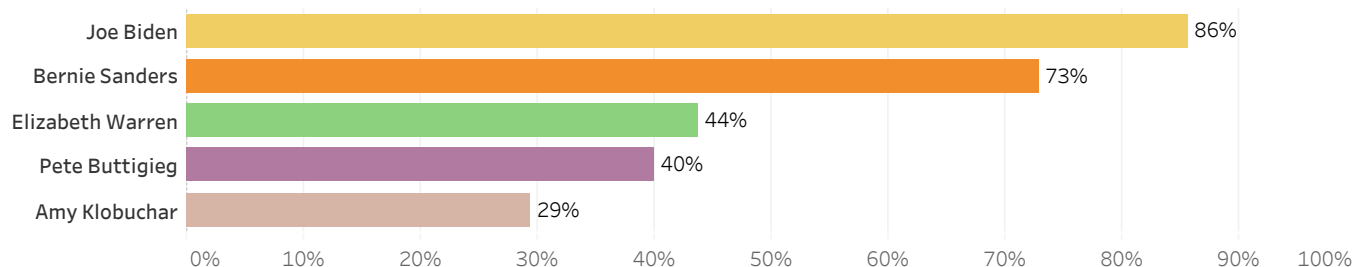

Republican 2020 Presidential Nomination

Support for primary challengers to President Trump in the New Hampshire Republican primary remains very low. The overwhelming majority of Republican primary voters (90%) say they would vote for Donald Trump if the primary were held today, 7% would support former Massachusetts Governor William Weld, 1% would support another candidate, and 1% don't know or are undecided. Results are largely unchanged compared to earlier recent polling periods as well as results in July and October 2019.

Preferred Republican 2020 Presidential Nomination Candidate - February 2019 to February 6-9, 2020
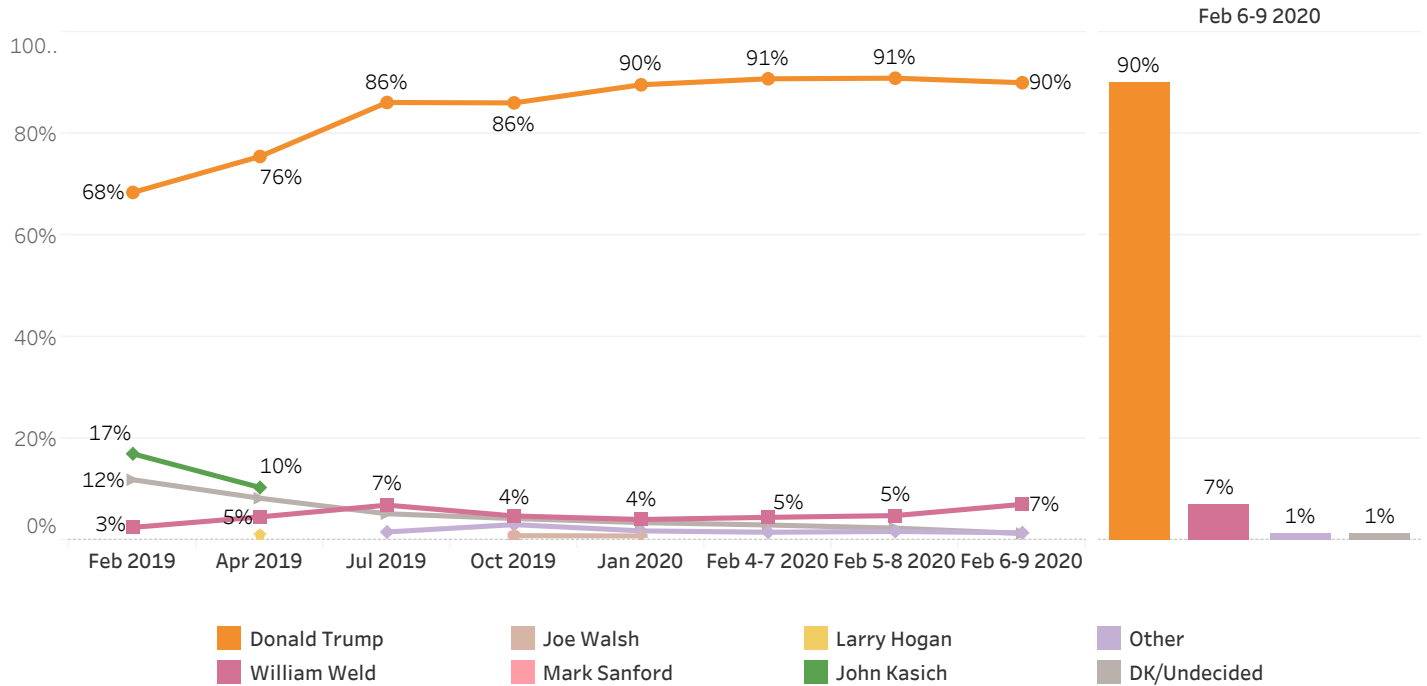

Four in five likely Republican New Hampshire primary voters (81%) have definitely decided whom they will support in the upcoming presidential primary. Four percent are leaning toward someone while 15% are still trying to decide.

Definitely Decided on Candidate - Republican Primary Voters - October 2017 to February 6-9, 2020
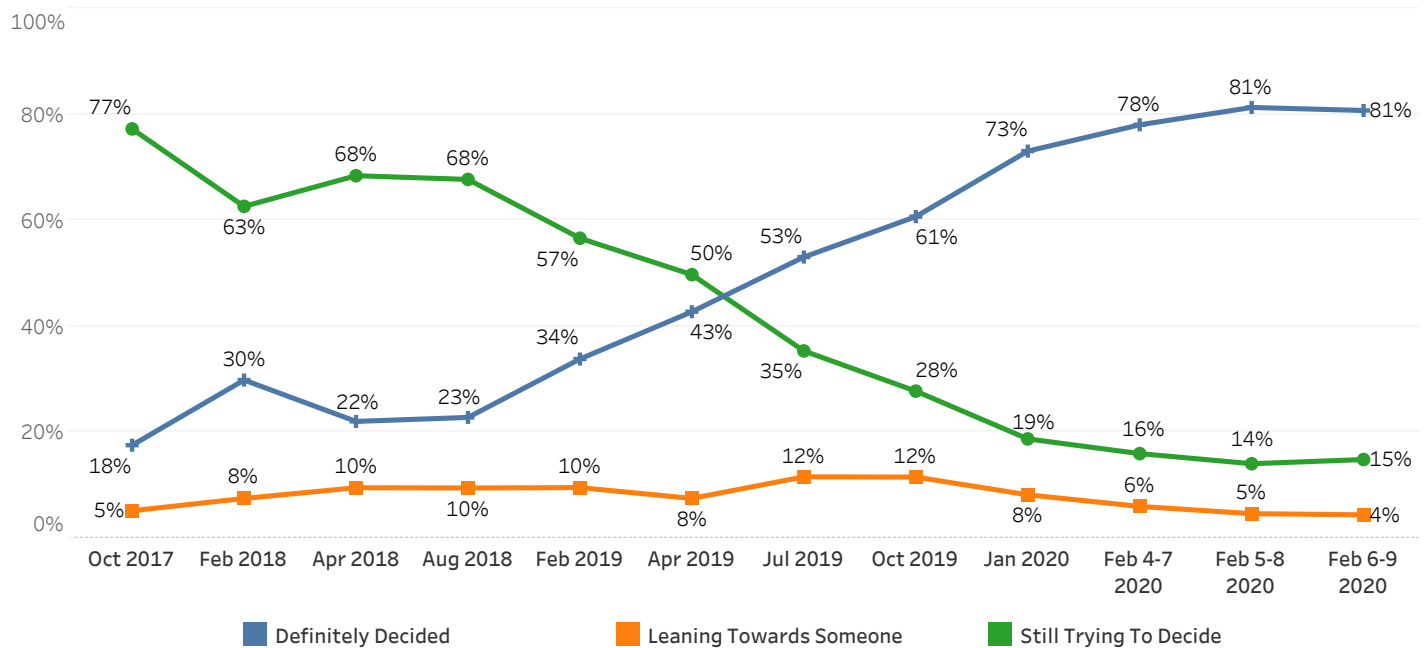

Joe Walsh, who suspended his campaign on February 7, was included in the list of Republican candidates for completed surveys from February 5 to February 7, but did not receive support from any respondents.

With the primary only one day away, nearly half of Granite Staters (46%) say they are extremely interested in it, largely unchanged over the past year. Thirty-two percent say they are very interested, 15% are somewhat interested, and only 7% say they are not very interested.

Interest in 2020 NH Presidential Primary - October 2017 to February 6-9, 2020
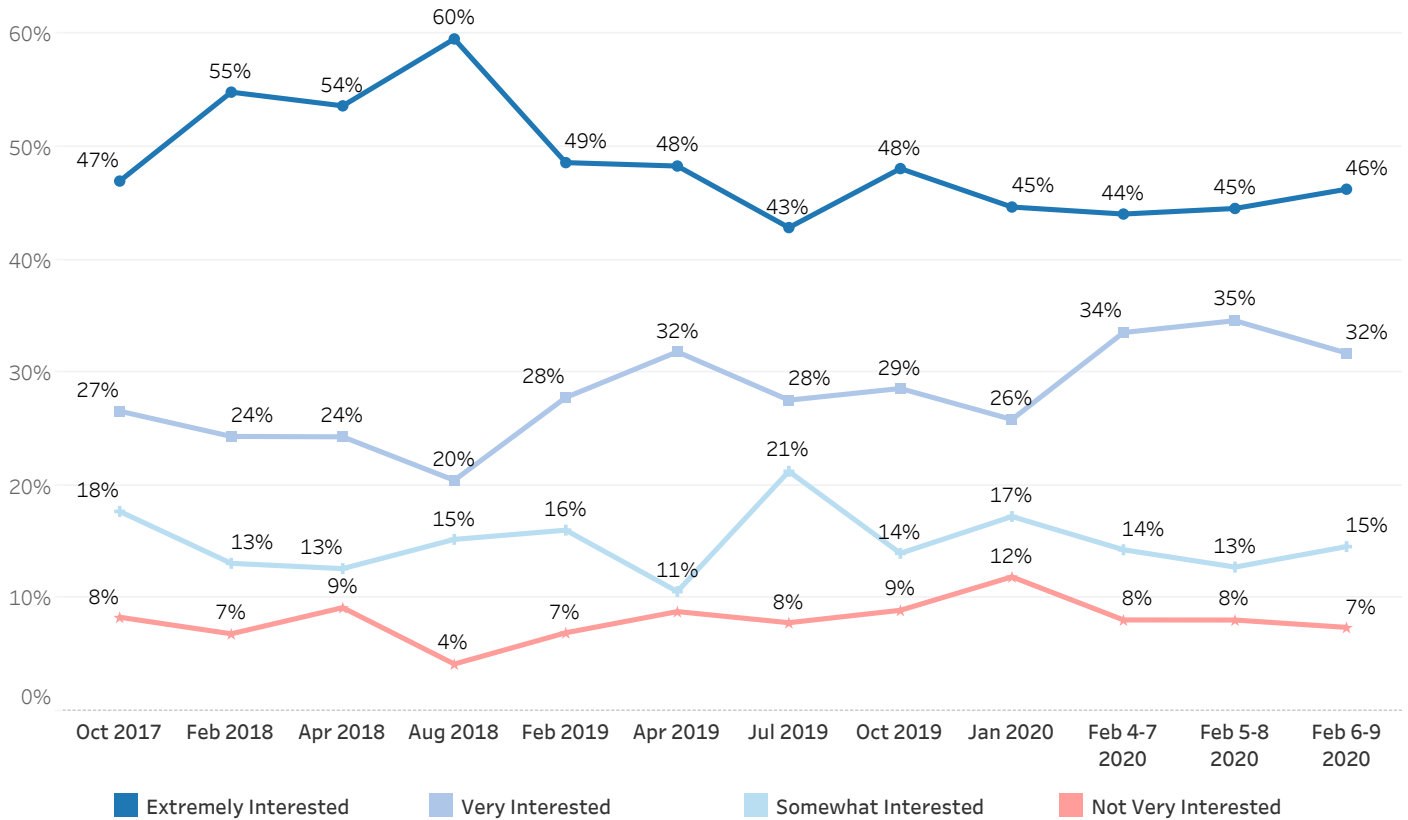

Despite the seeming lack of close competition in the Republican primary, about the same percent of likely Republican voters (51%) as likely Democratic voters (55%) say they are extremely interested in the primary. These results are largely similar to the level of interest directly before the 2016 New Hampshire presidential primary, when both parties held highly competitive primary elections. That year, 57% of likely Democratic voters described themselves as extremely interested while 56% of Republicans felt that way.

Seventy-four percent of New Hampshire residents say they will definitely vote in the primary, while 12% say they will vote unless there is an emergency. Six percent say they may vote, 4% probably will not vote, and 4% are unsure. Responses to this question are largely unchanged over the past year.

Likelihood of Voting in Primary - October 2017 to February 6-9, 2020

Feb 6-9 2020

- Definitely vote in Primary
- Will vote in Primary unless emergency
- May vote in Primary
- Probably not vote in Primary
- Unsure
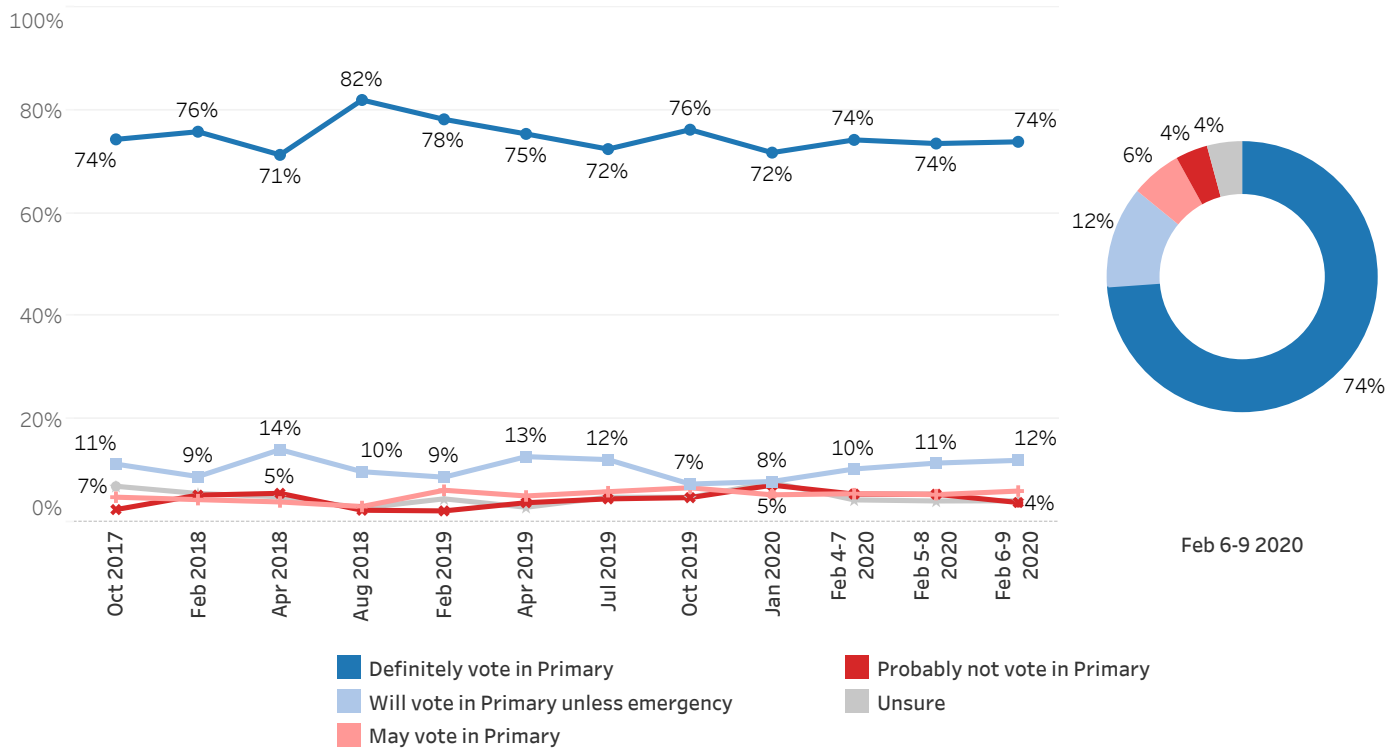

About the same percentage of likely Republican (90%) and likely Democratic voters (86%) say that they will definitely vote in the primary.

Will Definitely Vote in Primary - By Likely Primary Participation - February 2015 to February 6-9, 2020

- DEM Primary Voter
- GOP Primary Voter
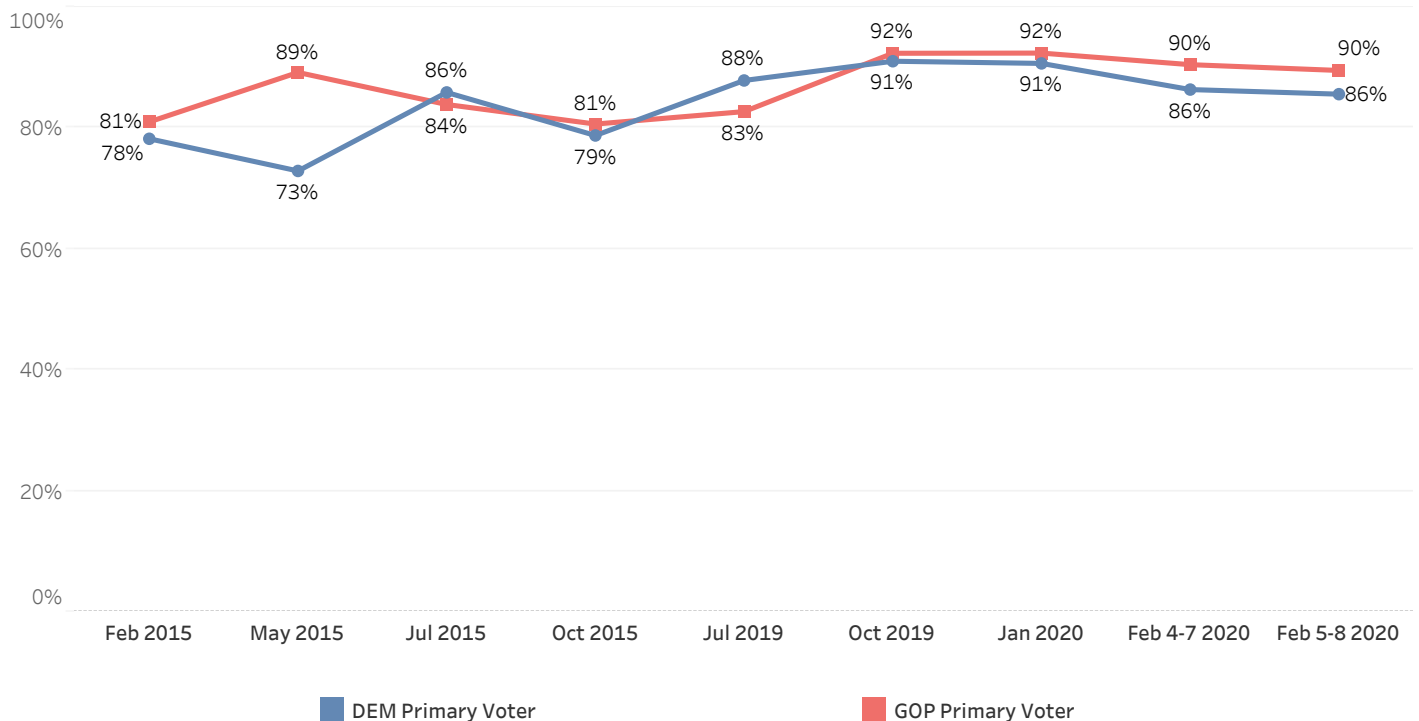

In New Hampshire, undeclared voters are allowed to choose whether to vote in the Democratic or Republican presidential primary. Among this group, two-thirds (67%) say they plan to vote in the Democratic primary, 28% plan to vote in the Republican primary, and 5% don't know or are unsure. These results are largely unchanged compared to the two previous survey periods.

In the run-up to the 2016 presidential election, featuring competitive primaries for both parties, undeclared voters were nearly equally split on which primary they planned to participate in. In 2012, the last electoral cycle featuring a largely non-competitive primary for one party, undeclared voters planned to participate in the Republican primary at about a similar rate as undeclared voters plan to participate in the Democratic primary this year.

Undeclared Voters' Choice of Primary - 2008 to 2020
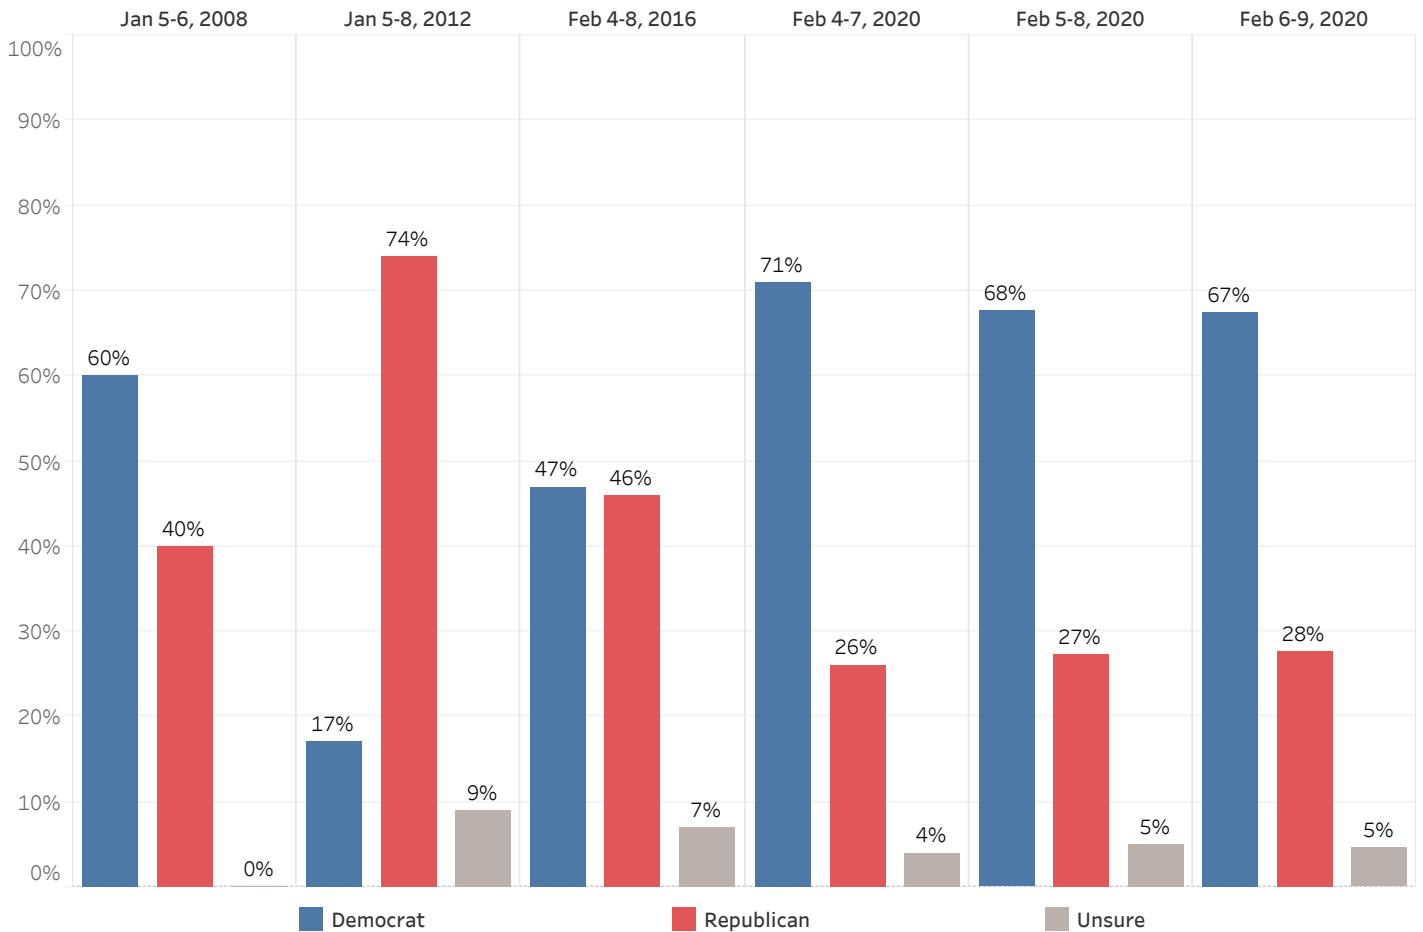

CNN 2020 New Hampshire Primary Poll

These findings are based on the latest CNN 2020 New Hampshire Primary Poll, conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center. Seven hundred five (705) randomly selected New Hampshire adults were interviewed in English by landline and cellular telephone between February 6 and February 9, 2020. The margin of sampling error for the survey is +/- 3.7 percent. Included in the sample were 365 likely 2020 Democratic Primary voters (margin of sampling error +/- 5.1 percent) and 212 likely 2020 Republican Primary voters (margin of sampling error +/- 6.7 percent). Trend points prior to July 2019 reflect results from the Granite State Poll, conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center.

The random sample used in the CNN 2020 New Hampshire Primary Poll was purchased from Scientific Telephone Samples (STS), Rancho Santo Margarita, CA. STS screens each selected telephone number to eliminate non-working numbers, disconnected numbers, and business numbers to improve the efficiency of the sample, reducing the amount of time interviewers spend calling non-usable numbers. When a landline number is reached, the interviewer randomly selects a member of the household by asking to speak with the adult currently living in the household who has had the most recent birthday. This selection process ensures that every adult (18 years of age or older) in the household has an equal chance of being included in the survey.

The data have been weighted to adjust for numbers of adults and telephone lines within households. Additionally, data were weighted by respondent sex, age, education, and region of the state to targets from the most recent American Community Survey (ACS) conducted by the U.S. Census Bureau. In addition to potential sampling error, all surveys have other potential sources of non-sampling error including question order effects, question wording effects, and non-response. Due to rounding, percentages may not sum to 100%. The number of respondents in each demographic below may not equal the number reported in cross-tabulation tables as some respondents choose not to answer some questions.
