REPRODUCTION FROM A SERIES, "PORTLAND IN THE 19TH CENTURY."

COPYRIGHT 1950, THE CANAL NATIONAL BANK OF PORTLAND, MAINE

Passing of a Landmark

ONCE started on its way commercially, Portland grew apace. By 1830 there were 8 manufacturers of tin plate in the town, 3 of brass and iron, 3 furnaces for casting iron, 6 tanneries, 5 ropewalks. Besides these, there were clock and watch makers, carriage and coach builders, and many other industries, including numerous ship and boat builders.

All these activities meant prosperity for the people of Portland. Her younger citizens then wanted the outward marks of a prosperous city — modern buildings, paved streets, new hotels for travelers. Among the old buildings marked by them for replacement by a modern structure was the old First Parish Church.

Rumors were spread that decay had so weakened the spire that it was unsafe to ring the bell. For months thereafter, the beautifully-toned bell stood mute and after much discussion it was decided to raze the spire, move the old church back on the lot, and build the present stone edifice.

When men tried to saw through the immense oak beams it was learned that fears of decay had been unfounded. After sawing and chopping as much as they could, and attaching a rope to the spire, pulling the rope with a strong team of horses served only to break the rope — the spire stood unmoved. Fearless men had to climb into the spire and saw it almost completely away from the church roof before it could be downed.

One John Hall, a Portland boat-builder, was a keenly interested observer of the proceedings. About 1812 he had designed and made a breech-loading rifle. This was a revolutionary idea to most Portlanders and they scoffed at Hall's claims for its accuracy. To prove his success in designing, he had, on a wager, stood at the foot of Temple Street and aimed at the weather vane of the old church on Congress Street. Hall claimed that he put a bullet through the vane, but this was doubted by many. When the spire toppled, however, there, as proof of his claim, was the bullet hole. In the war of 1812 Hall's patent was purchased by the United States Government, and he was employed to superintend the manufacture of his rifle at Harpers Ferry.

VOL. 51 NO. 1

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION OFFICERS

Our cover on this issue of the ALUMNUS is a four-color reproduction of Frederick J. Waugh's "Tropic Seas." The same reproduction appears on the cover of the latest in the series of University of Maine Studies published by the University of Maine Press at Orono.

The new volume follows the life of an artist who was one of the great painters of the sea. Written by George R. Havens of Columbus, Ohio, professor emeritus of English at Ohio State University, the book is an account of the life and work of "Frederick J. Waugh: American Marine Painter."

Waugh was born in Bordentown, N. J., in 1861 and died in Provincetown, Mass., in 1940 where he lived for the last 12 years of his life. Although perhaps best known for his marine paintings, he was also a painter of portraits, landscapes and flower pieces. The influence of Bailey and Monhegan islands in Maine, as well as the English Channel island of Sark and the Cornish coast on Waugh's sea paintings are described in the book.

Vividly written, it is a colorful story for the general reader as well as the artist and historian of American painting.

Copies of the book, in either hard cover or paperbound, may be obtained from the University Mail Room at the Orono campus. The paperbound is $5.50, plus postage, and the hard cover edition is $7.00 plus postage.

Voice of the Alumni

In a message to faculty as the school year opened, President Winthrop C. Libby '32 announced that he had no intention of using scarce institutional resources or equally scarce time for a formal presidential inaugural at Orono.

But he did have in mind what he described as "a more appropriate, useful and productive use of these resources"—a University Forum devoted to a wide-spread consideration of the problems of the University. His proposal, together with what he describes as "three challenges facing the Orono campus," is presented in this issue of the ALUMNUS.

He asked the University Council of Colleges to react to the plan for holding a Forum. In looking for counsel from all concerned groups, he will seek the opinions of students, faculty and administrative departments.

As for the alumni of UMO, it should be recalled that while its formal representative body, the General Alumni Association, is an interdependent body, with a separate governing Council that is not a legal part of the University, the heart and core of the General Alumni Association program is, nevertheless, devoted to the support of the University of Maine at Orono. And this includes much more than financial support. The GAA and our alumni are vitally concerned to understand and participate in determining the present and future program of public service and education for young and old which is the very life of UMO. It is the function of the alumni association to serve as the bridge between the living University and the living and dedicated alumni.

It is obvious that the President's proposals for re-examination of the services of UMO are a challenge to its alumni, a challenge to speak up thoughtfully and constructively for the present and for the future in charting the course of the University of Maine at Orono.

The pages of this magazine are open to all relevant ideas. Our GAA president, Ken Woodbury '24, the officers and the governing Council of the Association are always ready to discuss proposals that are presented by our members. The Executive Director and the staff are on campus and ready (and eager, I may add) to learn what you think. All of these avenues are open to you.

Should the General Alumni Association round up opinion of our graduates, to be offered to the President's Forum? Should local associations debate the issues raised by President Libby? Even more to the point, should the Association conduct its own Forum and thus present a unified alumni response to our University at Orono?

It's up to you. Among the thousands of alumni—accountants, advertising men, agriculturists, aviators, architects, artists, athletic directors, atomic researchers, Army men and women, automobile dealers and authors (to list just the "A"s in the Alumni Directory!)—there must be many who are ready to speak up as informed and concerned graduates who wish to have a voice in the future of UMO. All of us here at Orono hope to hear your voices.

In the absence of an editor on the staff of the ALUMNUS, I am editing this and the next issue myself. I hope that I can fill our November-December issue with "The Voice of the Alumni."

The Summer Activities Story

by Gerald Button

Come summer, there was a time when students and faculty alike happily exchanged their books, classes and frustrations for hobbies, vacations or just a quiet spot beside a swimming pool.

This traditional concept of school is no longer relevant, especially at the University of Maine in Orono (UMO). As Dr. James Clark, UMO Vice President for Academic Affairs, put it: "In the old days the summer period was a time of quiet, but now you can hardly distinguish between the two. As part of our growth, it is necessary to utilize the plant year 'round."

Indeed, it is rare today for a university to close its doors in June. Education is no longer a nine-month activity. Universities like UMO must stay open year 'round to meet the pressing demands of an ever-changing and increasingly complex world.

The Orono campus, like other expanding universities, no longer directs all its attention to the degree-earning student; its focus has become diffused out of necessity, its service has become far-reaching.

The variety of summer activity at UMO was extensive, the involvement intense, the influence on the state as a whole is vast and complex.

Although Summer Session at UMO now spreads over 12 weeks of the summer months, the six-week session from July 7 to August 15 was still the largest and the busiest. More than 4,000 students attended. "This was probably the biggest summer enrollment we have ever had," said Dean Mark A. Shibles, director of Summer School.

Highlights of the six-week session are difficult to pinpoint accurately because there were so many activities. There were varied special workshops and institutes, more than 200 courses ranging from art to zoology, special events just for high school students, retired teachers, and the general public. The outreach of this summer's programs was so broad, its influence so pervasive and subtle, that the real "importance" is hard to measure. Perhaps the two most impressive events—in terms of size, and international influence—were the Summer Arts Festival and the Chamber Music School.

THE SUMMER ARTS FESTIVAL

The 1969 Summer Arts Festival started July 15 and ended August 12. It offered concerts, art exhibitions, films and dramatic presentations. To name every participant or every person who made these two outstanding events possible would be difficult. Bramwell Fletcher's re-creation of a visit with George Bernard Shaw, whom he met during his earliest days in the theatre, has been ranked with Hal Holbrook's portrayal of Mark Twain.

The Festival included such artists as Raphael Soyer, Cadwallader Washburn, Emil Weddige, and Vincent A. Hartgen, each exhibiting some of their finest work for the enrichment of all who visited the campus this summer. Without doubt, the Festival contributed to the enrichment of the cultural environment of the area and the state.

The Summer Arts Festival was not restricted to famous artists. Paintings by Maine school children could also be seen. All the works in this exhibit were given merit awards in the 1969 Bangor Daily News Art Awards Program, and the 109 in the exhibit were selected from the more than 1,000 entries. A national high school photo awards exhibit could be seen, featuring 50 award winning photographs by high school students throughout the United States.

FIRST CHAMBER MUSIC SCHOOL

Five internationally renowned musician-teachers served as faculty members on the University's first Chamber Music School, the only school of its kind in the country. Some 65 music students were in residence until the end of August. All advanced students, they were described as the top musicians of future decades. They came from all parts of the United States and from two foreign countries.

Dr. Robert Godwin, chairman of the UMO Music Department, organized the summer program which gave an opportunity for students to study in ensemble music. Private instruction in strings, piano, ensemble performance, and music history were offered for academic credit.

By ROBERT H. NEWALL
ORONO — "I just can't believe that this school has been in operation only one season" was the general comment bruted abroad by most of the sixty-odd students who converged on the University of Maine to immerse themselves in the mysteries of chamber music under an artist-faculty that included Lillian Fuchs, Joseph Fuchs, Artur Balsam, Samuel Mayes, Joachim Chassman and Ruth Balsam. One might easily say that with such an experienced nucleus of teachers, nothing could seriously have gone wrong.

Word Has Spread

Not content merely to engage a faculty that could scarcely be duplicated elsewhere, Dr. Robert Godwin, the farseeing head of the Department of Music, was able to bring in Bernard Greenhouse, a superb cellist, for special work and performances and Professor Gerhardt Puchelt of Berlin's Hochschule fur Musik, a pianist of remarkable gifts and an expert on German romantic music. Thus Godwin not only formed a milieu in which the students could work sedulously but also offered them added impetus in the form of unusual lectures and concerts by artists who are at the very peak of their profession. "So far as I know," commented Godwin at the end of the season, "this is the only chamber music school within the framework of a state university. As a result of this program, the word has gone out from coast-to-coast. It's not known as just another musical activity."

As Dr. Godwin

The Summer Activities Story

The distinguished musician-teachers included Joseph Fuchs and Joachim Chassman, violinists; Artur Balsam, pianist; Lillian Fuchs, violist, and Samuel Mayes, cellist. A special guest artist, Bernard Greenhouse, conducted a seminar for cellists and also performed in concert. The artist faculty presented a series of five Tuesday evening concerts during the Summer Arts Festival—all open to the public. Under the direction of Paul Vermel, a visiting professor of the UMO music faculty and conductor of the Portland Symphony Orchestra, they presented a Chamber Orchestra concert August 7. The program was so successful it will continue during the summer of 1970.

UMO'S OUTREACH IS INTERNATIONAL

Since its first beginning in 1865, the University of Maine in Orono has influenced many people. First, the influence was local, then state and then national. Now, its outreach is international.

Six government officials from Thailand spent a month on the Orono campus while preparing to become regional training directors and teachers in their own country. The visitors were sponsored by the Office of International Training, U. S. Agency for International Development, and hosted by the university's Bureau of Public Administration. While here, they were exposed to a wide range of training, development, administrative management, local administration experiences, and follow-up evaluation sessions designed to consider the applications of techniques and approaches to conditions in Thailand.

EDUCATORS UPGRADE SKILLS

While many students were spending their time this summer frolicking in the sun, many educators were upgrading their skills. In addition to taking more courses, educators were participating in workshops at the University of Maine in Orono.

Some 60 educators attended two workshops directed by Assistant Professor Robert E. Lowell of UMO's College of Education on the techniques and skills involved in helping children with learning disabilities. The workshops, both Federally-funded through the State Department of Education, were held at the Lewis Stairs School in Old Town and on the Orono campus.

The workshop for Title One reading teachers was aimed at developing skills in diagnosing and remedying learning disabilities. The second workshop was for specialists from various disciplines interested in learning disabilities. It was primarily concerned with defining how to identify the child with a learning disability and planning a program of education for him.

Several state and national leaders, including Dr. Louise Bates Ames and Dr. C. J. Kolson, were among the experts who served as consultants.

A third workshop was held for 40 educators who studied the administration and interpretation of developmental tests for children from five to ten years of age.

The participants, all elementary school teachers and guidance counselors, took part in the Administration and Interpretation of School Readiness Tests—a workshop conducted by Clyde Gillespie, chief clinical examiner at the Gesell Institute on Child Development, New Haven, Conn.

INSTITUTE SERVES THE PUBLIC

Not only does the Orono campus serve educators and students during the summer months, but public servants as well.

City and town managers from all over New England attended the 24th New England Managers' Institute. Increasing Managerial Effectiveness was the theme of the institute, which was jointly sponsored by the Maine Town and City Managers' Association and the UMO Department of Political Science and the Bureau of Public Administration.

Led by four experts in the field of government and management, the sessions included communications and management, motivation and the manager, making delegation work for you, and involving the public. Discussion leaders of the four-day meeting were Dr. David S. Brown '36, a Maine native who is now professor of management in the School of Government and Business Administration at the George Washington University and Dr. Nelson Wikstrom and Dr. Kenneth P. Hayes '60, both members of the UMO political science faculty; and Dr. Gerald J. Grady, business manager of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. Grady, a former member of the UMO faculty, was also a director of the institute for several years during the 1950's.

UMO PAPER INSTITUTE TOPS 22 STATES

As the University expands so does the size of its summer institutes, due primarily to expanded programs and increased interest. A significant contribution was made this summer to the pulp and paper industry of the United States and Canada when the 10th Pulp and Paper Summer Institute showed its largest registration in the history of the institute, according to Dr. Edward G. Bobalek, director.

Maine, with a registration of 26, topped the list of 22 states, followed by New York with 19, Wisconsin, nine; Massachusetts and New Jersey had eight each. In all, there were 68 different companies represented; 125 men were in attendance. The enrollment of 15 from Canada exceeds any previous total from that country.

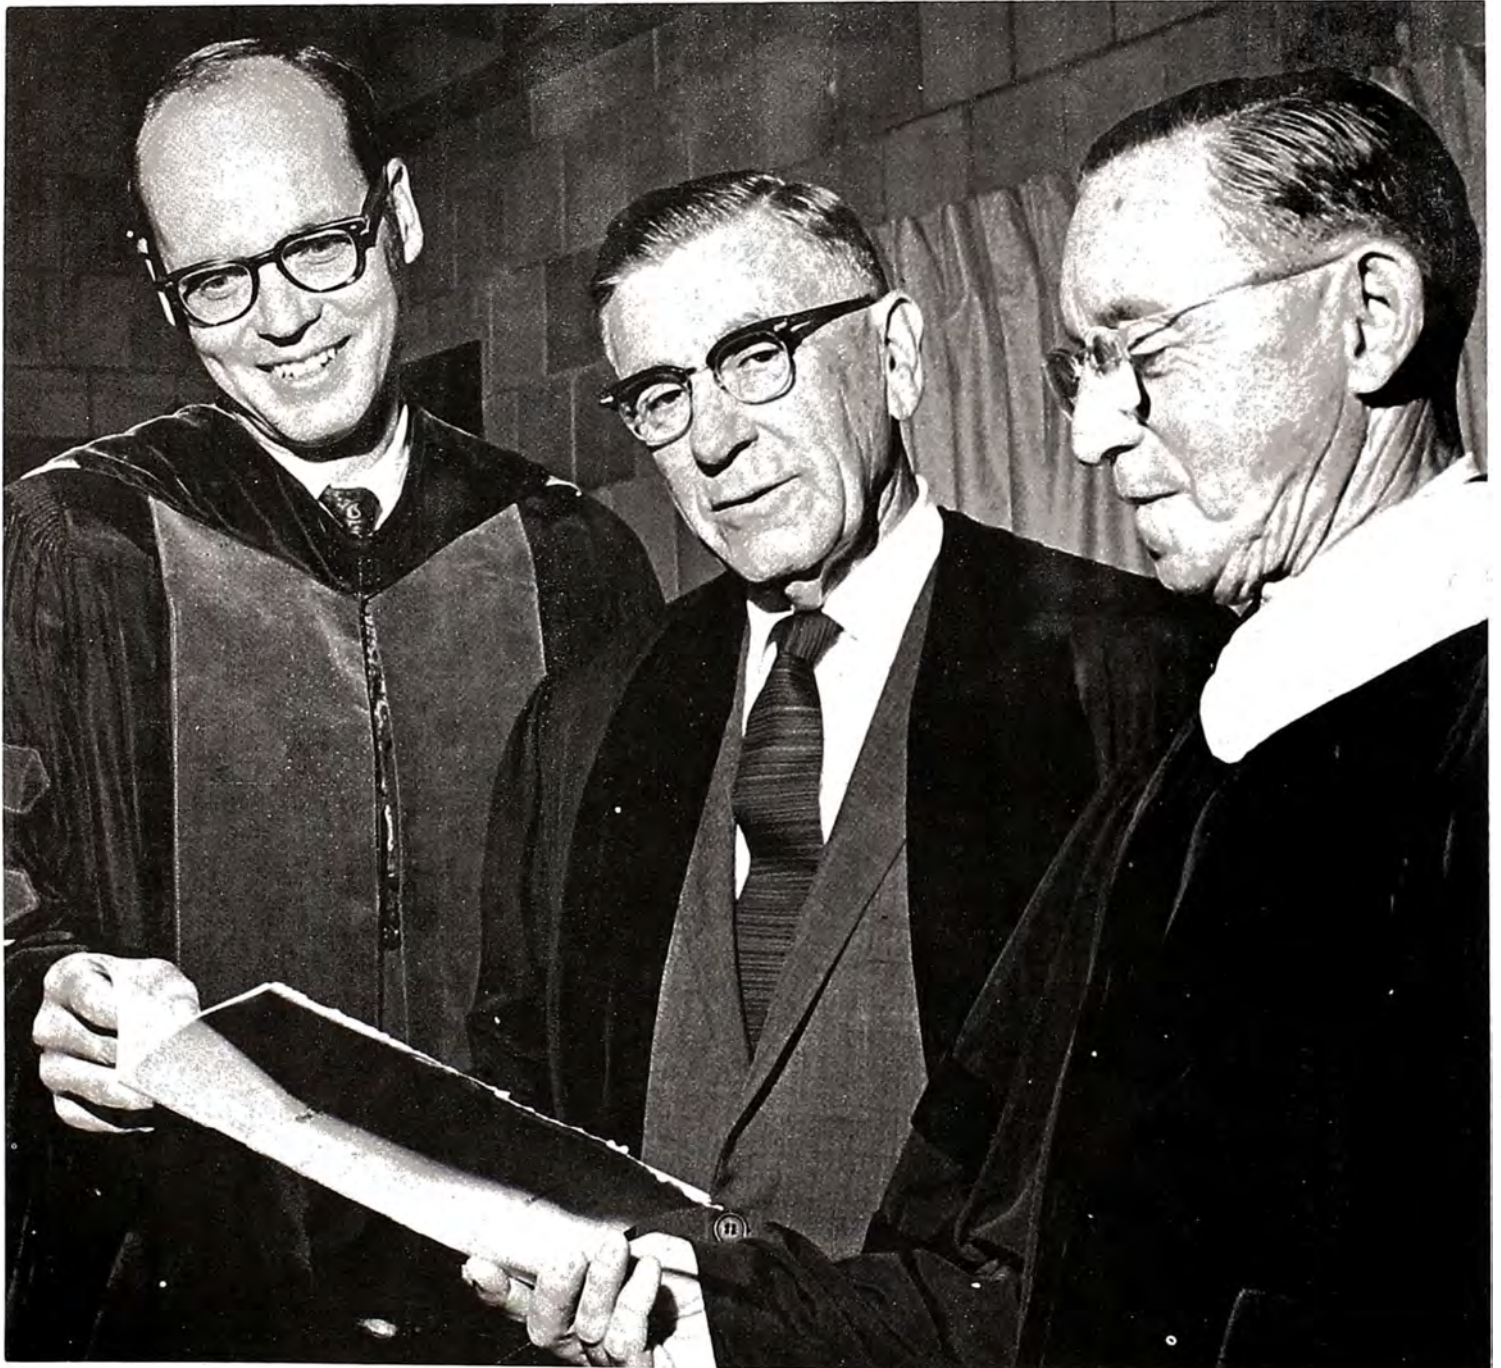

William H. Chisholm of New York City, president of the Oxford Paper Company Division of Ethyl Corporation, and president of the University of Maine Pulp and Paper Foundation, was the speaker at the Institute's luncheon.

MATH SCIENCES FEATURED

A regional conference in the mathematical sciences, one of five held in the United States this summer, was an outstanding event in Au-

Nationally known 'cellist Samuel Mayes of the Philadelphia Orchestra works with two of the students who attended the University of Maine's first annual Summer Chamber Music School on the Orono campus July 7 to August 29. Already earning a reputation as one of the country's outstanding summer music schools, the eight-week school drew nationally and internationally known teacher-musicians. Students, already accomplished soloists, concentrated on learning the techniques of ensemble playing Summer Session Commencement speaker Dr. W. Earl Armstrong, center, told graduates a new emphasis is needed on education for social responsibility in the next decade. CHECK FOREST RESEARCH—Members of the McIntire-Stennis Advisory Board and Committee held their annual meeting at the Orono campus of the University of Maine. It was the first time the groups had met in Maine. Left to right at the University Forest are Clifford McIntire '30, director of Natural Resources for the U. S. Farm Bureau Federation and originator of the legislation setting up the advisory group; Dr. George Dow '27, retired director of the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station and a committee member; George Burks, administrator of the McIntire-Stennis program; and Albert D. Nutting '27, director of the UM School of Forest Resources and chairman of the board.

gust. A total of 49 participants, representing 30 different educational institutions from Newfoundland to Texas, attended the week-long conference.

The conference featured lectures by H. S. M. Coxeter of the University of Toronto and dean of Canadian mathematicians. During the conference Coxeter gave 10 lectures which will later be published as a monograph. The conference was planned to stimulate and broaden research activities across the spectrum of the mathematical sciences. A grant from the National Science Foundation made possible the conference. Director was Dr. John C. Mairhuber, chairman of the UMO Department of Mathematics and Astronomy.

FORESTRY HIGHLIGHTED

A great part of the history of Maine revolves around forests, the men who harvested them and the men who watch over them. Several meetings were held at the Orono campus during August by some of those men.

The McIntire-Stennis Advisory Board and Committee members met at the UMO's School of Forest Resources for their annual meeting. The groups' itinerary included a visit to Acadia

National Park as well as a meeting of the board. A review of research projects and field trips to the University Forest, the U. S. Forest Service experimental area in Bradley, and Penobscot Company lands were also held.

The McIntire-Stennis Advisory Board is composed of seven people elected from different areas of the country to represent forestry schools.

Tours of forestry operations in Maine highlighted the annual summer meeting of the New England Section, Society of American Foresters. A 225-mile tour of downeast Maine was held, beginning with a visit to the Clifton lumber company of R. Leon Williams, who described its operation. Other stops included Township 30 M.D., Machias River Camp Grounds, Passamaquoddy Lumber Company, the International Paper Company, and the Penobscot Experimental Forest, Northeastern Forest Experiment Station, Bradley.

Like all the other workshops, seminars, institutes and conferences, the foresters were interested in expanding their knowledge in their field, upgrading skills and just making this world a better place in which to live. The University of Maine at Orono provided all this during the summer—and more, much more.

The Year of Mission

Highlights from a speech to the faculty of the University of Maine at Orono
Thursday, September 11, 1969
by President Winthrop C. Libby '32

The year 1969-70 is shaping up as The Year of Mission. . . . It is to be a year of planning so that thought rather than crisis provides the basis for answers.

The first year of operation for the University of Maine, as now organized, proves that the several different campuses will work together for their mutual benefit. Chancellor McNeil is an articulate, able educational statesman whose plans envision a University of Maine which offers strong academic programs of undergraduate and graduate instruction, strengthened research activities at both the basic and applied levels, and a vastly stronger commitment to the public service responsibility. He furthermore believes that each campus of the University must have a central mission consisting of those things which the campus can do best. Unnecessary duplication of effort is expensive.

The Chancellor has taken the University problem to Maine people by appointing a group of distinguished citizens to help him define the University's role, campus by campus. As part of this effort the University of Maine, Orono has appointed a key President's Committee on Orono Campus Planning under the chairmanship of Dr. Irwin Douglass, Planning Officer. The membership consists of five faculty members, five students and three administrators. A great many additional staff and students will be involved in studies relating to various aspects of our operation. Every area of our present program should come under thoughtful scrutiny. The care with which this task is done will be very important in pointing directions and in establishing programs and priorities.

Each of you should have an opportunity to interject some of your thinking into this planning process. Let me use this opportunity to share with you some of my personal, even though not sharply defined, ideas about a few of the present challenges facing us.

CHALLENGE NO. 1—Maintenance of the quality standards and program autonomy of the Orono operation within the evolving University system.

The past twelve months has seen changes within the Orono operation, the ultimate effects of which can only be vaguely evaluated and understood at this time. The University's Central Services have been built by moving individual's and programs from the component units of the University to the Chancellor's staff. Orono's authority and capacity have been affected to the extent that this campus has provided the manpower to serve the broader, more significant University need. The Treasurer's Office, the Payroll Office, and part of the Accounting function have been transferred from Orono to headquarters. In addition, the Computer and Data Processing Center has been "nationalized" as have the University of Maine Foundation, the Educational Television organization and several staff members from a variety of areas. Other individuals and programs at Orono may also receive the call.

It is obvious that the effectiveness of former service programs to the Orono operation have been diluted from the Orono point of view. This is inevitable. Perhaps the most significant change of all, the impact of which can only be estimated, is the establishment of an Expenditure Budget for the University. Essentially, this means that the Chancellor's Office approves the level of program expenditure for the fiscal year and the financial autonomy of the Orono campus exists only within the established budgeted amounts. If, because of unforeseen factors, it becomes necessary to fund an entirely new program or to bail out an existing one, supplementary budget requests must be made to headquarters. Such decisions are no longer in the hands of the Orono administration. Essentially this system creates a type of internal line budgeting with all the checks and balances which such a system imposes.

A cardinal fact of our academic life is that an entirely new level of administration has been created. This necessarily complicates our existence and reduces the freedom of action but at the same time it may hopefully strengthen our effort.

Please recognize that these changes are being reported objectively and the new procedures are neither necessarily good nor necessarily bad in their effect on us. These are the simple facts of life which we need to understand. I recognize that any one of us faced with the same problems would have undoubtedly arrived at similar answers. Orono, because of age, academic strength, student enrollment, and financial support, has developed much more rapidly and completely than other University units. It has been the only unit with adequate resources to operate such things as a development office, a University press with editorial support, a student aid office, a placement office, a physical plant office with engineering services, a guidance and counseling service, a public service network providing educational programs to people over the entire state, a doctoral graduate program, a football team and other programs growing out of need but created because of available resources. Many of these programs are as appropriate for Fort Kent or Farmington as they are for Orono. The Chancellor's Office is faced with the challenge of strengthening all campuses of the University without affecting adversely the strengths and development of the Orono campus. This is a most difficult assignment, but it must be accepted.

CHALLENGE NO. 2—Understanding the needs and objectives of our students and establishing an atmosphere of mutual respect between the component parts of the University community.

Nationally, this past year was characterized by widespread campus discontent and demonstration. A by-product of the widely publicized and inflammatory documentation of this unrest is the emergence of strong, repressive, negative feelings towards student activism. This national phenomenon not only threatens but has actually, in many cases, eroded the kind of institutional freedom which academia has long espoused. An alienated public will and does impose improper controls through political mechanisms when threatened by a condition where persuasion is no longer effective.

Our experience in 1968-69 indicates that philosophical differences between groups within the student body and between faculty members constitute a greater threat of divisiveness than the commonly cited generation gap. The challenge confronting this University is to devise methods by which respect for the legal expression of varying ideologies and viewpoints can be accepted. This calls for mutual trust even while recognizing there may never be mutual understanding.

I believe completely in the absolute soundness of two principles.

The first: The strength of our educational system lies in the granting of freedom to the individual for expressing a personal minority viewpoint while accepting the fact that the majority view point prevail. Human dignity and freedom can be preserved only in this way. Many students are impatient for reform in our system. They call for change in such things as our regulations on drinking, curricula, teaching quality, grading systems, course requirements, morality standards and many other concerns. Thoughtful responsiveness by faculty and administration will reduce but never eliminate this impatience. Meaningful joint involvement in discussion by students, faculty and administrators will reduce the hazards, however. Faculty members are urged to seek opportunities deliberately to meet with students on their grounds and to share ideas about the development of the University. Experience indicates that students do not represent a bloc which holds to a single viewpoint in contrast to another single viewpoint held by faculty or administration.

The second principle is that differences in viewpoint can never be allowed to reach the point where the educational efforts of the University are disrupted. This cannot and will not be tolerated. The rights of the individual to dissent legally will be protected. Of equal significance is the fact that the existence of the University as an educational institution must be preserved. We have the basic instruments in our Free Speech and Assembly policy statement and in our Disciplinary Code to achieve both goals—the protection of the rights and civil liberties of the individual and the integrity of the University.

To clarify and supplement present regulations and practices, it is planned to present a statement on campus disorders to the Orono Council of Colleges and to the Student Senate for thorough discussion and evaluation. While basic policies and a definite administrative plan of procedure for handling campus disorders existed last year, it has been decided that campus-wide discussion of this topic has value. General understanding and hopefully agreement on what is to be done in the event of campus disorders is an approach consistent with the basic principles of a University. Open discussion is desirable. Once such a procedural statement has been widely discussed and publicized it is incumbent upon this administration to practice what has been adopted. Both students and staff are encouraged to feed their thinking into the deliberations and let institutional agreement and support emerge.

Another item of concern in this same area which can be resolved only if its resolution seems appropriate to the University staff is a much sharper definition of the ground rules affecting staff involvement in protests and demonstrations which exceed the limits of our Free Speech and Assembly policy. While the Free Speech and Assembly policy applies to all members of the University community, the Disciplinary Code applies only to students. It seems appropriate to me that the Orono Council of Colleges propose a Code of Academic Freedom and Responsibility consistent with commonly recognized national standards but related specifically to this campus and our situation.

CHALLENGE NO. 3—Securing general involvement of the entire campus community in the establishment of institutional priorities and directions

Perhaps one of the more discouraging experiences of this past year was our inability to finance or otherwise implement the many, very desirable and progressive ideas of faculty, administrators and students—ideas which would have encouraged the development of excellence for which we all strive. Changes did occur and new programs were funded but this was not done on the basis of a predetermined institutional position but on a much more haphazard one which essentially emerged from specific pressures. It seems clear that we must take positive rather than defensive positions as the pattern for the future emerges. The pattern should result from our design rather than by either accident or whim. Merely for the sake of alerting the faculty and as a basis for discussion, it appears at this time that the following diverse and unrelated directions of movement are evident. Please recognize that these are neither official policy nor commitments.

(Some of the trends seen for the future in the University of Maine, Orono, as described by President, Libby, included the development of community colleges at South Campus, Bangor, and at Augusta to offer specialized two year programs, the turning of greater attention and more resources of the university toward underprivileged Maine people; the divorcing of the University of Maine, Portland, from the University of Maine, Orono, within a few months; the increasing of library holdings; innovative academic programs and special seminars; greater support for unique or unusually strong academic areas of competency; reappraisal and change of institutional regulations concerning drinking by students; stimulation of the fine arts program at the university; increase of responsibility and authority for the Student Senate.)

There are other trends evident but these suffice to illustrate the point that involvement or not, changes will occur.

Given the nature of our need, the evolving role of the University and the temper of our times, the entire University community should be involved in a consideration of these and numerous other problems as we consciously try to shape our future. It may be expecting too much to think that 9,000 individuals can agree on anything.

I wish to suggest that as part of the planning process we structure a two day University Forum period where we devote our intelligence and thought to a series of questions identified by the Committee on Orono Campus Planning. This matter is of such vital concern that I am thoroughly convinced this might be one of the best possible uses of our time and our energies.

I would like to see two days in mid-winter dedicated to a concentration by students, administrators and faculty on the University of Maine, Orono and the future. Such a Forum would need to be carefully structured so that the major problems would be identified, subdivided into manageable bits, and debated in small groups with cross section representation. I already know the hundreds of reasons why such a Forum is not practical. I also know one very important and overriding reason why it is practical—total involvement and concentrated attention is a vital part of a process designed to shape the future. The University Council of Colleges is invited to react to the possibility of a two day University Forum.

Finally, let me use this occasion to inform you that I have no intention of using scarce institutional resources or equally scarce time for a formal presidential inauguration ceremony. Instead, I believe a University Forum devoted to a widespread consideration of the problems of the University is a more appropriate, useful and productive use of time. Perhaps you, too, will think so.

PEIRCE PAINTING IN ALUMNI CENTER

"Bowmen of Hatchet Mountain," an oil painting by Maine artist Waldo Peirce of Searsport has been presented to the University of Maine Art Collection by the artist in memory of the late Phillip Jones, Class of 1919.

The gift was accepted Thursday, September 25, by UMO President Winthrop C. Libby at a coffee at the Alumni Center where the painting will hang. The coffee also introduced faculty and staff administrators to the facilities of the new General Alumni Association center on the Orono campus.

"Bowmen of Hatchet Mountain," a large oil painted by Peirce in 1935, has as its setting the Hatchet Mountain Boys Camp operated by Jones in Hope and shows Peirce's children practicing target shooting with bows and arrows. Jones, who was owner and director of the camp, was formerly a freshman football coach at the University.

The painting, termed a major acquisition and "a marvelous example of Peirce's art" by Professor Vincent A. Hartgen, head of the art department, has been reproduced in several publications and has been exhibited widely.

“Builder of Builders”

Harold Sherburne Boardman '95

Acting President 1925

President 1926-1934

University of Maine

“Develop clear thinking, follow the Golden Rule, play square, don't worry, and make the most of your opportunities” These wise words were the philosophy of Harold Sherburne Boardman all the 95 years of his life. It is obvious that this outstanding alumnus, teacher, dean and president of his university lived all of his philosophy, and more. “Boardy,” as he was affectionately known by friends, colleagues and students, ended his active and creative career August 27, 1969, when he died at a Waterville nursing home.

In all, Dr. Boardman spent over 40 years actively associated with the University of Maine in Orono. He was the first alumnus to become its president, being chosen for that post after a long and fruitful career as the first dean of the College of Technology.

Born in Bangor March 31, 1874, UMO's seventh president was the son of James Augustus and Marilla (Leighton) Boardman. In 1895 he was graduated B.C.E at Maine State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, now known as the University of Maine at Orono (UMO). While a student he became a member of Beta Theta Pi Fraternity and was a Cadet Major of Coburn Cadets from 1894 to 1895.

Albert “Binks” Gardner '10, of Orono, first met “Boardy” at the turn of the century. He had this to say about his fraternity brother and neighbor: “I became acquainted with ‘Boardy’ some sixty odd years ago as a member of the same fraternity. Later we became rather closely associated professionally and socially. As an educator, he was highly regarded and popular with students and faculty; as an administrator he was sound and efficient; as president of the University he held the respect and confidence of Governors, members of the legislature and the people of Maine. As a citizen of Orono he was always 'Boardy.' It was a privilege to be a friend."

Following graduation, Dr. Boardman was tutor of mechanical drawing and a graduate student at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. In 1897 he married Caroline Augusta Hilton, daughter of Edward A. Hilton of Norridgewock. Between 1899 and 1901, Dr. Boardman worked for the Union Bridge Co., Athens, Pennsylvania, and the American Bridge Co. of Philadelphia.

Six years passed after graduation; then, in 1901, Dr. Boardman was called back to UMO to teach engineering. Two years later, as an associate professor, Dr. Boardman became head of the Department of Civil Engineering and was advanced to a full professor in 1904. At this time, the Departments of Chemistry, Civil, Electrical and Mechanical Engineering, and Pharmacy were separate units, with different graduation requirements. After some difficulty, Dr. Boardman organized a committee to coordinate the work of these departments. The work of this committee led to the establishment of the College of Technology and to his appointment as dean in 1910 by President Fellows. Although often handicapped by lack of funds, the College developed rapidly to its present high standing among engineering institutions.

Mrs. Florence Dinsmore served as his secretary from September, 1928, until his retirement in June, 1934. Mrs. Dinsmore said that Dr. Boardman was a kind and very thoughtful person. He was very methodical and easy to work with. But she added that he was a great tease and had a sense of humor that perhaps only his close associates and friends knew about.

Many graduates of the early 1900's, and even before, were destined to become nationally known; Dr. Boardman always took great pride in the successes of his graduates. Among those nationally known were Frank T. Crowe '05 who was chief engineer for the construction of the Hoover (Boulder) Dam; Frank Banks '06 who was chief engineer for the construction of the Grand Coulee Dam; George L. Freeman '03 and Raymond E. Davis '11, both sharing honors in designing and building the Oakland Bay Bridge from Oakland to San Francisco, Calif. In a personal note to Dr. Boardman, F. T. Crowe said of Dr. Boardman in 1945: "If I knew how to write, I would write you up as a Builder of Builders." He added, "You are the fellow who let me out in April of my junior year and back in November of my senior year, and then gave me a special examination in May of my senior year so I could get in on the ground floor on the Yellowstone River Dam."

Dr. Boardman's life was not without personal loss, however. In 1910, the same year he was appointed Dean of the College of Technology, his first wife, Caroline, died after 13 years of marriage.

While carrying on his regular university work he was employed in various engineering projects in Maine. He was in charge of hydrographic field operations of the U. S. Geological Survey in connection with the Maine Survey Commission and the State Water Storage Commission (1905-1911); was consulting bridge engineer for the Maine State Highway Commission (1913-17).

In 1912, at the age of 38, Dr. Boardman married for the second time. He married the late Nellie Frances Mann, daughter of Alden Hamlin Mann of Bangor. The couple had two children, James A. Boardman of Waterville and Rosemary Boardman, now deceased. Both children graduated from UMO in 1936.

In 1925, following the resignation of Dr. Clarence C. Little, Dr. Boardman became acting president of the university and in May of 1926 he was elected president by the board of trustees. During his administration the university's pressing financial needs were met by increased state support, which adopted a Mill Tax Law; additional facilities were provided by an extensive building program; honors courses were instituted in several departments for students of outstanding ability; and student government was encouraged and developed to a high degree of responsibility.

Early in his career, President Boardman was greatly interested in starting a retirement program for faculty members. In his 1926-27 Annual Report he said, "That time is fast approaching when a policy of retirement should be adopted. I feel very strongly that the institution has an obligation to those loyal members of our faculty which must be recognized." A faculty retirement plan for the officers, members of the faculty and other employees of the University was adopted by the Board of Trustees in November, 1933, (six and one-half months before President Boardman retired, June 30, 1934).

His tenure as president of UMO included the two years of "The Great Depression." Nearly all institutions suffered from depleted incomes. According to one of his Biennial Reports of that time, President Boardman noted that the reduction in salaries, caused by The Depression, should be returned to normal "at the earliest possible moment."

At the age of sixty, on June 30, 1934, President Boardman retired from the presidency. Dr. Arthur A. Hauck took his place, serving as president from 1934 to 1958. Dr. Hauck spoke of his relationship with Dr. Boardman during this period of transition. "Dr. Boardman was one of the most loyal friends I ever had. He overlooked all my mistakes and supported in every way any plans or forward steps that I might have developed. He was just the best ever, and we had the finest relationship. Our association developed into a strong and lasting friendship, along with Mrs. Boardman and Mrs. Hauck.

"The College of Technology made wonderful progress when he was Dean. The college was recognized by Tau Beta Pi during that time."

Harold Sherburne Boardman

In a final personal comment, Dr. Hauck said, "He grew old gracefully. He was always good company; it was always good to visit with him. Most important, he kept his enthusiasm for the University and for the young people who went there. He never thought of a generation gap, for he thought all students were part of the University. Finally, and not the least important trait—he had a good sense of humor, as many of his older friends will tell you."

For the next two and one half years, Dr. Boardman was retired. He tried to regain his health by doing various kinds of manual labor. He and his wife spent much time at their cottage at Hancock Point. Fishing and hunting became his only work load. One of his neighbors there was Dr. Lawrence Cutler, now chairman of the Board of Trustees. Dr. Cutler says of Dr. Boardman: "Harold Boardman enriched the lives of all of us who knew him. It was a great privilege to have known him in his various capacities over the years. It was a great privilege to have shared a small part of Nellie and Harold Boardman's lives."

When Dr. Boardman regained his health, his vacation ended. Shortly after Governor Barrows took office in January of 1937, he asked Dr. Boardman to accept the chairmanship of the State Liquor Commission. At first he refused, but was later persuaded to accept. In 1945 Dr. Boardman said he accepted because "there was a job to be done." He held this position for four years and seven months. During that time the Commission revamped the procedures of the department and put it on a sound basis. Dr. Boardman was 67 years old when he retired from the Commission in September of 1941. During the '40's Dr. Boardman attempted to become actively involved in the war effort. He offered his services, but the call was for younger men.

At this point in his life, Dr. Boardman could look back with considerable pride at the honors bestowed upon him. Four honorary degrees were conferred on him: a Doctor of Engineering, University of Maine, 1922; Doctor of Laws, Colby College, 1927; Doctor of Engineering, University of Rhode Island, 1928, and Doctor of Laws, Bates College, 1929. In 1935 the trustee undergraduate tuition scholarship in Technology that had been established by the Trustees in 1923 was named THE HAROLD SHERBURNE BOARDMAN SCHOLARSHIP in honor of the first Dean of the College of Technology and the President of the University of Maine from 1926 to 1934. On June 23, 1945, Dr. Boardman was honored at the unveiling of a portrait in oils of him as he appeared during the term of his presidency. The presentation was a feature of the 76th Commencement. The portrait, a gift of alumni and friends of the university, was presented in a ceremony. Dr. Clarence C. Little, who preceded Dr. Boardman as president, gave an address of tribute. Waldo Peirce, an eminent Maine artist, was commissioned to paint the portrait because of his life long association with Bangor and the State of Maine. President Boardman's career can be read in Volume 16 of "Who's Who in America." He was made President Emeritus on September 15, 1954. In honor of Dr. Boardman's long and devoted service to the University of Maine, the Trustees on June 11, 1955 voted to name the new engineering building the HAROLD SHERBURNE BOARDMAN HALL. He was very pleased at this action for it meant that his name would go on at the institution where he spent the best years of his life.

Dr. Boardman was active in various associations: Boston Society of Civil Engineers (vice chairman of special committee on hydraulic power data, 1917-20); Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education (chairman, Division of Deans and Administrative officers, 1924-26; president, 1930-31; secretary, New England Section, 1921-26); Association of Land-Grant Colleges and Universities (chairman, Engineering Section, 1923-24), National Association of State Universities, Maine Association of Engineers (past president); American Society of Civil Engineers; Beta Theta Pi, Phi Beta Kappa; Tau Beta Pi, Phi Kappa Phi; Scabbard and Blade; and he was also an active Rotarian for 40 years and a 32nd degree Scottish Rite Mason.

For the past seven years Dr. Boardman represented the oldest class (1895) and was present at the reunion held in June of 1968 when he was 94 years old. While residing in Waterville he was a member of the Northern Kennebec Alumni Association.

Dr. Boardman's second wife, Nellie, died in 1967. His grandson, James Alexander Boardman '70, of Waterville is now attending UMO. In his later years, Dr. Boardman resided in Waterville with his son, James, a graduate of the University in 1936, who is an engineer with Keyes Fiber Company of Waterville.

"Boardy" knew UMO intimately for more than three-quarters of a century. He had pride in her past and faith in her future. Many times throughout his career he was offered opportunities outside of Maine, but he turned them down. "I knew that neither my family nor I would be happy elsewhere. I have never been sorry."

In thinking about how to tell you of the many things the University is doing in the area of computing and EDP (electronic data processing), I began to think more and more of what I hope you will get out of this article. First, I hope that you will be interested in what we are doing and will want to make it a point to see it for yourself, and take the opportunity to talk with us about the things that you see. I hope that you will be proud of your university and what it is doing in this area, for I think that there is a lot to be proud of. I hope you will actively support funding for computing and data processing activities, not only at the University, but also in other institutions of higher education and in your local school systems. I hope that many of you will feel, after reading this, that there are many ways in which computing can help you in your daily undertakings and that some of you will be moved to take some of the courses that are offered at the University or through the CED program, so that you can make it your own tool and use it in the ways which you feel are important.

For most of us, and for many going through school now who haven't taken the opportunity to get exposed to it, a computer is rather a mysterious "unknown." More and more people today are being exposed to the computer and this is a trend which I am confident will continue into the future. At the University today, all students in Technology have acquired a competence with the computer and also all of those graduating from the College of Business Administration. Many other students who see the need for it in their work take courses offered by the Mathematics Department and others to achieve the same competency. This exposure is starting at an earlier age, too; Technology students have customarily studied computing in their sophomore year; this fall we are experimenting with a very short course in the first term of the freshman year. It's moving into the high schools as well. For several years Cape Elizabeth and South Portland high schools have had active programs as part of their curricula and Bangor High School and others throughout the state are moving to include some computer work in their studies. The trend will continue—to other disciplines in the University and through secondary schools.

Students today ought to be interested in computers for at least one of three reasons. First, some of them, although a relatively small number, will become computer professionals and will work very closely with computers as their livelihood. A much larger group will use computers as a tool in their work. The members of this group will not consider themselves computer professionals but rather engineers or businessmen or specialists in some other discipline. However, they find that in order to do the kinds of things that are important in their work, they need to know how to use the computer as a tool. And, finally, all of us live in an environment of which the computer is an important part; all of us have checking accounts, telephone bills, charge accounts, magazine subscriptions, and the like, which are processed by electronic data processing equipment. And so, I think it behooves all of us to have an awareness of this servant which does so many things for us.

COMPUTING IS FUN

One of the nicest things about working with a computer is that it's fun. In recent months, I have been impressed by the apparent enjoyment that such diverse people as a professor of chemistry, the administrative assistant to a dean, a young man in summer school, and my eight year old son have gotten out of working with a computer. To my son, it is a typewriter that tirelessly adds five to any number which he types into it. For many of us, 'computing' summons a picture of the machinery: rectangular boxes of painted metal, chrome and glass with blinking lights and spinning mechanisms. But while this is what does the work, the fun is in controlling the machine, and for this we use a program. Each step that the computer is to take must be specified, for it will do only what it is told. It has no creative instincts, and can't figure out what we want it to do, only what it has been told to do.

The set of symbols that you use in writing a program and the conventions for the things they cause the computer to do are called a "language." The young man in summer school was taught a "language" during the spring. This summer he learned three more "languages" by himself and used the computer to do his homework problems. He could have done them in any one of the four, but each language has different conventions, and he enjoyed being able to pick the best language for the problem. Programming languages are not difficult to learn. He also found that computers aren't as likely to make arithmetic mistakes as people are. More importantly, for problems involving complicated calculations or simple calculations on lots of numbers, the computer can do the work faster. Since it has to be exactly instructed, the user has to know how to solve the problem; he can concentrate on that, rather than on grinding out the numbers.

Students are using the computer to solve problems in many courses—over 50 last term. Less than half a dozen were courses teaching programming, the rest were using the tool to help to teach a better understanding or more subject matter in a shorter time.

COMPUTERS AID RESEARCH

The faculty uses the computer in a similar fashion as an adjunct to its research. "Development and Evaluation of Improved Systems and Equipments for Producing and Harvesting Potatoes" and "Cognitive Process in Schizophrenia" are but two of the dozens of research projects on which members of over 30 departments are working.

Faculty and administrators alike turn to the computer to improve their administrative work. It allows them to spend less time on the routine of averaging grades, assembling lists, etc., and devote more personal attention to the individuals who need it. One of the most striking things I've noted has been the interest of the University's administrators and their willingness to make the computer their tool. As we saw earlier, a computer is controlled by a program and the program is written in a language. Historically, the languages which solve formulas and handle problems of a scientific nature were developed earlier and to a greater degree than those which generate reports and handle problems of an administrative nature. Administrative problems have had to be programmed in awkward languages and, consequently, were generally done by professional programmers, while scientific problems were programmed by the scientist himself. The administrative languages have caught up rapidly and now are almost as easy to learn. Perhaps a decade from now when the young people now learning to program in our schools and colleges are moving into administrative positions, they will program their problems for themselves, but today this is rare in education, and even more rare in commerce and industry.

COMPUTERS AND ADMINISTRATION

Under the guidance of President Libby, your university has begun a notable movement to be ahead of this trend. Last spring the President invited thirty senior administrators to spend a week getting closely acquainted with computers. Over half of them did, despite the pressure of other affairs. A number of them and their associates followed this up and have learned to write their own programs. It is only a start, but it is more of a start than any organization I've heard of has made.

Using the computer in this manner, Paula (Mrs. Frank J.) Sullivan, Administrative Assistant to the Dean of the Graduate School, is keeping track of incoming graduate students. Dean Franklin P. Eggert of the Graduate School has for some time been analyzing the incoming records and subsequent performance of graduate students in order to develop better predictive measures.

The major administrative application now run on the computer is the computation of the University's payrolls. Accounting and registration procedures are carried out on punched cards, but do not yet use the computer. We are beginning to develop a student records system including admission, registration, and grade keeping procedures. General Alumni Association Director Don Stewart has been talking to us about ways in which the computer could be used to give increased service to the Alumni. During the past summer, the University at Augusta experimented with a method of assigning its students to class sections and developing their schedules by means of the computer. We plan to extend this to other units next year with an eye not only to reducing the amount of work required, but also improving the student's opportunity of getting all of the courses he desires.

In the scheduling work, we are using what is called a "packaged" program. This simply means that the user of the program didn't have to write it. There are many relatively common standardized procedures which, when once written into the form of a program, can be used by a number of individuals. This means that many people who would otherwise be unable to use the computer have access to it. Since not all of us do things in exactly the same way, a well-designed packaged program has options in it whereby we may select the different procedures which best fit our individual needs. Similar widely applicable packages are available from the vendor in the scientific areas. The Civil Engineering stress analysis and Electrical Engineering circuit analysis packages are perhaps the most widely known. Our staff is constantly developing and improving a series of mathematical and statistical packages tailored to the needs of the people we serve. In some cases, packages developed by the vendor or other institutions can be modified and in other cases we develop the whole thing ourselves. Our aim throughout is not to develop a program which is useful for one person at one time, but rather to allow the user to be independent of professional programmers, by use of the packages or by teaching him to program himself.

THE "HARDWARE" AT ORONO

Our two most powerful facilities are at Orono. The IBM 1800, a part of the Gottesman Center, is located in Aubert Hall. This machine is particularly well suited for data acquisition and process control. It receives considerable support and encouragement from the Pulp and Paper Foundation; our program in this area, I am told, is the oldest and the strongest of its type. This machine is now operating under a control system, developed at the University of Nebraska College of Medicine, which enables it to handle calls from remote terminals. The requirements of process control are such that the machine has been designed so that it can carry on a great many jobs at what appears to be the same time. This enables it to respond very quickly to messages from the terminals and to operate "interactively." The program could be put into this machine over a teletype terminal and the machine would respond in much the same manner as a desk calculator would, solving a problem as soon as it received it and giving the answer back directly.

The largest machine in the University system is an IBM 360. This is located in Wingate Hall and is particularly well adapted to doing jobs in "batch." That is, one job after another, rather than several at the same time as the 1800 did. We are getting a larger version of this machine and expect to be able to have the terminals dial it by the beginning of 1970. Then, a person at any of the University's facilities (or anywhere in the State) who needs it, can have the power of either machine available to him when he requires it. It is not economical (or necessary) to put terminals everywhere, but the ability to have them where needed is very useful.

We work with computing machinery, but the most important ingredient in the work is the people who do it. People working with computers include some with high school degrees and some with advanced degrees, some who write programs and some who write letters, some who develop how things are going to be done and some who make the machines do them today, some who answer telephones and some who answer questions on programming. Basically, we have keen people; alert, interested and effective. I'm proud to be associated with the people who are computing at the University of Maine; I believe that you can be, too.

In September, we began a newsletter to keep members of the University up to date on what we were doing in computing. They are available as long as the supply lasts by writing CAPSTAN, Wingate Hall, Orono.

Again, we welcome questions, support, suggestions. Please give us a call or come and visit.

GENERAL ALUMNI ASSOCIATION SUPPLIES MISSING (BANK) NOTES

The big beat set by the Sousaphones and tubas when the University Marching Band takes the field each Saturday this fall will be sounded by shiny new instruments supplied by the General Alumni Association.

When Professor Robert C. Godwin, Chairman of the Department of Music, was suddenly informed that instruments on loan from the R.O.T.C had been recalled by the U. S. Army, he took his problem to the Alumni Center and to Don Stewart, Executive Director of the the General Alumni Association.

The first game, with Massachusetts, was less than two weeks away. Someone or some agency prepared to act immediately was needed to help fill in the gap.

Since the Association had already helped the cause of music at Maine in past years, when it provided funds to help support the Sprague Memorial Music Professorship, Professor Godwin was given a ready hearing. It was agreed that with a nine-date schedule at football games, plus other engagements, the band needed its full complement of essential instruments to represent Maine at its best.

A quick look at the Alumni Association's budget revealed an allotment for 1969-70 that is intended for just such service to the University. A round-up of votes from President Kenneth F. Woodbury '24 and the other association officers brought immediate approval. Letters were exchanged, checks drawn and forwarded and the instruments became an immediate reality.

In a letter to GAA President Woodbury, Professor Godwin said:

"We wish to express the sincere appreciation of the Department of Music, and especially the University Bands, for the recent gift of $2,650 from the Alumni Association. With this money we have purchased the following instruments: three Sousaphones, one French horn, and one tuba. These instruments were crucially needed by our Marching and Concert Bands, as well as by our Music Education classes.

"Professor Cavanagh, Director of University Bands, has asked that I extend the thanks of all the members of his Band; we trust you will be able to see and hear these instruments which will be christened at the first football game on September 20."

FRESHMEN AND GUESTS ATTEND UMO ORIENTATION

Of the more than two thousand freshmen who are enrolled at the University of Maine at Orono this fall, nearly nineteen hundred had the opportunity of previewing the campus during the summer. Eighteen hundred and ninety-five students participated in Freshman Orientation during twelve sessions under the direction of Bert Pratt, Assistant Director of Admissions.

THE MARCHING HUNDRED will step out again this fall for the University of Maine football games. Shiny new sousaphones will mirror the Marching Hundred in formation in their navy blue and white uniforms.

Each session was aimed at a particular college within the University: Arts and Sciences, Education, Business Administration, Technology and Life Sciences and Agriculture.

The students were not the only ones to take part in the orientation period, however. Parents and guests were also invited to participate. General Alumni Association representatives were on hand to speak with the parents at informal get-togethers in the dormitory lounges. As one parent, Mr. Shirley Corey of Brewer, stated, "We appreciate the opportunity to meet some of the people with whom our sons and daughters will be planning their careers. . . . [Through this program] parents have a better understanding of university life, particularly those who have not attended college."

The purpose of the orientation program is to provide a smoother transition from high school to college life. Director Pratt expressed concern particularly for the students coming from small communities.

Three areas of interest were emphasized during the six-week period: academic orientation, social or personal orientation and pure information. Deans of colleges, department heads and faculty members assisted students with registration and answered a voluminous number of questions on the academic program. Deans of men and women, as well as student assistants, answered numerous queries on social and study conditions, mode of dress and questions on student unrest. Both students and parents lived in the dormitories, ate in the cafeterias and enjoyed a quasi-campus life to help familiarize them with UMO facilities.

The theme of the orientation program was "Tell It Like It Is." "We tried to tell the bitter with the sweet," says Mr. Pratt, who attributes much of the success of the sessions to the student assistants who helped manage the program. The student assistants represent a wide cross-section of university life. A residence hall assistant, the president of the Eagles and the valedictorian of the Class of 1969 are just a few of those who worked in the capacity of student assistants.

Another purpose of summer orientation, and by no means the least important, is personalization. President and Mrs. Winthrop C. Libby greeted each of the students and parents at the President's House. President Libby says, "We are sincerely interested in preserving the individuality of our students, in giving them personal attention so that they may not be 'lost' in a mass educational process."

THREE CONSTRUCTION PROJECTS ON UMO CAMPUS

Three construction projects, carrying a total combined price tag of nearly $3 million, are getting underway this fall on the Orono campus.

Starts have been made on the construction of a new chemical engineering building costing $1,016,006 at the north end of the campus across the street from Cumberland Hall, and on a new physical education building adjoining the present Memorial Gymnasium and for which $1,900,000 has been made available. The renovation of a basement area in North Stevens Hall for the Speech and Hearing Clinic will also go forward. Cost of the renovation is estimated at $70,000.

The chemical engineering building will be one of the most striking in appearance on the campus, with its vertical white concrete columns separated by pre-cast exposed aggregate wall panels of darker color. It will be three stories in height and will measure 183 feet in length and 65 feet in width. Construction of the pre-stressed concrete structure is scheduled to be completed by August of 1970.

The first floor of the chemical engineering building will house the department head's office, faculty offices, five classrooms and one transport laboratory. The second floor will contain additional offices, the Pulp and Paper Foundation executive offices, two undergraduate laboratories and space for graduate students' offices and research projects.

On the third floor will be additional faculty offices and graduate laboratories.

Citizens of the state will vote in the November referendum on a proposed $1,100,000 bond issue which, if approved, would permit construction of phase two of the chemical engineering building. The second phase would be the construction of a high ceiling addition on the east side of the original structure to house machinery and process laboratories for the pulp and paper program.

The building is designed so that expansion will be possible on both the east and south sides of the original structure. Future expansion may include room for a lecture hall and additional classrooms. Faculty offices in the new building will be designed so that the faculty member can combine his teaching with research with the addition of a minimum of laboratory facilities in the office area.

The new physical education building will be phase one of a four-phase program, with the first phase to be completed by February of 1971. The new red brick structure will encompass both sides of the present Memorial Gymnasium, with the east side to contain swimming facilities for teaching, physical education, competition and recreation for both men and women, along with locker space and offices. The west side will have a 50 by 60-foot wrestling room and a 60 by 83-foot gymnastics room.

The second floor of the structure will contain a squash court and two handball courts. Second phase of the athletic facilities expansion calls for construction of a new fieldhouse along with some renovation of the current fieldhouse; the third phase seeks a new hockey and skating arena; and the fourth phase calls for enlargement of the football facilities.

The Speech and Hearing Clinic will move from its old quarters in The Maples to North Stevens where individual therapy rooms and speech laboratories will be constructed.

OLD WINE IN NEW BOTTLES

Notice is given by Registrar George H. Crosby that the University trustees have now made it possible for former students who attended here at least three years and then went on directly into a professional school of medicine, dentistry, etc., to receive their baccalaureate degree as of their original class, if their original department head and college dean at Orono approves it and if the Registrar's Office has proof of graduation from the professional school.

ALUMNI SHOULD VOTE ON NOVEMBER 4

Maine voters will be faced with the first system-wide University of Maine capital construction projects referendum Tuesday, November 4.

In the past, of course, the University of Maine budget was just for the U of M campuses. Since the merger, the University now includes state colleges and campuses at Fort Kent, Gorham, Farmington, Aroostook, Washington and Bangor.

Voters will pass judgment on a total request of $7,541,000 for critical construction projects ranging from boiler renovation at Aroostook to work on the chemical engineering building at Orono. There are 19 separate projects. Those of special interest to UMO grads include Orono campus projects: roads and parking area ($375,000); utilities extension ($385,000); business, English, math building ($2,300,000); chemical engineering building ($1,100,000); and farm relocation site development ($50,000).

The business, English, math building was originally planned to include a computer center. However, following the Chancellor's review, it was decided to use existing South Campus buildings in Bangor for a computer center to serve the entire system. This action reduced the project by $1,620,000.

According to Dr. Donald R. McNeil, U of M Chancellor, other projects were similarly scrutinized. The Aroostook boiler project, for example, originally called for $75,000 of work. But, McNeil said, it was decided that some of the work could be postponed and only the "critical" needs would be requested.

The original U of M system capital construction projects budget was more than $39 million. Governor Kenneth M. Curtis reduced this to $22 million. During the legislative sessions formation of the Higher Education Planning (HEP) Commission, which was charged to recommend a master plan for higher education in Maine, was announced. Because some of these decisions naturally would involve U of M campuses and future construction, it was decided that the University would assemble a "critical" list to be placed on the November, 1969 referendum. Other capital construction needs would then be discussed in a special legislative discussion in January of 1970.

NOVEMBER REPORT ON HEP

The 28-member Higher Education Planning Commission (HEP) appointed by Dr. Donald R. McNeil, Chancellor of the University of Maine, intends to present the first of its advisory reports in early November.

McNeil, in turn, will present recommendations to the Board of Trustees and the Maine Legislature, beginning with the special session in January of 1970. Operating with a $4,000 budget, the 28-member volunteer Commission is expected to complete its recommendations in late 1970.

At present citizen subcommittees are working to study in detail questions about higher education in Maine.

U. S. Court of Appeals Judge Frank M. Coffin, HEP Commission Chairman, announced the subcommittees and their chairmen as follows:

- ... Needs of higher education, Arnold F. McKenney, Auburn.
- ... Financing higher education, Carleton G. Lane, Portland.
- ... Educational programs and resources, Mrs. Marion Bagley, Machias.
- ... Campus missions, Robert A. Marden, Waterville.
- ... External relations, Arthur H. Benoit, Falmouth.

Coffin said the subcommittees will work with legislators, community leaders, educators, parents and students throughout the state.

The basic question to be answered, Coffin said, is:

"What kind of educational opportunities should and can be provided Maine's young people and adults in the next 10 years?"

Specifically, Coffin said, HEP will study the mission of each campus, adult education, research, graduate study and relationships between the campus of the University of Maine and other higher education institutions.

ON CAMPUS

PROJECT UPWARD BOUND

Sixty-six Maine High School juniors and seniors participated in Project Upward Bound at the University during the summer. Upward Bound is a national pre-college program designed to motivate secondary school students who have been handicapped in their studies by economic, cultural, and educational deficiencies. Through special educational and counseling programs conducted by the university, these students are given a new chance to reach their academic potential. The objective of the program is to stimulate the intellect, interest, and motivation of the student participants.

The project consists of two phases: (1) a six-week intensive summer educational program and (2) an effective follow-up phase during the academic year in which the gains made in the summer are consolidated through tutoring after school and on weekends.

The summer residential programs offered small classes, individual tutoring by undergraduate college students, personal counseling, medical and dental care and small weekly stipends. Academic study was supplemented by creative interest groups in art, music, drama, photography, journalism, and off-campus field trips. Numerous seminars covered such topics as water pollution, urban and rural social problems and world political systems. It was the fourth summer in succession that the university has hosted this project.

FIRST EDUCATION DOCTORATE

Keith E. Cook

Some 29 years ago Keith E. Cook of Fairfield, once an instructor in education at the University of Maine in Orono, was a "first." He was the first of three sons born to Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Cook.

Keith Cook became another "first" Aug. 15 at the 137th Commencement Exercises of UMO. He was the first person in the history of the university to obtain from it a Doctor of Education degree. He didn't have much to do with the original "first," but he was most instrumental in the latest one. He qualified for the degree in the area of counseling and guidance after three years of continuous study, following two years as director of guidance at Mattanawcook Academy at Lincoln.

Contributions to the General Alumni Association reached an all-time high during the 1968-69 Annual Alumni Fund Campaign. Gifts totaled $145,410.65, an increase of $5,234.52 over the previous year. The average gift of $21.88 for 1968-69 showed a marked increase over the previous year's total of $20.28.

A total of 6,643 alumni contributors shared the honor of setting this new record of giving to the University of Maine at Orono (UMO). Within all but one of the four clubs—Stein, Century, Maine Stay and Honor Roll—alumni also set new records in terms of the number of contributors. Both the Stein and Century Clubs showed steady growth over the previous year with the number of contributors totaling 57 and 366 respectively. The Maine Stay Club enjoyed the greatest growth, with a record 1,705 members, or an increase of 112 contributors over the previous year. A slight decrease in membership was experienced by the Honor Roll Club with its new total of 4,515 contributors.

There was a significant increase in the Matching Gifts program during 1968-69. Companies that matched the gifts of their employees contributed $9,700.87 to the General Alumni Association, while 263 UMO alumni doubled the size of their contributions by taking advantage of matching gift opportunities.

Gifts to the GAA are used to support the University of Maine at Orono (UMO) in the following ways: student aid, improvement of teaching, cultural enrichment, service to alumni. Last year, through annual and deferred giving programs, approximately $425,000 was provided for student aid from alumni and friends of the University. Annually the GAA sponsors the Distinguished Faculty Award, which is presented to that faculty member selected by the students as the most outstanding instructor of the year. Cultural enrichment at UMO is encouraged through support from class funds and through special designation of alumni gifts to the various fine arts programs. The establishment of the new Alumni Center on the campus culminates years of planning in efforts to better serve UMO alumni. Here alumni records are maintained, gifts are processed, THE MAINE ALUMNUS is published and a constant flow of information is provided to all alumni and friends of the UMO. The Center also serves as the focal point on the campus for visiting alumni.

It has been an unusual year for college and university alumni giving programs throughout the country. Our Annual Alumni Fund Campaign was no exception. The "new" University of Maine system, which now includes the five state colleges, left many alumni in doubt as to which campus would receive the benefits of their generous contributions. UMO alumni wanted assurance that their gifts would be used only on the Orono campus, and justly so. Prompt assurance was provided by the General Alumni Association through THE MAINE ALUMNUS, information bulletins, and correspondence from both club chairmen and class agents.

Nationwide student unrest had an impact upon alumni giving. However, in sharp contrast to campus disturbances elsewhere, it became evident that Maine students, by and large, are reasonable citizens seeking to exercise responsible action.

During the year there was a complete change in the professional staff of the Association. A new director and two assistants were employed to fill vacancies created by resignations of two and by the retirement of a third member of the executive team.

Against this backdrop, raising the greatest amount of money in the history of the Association exemplifies unparalleled dedication and loyalty of Maine alumni. It is also an outstanding illustration of the indefatigable efforts of our volunteers—the club committeemen and class agents.

As chairman of the Annual Alumni Fund, I extend my sincere appreciation to all who helped to make our campaign a great success. On the following pages, the General Alumni Association proudly shares with you the roll of contributors who help to keep our Alma Mater a great university.

Doctoral programs in 11 areas are now being provided at UMO, with the latest being the Doctor of Education degree in counseling and guidance as well as reading and language arts, inaugurated in 1966. This fall the Doctor of Education program is scheduled to be enlarged by two more general areas of study—those of social studies and science.

Cook, married and the father of two sons, three years and one year, is at the Counseling Center in the State University of New York at Albany. A graduate of Lawrence High School, Fairfield, he received his bachelor's degree from UMO in 1961, taught for two years at Mt. Greylock Regional High School in Williamstown, Mass., and then obtained his master's degree from UMO in 1964. His two brothers also attended the university—one a graduate in 1963 and the other now an undergraduate at Orono.

CONSTITUTIONAL LAW COURSE FOR POLICE

A course emphasizing recent court interpretations and trends is being offered at the Orono campus. The nine-session course, Constitutional Law for Police, is sponsored by the university's Bureau of Public Administration and is being conducted by Dr. Eugene A. Mawhinney, head of the department of political science. The course surveys the development of the federal constitution and the history of the Bill of Rights, emphasizing such topics as free speech, free press and freedom of assembly; arrest; search and seizure; wire tapping and eavesdropping; interrogations and confessions; self-incrimination; and civil rights and civil rights legislation.

UPWARD BOUND SUCCESS STORY

Betty E. Delp, 19, of RFD 1, Temple, Pa., has come a long way, literally and figuratively, to reach the Orono campus of the University of Maine.

It started in September, 1968, with Betty's acceptance for training with the Job Corps at Poland Spring. She completed this course in May, 1969, and then participated in the Upward Bound Program at the UMO campus for three months this summer. In September, she was notified by the UMO Admissions Office that her eagerness for an education was being rewarded. She has been named as the first white recipient of a Dr. Martin Luther King Scholarship and been accepted in the University's two year associate degree program in animal medical technology in the College of Life Sciences and Agriculture. Betty, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Delp, is one of nine to be named to the Dr. King scholarship program.

The program was initiated last year with seven students. All but one of them returned Sept. 15 to start their second year at the UMO campus.

Others newly named to the program for the 1969-70 academic year are Shirley Byrd of Washington, D. C.; Angela Thomas of Hartford, Conn.; James Jones of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Raymond V. Talton Jr. of Haddonfield, N. J.; Elmer Roddy of Washington, D. C.; Robert Talbot of Bangor; Revalon Hamer of Washington, D. C.; and Richard Greene of Washington, D. C.

ALUMNI NEWS

HODGKINS TO HEAD $165,000 CAMPAIGN

This year marks the ninth year of the Annual Alumni Fund of the General Alumni Association. With each year, the Fund has shown growth, the total for 1968-69 amounting to $145,410.65. More importantly, alumni giving to the GAA last year stimulated nearly $500,000 in alumni contributions to the University of Maine at Orono, and nearly $1,000,000 when both alumni and non-alumni gifts are counted together.

Ralph L. Hodgkins, Jr. '59, embarking on his second year as chairman of the Annual Alumni Fund, has stated that "increased alumni support shows evidence of pride in the University; pride which in turn becomes contagious and encourages other private and non-alumni contributors to support UMO." Hodgkins expressed optimism in announcing a goal of $165,000 for the 1969-70 campaign.

In addition to this goal, the chairman has set one of almost equal importance, that of improved communications with alumni. Through a carefully planned series of mailings, alumni will be informed on the need for an Alumni Fund, its uses, categories or "special clubs" of giving and the benefits of a Matching Gifts Program.

GAA SUPPORTS AID, GOOD TEACHING

Though the Annual Alumni Fund, the GAA is enabled to help provide financial aid to one-quarter of the student body. Applications for financial assistance are scrutinized to determine the extent of need and to allocate funds to the most deserving students. Another use for funds received through alumni contributions is the encouragement of fine teaching at UMO through the Distinguished Faculty Award, presented each year in the form of a stipend to the most outstanding teacher as chosen by the student body.

NEW CLUB ADDED

Alumni will now be able to support the projects of the GAA through five clubs of giving, as opposed to the four offered last year, the AAF Committee has announced. In addition to the Honor Roll Club ($20 to $29.99), Maine Stay Club ($30 to $99.99), Century Club ($100 to $499.99), and Stein Club ($500 to $999.99), a new President's Club gives recognition to contributors of $1000 or more. Of course, the potential of alumni gifts rises with the advantages of the Matching Gifts program. Many businesses and corporations will match the gifts of their employees to educational institutions as a gesture of their interest in the education of our youth.

MEETINGS SLATED

In addition to the series of mailings aimed at clarifying the need for and use of the Annual Alumni Fund, the AAF Committee will attempt to reach its goal of improved communications with alumni through several meetings to be held during the year with campaign personnel, alumni volunteers and GAA staff representatives to help determine how the General Alumni Association can best continue to serve the University of Maine at Orono, its alumni and friends.

ALUMNI CENTER— A NEW DIMENSION

The GAA begins a new dimension of service in the recently renovated Alumni Center, the former North Hall. The Alumni Center enables the Alumni Association to say "thank you" to UMO's loyal friends. A place to which alumni can return and relax with former classmates, the Center also provides facilities for hosting visiting artists, novelists, for conducting seminars, and meetings of the Undergraduate Alumni Council, a new student organization whose purpose is to foster among the students the "Spirit of Maine" and so develop into more conscientious and informed alumni.

1969-70 promises to be a challenging year for the AAF Committee and an informative one for the alumni and friends of UMO.

COVERED DISH SUPPER PLANNED AT BANGOR

The Southern Penobscot Alumnae plan a covered dish supper on October 7 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Waldron Sawyer (Winona Cole '43), 420 French Street, Bangor, on October 7, 1969. President and Mrs. Winthrop C. Libby will be the honored guests.

NORTHERN KENNEBEC ALUMNI WELCOME NEW FRESHMEN

The Northern Kennebec Alumni Association welcomed incoming freshmen living in the Waterville area at an August barbecue at the camp of John J. '33 and Fern (Allen '34) Turbyne on East Pond in Oakland. Edward Ouellette, a UMO senior from Waterville, was also on hand to greet the new frosh.

BOSTON ALUMNI TO MEET IN OCTOBER

The Boston Alumni Club is planning a dinner dance at Valle's Steak House in Newton, Massachusetts, on Saturday, October 25, 1969, after the Maine-Boston University football game. Special guests will be President Winthrop C. Libby '32 and Maurice Littlefield '60, Assistant Executive Director of the General Alumni Association.

DR. HAROLD KEARNEY TO SPEAK IN PORTLAND

Dr. Harold Kearney, Youth Education Specialist with the Cooperative Extension Service will address the Portland Alumnae of UMO on October 9 at the University of Maine in Portland. Dr. Kearney will speak on learning disabilities.

PORT WASHINGTON YACHT CLUB TO BE SCENE OF NEW YORK AREA ALUMNI MEETING

President Winthrop C. Libby '32 will speak at a dinner for the New York Area Alumni at the Port Washington Yacht Club in Port Washington, Long Island on Friday evening, October 24.

RHODE ISLAND ACTIVITY

The Rhode Island and S.E. Massachusetts will feature a Tail Gate Party for alumni on October 4.

The Rhode Island Black Bears will also meet on the preceding night at the home of Peter Gammons '61.

U M TRUSTEE DIES

Raymond Webber Davis, 81, a graduate of the University of Maine in 1911, died at his home in Guilford on August 12, 1969. He was a Trustee of the University of Maine for 21 years and for three years was President of the Board of Trustees. He was awarded an Honorary L.L.D. degree by the University of Maine in 1957.

He had been associated with the Guilford Trust Company since 1911 and served as President from 1928 to 1966.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Hazel (Small) Davis; a son, Donald E., '50, both of Guilford, a daughter, Mrs. Ernest (Dorothy) Faresse of Arlington, Massachusetts, and a sister, Mrs. Holland (Pauline) Knowlton, of Schenectady, New York. Also four grandchildren and nieces and nephews.

While a student at the University, he was a member of Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity and a Senior Skull.

Lore Rogers '96

Gilmore  *OLD TOWN,
ME.

Lore A. Rogers '96, left in the photo above, with an unidentified member of his football team. Dr. Rogers, shown in the lower picture as he is today, now lives in Patten, and is the only living member of the first Maine State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts football team that played against Colby Oct. 29, 1892 at Waterville.

It was a cold, wet fall day when the first organized varsity team of the Maine State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts knocked heads with Colby College players at Waterville. The year was 1892 and the date was October 29. The only living member of that team, Dr. Lore Alford Rogers '96, remembers those days at Maine State College, now the University of Maine at Orono.

At 2:20 P.M. the teams lined up in the rain between two rows of interested but wet spectators who huddled under their umbrellas. The young men from Orono won the toss, took the ball around the end and back through the center to Colby's 25 yard line. Then, Colby got the ball and fought their way back until the ball was recovered by MSC. Colby players scored a touchdown just before the end of the first half, giving Colby six points and MSC nothing. By the end of the second half Colby had won 12-0. However, it must be noted here that Colby had several years of varsity playing over MSC. Dr. Rogers, while reminiscing about that game, said that spectators would often offer their advice to the Maine players, because they had no coach. Players on the team, such as Halfback Harry M. Smith, often doubled as player and part-time coach.

Although the first game was played under adverse conditions—no helmets, padding or uniforms as we know them—there were several "noticeable features" of that first game, as one sportswriter of the day put it. Lore Rogers, who played left end, was noted for his tackling ability, along with fullback W. W. Crosby, '93, and John H. Ricker, '94, quarterback. Hall Heywood, '96, listed as a substitute, was noted for his speed on the field during that first game.

Dr. Rogers, who lives in Patten, said all football players were encouraged to grow their hair long. This idea, according to Dr. Rogers, protected one's head on the field—"at least in theory." To get on the team all you had to do was "get out for practice." Cleats were given to the players to fasten on their shoes and they usually wore sweaters during those first years. The year 1892 was also the year that Dr. Rogers camped at Fort George in Castine with the Coburn Cadets, a Maine military outfit of the day.

For two years Dr. Rogers played football on the varsity team. Then, in '96 he left the Orono campus and returned to Patten where he worked with his father, Luther B. Rogers, a lumber operator who was prominent in the Penobscot country. Jobs were scarce in those days, even for a man with a degree in bacteriology. Shortly after the turn of the century, Dr. Rogers went to Washington, D. C., where he joined the Department of Agriculture. The Dairy Products Laboratory was to be his home for the next 40 years. He became a "dairy expert," as men of his training were then called.

Dr. Rogers was born at the right time. There were a myriad of dairy product problems that needed to be approached by fundamental investigation. The great State extension organizations of today were in their infancy, and the State experiment stations were rather small and inadequate, particularly with respect to dairy research. Industry looked to USDA for help, and dairy science as an organized research discipline took shape in the Department with Dr. Rogers, the young, ex-football player, as its leader.

Over the years Dr. Rogers assembled a research staff in dairy science, as a division within the old Bureau of Animal Industry, which came to be recognized internationally. Later the Dairy Division achieved status of its own as the Bureau of Dairy Industry, and it was here that Dr. Rogers became chief of the Dairy Research Laboratories, a unit which embraced investigations of dairy products, nutrition and technology. The product investigations involved problems on butter, concentrated milk, ice cream, and other dairy products. By training he was a bacteriologist, and one of his earliest of nearly 100 papers disclosed the causative factors in the flavor deterioration of butter. There was no new and tested equipment to work with; Dr. Rogers had to use his own fertile imagination and sensitive hands to build equipment.

It would be futile to attempt a definitive accounting of his professional years, so productive was his searching genius. His contributions to bacteriology were studies of the factors controlling growth and multiplication of bacteria, the fermentative production of lactic acid, the use of pure cultures in the manufacture of Swiss and Cheddar cheese from pasteurized milk, and the development of one of the first processes for curing and marketing consumer-sized packages of Cheddar cheese.

Dr. Rogers was one of the American bacteriologists to develop very early the preservation of bacterial cultures by dehydration and freezing, a technique which led to his interest in the American Type Culture Collection, and which made the work of this invaluable institution possible.

Recognition has been given Dr. Rogers many times during the past 94 years of his life. In 1923 he received a Doctor of Science degree from the University of Maryland and a second one from UMO in 1925. In 1928 his colleagues published a book in his honor. It was entitled "Fundamentals of Dairy Science," and the designated authorship was simply "Associates of Lore A. Rogers." This book, revised in 1935, became the classic reference in the field for at least 25 years and is a lasting tribute to the stature that Dr. Rogers achieved.

Dr. Rogers was president of the Society of American Bacteriologists in 1923; a member of the American Public Health Association; the American Dairy Science Association, the Washington Academy of Medicine, and the Washington Academy of Sciences. He was an official delegate to the world dairy congresses held in Stockholm in 1911, in Washington in 1923, in London in 1928 and in Rome in 1934. He has been a member of the Cosmos Club in Washington, D. C. since 1924.

Dr. Rogers has received almost every high honor awarded by the American Dairy Science Association. He was the first recipient of the highly coveted Borden Award (a gold medal and $1,000) in 1937, and has witnessed the granting of numerous subsequent Borden Awards to his one-time subordinates from the Dairy Research Laboratories. In 1951 Dr. Rogers was elected an honorary member of the Association; and in 1962 was selected to receive the Association's Distinguished Service Award. At the age of 87, Dr. Rogers went to UMO (where the Association meeting was being held at the time, and where Rogers Hall stands, testifying to his living memory) to receive this outstanding award.

In 1942, Dr. Rogers retired from the Department of Agriculture and returned to Patten where he still lives. Thus, his professional years ended. For a time he operated a small dairy business in Patten, doing so in a county noted only for potatoes. In this enterprise, with characteristic improvisation, he built a small quality control laboratory for testing milk supplies and processed products. After some years, Dr. Rogers withdrew from the local dairy business and was at last truly "retired." The story of this incredible man does not end here, however. Returning to Maine was for Dr. Rogers the beginning of a second career—the stimulating harvest years. Most men in their 70's would be content to sit on the front porch and reminisce about days gone by—but not Lore Rogers.

His career as a scientist ended more than 20 years ago, but, his pioneer spirit stayed with him. For years after his move back to Patten from Washington in 1948, Dr. Rogers gathered material on Maine's rich lumbering legacy, some of which has been published in DOWN EAST magazine. His interest in logging led him to collect artifacts of industry that are authentic of the period and area. These memos of a fast disappearing era were first mounted on a display panel and exhibited in a vacant store in Patten village. Later, as the collection grew, other displays were added, and the museum became a reality. After spending some time in the back room of the town library, the collection was moved to where it is today—in an authentic log cabin moved from nearby Mt. Chase. With Mt. Katahdin towering nearby, the old structure stands with three other buildings, since added to house the growing museum.

The physical exhibits include every sort of tool found in logging camps; everything from a pod auger to a peavey. Many of the exhibits were made by the skillful hands of Lore Rogers. Today the collection has grown to over 500 exhibits, most of which were donated by interested neighbors. A non-profit corporation, the Patten Lumberman's Museum is a graphic record of the lumber industry as it existed in forests of Northern Maine. It represents the pioneer spirit of early lumbermen; more than that, it represents the intense pioneer spirit of its founder.

For the past 40 years or so Dr. Rogers has spent summer vacations at his woodland camp at Shin Pond, about 10 miles from Patten village. Even now, despite his failing eyesight, Dr. Rogers and his agile wife, Katherine, spend many hours there.

Their camp is accessible only by boat. Up until the last couple of years, the young-at-heart Dr. Rogers handled the boat. His wife does the maneuvering now, however.

Dr. Rogers will be 95 years old February 7 of next year. He was born in 1875, during a time when pioneers were greatly needed. His mind still vividly recalls his early days in the Maine woods with his father, the years at Maine State College, and even that first game against Colby. To say that Lore Rogers is unique is an understatement; words cannot adequately describe this remarkable alumnus of the University of Maine.

HOME COMING SLATED FOR OCTOBER 17 - 18

Nearly five hundred alumni are expected to return to the University of Maine at Orono for Homecoming Weekend, October 17 and 18. Alumni will have the opportunity to take part in a variety of activities and enjoy exciting gridiron competition between Maine and Connecticut.

For the Alumni Council, a meeting is slated for 2:00 p.m. on Friday, October 17 at the Alumni Center. On Friday evening, the Alumni Council dinner will be held at the Penobscot Valley Country Club at which time the Career Award will be presented to an outstanding Maine alumnus who, through the strength of his UMO education, has made noteworthy accomplishments in his field. The recipient is chosen by the Career Awards Committee with Mary-Hale (Sutton '38) Furman of Wellesley Hills, Massachusetts as chairman. Last year's recipient was Roger C. Wilkins '29, who is now President of the Traveler's Insurance Company.

At 9:00 p.m. on Friday, President and Mrs. Winthrop C. Libby will receive alumni and friends at their home for an informal reception. At this time, a painting by Maine artist Maurice "Jake" Day will be presented by Roger C. Castle '21 to the General Alumni Association for the University of Maine art collection. Also on Friday evening, will be a stag dance sponsored by the students.

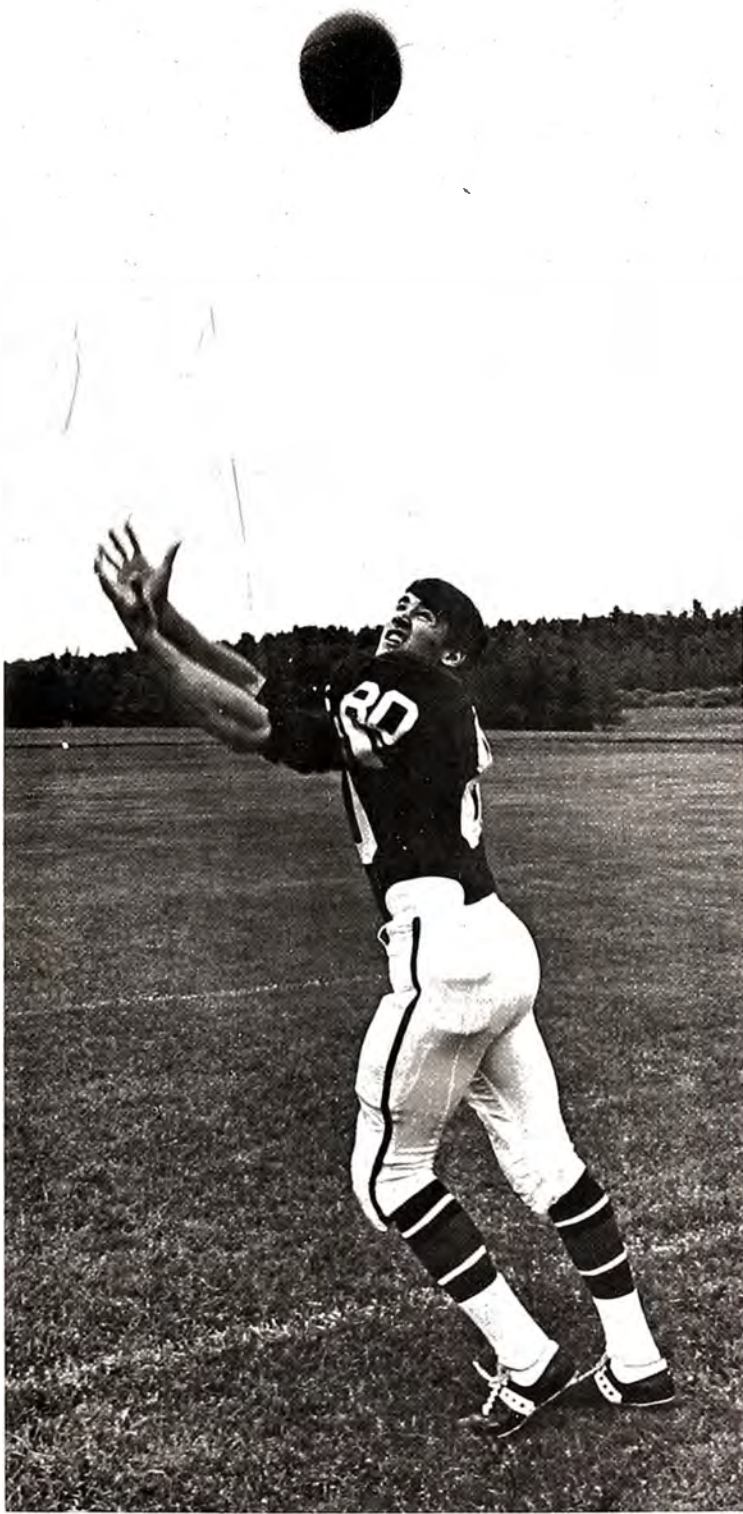

Following coffee and doughnuts at the Alumni Center on Saturday morning, there will be a float parade at 10:00 a.m. with inter-dormitory and inter-fraternity competition for a trophy, presented by the General Alumni Association. At 11:45 a.m. Saturday, alumni will enjoy lunch in the Memorial Gymnasium. Three Black Bear awards will be presented at this time to outstanding alumni or friends of UMO chosen by the Black Bear Award Committee headed by Dr. George Dow '27, former director of the Agricultural Experiment station at UMO.

This year marks the one hundredth anniversary of collegiate football. In observance of college football's one hundredth year, the university has designated the homecoming game, Maine vs. Connecticut, as the Centennial game. Some of the activities in connection with the Centennial will be the use of centennial coins in the pre-game toss, the awarding of a trophy to the winning team and certificates to team members as well as prominent University officials and alumni. Special band numbers will be played to commemorate the occasion. The Homecoming Queen will also be the Centennial Queen with the presentation of an additional special tiara.

Following the game, most of the fraternities will hold an open house.

Saturday night, students will be entertained at a concert in the Memorial Gymnasium featuring Orpheus and Tom Rush.

It is anticipated that alumni, students and friends will enjoy a full and exciting weekend.

Every Catch A Record

Every time Gene Benner of Auburn catches a pass he sets two new University of Maine records for pass receiving. He currently holds the university career marks for most passes caught, 80; and most net yards in pass receiving for a career, 1130. With one more full season ahead Benner, a split end, should add to these marks and needs to nab just 17 passes for 359 yards to set new career New England major college records in these categories. Benner now holds six university pass catching records and two Yankee Conference marks. Three times in his career Gene has caught 10 passes in a game. In addition, he is an exceptional kickoff return runner and has also helped the club with his punting.

FOOTBALL CENTENNIAL OBSERVED

Harold Westerman, Director of Physical Education and Athletics and state chairman for the National Collegiate Athletic Association's Football Centennial Observance, presented a medallion and certificate to Governor Kenneth Curtis Sept. 15 in observance of the hundredth year of football in the United States.

Governor Curtis signed a proclamation naming 1969 as College Football Centennial Year in Maine during the NCAA's Governor's Day observances in Augusta.

Westerman invited all the head coaches of college football teams in Maine, representatives of the State High School Association and other prominent football leaders to attend the ceremonies.

Collegiate football in the United States is observing its centennial year commemorating the first intercollegiate game in 1869 between Rutgers and Princeton.

U. of M. fielded its first football team in 1892.

1969 VARSITY FOOTBALL

As this issue of the ALUMNUS went to press the University's grid Bears at the Orono campus were warming up for the 1969 season.

Coach Walt Abbott hadn't yet given starting assignments. Coach Abbott sized up the situation by saying, "We'll be small and will lack depth in some positions, but we have speed. Tackle size, or lack of it, will hinder us, and we need quarterback depth."

Overall, Maine will be improved over 1968 and, if the Bears get the breaks, should go over .500 for the season for the first time in four years. However, the schedule is perhaps Maine's toughest with The Citadel, Hofstra, Boston University and Southern Connecticut to be faced along with other Yankee Conference schools.

VARSIY SOCCER PROSPECTS

A backbone of nine lettermen and some excellent prospects from last year's freshman team that went undefeated in seven games gives rise to optimism for the 1969 UMO varsity soccer team.

A blend of experience along with speed and much improved depth could make the Black Bears contenders in both the Yankee Conference and the Maine State Series. A key to the improvement and success of the club will be the adding of game experience by talented sophomores. In any event the Bears should show considerable improvement over last year's 2-10 season.

1969 VARSITY CROSS COUNTRY PROSPECTS

Gone via graduation this year are captain Steve Turner and Alan Howard, last year's two top runners. Coach Ed Styrna will have to depend on several sophomores up from last year's undefeated frosh combine. Top prospect is sophomore Chris Bovie of Springvale, who set a freshman course record at Maine last season and ran well in the mile and two mile events during the indoor track seasons.

The 1969 varsity schedule includes Jersey City State, St. Anselm, New Brunswick, New Hampshire, Colby, Vermont, MIAA at Waterville, the Yankee Conference at Amherst and the New Englands at Boston.

VARSIY SAILING PROSPECTS

The Maine sailing team just missed having an excellent season last year as it won one meet, finished second twice and just missed qualifying for the New England Dinghy Championships. This season the Bear sailors could reach a pinnacle in UMO sailing with their two talented crews.

The 1969 sailing schedule includes the Hewitt Cup at Orono, Duodecagonal at Medford, Mass., MIT Invitational, the New England Dinghy Trials at Medford and the Yankee Conference. Starting his second year as coach of the sailing team is Dr. Richard Gibson, professor and head of the department of electrical engineering.

SENIOR ALUMNI GROUP NAMES EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

J. Larcom Ober, president of the University of Maine Senior Alumni organization, has announced the appointment of three executive committee members, each to serve one year.

Those named are Howe W. Hall, class of 1914; Weston S. Evans, class of 1918; and Dwight B. Demeritt, class of 1919, all of Orono. All were at one time faculty members at the University of Maine, Orono.

The officers of the association in addition to Ober, class of 1913, who resides in Beverly, Mass., are Raymond H. Fogler '15 of Hastings-on-Hudson, N. Y., vice president; Karl MacDonald '07 of Belfast, second vice president; and Charles E. Crossland '17 of Orono, secretary-treasurer.

The Senior Alumni group is composed of University of Maine alumni who have been graduated 50 years or more. It has given six scholarships of $200 each for undergraduates for the college year 1969-70.

'07 We had our "Little Reunion" at Kobs Lobster Pound, Saturday, Aug. 16, at 1:00 p.m. Inasmuch as there were only three of '07, we joined with '08 in having the Reunion. Ben Williams, Perce Wyman and Karl MacDonald were the '07ers present. Frederick Simmons, who was at one time in '07 was invited. Mrs. Susan Gaudet, the new class notes editor for The Alumnus, was there with her husband. With the '08ers, of which there were six, wives and guests, a total of twenty sat down to dinner. A nice time was enjoyed by all. See '08 personals for the others present.

Albert Rounds, Stoneham, Mass., who operates a building and real estate company, writes: "I am getting away from my work as fast as possible, very hard to get help and am too old to learn the many new methods."

If you wish more in this column, you will have to answer my return postals and letters when you receive them.

'08 Clarence and Nestlin Weston, their son and his wife, Alvin and Deanna Weston and their son, Brent, were visitors to the campus in late August. They had motored north from their homes in Atlanta, Ga., and were visiting relatives in Portland and Madison. It was a privilege and pleasure to accompany them on a tour of the University campus.

Mrs. Lillian Maynard and Earle Vickery were united in marriage at Bowdoinham on April 29 of this year. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Robert Cummins, a long time friend of the family.

The Class of 1907, which holds a "Little Reunion" in the summer for the members of the class living within easy driving distance of Searsport, invited the Class of 1908 to hold its summer reunion with 1907. The combined groups of alumni, wives and relatives to the number of 20 met at Kob's Lobster Pound in Searsport on August 16 for dinner followed by a talk fest on the shore. 1908 was represented by Burton and Grace Flanders, Rockland; Earle and Lillian Vickery and daughter Ruth Vickery, Pittsfield; William and Bell Cobb, Searsport and James Gannett, Orono.

Leslie and Edith (Jordan '10) Lord visited their son, Frank '34 and his wife Ruth (Kimball '37) Lord at their home in Oak Bluffs, Mass., during the middle of August.

'09 Most of the '09 news was covered in my recent circular letter on our 60th reunion. Seventeen people returned for that occasion, including Mrs. George T. Carlisle, Mrs. Joe W. Gerrity, Mrs. Lewis F. Pike, Mrs. Harry E. Sutton, and George D. Carlisle '35.

I hope you will let me know of any more news of the '09ers.

'10 Had a letter from Phil Simonton—said he was enjoying the summer at his cottage on Lake Michigan. This is a favorite spot for his children and grandchildren tho a bit cold for swimming. Phil has been summering there some 26 years; goes back to Oak Park in mid-October. He had recently received letters from Ernie Lamb, Gus Schierloh and Al Chandler.

Also heard from Alfred Chandler, living now in West Harwich, Mass., (Great Neck Road) on the Cape Cod South Shore. He and Fanny are looking forward to their 56th wedding anniversary, as are Zelma and I, by the way. Al was with the Bell Telephone System in various capacities for 42 years; retired in 1952 and moved from Pennsylvania to Cape Cod. Plays golf while Fanny plays bridge. Their daughter and family live in Concord not too far away.

Bill Bagg broke his leg last October and was in the hospital till early March. A brace and walker helps so he is feeling O.K. He and Tot are planning to be at our 60th next June.

Roby Littlefield paints a vivid picture of his heroic battle with the lowly woodchuck that invaded his garden. His superb physical fitness finally prevailed. Roby's that is.

More next issue as I hear from other 1910ers.

'11 Was delighted to get a letter from Earle Whittier of that unpronounceable town called Rehoboth Beach, Del. and he usually comes to Maine in Aug. but this year may make it in Sept. It is a long trip to come up alone by car and other means of transportation here in Maine are not good unless there is a flying field near your town.

Earle disagrees with two recent statements made by someone at the Senior Alumni Meeting who said that "each student was called in and asked after the Strike of 1909 if he wished to return to the University". Earle says that it was a fairy tale and I agree because we were both in the middle of it. The student body got mad at Pres. Red Harris as I remember and quit for about three days and then just went back.

In my last letter I forgot to mention that Forest Kingsbury, our old standby was present last June. Alumni Day and seldom misses any of the U-M affairs.

Our old golf "pro", Ben Whitney, is still improving his game and admitted making a par 72 once on the Bangor course.

Got a note from Parker Cooper taking in the fresh air in Albion. He and his good wife will probably go to Fla. for the winter to keep his feet from getting cold. He still gripes because I voted against him in the 100th Legislature in 1961 on some labor bill.

The Class of '11 just lost one of its most loyal and distinguished members in the passing of Ray "Geff" Davis of Guilford. Pres. "Rick" Richardson and your secretary sent a telegram of condolence to the family in behalf of the Class.

'12 Frank "Pete" Lancaster, after some 40 years in the insurance and brokerage business, has finally retired; that is, almost retired. He has sold his insurance business, closed his downtown Bangor office but still has his desk and a considerable clientel at his home. Frank's persistent durability is really something. Frank and Jessie will observe 55 years of marriage on September 23.

'13 I am sorry to have let you down in the June ALUMNUS but both Mrs. Chandler and I had the Flu in the early part of May. I think this is the first time since 1929 that I have been unable to attend Commencement and write for the column afterwards. I am given to understand that this was a grand time with sizable attendance of all the reunion classes. Two old faithfuls, "Scott" Hamlin and "Larc" Ober were the only ones in attendance for the Illustrious Class of 1913.

A card I received from "Larc" Ober in the latter part of July from Amsterdam indicated that he and three pals along with him were making a short tour of the European countries and earlier in the year Larcom made an extended tour of South America. Well, he certainly has been Ober the seas and what a "Larc".

Some of you will probably remember a very loyal Alumnus, Herman P. Sweetser '10, who lives in Cumberland Center. "Herm" and his lovely wife, Phyllis celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary, Saturday, August 16th, at their home on Blanchard Road. It was a wonderful party, with many prominent guests coming from here and afar to help celebrate this Golden Anniversary.

Now there must be some of you "Thirteeners" who have had recently such a celebration or are about to have one. This is the kind of news I would expect from some of you "oldsters" now or any other interesting news—please drop me a line.

'15 Another dividend from the May 7, 1969 Class Letter has been to locate at least one "lost" member. H. P. Bailey gave me the address of Madison L. Gilman as 80 East End Avenue, New York, New York 10028. A telephone call elicited the information that he is living there at the home of his daughter.

Does any other classmate have similar information? If so, please forward it to your secretary.

Ross H. Varney spent a month in the Central Maine General Hospital in Lewiston beginning May 23rd. As of mid July he was home and recuperating rapidly. He has not lost his famous sense of humor. Good luck, Ross!

'16 It is with sadness that we write of the death of your most able and faithful class reporter, Everett G. Ham, on Aug. 20, 1969. Mrs. Ham writes that his thoughts were on the job up to the last. He had written his class column in the hospital. Mrs. Ham wrote, "You can see that his mind was going on all eight cylinders to the end." Here is his last column.

It was rather disappointing to recently hear that Tim Bonney could not take the contemplated European trip with his large family last June. Tim was stricken with a serious stomach malady which required the cancellation of all plans. He hoped to introduce some of his grandchildren to Eastern colleges on their way home—incidentally spending much time in New England.

Also on the sad side for news, your scribe was stricken with a coronary on August 11th, but with prolonged good care we are yet awaiting happier news tid-bits from you out there.

'17 As soon as Marion (Emery) Cole got home from our Interim Reunion she began at once writing notes of personal thanks to those who had made it possible. Wasn't that a nice idea? People who express appreciation are a joy to their friends. Marion has sold her big house. It was a delightful home (I know, I've been there) but too much for one person. The new place, at 10 Summer Street, Kennebunk, is smaller and handier to stores, church, library and all Marion's interests.

It was good to note that Charles Crossland received one of the silver bowl awards on Alumni Day, as a past executive director of the General Alumni Association. Charles deserves a whole cupboard full of silver bowls or whatever the University may have to offer.

A note from Ed Dempsey locates the Dempseys in the White Mountain area, with Roy Higgins and his wife vacationing nearby.

East Longmeadow, Mass. had a historical observance this summer. Try to imagine Carl Johnson in wig and beard as Town Crier. We're betting he did a good job, though Carl is serving as Chaplain of his American Legion post and has the 50 year veteran's badge from his Masonic Lodge.

Noel Godfrey has recently been elected to the International Platform Association, an organization of "those interested in using the power of the spoken word, and those who are either interested in appearing before audiences or in hearing and knowing the great speakers and performers of the world". Noel who has spent a lifetime in teaching and lecturing, and even in so-called retirement is still carrying on. He has many degrees and honors in his specialty.

Frank Savage and his wife have been vacationing at their summer place in Milo.

Dwight Crockett's intention to be with us at Reunion was upset by his suffering an attack of shingles—and he means suffering. He uses harsh words to describe that ailment but at last accounts was hoping to "outlive" it.

Harold and I managed our Canadian vacation again this summer, three weeks in a small house-keeping cabin on the shore near Fundy National Park.

We all want to extend sincere sympathy to George Wadlin in the loss of his wife a few weeks ago.

'18 The only drouth around here is in news from the class.

I have one letter from Donald M. Libby, who calls his home in Limerick "Puckerbrush". In June he lost a son-in-law and later his wife of 49 years. In the fall he intends to close up his home and go to Bridgton to live with a daughter.

'19 All of these hot summer days, your new scribe has been thinking about the wonderful time she had at our "Fiftieth". After the weekend I went up to Caribou and visited my family until June 30th. So, that was a perfect ending to almost a month of vacation in my good old state. My '19 cane was a source of a lot of attention as I flew back to N.J. As I had to carry it back, so many people seemed to think it was a necessity, and much to my amusement I was offered a great deal of assistance. "Madam, would you like help down the steps?" "Madam, may I assist you into the airport?" So, my motto is now, when you get to be an old lady, and want attention, just carry a cane.

Etelle Sawyer Carlson writes that she has just returned to Portland to live nearer her family. After leaving her job at International House in Oakland, Cal., she has been teaching Spanish at a College Preparatory school in that same town. She wants to continue tutoring Spanish here in the East. She hopes the Maine winters will not be too rugged after having lived all those years in California.

Clifford Ohnemus tells us in a letter from Weston, Mass., that he had fully intended to attend our "Fiftieth", but due to a conflict of dates that weekend, had to cancel out. As he retires at the end of this year, he hopes to have time to return to the Orono Campus and probably "get lost" because of the way it has enlarged.

"Occie" Whalen in his recent letter catches us up to date on his life and doings in the last fifty years. After U. of M. he was graduated from Boston Univ. Law School, and then spent four months in Europe. Thereafter, he has practiced law in the city of Eastport, acting as County Attorney for five years and was Municipal Court Judge for another twenty years, as well as serving on the City Council. He says, "I am enjoying life in this small town. I have taken part in all and various clubs and lodges, the local library, the hospital and the Unitarian Church." His two sons and one daughter have all graduated from the U. of M. "Occie" is still busy with his active law practice in Eastport.

Maxwell E. MacDonald M.D. sends us information from his Boston Office. Like so many of the boys who started with our class, he left in 1917 to enlist in the Air Force, but was turned down because of a bilateral hearing deficit. In the fall of that year he was admitted to Harvard Medical School. After graduating from college in 1921, he spent five years in research and teaching in the field of the nervous system. In 1925 he started practice and has continued, limited to the nervous system up to the present. At various times he has been on the neurological staffs of major hospitals. Dr. MacDonald adds, "At the present time my relationships with the hospitals are emeritus, because of the formalized age factor. However, I am actively engaged in office consultations and practice."

A short note from Ella Wheeler Harmon, informs us that she is living with her son in Westwood Village, which is part of Los Angeles. She says, "California has so much to recommend it that I hope to remain here, and yet New England is still home to me."

'20 Another call for class notes from the Alumni Office and none have come in except from "Kid". He has not received final figures on the amount added to our Scholarship Fund this year but thinks if we can add $800 or $900 to the fund this year, we'll be able to report a total of $20,000 in our fund at reunion next June.

The Alumni Office is now on the first floor of North Hall. This is where we 1920 Home Ecs opened the first Practice House in the fall of 1919. We had a wonderful year in there.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilour Park of Orono celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary at an open house by their friends in Orono. Congratulations to you both.

I've had a good summer. On July 7 I flew to Atlanta, Ga., to stay with younger nephew and his wife until July 27. Over 90° and muggy every day but house was comfortable and cars were air conditioned so enjoyed daily rides with Bob and Betty. Plans are under way for me to put an addition on older nephew's house in East Gloucester and have meals with them. They have had me down twice since I got back. Once for a conference with the architect who has made the plans and will supervise the building.

My house in Stoneham has been bought and papers are to be passed Sept. 22. My car was sold last fall. Both of these moves are orders from my doctor. He says I've made a remarkable recovery from brain surgery but I still tire easily and am sensitive to noise. I hope to fly to Bangor for our reunion but plan to stay at the Motel that is on the old Webster estate.

I missed sending a letter to all of you the past year but many of you have sent me cards and notes and stopped in to see me when in this territory. It has meant a lot to me and I want you to know I appreciate your kindness. I hope you will plan to be with us for our 50th. Let us make it a truly big reunion with most of the class back "Kid" and I will welcome any suggestions or offers for local cook-outs, etc. So please help us with the plans. "Kid" has reserved the Country Club for our class dinner. Fred Willard and his wife will probably be glad of a game of golf—anyone else want to challenge them?

'23 "Gin" Averill Castle writes that she and Roger '21 enjoyed commencement this year even tho it was not a reunion year for them. The new Alumni Center proved a nice meeting place and she saw several classmates, the first being Arthur "Pete" and Mabel (Peabody) Wilson who were both looking fit and enjoying "Pete's" retirement. "Bea" (Cleaves) Stevens was another happy retiree and says, "When friends ask 'Do you want to go' they never get any farther before she says yes." The Fernald Stickneys were also back, he is still very active in business and commutes between New Jersey and Maine. Please send in news of your activities.

'24 The only news at this time is a note from "Speed" Merritt in which he told of various social meetings with the Hazen Ayers, Harold Durgins and others of our great U. of M. family. At a Natick, Mass. gathering, Hazen set some planning for our 50th reunion! What a lovely idea this was. Let's hope we all meet again before that time, however.

The Littles want to thank everyone who wrote delightful letters after our luncheon party here in June. We enjoy keeping in touch and hope you will all do just that through the coming months.

'25 In less than a year we'll be gathering for our 45th Reunion. Hope you will all plan to attend. Remember the fun we had at our 40th.

In August, we girls got together for the "little reunion" we have each year. Hope Norwood Bannister, Elizabeth Lawler, Harriet Page Hume, Arline Lynch, Louise Quincy Lord, Velma Oliver and your secretary had supper at Seawall and then went to Hope's house in Southwest Harbor to see the slides Hope had taken on her most recent trip to Europe (her fourth trip plus one to Hawaii). The slides, taken in Switzerland, Austria and Germany were not the usual tourist pictures, but were more of people and customs and most interesting.

Arline Lynch plans a second trip to Europe with the University of Maine's six week tour in 1970. Arline has retired as a teacher in the Bangor School System.

Rubena Pressey is dean of women at Bangor High School.

'26 Joseph Kolouch and his wife celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary in July, at the University Motor Inn. The party was arranged by their son and his wife, Mr. ('58) & Mrs. Robert Kolouch. Many members of the original ceremony were present. Mrs. Kolouch is the former Beatrice Myer '27.

Willis R. Rollins, assistant professor of psychology at Teachers College of Conn., is retiring after 23 years of service having joined the college in 1946. Before joining the college Willis had served as Principal of both Junior and Senior High Schools in his home state of Maine. Besides his bachelor degree from Maine, Willis holds an M.A. degree from Columbia University. His various affiliations include American Psychological Assn., Conn Valley Psychological Assn., National Society for Study of Education and Phi Delta Kappa. He has contributed numerous articles to professional journals in his field. The Rollins now reside in West Hartford.

Way back last spring at an alumni dinner in Waterville, I sat a few chairs away from Mark Hurd. Above the din of many voices I gleaned the following information. Mark and his wife have four children and ten grandchildren. Aside from his regular business, Mark is Chairman of Board of Councilmen and Chairman of Board of Assessors for the town of Oakland.

'28 Our deepest sympathy to Vinetta Whitehouse Gedly and her family in the sudden death of her husband, Henry, Aug 18. The Gedlys were at their summer home in Unity until his retirement a year ago. Henry had been a supervisor for the N.N.S.D.D. Company, Newport News, Va., where they make their home. Survivors also include a son and a daughter, Mrs. Richard (Joan, '55) Roming, two granddaughters and a sister.

Arthur J. Kelly has completed 40 years with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. He is at present Chief, Permits and Statistics Branch at the New England division headquarters, Waltham, Mass. He has twice been cited by the Army and has become known as an authority "with unlimited knowledge" with respect to navigation projects, rivers and waterways and harbors in New England. He works closely with the public and with federal, state and local officials. "Kel" and his wife Mildred are the parents of two daughters. How about a late address and some personal notes, "Kel"?

Our sympathy also to Gilbert Titcomb whose wife, Harriett, died the last of June. Mrs. Titcomb was a graduate of Colby College, '30. Other survivors are a son, Gilbert, Jr., '56, a daughter, two grandchildren, two brothers.

Blair Wilson was the subject of an article in the June 30, Malden, (Mass.) News as he looked back on his 38-year teaching career, for many years at Melrose, (Mass.) High. Following our graduation he did his graduate work at Boston University and was at Bath for five years before coming to Melrose. Since 1963 he has been head of the science department. He and his wife plan to retire to their farm near Bath, where they made their summer home for many years. Two sons are named in the article, both biology majors "like their father" and both now teach the subject. Current address, "Cuffer"?

Those of us who live in the State of Maine often hear the names of classmates prominent in the state. Dr. Lawrence M. Cutler is chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Greater University, so all announcements from that group come out under his name. Highway Commissioner David H. Stevens is the spokesman for that department. Kenneth C. Lovejoy is executive director of the Pine Tree State 4-H Club Foundation and is a busy person, turning up in all parts of the state frequently. One of the later pictures shows him in a group when the Bangor Lions Club donated a purebred heifer to the foundation, the heifer a gift to the Lions from Mr. & Mrs. Rex Varnum, Dover-Foxcroft.

Please, what are YOU doing—for work, fun, service???

'29 W. Jerome Strout, president of the Bangor and Aroostook Railroad, has been named to the Transportation Committee of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce in Washington, D.C. This is "Jerry's" second term on the committee, an advisory group to the Chamber of Commerce on matters involving all modes of transportation. "Jerry" is also vice-president and a director of the Bangor Punta Corporation, a director of Development Credit Corporation of Maine, the Economic Education Council, Merrill Bankshares Company and the Northern National Bank.

Roger C. "Shag" Wilkins, president of The Travelers Insurance Company, was awarded an honorary Doctor of Laws Degree by Ricker College in Houlton on May 31st.

Curtis M. Hutchins, Chairman of the Board of Dead River Company, recently announced that his firm has withdrawn its interest in Atlantic World Port, Inc.

Albert F. Gilmore of East Walpole, Mass., has been appointed mill manager, Paper Mill Operations for Bird and Son, Inc., of East Walpole. "Al" joined Bird and Son 40 years ago as a chemist after graduation from the University of Maine. He has been paper mill superintendent since January, 1962. Prior to that he was assistant superintendent for three years. "Al" and his wife, Mae, have a son, Albert, Jr., of Cohasset and three grandchildren.

"Ken" Downing of 96 Otis Street, Bangor, considers himself retired since last February when he came home after a "long haul" with the U.S. Navy. During World War II, Ken was Chief Engineer (Utilities) for the Portland Naval Station covering the entire Casco Bay Area from Sanford to Bar Harbor. Next, to the Boston Naval Shipyard in a similar position and from there to the Naval Air Station at Brunswick. From there Ken went to the Sage installation at Topsham and then back to the Shipyard where he finished up as a Marine Engineer in the Design Division of the Planning Department. Ken reports that his retirement hobby is the writing of a book on the legal profession so called, a work he is doing for the U.S. Anti-Shyster League.

Our Class Treasurer, Roderic C. O'Connor, The Ledges, Hallowell, Maine 04347, is ready, willing and able to receive your checks for contributions to our class fund.

'30 It has been a good summer in spite of the weather as we have spent much of our time at our cottage in Warren.

I had a brief chat with Milford Payson at the Village Shop in Camden. He is still teaching in Philadelphia.

July 12th we had an unexpected reunion at the marriage of Frank and Ruth (Shurtleff '35) Goodwin's daughter. Horace and Isabelle (Robinson '32) Croxford, Syl and Reg (Merrill '32) Pratt were among the guests. You can imagine the four of us talked of the days of '30. There were many other Maine alumni there and we had lots of fun.

We were sorry to learn that our president Bill Daley is somewhat restricted in activity because of heart trouble and were glad to hear that Roger Sawyer has returned to Boothbay after a long stay at a Boston hospital. Better health to both of them.

'31 One of the highlights of the summer was seeing Polly Longley Sund for the first time since graduation. Polly and her husband have recently purchased a cottage at Bayside and are new neighbors of ours. She is about to retire after many years of teaching at West Haven, Conn.

Lewis Parlin, Maine's State Resource Conservationist, was honored for over 31 years of service with the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, Soil Conservation Service in June. He and wife Elna plan to spend some time of each year in the Hudson Bay and Labrador areas and winters traveling in Florida.

James Twombly was honored on his retirement as a civil engineer at the Brunswick Naval Air Station. He began his long engineering career with employment in the Federal Civil Service. In 1935 he was with the War Department and later with the Bureau of Reclamation. He joined the Geological Survey following reclamation work, remaining in this line of work for 13 years. His work at the Naval Air Station in Brunswick began in 1957.

The Kennebec Journal carried a feature recently on the celebration of one year birthday of the State Office Building Cafeteria in Augusta. It is operated by the Cleaves Food Service Corporation of which Col. Ward Cleaves is chairman of the board. Cleaves was the winning bidder when the state advertised the contract for the food service concession last year. Ward founded this service in 1945 after serving as U.S. Chief of Food Service. The Maryland based firm began operations in Washington, D.C. John B. Cleaves, son of the founder is president of the service.

John '27 and Mabel (Lancaster) Stewart were honored at a luncheon at the Penobscot Country Club in June upon his completion of 40 years of service on the faculty of the University. Much of this time was spent as dean of men.

John Hammons, son of Herbert '28 and Lou Hammons was on the University campus in June showing slides of the Space Program as a Maine-public relations tour for his company. Lou is now living in her new home at 2131 E. Stearns Ave., LaHabra, Calif. 90631.

'32 Dr. and Mrs. Paul Neese (Abby Sargent) of Bala Cynwyd, Pa., are spending the month of August in Sargentville. They had a vacation in Hawaii in January. Their son Monty was on his second tour of duty in Viet Nam last spring.

John E. Stewart '27, Dean of Men at the U. of M., was honored at a retirement party in May by the U. of M. faculty and administration. This is an appropriate item for our class notes since he joined the faculty in 1928 when our illustrious class was entering the U. of M. It was most fitting that our classmate President "Win" Libby should be on hand to greet Mr. and Mrs. (Mabel Lancaster '31) Stewart. Our best wishes to them both.

"Win" Libby has accepted an invitation to become a trustee of the Bangor Theological Seminary.

tions, Marj! The Honers live in Portland where Carl is with Union Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Jane (Chase) Hanger, Oxnard, Calif., teaches math at Ventura College. She has been on a two-day week this summer, but will soon be back full time.

My son George graduated from Northeastern U. in Mech. Eng. in June. He and his wife, Linda (Boynton '68), are living in Newport News, Va., where he is with the Shipyard. I'm leaving shortly for three weeks in the Alps—Swiss, French, Italian, Bavarian and Austrian.

News items, please!

'37 There's an awful dearth of news this time—I suppose everyone's been busy with summertime, but now that Labor Day is past, do drop me a card and tell what you've been doing.

One nice thing to report: Edwin Bates has been appointed, by the Board of Trustees, director of public services. Ed will combine the new post with his present duties as director of the U.M. Cooperative Extension Service.

Via grapevine we heard that Dick and Kay (Bunker) Berry were among the deep-water cruising crowd this summer, aboard a motor cruiser they've named "Orion". Sounds great, Kay and Dick, tell us more!

Thomas B. Evans is State Conservationist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service in Indianapolis, Indiana.

Well, that's all for now—hopefully more in the next issue. HELP! HELP!

'38 Jo Profita's notes will be a hard act to follow! Our thanks to Jo for the lively reporting. I will try to keep our class notes in orbit this next year.

I am still at New Britain General Hospital and teach in the School of Medical Technology but Maine is my vacation choice.

Rose (Whitmore) Germick called in at our Winterport place but I had not arrived and was sorry to miss seeing her. She and her husband, Steve, live in Houston, Texas, and were visiting her father in Rockland.

Margaret (Williston) Bebek was in Bangor during reunion time and, also, over July 4.

Russell D. Bartlett has transferred to Davenport, Iowa to become manager of the Davenport Water Co. Russ previously lived in Hingham, Mass., where he was manager of the water company there for 14 years. He and his wife, Betty, have two sons, Marc, a '67 graduate of Muhlenberg College, and Allan, who will be a junior at U. of M. this fall.

The "Alumni Service Emblem" for outstanding service to the University was presented to Bob Schoppe during Alumni Reunion Day. Congratulations.

In the "second generation column" is the report of the marriage of Barbara Smith, daughter of Arthur and Bettina (Bruce) Smith, to Mr. Robert Urso. The Smiths live in Webster Groves, Mo.

Basil Fox of Washburn is chairman of Maine's new "Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Committee." He attended a conference in Washington, D.C. with Secretary of Agriculture Hardin which included briefing sessions on various farm program activities. This committee is responsible for State administration of such farm action programs: as price supports, acreage allotments and marketing quotas, feed, grain, wheat, land use adjustment, agriculture conservation, conservation reserve, cropland and related activities.

John F. Harriman, area supervisor of the Vocational Rehabilitation Division of the Dept. of Education, completed a six week course in "Management Objectives" at Bangor Hall, U. of M., South Campus. It was sponsored by U. of M. Bureau of Public Administration and was part of an insurance program for state and local government personnel.

Because Paul's wedding was in this area the Butterworths and the Bails had fun sharing the pre-nuptial festivities with Barbara and her family. Also attending the wedding were Francis and DJ Andrews whose son, Robert, by the way, is a Soph. Owl.

Additional weddings include that of Dale ('41) and Flos (Atwood) Butterworth's daughter, Sally (UMP '68), to Mr. Morton Soule (Alas, a Bowdoin man!) at Pride's Corner. Also, Philip Blood '68, son of Harold and Betty (Brown '45) was married to Catherine Corey in Lubec. All four of these young people are in the teaching profession! The Blood seniors are in the Bangor school system and divide their leisure time between skiing at Sugarloaf and boating on Frenchman's Bay.

'44 There was a wedding early in June this year among our classmates. C. Lyndall Knapp married Sandra Lee Rath of St. Albans, Vt., the week preceding our reunion. Dr. Knapp received his Ph.D. in Physical Organic Chemistry from Yale University and is engaged in scientific research.

A news item from Hartford, Conn., mentions that Dayson DeCourcy is a member of the West Hartford School Board. Dayson is with Travelers Insurance Co.

The Bangor Daily News recently announced that both first and second place awards at the New England Newspaper Advertising Executives Association Convention held in Bar Harbor had been won by H. M. Goldsmith, the company of which Harvey Hillson is manager. The categories in which they received the honors were two-color and "most pleasing" black and white.

"Mac" (Waldo) Libbey's weekend was not over at the end of our Alumni Banquet. He left immediately to be in Worcester the following day to receive his Ph.D. degree in electrical engineering. The name of his thesis? "Theory of Active Nonreciprocal Networks."

A recent news clipping announces that Phyllis MacNeil, M.D., is opening an office in Groton, Mass., in addition to the one in Newton. Details of her distinguished and dedicated career include a Master's Degree from Tufts, a medical degree from Tufts, a year at Grim-Smith Foundation in Missouri, further training at New England Medical Center in Boston, at Harvard and at the Cleveland Clinic. Phyllis' work and training have been principally in cancer and surgery, and she started and ran the first free breast clinic at New England Hospital, Boston, in 1962. She was on the staff of the Tumor Clinic at Massachusetts General Hospital for several years and is now on the staff of three hospitals in her area. Her biography appears in Who's Who Among American Women, the Dictionary of International Biography, and the Album of Women in Medicine.

That's what's new according to the newspapers—now what about the personal notes! County Fair prize winners—Eagle Scouts in the family—a piece of poetry published—anything! We had a great class, and most of our 1944 classmates named that as their official year, even when they graduated later, so let's get caught up on the happenings of those in-between years since our graduation.

'45 I took a course at U.M.P. this summer and was delighted to have as a fellow classmate another '45er, Jean McKinney. Since graduating from Maine Jean has received her M. Ed., 1954, and her CAGS 1959, from Boston Univ. She is teaching reading at Memorial Jr. High in Beverly, Mass. In addition to going to school this summer Jean's time has been well taken care of restoring an old colonial home in Kennebunkport. It is a tremendous undertaking but will be beautiful when completed. Jean sees Madeline (Hurd) Pine frequently and tells me that her oldest son, Tom, was married last year. There are five children in the Pine family but Madeline still finds time to substitute teach once in a while and also works in her husband's store. Doris (Emery) Spencer also has joined the teaching ranks. "Dodo" teaches in Beverly.

"Dottie" (Carey) Walsh also attended U.M.P. this summer. "Dotie" has one son, Martin Jr. who is in the United States Air Force, stationed in Frankfurt, Germany. Martin Sr. is in grocery merchandise for First National Stores in New Hampshire and part of Vermont "Dottie" is English Department Chairman at Portland High School. "Dottie" opined that if former English professors were aware of this, cases of apoplexy would be rampant!"

J. William Peppard was one of the sponsors of a recent workshop held at the U of M on the coordination of woodcock management and research. Some 60 game biologists from the U.S. and Canada were in attendance. Bill is now migratory bird project leader for the Maine Dept. of Inland Fisheries and Game.

More good news about William J. Bickford "Billy" who is at Raytheon Co's Communications and Data Processing Operation in Norwood, Mass. has been appointed to the position of consulting engineer.

Now that you have all "recovered" from your summer vacations you must all have excess energy!" How about a line or two so that the other members of the class can keep up with your activities?

'47 Roy Barstow, Jr. of Manchester, Vt., has been named assistant principal of Springfield High School, Springfield, Mass. Roy held the same post at Burr and Burton Seminary, plus teaching math. Interviewed recently, he said, "I've had 18 happy years here and I've enjoyed being part of a faculty watching the school grow from an enrollment of about 180 to its present enrollment of 350."

In addition to his school work at the Seminary, Roy has been heavily involved in community affairs in Manchester. He has served as King Lion of Manchester Lions Club, clerk of board of deacons of the First Congregational Church, village auditor and had been active in the local PTA.

He is a graduate of Brewer High School and received a B.A. and masters degree from the U of M. He also has studied at the U of Mass., U of Vt., and Andrews Univ. in Michigan. Mrs. Barstow (Althea Barton '46) teaches reading and their two children are nine and ten.

Our sincere sympathy goes to John Wellington on the death of his wife, Lucille. John lives in Manset, and works at the WLBZ Broadcasting Station in Bangor. He has a daughter Leslie, a son John and two grandchildren.

A nice letter from Mrs. David St. Hilaire (Bev Pitman) Nashua, N. H. She had a reunion this summer with Jeanne Hartz Babcock from Phoenix, Ariz. and Barbara Williams Brown, Avon, Conn. Husband Dave works as senior auditor of medicare for N. H.-Vt. Blue Cross-Blue Shield with headquarters in Concord, N. H. Their children are Janet (20) hopes soon to go into nursing, Gary (17) a junior in high school. He plays the melophone in the N. H. drum and bugle corps known as the Nashua Spartans. '48 Pauline Parent Jenness called me early this summer to say that she and Laurance '49 were staying in Orono and at the family camp at Pushaw while he taught at the U of M summer session. They have lived in Mount Prespect, Ill., for 17 years and Larry is principal of Forest View, a 2,500 pupil high school. Pauly takes on a new job this fall—teaching developmental math at a new Community Junior College. They attended a convention in San Francisco last winter and ran into Margie (Watson) and Al Savignano—a fun surprise.

Dr. J. Arnold Colbath of the U of M speech department was invited to direct two plays at the Summer Festival of the Performing Arts, University of Delaware. Later he was chairman of a committee at the Congress of Theater Educators in Detroit.

On June 3, Dr. William S. Wilson, professor of Medicine and Chief of Cardiology at Rutgers Medical School, spoke at a statewide symposium for physicians in Bridgeport, Conn.

Wayne S. Porter has just been appointed assistant superintendent of schools in East Longmeadow, Mass. Last year he was at the University of Massachusetts and has only his dissertations to complete to receive his doctorate in education. Previously, he was principal of the Bloomfield, Conn., high school. The Porters have a daughter Terry, 18, and a son Kevin, 16.

I had a nice chat with Pauline True Moulton in August. She and "Will" still live in Sebago, and "Peene" has a new job in the lab at Pineland Hospital which she is enjoying very much. Their son Greg enters Brown University this fall. Christine is a senior at Bonny Eagle High School and has been at Girls State this summer. She's on the student council, as is Andrew, a sophomore, who is very interested in music. Peter is the youngest—in 8th grade. "Peene" also told me that Carol (Dennison) and Ben (51) Libby of Buxton have a son, Chris, who is in his fourth year at Rhode Island School of Design, studying architecture. Their daughter Peggy will enter U M P this fall.

'69 It's time to begin the saga of the '69 grads I am attempting to act as editor—but an editor can only edit what is submitted to him. Don't hesitate to keep me informed. Your editor and her husband Bill are finally getting settled in the work-a-day world We are working for RCA in Burlington, Mass. This fall however, we will begin work on our masters degrees at Northeastern University—thanks to RCA and Northeastern's evening studies program

The saga begins with the tales of the June weddings—

Sandra Murphy to Edmund Neadeau Jr Following a trip to Bermuda, they will reside in Atlanta, Ga Ed is employed by Marriott Corp in Atlanta.

Catherine Corey to Philip Lewis Blood '68. She will be teaching English at Scarborough Junior High School He is employed at South Portland Junior High School

Judith Carolyn White to William F. Fuller. They will reside in Stillwater.

Richard G. Hamann and Loretta Alvino '68 were wed June 14

John McElwee and Carol Ann Whited '67. They will live in Scarborough.

Continuing the saga, we must also tell of those who have turned the tables and become teachers—

June Harding will teach in South Windsor, Conn. Alan Pattershall will teach English and coach JV basketball at Livermore Falls. Lynn Davis and Gail Wentworth will be teaching in Middletown, Conn. Sheila Hennessey Dodge has a position in the Gardner Schools. Robert Marshall will teach social studies and act as assistant football coach in Holbrook, Mass Pamela Waterman will be teaching in Salem, N H

Mary Gavett and Diane LaBrequé are heading to France to teach— Mary in a school near Brest and Diane in Valenciennes

In industry we find, Rodney Cormier working with Scott Paper in Winslow, Robert Brooks working for Union Carbide in St. Albans, Vt., Fred Campbell working for RCA (presently on the rotation plan—his first few weeks were spent in New Jersey, he is now in Burlington, Mass. and soon he is off for Van Nuys, Calif.) and three '69ers working with Sanders Associates in Nashua, N H.— Dave Barker, Larry Pullen and Ralph Marshall. However, I understand several of them are still having trouble avoiding Uncle Sam He apparently thinks '69ers are good draft material.

David Bronson will enter the Univ. of Vermont School of Medicine in September. Loren W. Cole will continue his studies in Forest Management at the good ole U of Maine Frederick Robie III, is soon to enter the U S Navy Robert K Chabot completed his basic training at Lackland AFB and has been assigned to Sheppard AFB. John R. Lothridge, Jr. is employed by Mobil Oil Co.

Beatrice Scamman is the first woman ever appointed to the position of assistant county supervisor for the Farmer's Home Administration in New England She is presently with the Waterville office but will be moving on to the Auburn office soon.

Wedding bells were rung in July and August for: Barbara A Knight and Ens David Barbour They will reside in Brunswick where he is attached to the Naval Air Station

Charles Freeman Halsted III and Carol Ann Brown '68 He is on the staff of the Maine ETV Network in Orono They will reside in Brewer.

Margaret L. Susi and Larry James Veilleux. James Peavey and Eleanor Mae Kent '68. They will live at 14 Maple Root Park, Coventry, R. I He is employed by the Agway Petroleum Corp.

Norma Burkitt and Stephen Crichton '68. They will reside in West Haven, Conn., where he is assistant to the northern district sales manager for Bucknam Laboratories

Catherine Wheeler and Lt James Robjent. She will teach in Eatontown, N J

And so ends the saga for the present. Let's keep the saga complete Let me know what you and your cohorts are doing If you are in the Boston area, give me a call. Also, to you Bostonians, when Maine comes to Mass. for football this fall, let's turn out in full force. See you there. Peace.

ALMA MATER

Alumni with modest estates are discovering that they, too, can make meaningful gifts to their Alma Mater and still provide generously for dependents and close relatives. Bequests to your Alma Mater may mean substantial reduction in, or total elimination of, taxes payable on your estate after death.

The University of Maine Development Office has published a new information booklet on the advantages of writing a will which includes your University as a beneficiary. This booklet is now available simply by requesting "Development Publication No. D691."
