Director's Corner

Farewell

A farewell message is a personal matter, one colored by feelings of reluctance, yet eagerness, too. Your executive director is taking leave, permanently, from the most enjoyable position he has ever held, now having lasted more than eight and a half years. He resigned in August to be free on Sept. 15 to accept a new position in Pittsburgh, Pa., as director of development for Metropolitan Pittsburgh Educational Television Stations WQED-WQEX. It is difficult to say one wishes to leave; but it is true, in order that more may be accomplished now for Maine, if this person steps to the side, and gives another the place he has had. It is time for new programs among alumni and a reaffirmation of support by the University, and for a marshalling of younger alumni who can lift the level of support and place the association on a new plateau.

Can any of us resist a summary? This guy cannot resist saying some things about the matters that have made him love his work, and the people (yes) who employed him; nor can he resist mentioning that which he is most proud about having accomplished with you.

Not only to justify the past eight years, but surely to prove that even in the alumni office changes are made, and that changes (with your help) will come about; here is a list of some accomplishments, 1960-1968:

Initiation of Annual Alumni Giving
Change of size (smaller cover) of the Maine Alumnus

First alumni charter flight to football bowl game

Publication of Centennial Alumni Directory

Second edition of: Songs of the University of Maine

Publication of list of donors of two Capital Campaigns (Gymnasium and Library)

Solicitation of gifts for the Graduate "M" Club

Creation of the Alumni Activities "M" Award (career)

Creation of the Career Award

Establishment of the Distinguished Faculty Award

Financing of the Sprague Professorship

Joint Development of the Public Information Address Center

Addition to staff of a second assistant director

Use of Bill Bodwell '50 "gift" auto for alumni travel

Administration of employee benefits parallel to those of University classified employees.

Initiation of summer council meetings
Start of "alumni college" during Spring Open House

Completion of Hauck Fund and Centennial Capital Campaigns

Change of Homecoming to earlier dates

European air tours for alumni

Creation of reader interest in letters to editor of the Alumnus

Establishment of new clubs in Wilmington, Cleveland, and in Maine—York County

The University of Maine is changing in size and complexity now, but it is more than ever enduring and improving. We who would help her must try even more to do so, for the tasks are greater. A larger percentage of young people now seek higher education, assuring crowdedness in the future. The certainty of inflation increases the dollar requirements of financial help. But, it is further evident that even with increased public assistance—students and alumni must now provide extra dollars—and the chances are good that this must be so as far as another century of time ahead.

Let a departing worker make a prediction! Based on grand loyalty and very evident kindness he has witnessed—it is predicted we shall all see growth of the alumni association commensurate with the increase of the University in size and quality. There will be needed new people, at least to replace Phil McCarthy and Russ Woolley, but there should still be others now to care for the much expanded alumni faculty growing by 2,000 each year. Prediction: We will all discover ourselves giving as readily and in as helpful a spirit as before to the new director, all the support he requires. Let us so resolve!

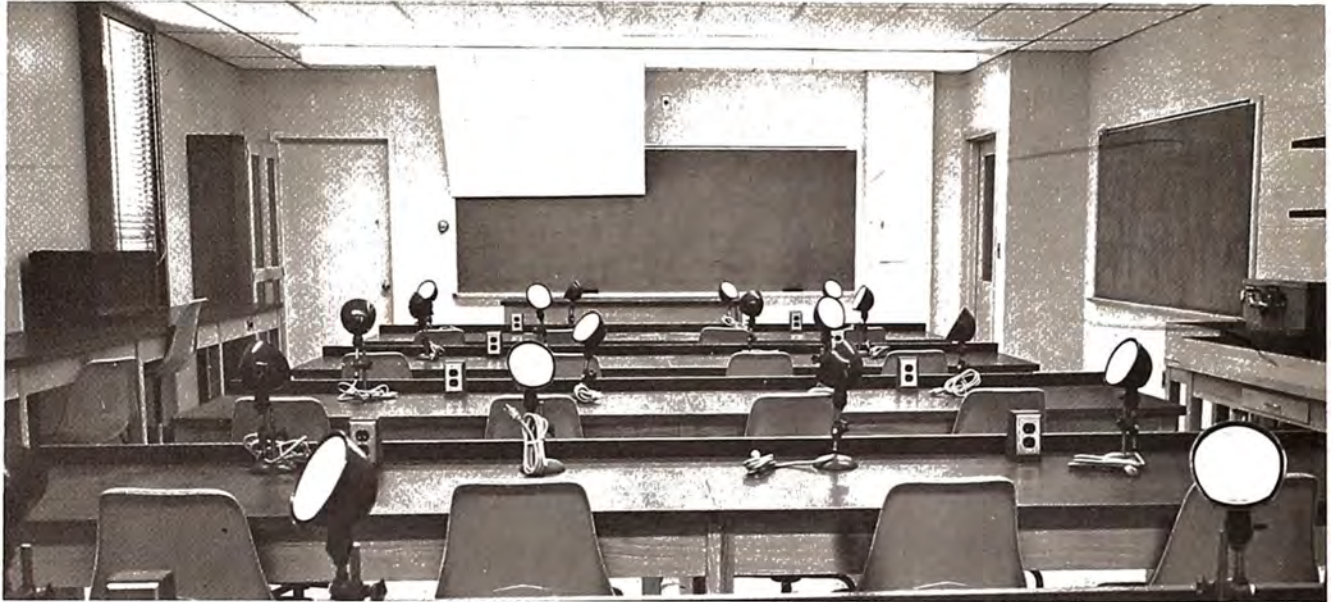

Thank you every one.

A black and white photograph of a modern building's facade. The image is dominated by a grid of windows, with several prominent vertical structural elements that appear to be part of the building's design. The sky above is filled with clouds. The overall aesthetic is minimalist and architectural.

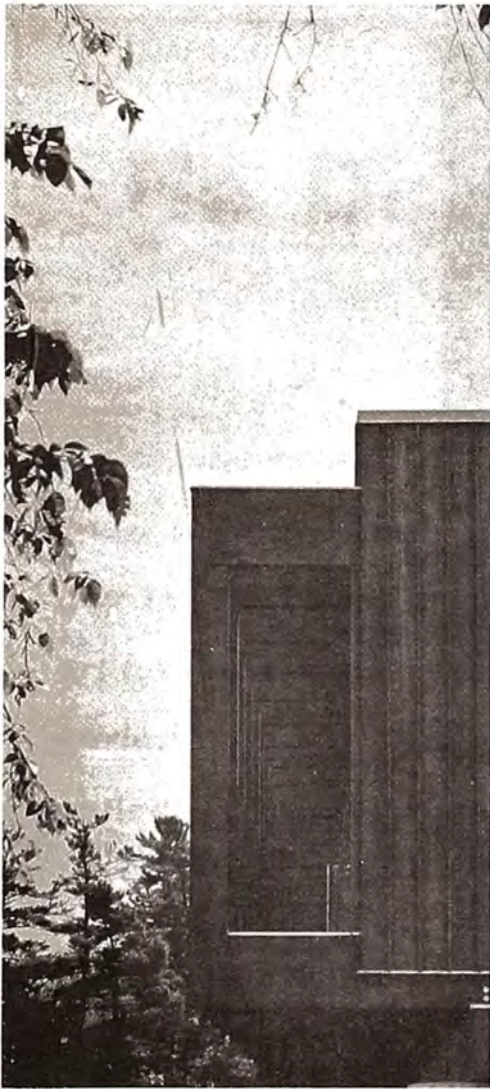

A New Sky Line

A three-story tall, "square donut"; the new forestry building which, logically enough, looks like it doesn't have a piece of steel or concrete in it; and three new dormitories, all of them "brick castles," according to the students.

*Twentieth century architecture has caught up with the University of Maine. The zoology building, bottom photo, dedicated last June, was called a "square donut" by Maine Architecture and Construction Magazine. Its teaching labs, top photo, feature the most modern facilities available. The building was named for Dean Joseph Murray, formerly of the College of Arts and Sciences, pictured with his wife, middle photo.*

The dramatic use of wood, both in the interior and exterior, humanizes Maine's new forestry building. It was dedicated August 22. Twenty-seven species of timber were used in the construction of the building, making it a show case of wood. It's the most beautiful of Maine's campus class buildings.

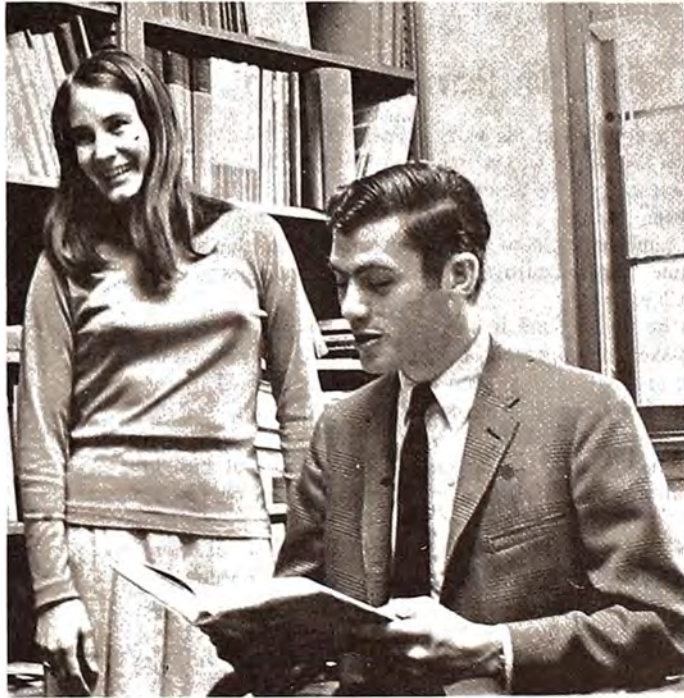

The university's new dormitory complex, opened last fall, stands high on the campus horizon. Built on a small hill overlooking the athletic fields, Knox Hall, top photo, is a massive brick structure. Students who live there call it a "castle." Each dormitory, there are three of them—Knox, Oxford and Somerset—is divided into four wings. A central lounge, like this one at Somerset Hall, bottom left, serves all four wings. Unusual light fixtures, bottom right, are utilized in the lounges.

He Digs Into The Past

Maine archeologist Dean Snow says "the ordinary guy tends to look at an artifact as something of intrinsic value . . . like an antique. To us, it's just a piece of evidence."

Archeologist Dean Snow and Student Madeline Martin

By John Day

THEIR culture was an ancient one. They hunted and fished along the coast and rivers of Maine 2,500 years before Columbus sailed into the Western Hemisphere. Early archeologists discovered their intricate stone and bone tools; one of them, Warren K. Moorehead, labeled them the "Red Paint" people because he found ochre and hematite powder deposits in their graves.

No "Red Paint" Indian ever paddled a birch bark canoe, killed with a bow and arrow or molded pottery. And in the few "Red Paint" sites excavated, no bones were unearthed to provide clues about the appearance of the state's earliest settlers. Moorehead felt the "Red Paint" tribes were much more ancient than Maine's Algonquin Indians, the redmen who greeted early French and English explorers.

Amateur archeologists cited his papers, written shortly after the turn of the century, to bolster colorful theories and myths. They conjured up visions of a lost race of Indians . . . who disappeared from the face of the earth long before Norsemen visited North American shores. The "Red Paint" people have been connected with the lost continent of Atlantis and with Israel's wandering tribes. One man feels they were completely wiped out by a gigantic tidal wave that inundated the Maine coast thousands of years ago.

Dean R. Snow, an assistant professor of anthropology and the state's only professional archeologist, last year catalogued almost 800 sites throughout Maine known to have Indian artifacts. This summer, financed by a $10,000 National Science Foundation grant, he excavated two of the locations. One of them apparently was a "Red Paint" burial ground. The other, a site near Blue Hill, turned out to be an Indian village of much more recent origin.

Snow doesn't subscribe to most of the fancy theories about Moorehead's "Red Paint" people. He believes they simply were the ancestors of Maine's modern Indian tribes. Their differences were due to the passage of time.

The first excavation site worked by Snow's team is located in Passadumkeag.

"It's been dug before. There are many similar sites in the same stage of development in Maine. I'd say they're about 3,000 years old, but we won't know this for sure until we receive datings from our Carbon 14 samples," the archeologist indicated.

Find Indian Skeleton

Snow reported that his party unearthed a skeleton in the burial ground. It was a significant find, probably the most important one taken at the site. In the past archeologists have been unable to recover skeletal remains at "Red Paint" cemeteries. Snow said he originally felt the acidity of Maine's soils destroyed "Red Paint" bodies and was responsible for this.

Now he thinks there is an additional reason.

"The skeleton appears to have been placed in a cremation pit. But in this case, it was not completely consumed by the fire. The body also was protected from the acidic soil by hearth stones.

"I think it was a fairly young Indian. They put him in a semi-flex position, with the stones around and on top of him."

Snow said there is a possibility the skeleton is of more recent origin than the rest of the cemetery, but he doubted it. The excavation party also found another burial chamber, a much larger one, but no more human bones.

"There are some sites in Massachusetts similar to this one. We looked for heavy tools and other artifacts in the pit. There was hematite and red pigment. It will take a great deal of interpretation to figure out what happened here.

"However, the evidence is piling up to indicate these people cremated their dead," Snow reported.

A Different Race

WERE the "Red Paint" Indians a different race?

"I didn't see any differences (referring to the skeleton) but I am not a trained anthropometricist.

"All this business about the 'Red Paint' people stems from some nonsense written 50 to 100 years ago. You have a similar situation in the Mid-West . . . the mound-builder Indians. Some people claim those people were a lost race. They came, built and disappeared. We are trying to eradicate that type of thinking.

"It (the 'Red Paint' myth) started with Bates. Warren Moorehead picked it up around the turn of the century. Just before World II people started punching holes in the theory . . . the idea that the 'Red Paint' Indians were a lost race. But the theory has persisted. There is something very attractive about the idea of a people who suddenly vanished. It's very hard to get rid of. I think one reason for this is most amateur archeologists and historians don't have the professional journals available to them. This is where the meat of what's going on is published," Snow continued.

Students Excavate Site

THE site workers at Passadumkeag were summer school students, or "free labor," according to Snow. The team that dug up Snow's second site, a coastal location in Blue Hill, were paid.

The university archeologist discussed his findings at Blue Hill.

"We got a lot of good solid evidence . . . and were not at all disappointed by the artifacts we turned up, but the site did not go as deep as we had hoped.

Usually the deeper artifacts are found buried, the older they are.

"It probably was a very small village. (The site is located near Salt Pond) It could not have been too old because the pond wouldn't have been fresh water. In cultural terms, they were much like the first Indians the early European explorers met when they landed here."

Patience And Sure Hands Are Requirements For Excavation Work

Settled Around 1,200 AD

SNOW guessed the village was settled around 1,200 A.D. The excavation team dug up soil next to a small stream connecting Salt Pond to Penobscot Bay, a site on a rise next to the stream, one on a point jutting into the bay and a fourth on an island overlooking the location.

How does one excavate a suspected ancient Indian village?

"First of all, you have to test to determine if the site is worth digging. I was led a little astray at Blue Hill. We drilled a test hole and found quite a bit of deep, stratified material down by the stream bed. I assumed, because of this, that the village was much older than it really is."

Snow said that when the team dug into the rise above the stream they discovered that much material had been washed down the bank, causing the lower site to be deeper and have more stratifications than the original village location.

The archeological team laid out two meter square grids—over 120 of them—and began the laborious and time-consuming task of carefully sifting the soil in each grid.

"We were able to dig only 20 of the grids. It takes days to get through just one of them. We started picking the squares at random and quickly discovered that most of the main concentration of material was located at the top of the rise. But this area was only 30 to 40 centimeters deep. It is not as old as we first thought."

Snow contrasted the work of amateur and professional archeologists.

"A trained archeologist has to be able to put things back the way he finds them. We never do, of course."

"The main difference between amateurs and professionals is that the ordinary guy tends to look at an artifact as something of intrinsic value . . . like an antique. Something beautiful and well-made . . . valuable in its own right. To us it is just a piece of evidence. The important thing to us is not the artifact itself, but its context and association in relation to other artifacts."

"The ordinary guy is content to go into the pile with a clam hoe. His objective is to dig through the area as quickly as possible and pick out all the nice looking objects."

We Go Very Slow

WE go extremely and painstakingly slow. You never know what is important. You have to save everything."

Snow picked up a small bone awl from his living room mantle.

"When the first fragment of this popped up I didn't think it was important. Then we found a second and a third. I started going back through the sample bags (each pile of bone and shell fragments is wrapped in a small plastic bag and numbered according to its location in relation to the rest of the site)."

"Finally . . . we came up with this," the archeologist indicated, offering the awl for close inspection.

"It was used for punching holes in leather . . . for making nets, I suppose. These people had everything a good shoe maker uses today, maybe more. They were hunters. They gathered shell fish and wild fruit.

"Some of them probably went out for porpoises. But the only difference between these Indians, the so-called 'Red Paint' people, and our Indians of today is their age."

The Indians who cremated their dead at Passadumkeag were the ancestors of the Blue Hill tribe, Snow feels.

Referring to the Passadumkeag Indians, he stated:

"Those people were much older. They did not know how to make pottery, build birch bark canoes or use the bow and arrow. But they were essentially the same . . . hunters and gatherers."

More Diggings

NEXT year Snow hopes to follow up his probe into Maine's prehistoric Indian past with further excavations.

His work brings him into contact with another interesting myth about the Maine coast . . . one that holds Norsemen visited and possibly settled here hundreds of years before Columbus. But Snow doubts he will be spending much time looking over Viking sites.

"I have checked locations all along the coast that were supposed to have been settled by the Vikings. We haven't found a valid one yet."

The archeologist feels most of the early Viking encampments, if Norse legends are valid, will be found north of Maine, in Newfoundland, probably.

But if something promising materializes?

"I'll jump right on it," promised Snow.

Solitude

On Campus

Appearances Do Count

The general image that the University of Maine projects to high school students appears to be very positive, according to Dr. Edward Johnson, counselor at the University of Maine Testing and Counseling Service. He adds that the impression projected by individual colleges within the University of Maine is also positive.

These conclusions were reached in a study of responses of high school graduates enrolling on the Orono campus, class of 1970. These students expressed the following primary reasons for selecting the University of Maine at Orono: (1) its general academic reputation; (2) its campus and student impression; (3) its special strengths in intended major fields.

Generally, women selected the university because of their impression of the campus and the students, while men selected it because of the special strengths offered in their major fields.

Dr. Johnson also reported that the largest percentage enrolling in the College of Arts and Sciences did so because of their impression of the campus and the students, while enrollees in the College of Education chose the University of Maine because of its general academic reputation. The majority enrolling in the College of Life Sciences and Agriculture felt that the university offered special strengths in their intended major fields. This was also true of one-third of the College of Technology enrollees. About a quarter of the College of Business Administration enrollees selected Maine because of their impression of the students and the campus.

Most Grads Leave The State

Approximately 73 per cent of the 1968 graduates of the University of Maine who registered with the university's Placement Bureau and accepted non-teaching jobs have left Maine to start their working careers, according to Philip J. Brockway, U-M Placement Director.

The in-state, out-of-state ratio figures were compiled from a list of 279 graduates in 1968 who have notified the Placement Office regarding jobs accepted in the non-teaching areas. There were 1051 graduates of the university in June 1968 with 714 of them registering for jobs with the Placement Bureau.

Of the 279 taking non-teaching jobs, 76 will be employed in Maine and 203 out-of-state. The state accepting the largest number of 1968 U-M graduates was Massachusetts which will be the residing place of 56 students. New York was second with 37, Connecticut took 26 and Pennsylvania, 12.

Other states where U-M graduates found employment included New Hampshire, 11; Washington, D. C., 6; New Jersey, Delaware, Virginia and Maryland, 5 each; and Ohio, Vermont, Rhode Island, four each.

The other 23 were scattered among states from California to Michigan.

Dr. Mark Shedd

Dr Mark Shedd, superintendent of schools in Philadelphia, challenged the legalistic approach to education urging instead the adoption of a "new humanism" in dealing with contemporary American education, while speaking at the University of Maine's 134th graduation August 16th.

An alumnus of the University of Maine, Dr Shedd has achieved recognition as a progressive educator in several national publications.

He was named chairman of the advisory committee on the Teacher's Corps by President Johnson last June.

Several times Dr Shedd's views on modern education have raised the eyebrows of conservative administrators. In New Jersey he rocked the American Association of School Administrators with a speech proposing that the powerful body censure superintendents who did not make substantial progress towards integration.

During a press conference given immediately after his installment into the Philadelphia system, Dr. Shedd stressed strongly that the school board should stay out of administration and confine itself to hiring superintendents, setting broad policies and assessing progress.

The Saturday Review recently painted Dr. Shedd as a champion of liberal education. The magazine reported an incident in which Philadelphia school officials fired a substitute English teacher for refusing to recall, when ordered to do so by the principal, a mimeographed publication published by his students including essays on such topics as birth control, Viet Nam and Civil Rights. Four days later Dr. Shedd reinstated the teacher. He praised the man for "having the guts to take a few chances. . . to get the students deeply involved in learning", and called him the "kind of teacher we must not only tolerate, but encourage into the school system"

Speaking in Orono, Shedd said that it is easy to "write off" the reactions of angered and frustrated young people and blacks, but stressed they point out the need for a revamping of the educational system.

"The emphasis (in education) tends to be on product," he said, "and not on process. Even the physical environment of most learning situations tends to thwart any real chance for intellectual excitement or discovery."

He urged a looser, more individualistic approach to education which might replace a system of tightly controlled classroom structures.

Beginning his career in education as a social studies teacher in Bangor, Dr Shedd taught and administrated in Caribou, Auburn, Westbrook, Connecticut and Englewood, N J. In 1967 he assumed his present position as superintendent in Philadelphia, where he heads a school system of 12,000 teachers and 260,000 students.

After Dr Shedd's speech the University of Maine awarded a Ph D in Psychology to George F. Boyd of Charlotte, No. Carolina, the University's first doctorate degree presented to a Negro.

Dr. Shedd received an Honorary Doctor of Laws degree. Also awarded an Honorary Doctor of Laws degree was Samuel E. Morison, prominent American naval historian and faculty member at Harvard for 40 years.

David H. Stevens, chairman of the Maine State Highway Commission, was the recipient of the Distinguished Achievement Award for his 35 years of public service to Maine.

A total of 405 candidates for advanced and baccalaureate degrees and certificates were recognized during Summer Commencement exercises. They included students from 22 states and four foreign countries.

Scholarships Commemorate Martin Luther King

Seven members of the freshman class at the University of Maine at Orono this fall are the first students to be admitted under the Martin Luther King Scholar Program.

The Program, designed to help finance the education of needy Negro students at the University, was established early this summer as a memorial to the slain Negro leader.

The seven Martin Luther King Scholars were accepted for admission to the Orono campus after interviews conducted in Washington, D. C., by two U. M. officials, Director of Admissions James M. Harmon and Asst. Prof. Maurice O. White of the College of Education. The seven, five girls and two boys, were selected by the same admission procedures as any U. M. freshmen but the background for their choice was more unusual.

Registration Climbs

A total of 9,030 students have registered for fall semester classes at the Orono, Portland, and Augusta campuses of the University of Maine, according to Registrar George H. Crosby. This total exceeds last year's figures by 650 students, Crosby said.

He noted that late registrations will increase these totals. He also said that many thousands of students are now enrolling in Continuing Education courses and the final figures in this area will be well ahead of last year.

The enrollment totals by campuses follow: Orono and South Campuses at Bangor—7,544; Portland—1095; Augusta—257; School of Law in Portland—134.

Demilitarized

Eleven buildings on the University of Maine's South Campus, formerly Dow Field, have been given new names.

Winthrop C. Libby, acting president of the university, said in most cases the buildings have been named for Maine communities.

The five dormitories will be called Belfast Hall, Augusta Hall, Lewiston Hall, Rockland Hall and Ellsworth Hall. The dining hall will be named Brewer Hall.

The two classroom buildings have been named Caribou Hall and Eastport Hall. The auditorium will be called Portland Hall and the administration building, Bangor Hall.

The library has been named Dow Hall in honor of Lt. Frederick Dow of Oakfield, for whom Dow Field was named in 1942. Lt. Dow died in 1940 as a result of a mid-air collision over Queensborough, N. Y.

New Commander

The U. S. Army Reserve Officers Training Corps Detachment at the University of Maine has a new commanding officer.

Lt. Col. George E. Fell, 36, a native of Newton, Mass., September 1 replaced Col. John S. Gerety, 55, who retired from active duty after 30 years of military service.

Letters

Dear editor:

The Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), as it is known today, came into being at a founding convention held at Port Huron, Mich., in June, 1962. The SDS is an association of young people on the left and has a current program of protesting the draft, promoting a campaign for youth to develop a conscientious objector status, denouncing United States intervention in the war in Vietnam and to "radically transform" the university community, and provide for its complete control by students. Gus Hall, general secretary, Communist Party, USA, when interviewed by a representative of United Press International in San Francisco, California, on May 14, 1965, described the SDS as a part of the "responsible left" which the Party has "going for us." At the June, 1965, SDS National Convention, an anti-Communist proviso was removed from the SDS constitution. In the October 7, 1966, issue of "New Left Notes," the official publication of SDS, an SDS spokesman stated that there are some Communists in SDS and they are welcome. The national headquarters of this organization as of April 18, 1967, was located in Room 206, 1608 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

Students for a Democratic Society sponsored a demonstration march on Washington April 17, 1965 protesting United States policy in Vietnam and has also actively participated in such protest demonstrations throughout various cities of the country since that time, including the April 15, 1967 demonstration in New York City and the October 21, 1967 demonstration in Washington, D. C. The First Amendment to the Constitution guarantees to everyone the right to express his views and opinions even though critical of our foreign policy. However, an investigation is presently being conducted to determine the extent of Communist activity in these demonstrations and whether any individual has violated any Federal law, such as by tearing up or burning draft cards or counseling others on specific ways and means to evade the selective service laws. In instances where sufficient evidence is developed establishing a violation of Federal law, appropriate action will be taken.

Sincerely,

J. EDGAR HOOVER
(DIRECTOR, FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION)

The time has come for Americans to focus on a new kind of conspiracy in our country—a movement called the New Left. In recent months the effects of the New Left have been seen in many places: in demonstrations against American policy in Viet Nam, in civil disobedience, in calls for young men to resist the draft, in campus turmoil, in attacks against law and order, in desecrations of the American flag.

What is the New Left?

Actually, the New Left as a movement is difficult to define. If you visit a New Left meeting, you will find some of the participants smartly dressed, others with dirty T-shirts and baggy trousers. A high percentage are Beatniks—wearing long hair and beards, unkempt clothes, and sandals. A few are Hippies, experimenting with drugs and enamored with esoteric rituals such as “love-ins,” “be-ins,” and “happenings.” If you listen to their conversation, you will hear a steady flow of obscene and foul language. Sexual promiscuity is not considered in bad taste.

Most of the participants are students. The New Left is predominantly a college-age movement found in the college and university community—but not exclusively. Besides undergraduates, the New Left contains a wide assortment of other participants: college faculty members (mostly young), graduate students, guitarists, writers, intellectuals of various types, ex-students still “hanging around” the campus, curiosity-seekers, Communists, Trotskyites.

“We have within our ranks,” comments the national vice-president of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), the largest and best known of New Left groups, “Communists of both varieties, socialists of all sorts, three or four different kinds of anarchists, anarcho-syndicalists, syndicalists, social democrats, humanist liberals, a growing number of libertarian laissez-faire capitalists, and of course, the articulate vanguard of the psychedelic liberation front.”

In this amalgam is found much nonsensical chatter but also serious conversation by some highly motivated and articulate young people seeking to understand vital problems facing our nation today, such as poverty, civil rights, world peace, automation, the student's role on the university campus, human dignity in a rapidly developing urban and industrial economy. Here is the paradox of the New Left: Many of the New Leftists are mere intellectual tramps who seek the exotic and eccentric as emotional outlets; but some, in one way or another, are seriously searching—not only for answers to society's problems but for values of human existence in a world of great uncertainty.

To equate the New Left with a political party or a tightly disciplined organization is to miss its true identity. It is not an organization. It does not have a constitution, bylaws, or an official membership.

Rather the New Left is a mood, a philosophy of life, a Weltanschauung, a way of looking at self, country, and the universe. And in this mood lies its tragedy—and its danger!

For the New Left's mood—and philosophy of life—is not one of support for America and its traditions, of upholding moral and democratic values. Rather, it is one of defiance, hostility, and opposition to our free society. It seeks to destroy, not to build. Its whole approach is one of negativism—to criticize, belittle, denigrate the principles on which this nation was built. Cynicism, pessimism, and callousness are its mottoes. At its heart, the New Left is nihilistic and anarchistic.

Hence, to dismiss the New Left, as some do, as a collection of simpletons, eccentrics, and jocular fools is to commit a grave mistake. Its adherents should not, as so often happens, be judged strictly by their Beatnik dress and ways (repugnant as they may be to most Americans). New Leftism poses today challenging and provocative questions for the nation—questions that each thoughtful citizen should carefully analyze, study, and understand. Who are these young people? Why have they chosen to disparage the society and institutions that gave them birth? Why is their gospel one of nihilism? Why have they rejected the values of our Judaic-Christian civilization?

The imperative need for knowledge is shown by the rapid growth of the movement. Just a few months ago the SDS's national vice-president enthusiastically reported that his group had some 30,000 adherents. "Starting from almost zero," he said, "we have achieved that number in seven years; we have grown ten-fold in only two years." More and more the New Left is reaching into the high-school age group. New Left Notes, organ of SDS, comments:

The 600 members of SDS who are in high schools are the most underrepresented group in our organization. . . . A high school organizer would be able to make high school members more than peripherally involved in the affairs of SDS. Moreover, he could begin to help build a more solid high school movement. This would not be difficult.

To analyze the New Left is to become suddenly aware of the nihilistic wasteland it presents.

Basic to the New Left's mood is the idea that contemporary American society (contemptuously called the "Establishment") is corrupt, evil, and malignant—and must be destroyed. To reform it, to change it for the better, is impossible. It must—along with its Judaic-Christian values—be liquidated. "Let's face it. It is, to use the crudest psychological terminology, a sick, sick, sick society in which we live. It is, finally, a society which approaches collective insanity—a system of authority-dependency relationships which destroys life and health and strength and creates debility, dependency, and deathliness."

For that reason, members of the New Left take great delight in desecrating the American flag, mocking American heroes, and disparaging American history. They contemptuously hiss and boo officials of our government and show scornful disdain for opinions with which they disagree (the New Left at heart is extremely totalitarian, intolerant, and opinionated in nature). They urge resistance to the draft (even on occasions try to interfere physically with the legitimate activities of armed-services personnel on college campuses present for the purpose of recruiting), burn or mutilate draft cards, endeavor to dictate to university administrative officials how these institutions should be run.

In this spirit of nihilism, the New Left manifests a nauseating air of self-righteousness, as if it alone knows how to solve the problems of twentieth-century society and alone can be trusted to carry out these solutions. There is almost a hysterical repudiation of the older generation (defined as any person over the age of thirty—though this age minimum is rapidly decreasing). The older generation (our "impotent, neurotic elders") is characterized as having sold out to "imperialistic monopoly capitalism" (note the use of Marxist terminology), and having "betrayed" the youth. Hence, it is not to be trusted—and no wisdom and advice can be expected from it.

Therefore, the New Left has little appreciation of and respect for history ("we have little or no sense of history") or for the accumulated heritage and wisdom of former years. By rejecting the past, they lack a clear view of the future and fail to understand the nature of man as a human being. They are anarchistic iconoclasts, breaking and destroying, whose eschatological vision has no practical or even idealistic idea of what the future should be. Their chief aim, despite their protestations to the contrary, is to destroy, annihilate, tear down.

Their heroes are Castro, Che Guevara, Mao Tse-Tung, Ho Chi Minh, or whoever they ebulliently believe is a fighter (preferably the romantic guerrilla type) against a "status quo" capitalist nation.

Ideologically, the ideas of existentialism, especially as reflected in the writings of the French authors Jean-Paul Sartre and Albert Camus, have been influential. But a major influence has been Marxism. Karl Marx is frequently quoted in their writings. They talk much about the concept of "alienation," which derives in large part from Marx. By "alienation," they mean their separation from, and lack of allegiance to, the institutions of contemporary society. These institutions (such as our educational system, private industry, the government, the military services), they claim, are "choking," "stifling," and "stunting" young people, creating in them a "slave psychology." As one New Leftist put it: "From the moment he enters school, the student is subjected to innumerable procedures designed to humiliate him and remind him that he is worthless and that adults are omnipotent."

In part, the New Left's Beatnik style, their use of obscene language, their inclination towards drugs, is an attempt to shock their elders, a way of ostentatiously declaring their "freedom" from what they call the "old," the "decadent," the "bourgeois." All too frequently, the hallucinatory world of drugs not only leads to permanent physical addiction but also makes even more difficult any transition to the world of reality. For many young people the use of drugs is a retreat, a withdrawal into a psychedelic world where they can evade making the basic decisions of life. This problem of drugs should not be taken lightly by our society.

How should this "decadent" society be destroyed? New Leftists are not sure. Their talk is vague but violent. "The only overtly political power we have," says one New Leftist, "is the power to disrupt. But even this limited power can be significant. . . . We need to develop techniques of creative disruption." To "radicalize" the youth, to build a "radical or revolutionary consciousness," to create a "sense of radical self-identity"—these are constant New Left phrases.

This mood of "creative disruption" in the past has been reflected in various tactics of protest, such as demonstrations, sit-ins, petition campaigns. But the mood of New Left protest, unfortunately, is now giving way to one of resistance. This is one of the tragedies of any movement of protest that refuses to find an outlet through legitimate channels of society and in cooperation with other groups—it moves to more radical, extreme, and bitter positions. Many New Left leaders, making judgments from increasing feelings of personal frustration and hatred, are talking in terms of resistance (a word frequently used by them) to the society they detest.

One SDS leader says:

We have to build a movement out of people's guts, out of their so-far internalized rejection of American society, and present people with a revolutionary alternative to the American way of life.

Many of us in SDS share a conviction that this is what has to happen. That we must resist, and that people must break free. None of us is sure we can win. All we can say is that there are other ways to lead our lives in the face of the obscenity of what American life is—and that we intend to live them that way.

Still another New Leftist talks about the movement's future:

There is a continuing need for serious discussion of alternative scenarios for an American revolution. I do not believe advocates of electoral activity have offered one. . . . I feel the formation of counter-communities of struggle and the creation of local pockets of power is the way to begin to find a strategy of revolution.

After favorably quoting Karl Marx, an SDS writer says:

It is important that we begin to talk in terms of five, ten, fifteen years because that is the time and energy it will take to build a Revolutionary movement and socialist political party able to take power in America. At this point, we in SDS must begin to write about and talk about socialist theory, so that we will be prepared to play a major role in developments, creating larger numbers of socialists, and developing socialist consciousness in all institutions in which we organize.

The news media not long ago quoted a top New Leftist as saying: "We are working to build a guerrilla force in an urban environment." "We are actively organizing sedition." Another stated: "I think violence is necessary, and it frightens me."

What does all this mean? That there are young people who disagree with society, who are willing to protest and make their views known—this is all to the good. America needs a questioning generation. It needs young people who will speak up frankly and firmly. The spirit of protest and dissent is inextricably interwoven in the fabric of American society. We want no silent generation. In a dangerous nuclear world, beset with uncertainty and fear, the human spirit will—and must—seek answers.

But when young people, in categorical and dogmatic terms, reject all of society, and reject it with bitterness and disdain, questions should be asked. What is their purpose? What is their vision? What is wrong?

For a better society, conceived on Judaic-Christian realities, cannot be brought about by New Leftism. The New Leftists claim a high moral purpose ("Basically SDS politics stem from disaffection and a moral outrage . . .") and a spiritual sensitivity to injustice, intolerance, and unfairness. But how can this be?

When you sweepingly denounce the responsible leadership of the nation, even those who are honestly and

Never have the churches lived in a time of greater opportunity to exhibit the importance of faith in God and of obedience to his will, and never in the history of our generation would their failure to do so be more calamitous.

sincerely trying to correct the many ills of our society (legitimate reform leaders are regularly lampooned by the New Left), who remains?

When you bitterly distrust the older generation and accuse it of the most base mendacity and dishonesty (usually without proof or facts), where is fairness?

When you find incidents of hypocrisy and sham in our society (there are some), and then indict all of society, overlooking what is good and positive, isn't this having a distorted vision?

When you speak (as does the New Left) in terms of a dogmatic moralism that considers itself right and all other viewpoints wrong, where are the possibilities of creative dialogue?

When you denounce and denounce and denounce and offer nothing constructive, what happens?

When you constantly view your country as being in the wrong but say nothing really critical about Communism, or Castro, or Mao, or Ho, isn't this indicative of a preconceived bias?

No concrete proof exists that the New Left is sincerely interested (as it claims) in improving this country. That's why it is at heart a form of neo-paganism.

The whole mood of the New Left makes the movement particularly susceptible to infiltration and manipulation by the so-called "Old Left"—meaning the Communist Party and the Trotskyites. And that is exactly what is happening. The Communist Party, for example, and its youth front, the W.E.B. DuBois Clubs, have deeply imbedded themselves in the New Left—helping organize demonstrations, participating in planning sessions, making policy decisions.

Not that the entire New Left is Communist-dominated. It is not. Some elements of the New Left have criticized the Communist Party. This criticism, however, is not so much opposition to Marxist-Leninist principles as opposition to Communist concepts of discipline and organization. Though sympathetic to Communist aims, they do not want to become Communist members and be caught up in the Party's bureaucracy.

As part of its youth program, the Party is today making strenuous efforts to reap benefit from the New Left. In a recent discussion of the New Left in the Party's theoretical journal, Political Affairs, a writer made these frank comments in an article entitled "Many Can Be Won for Communism:"

I believe it is time for the Party to consider the New Left as a recruiting ground for militant cadre. . . .

Proctor [one of the other writers] is correct in stating that there is a surprisingly large section of the New Left ready to listen to Communists, and willing to see Communist ideas in action. I hasten to add, and to join the Communist Party, if and when the opportunity presents itself. Let us prepare classes, develop open youth leadership, establish social contact with individuals of the New Left, and, in short, bring those whom we can into our ranks. In doing so we will go a long way towards preparing our Party for the new radical period ahead.

Here is the danger—that a disciplined, experienced revolutionary organization, like the Communist Party, will be able to reach into the variegated, at times almost chaotic, New Left movement, recruit young people, and then train them into revolutionary cadres. Remembering the words of Lenin, the Party realizes that revolutionary zeal, vociferous and outspoken, is not of great value unless it is channeled into revolutionary cadres—the dedicated men and women who are trained for revolution. The tumultuous unpredictability of some of the New Left leaders makes the Party distrustful of them; but the New Left as a movement has given the Party an ideological bonanza undreamed of just a few years ago.

In the book of Isaiah (5:4) is a verse which often comes to my mind:

“What more was there to do for my vineyard,
that I have not done in it?
When I looked for it to yield grapes, why did it yield wild grapes?”

Why the New Left? What has caused this nihilist group—small in numbers yet potentially great for evil? Why have these wild grapes grown in a society which has lavished so much time, attention, and wealth on its young people, to train them to be responsible citizens?

“We come from homes with all the status tickets,” a New Left student told a newsman. “We were born into comfort and security. Our disaffection comes from having all that society has to offer—and feeling shallow. Other kids have the American dream before them. We were born into the American dream.”

Maybe society has lavished too much of the wrong kind of things on these young people? Too much money for personal use? Too much permissiveness? Too much affluence? A high percentage of college-age New Leftists come from affluent homes—where they have never wanted in the physical things of life. Have too many parents placed a false emphasis in the lives of these young people, stressing the material rather than the spiritual? Have young people been taught to prize what is expedient and easy rather than to work hard and do an acceptable job?

Maybe we have emphasized too much the rights and privileges of the individual rather than his duties and responsibilities?

Just what are the churches doing? Are clergymen and concerned laymen devoting the attention they should to youth? Are they involved in a dialogue—a heart-to-heart conversation—with these young people, endeavoring to answer some of their probing questions about human existence, such as: Who am I? Why am I here?

What is the purpose of life? What values have meaning?

All of us, clergymen and laymen, need to look deeper into our hearts to answer these questions.

1. We need to know our young people better. Young people want a helping hand, love, care, and nurture. There are too many broken homes, separated families, and failures of the parent-youth relationship. Too many parents don't know their children today.

2. We must realize that monetary affluence (money, home, swimming pool) cannot by themselves capture a child's affection. Money is too often used to bribe children—to keep them falsely happy, to simulate a parent-child relationship that doesn't exist. The irresponsible flabbiness of affluence has become a deterrent to spiritual growth.

3. We need to inculcate in our young people the idea that in a free society the single person counts. Too many of these young people complain of powerlessness, impotence, spiritual sterility. Their vision is distorted. They can, by exercising intelligence, moral example, and initiative, influence the world in which they live. Our society is not, except to the perennial pessimist, a closed, fixed society that defies efforts to change it.

4. We must emphasize that the generations must work together. Trust runs from child to parent and parent to child. Civilization is created by the constant interaction of generations. In a society growing increasingly young, there must be a new respect for the wisdom of the elders.

5. We need to instill a love of country in the hearts of young Americans—that they are heirs of a great tradition of liberty and that if it is to remain meaningful it must be won anew each day. Patriotism is not old-fashioned. Being proud of country and flag is the natural response of concerned and intelligent citizens.

6. We need to encourage our young generation to understand fully that obedience to law is the heart of democratic society. If a person disobeys a law just because he doesn't like it, or feels it is wrong, this can only bring chaos. Our free society contains constitutional processes whereby laws can be changed. Unilateral disobedience is wrong.

7. Young people must realize that spiritual faith is the ultimate lifeline of fruitful living. God is the eternal hope. Man-made gods, like chips of wood, perish. They hold temporary thrall, but disintegrate in the burning sun of human experience. To live fully, abundantly, and courageously, man needs God.

In the history of the world no figure has reinforced the true and the good more than Jesus of Nazareth. and no book has wielded greater power for godliness and decency than the Bible. To know the Judaic-Christian realities afresh is the great consuming need of the younger generation today, and there is little hope of their renewal unless adults make these commitments their own. Never have the churches—clergy and laity—lived in a time of greater opportunity to exhibit the importance of faith and trust in God and of obedience to his will, and never in the history of our generation would their failure to do so be more calamitous.

THE Alumni Tour to Central Europe and Scandinavia was congenial from the beginning since the most pressure was put on us to get together in New York City. The girls from Aroostook had a delayed entrance and barely made boarding time for our TWA night flight. Then the plane sat on the flight line for hours awaiting permission to leave. Scheduled for 9:30 p.m. departure we lifted off at 2:30 a.m. and the passengers applauded the pilot for his persistence. The TWA representative in Paris was appalled at the difficulty the "strikes in the U.S. can cause" and arranged lunch for us in Orly airport where our final passenger caught up with us. Of course we had missed our originally scheduled flight to Zurich. Mrs. Kathryn Saunders took another plane overseas as she hadn't been able to get into Kennedy terminal in time to start with the crowd. She was eager and experienced enough to catch up having been with the Alumni Tour also in 1967.

Hospitable Switzerland

THE twenty of us flew into Zurich from Paris on Friday, July 19th, and were met by a charming German Ph.D. student of languages and a sturdy bus driver from Berlin who took us to Lucerne and thence through Bavaria entertaining us all the way. We would have been happy to spend all the twenty-one days in Switzerland as each Swiss town seems too hospitable and appealing to leave. Mt. Pilatus, 7000 feet high the true symbol of Lucerne, was the first of many heights we were to ascend. Sunday we drove from Lucerne to Vaduz to Lindau. Sunday dinner in Feldkirch, Austria, was superbly served in the ancient Schattenburg castle. At Lindau we viewed the mountains from Bodensee which borders Switzerland, Austria and Germany. The pilot was an expert 17 year old boy who is to take his sea captain's exams soon. The hotel caters to more permanent visitors and furnishes floating thermometers, in centigrade of course, for their immense bathtubs. In contrast the lifts would truly accommodate only the five persons they recommend ride at one time, we found out the hard way.

The Fjords Were Breathtaking

Annual Alumni Tour Takes 21-Day Swing Through The Land Of The Vikings

After lunch on Monday in Oberammergau we purchased wood carvings to assure our return for the Passion Play some year as the theatre owners claim. The Play is given every tenth year with the next one coming in 1970. Munich, the capital of Bavaria, is a delight as another expert German guide convinced us. The Deutsches Museum, "the largest of its kind in the world" is more impressive in its organization than the palaces of Europe. Even though the construction of a subway in Munich helped some of us get to breakfast earlier than we had intended it is an interesting operation to witness.

A View of the Wall

WE flew from Munich to Berlin Wednesday morning and because of the air corridor found it the roughest flight we had experienced. West Berlin is modern and flourishing shadowed by The Wall. We were efficiently transported to East Berlin and guided by a lady who appeared on the streets out of nowhere apparently. The dull day and the sad streets were matched by the dismal park of the Russian war memorial and the few drab persons in the park that day. We thought the Russians were putting on a show for the tourists as we returned to Checkpoint Charlie. They inspected the bus thoroughly including the mirror over which we parked. Our impression shifted when we watched the West Berlin driver perspire on a cool day as the floor inside our bus was opened with tools. We were all relieved to return to the West and celebrated either by attending the European circus next to our Hotel Schweizerhof or taking the Berlin nightclub tour with a Japanese group. No wonder the Germans are excellent in ice skating competition as the outdoor rink in Berlin is in use even in July as is their whole Olympic stadium. The American style hotels are many in view of Kaiser-Wilhelm Gedachtniskirche where the new church is built beside the ruins of the one destroyed in World War II.

The Stein Song

OUR flight from Berlin to Copenhagen gave us a perfect introduction to the Danish peninsula. Mrs. Richard Millar of Atlanta, Georgia, was honored at our dinner at Seven Small Homes for her birthday. The dessert was a magnificent confection made with fresh red raspberries and exploded to be adorned by the American flag. Not only that, but the musicians could play the Stein Song for us to serenade her specifically. Her husband Richard is the Maine alumnus in that family and a U.S. forester in the Atlanta locale. We thought the fireworks at Tivoli Gardens Saturday night were a fitting climax to our celebration. The picture was taken while the tour was making a boat trip on the canals of Copenhagen. Besides our twenty there were several other tourists enjoying the trip narrated by our 19 year old hostess aboard. You may see her answering one of the innumerable questions put by our tour director wearing his beret.

Our train car for Stockholm went right on the ferry crossing the sound we had viewed from Denmark's countryside at Hamlet's castle in Elsinore. Stockholm, a 700 year old city, is gorgeous viewed from the water as we saw it in the afternoon spotting the buildings we had been in earlier that day like the City Hall containing the Golden Banquet Hall which seats 700 people for the Nobel prize awards and Skansen with its historic open air museum.

A Visit to the Embassy

OSLO is a smaller city where we were welcomed by Judge and Mrs. Matthew Williams' cousins. The Norwegians convinced us that they are great explorers either walking or boating. Our American ambassadress Miss Margaret Joy Tibbetts was at that time in Bethel, Maine, her home. We did see the handsome American embassy designed by Finnish-born Eero Saarinen built in a triangle pointing to the king's palace centering the city. We Mainers were thrilled with the Norwegian landscape as we crossed the country by bus even though we did not share the attitude of the Norwegians toward their socialistic state. As we crossed the country by bus our courier was a charming teacher who lives with her teacher husband in Oslo in the wintertime saving to buy a car to make their skiing jaunts more frequent. We stayed at Lake Tyin in sight of the glacier where the ice went out June 15th yet the chill is never out of the water. Then we stopped in Stalheim where it takes fourteen hairpin turns to rise the one thousand feet to the location where Kaiser Wilhelm II vacationed for many years prior to World War I. We viewed the magnificent valley from a German pillbox still occupying the lookout point. We were pleased to be able to see the folkdancers in local costumes from the Valdres district and hear a Hardanger fiddle, in use since about 1650.

The bus took us right on to the ferry for the breathtaking ride on Norway's longest fjord, Sognefjord. In Bergen we were immediately impressed by the surrounding mountains and soon discovered that there was a New York State training ship in port as well as an American submarine. We were shown the city and visited the home of Bergenese Edward Grieg and his unusual burial spot with his wife in a rock on their own property.

The London Pub

As we flew into London airport we became aware of many other American tourists and knew we were on our way home. Still we made the grand tour of London and completed our shopping even meeting other staff people from University of Maine in a London department store. Our group posed for this professional photograph by Westminster Abbey. The tour scattered to the London theatres and on our last night out we shared the experience of being served a beef and kidney pie dinner in the private Wig and Pen Club dating from 1625, the only building left in the Strand during the Great London Fire of 1666. For those of you who think of English cooking in terms of bully beef we suggest that you try a private club or manor houskeeper where the food surpasses French cuisine more times than one. For example, at the Wig and Pen, King Edward's breakfast is scooped out large onion, stuffed with kidneys, bacon and scallops, filled with red wine, top placed on the onion and gently roasted requires only six hours notice; or sample their fillet steak Pepys or their rump steak Samuel Johnson. It was at this farewell dinner that Matt Williams, class of '28, in behalf of the group read the following non-copywrited composition which pretty well summarizes the tour.

To Our Tour Leader

*"To our Leader Dave, I propose a cheer
Who as our Leader is without a peer.*

*Many hours for our comfort did he slave
Visiting shrines and churches many of them stave.*

*Not all rooms given us overlooked the lake
But those allotted us we had to take.*

*Traffic rumbling kept many of us awake
But all of our grumbling you had to take.*

*'Twas not always easy to keep us in line
But both you and Enola did just fine.*

*Passports, tickets, turnstiles through which to squeeze;
Raw fish, hard tack, and goat's cheese, if you please.*

*Aus Gang, Ut Gang, C'mon gang you would say
And thus it would go from day to day.*

*Through crypts and vaults, ceremonials and apses
You guided us very well with few lapses.*

*And now as we near the end of our trek
You have from us our utmost respect.*

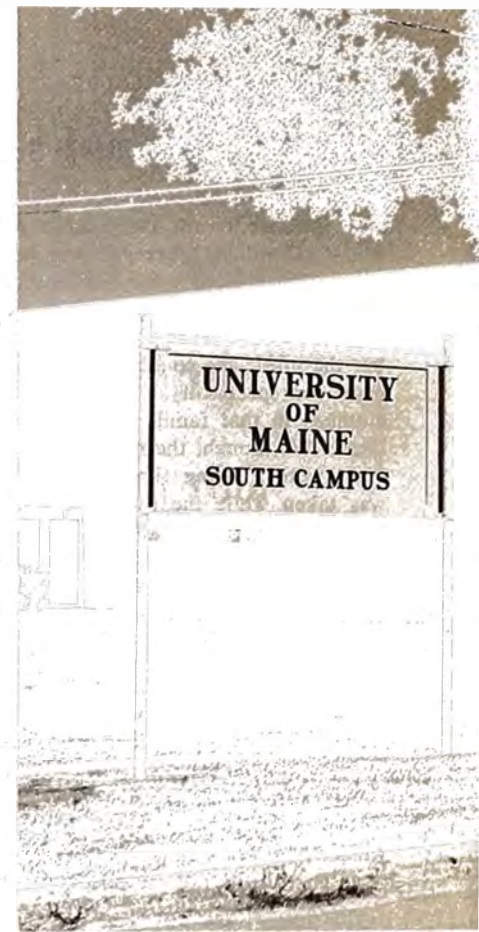

*Thanks, Dave and Enola, for a wonderful time.
Too bad I'm not better at making things rhyme."*

Any of the members of the tour will be glad to show their slides as long as you care to observe them. Dave Trafford will furnish a bit of a history lecture with his we are sure. The tentative itinerary for a twenty-two day tour of the British Isles has been submitted that he is looking forward to conducting in July of '69.

Take A Bus ... And Leave The Driving To Us

By Chris Hastedt

Poor old Charlie, who rode forever beneath the streets of Boston, didn't enjoy his plight and, judging from student reaction, neither do 500 University of Maine freshmen housed at the new South Campus in Bangor.

Like Charlie, they feel they're spending half their lives on the MTA.

Getting used to the daily 10-mile bus trip between their dormitories in Bangor and classrooms at the Orono campus, for them, is just one of South Campus' growing pains.

Prof. Roger Frey, assistant director of South Campus, stresses the bright side of things, though. He says the university development at Dow Air Force Base is "potentially exciting." Frey called South Campus a "unique education center."

The original intent, Frey disclosed, was to develop Dow as a bedroom for the Orono campus. It would absorb the housing needs of 500 students who otherwise would not be able to attend college. Now, however, Frey envisions an independent and self-contained social and academic unit sponsoring most of the university's two year programs.

South Campus also is rapidly developing as a conference center and university public relations facility. Frey mentioned the importance of tying the university to public needs, for establishing a "real crossroads in Northern Maine."

Student gripes at South Campus so far seem to be mostly confined to the bussing problem between Bangor and Orono, the noisy arrival and departure of Northeast Yellowbirds, and the abundance of unfinished facilities.

Students apparently have varying degrees of enthusiasm for life at South Campus:

— the satisfied —

Coed—Two Year Merchandising Program: "I love it! We're a smaller group and more cohesive. We have a chance to break into college life at our own rate."

— the not-so-satisfied —

Coed—Arts & Sciences: "It seems almost desolate here compared with Orono. But I guess it's a challenge—builds character!"

Male—Education: "The food's better here than at Orono; our Union is better; and we're making friends quickly. But I sure despise that bus ride."

— the dissatisfied —

Male—Arts & Sciences: "I'd rather be at Orono. The bus ride is horrible and when we get there we haven't any place to go—our home is here. Besides, if we want to take a girl out we have to say good night at 10:30 because that's when the last bus pulls out for South."

Male—Education: "Frankly, I don't like wasting an hour a day riding a bus. When prelims begin it will be tough."

Coed—Arts & Sciences: "It sure is a hassle to catch the 7:30 bus for Orono five days a week. I might as well have stayed in high school for all the school bus riding I'm doing."

— the miserable —

Male—Arts & Sciences: "Psychologically I feel left out!"

The objective of the General Alumni Association, now in its 92nd year, has been to serve the University students and alumni through promoting special alumni activities such as Homecoming, awards to students and alumni, the Faculty Chair and the Distinguished Class Member Award, establishing class funds for purposes of student aid, making available certain additions to the library, and providing alumni with news of their alma mater through the publication of the Alumnus magazine. The accomplishment of these goals is made possible through contributions to the Annual Alumni Fund, now embarking on its eighth year. Through the renewed efforts of the alumni this year and an attitude which reflects the slogan "New Givers are Great in '68", the Annual Alumni Fund Committee is hoping for a contribution of $150,000. If the alumni's spirit of loyalty and generosity continues as it has in the past, this wish will become a reality.

Kenneth Woodbury
 1967-1968 Campaign Chairman

Each year the Annual Alumni Fund Committee expresses its appreciation for interest shown by University of Maine alumni in achieving the goals set by the association. This year we are especially grateful to the 6,912 members who contributed a total of $140,000. Although the number contributing is the fourth largest in our history, the amount contributed is by far the greatest ever received. We express our gratitude to the following for having helped us reach our goal.

"We're Thin," Says Abbott

Call It A Building Year

"We're thin. Right now we have both an offensive and defensive platoon, but before the season is too far along some of our men are going to have to go both ways," Head Football Coach Walter Abbott told a group of touring New England sportswriters September 9.

Abbott, analyzing his team for the journalists, predicted that Maine will be stronger defensively this season, and will have more speed in the backfield, but admitted that the squad lacks in both size and experience and will need some super two-way efforts by its gridsters to challenge the top four teams of the Yankee Conference. "But we'll be a little better this year," Abbott predicted, referring to last season's disastrous winless streak.

The Black Bear coach singled out three players he expects will become "iron men" performers on both offense and defense. They are Bowdoin College transfer Charlie Hews from South Portland, a six foot six inch, 270 pound tackle; John Durgan of Bangor, a five foot 11 inch, 235 pound guard; and Mike Barra of Kennebunk, a six foot, 196 pound halfback.

Also slated to "swing" duty, Abbott indicated, will be Jon Piper of Westboro, Mass., who may play several defensive positions during the season, including middle guard and defensive end.

Abbott indicated that he may use record-breaking junior end Gene Benner of Auburn as both split end, and halfback.

"He's our best offensive player," the Maine coach explained.

"Our halfbacks all are good pass receivers, so we'll have better pass receiving this year than last," said Abbott, but he didn't anticipate a total swing to the aerial game. Maine generally runs 60 ground plays for every 40 passing attempts.

Head Coach Walter Abbott discusses strategy with Fullback Bob Farrell, top photo, during Maine's 6 to 3 loss to Boston University September 28. It was hot that afternoon and if you don't believe it, ask Tackle Charlie Hews, middle photo, who dropped over 20 pounds during the contest. Fullback Steve Naccara, bottom photo, is stopped after a nice gain into the BU secondary.

The Bears will maintain their traditional defensive prowess. Abbott singled out tri-captains Don Loranger, a six foot two inch, 228 pound defensive end from Biddeford; Pete Quackenbush of Florham Park, N. J., a six foot one inch, 210 pound middle linebacker; and Fran Griffin, a five foot eleven inch, 175 pound safety from York as his top defenders. Ernie Gilbert of Waterville, a transfer from West Texas State, is expected to help at tackle. Gilbert is six feet tall and weighs 232 pounds.

Dave Wing of Brewer, who moved the Bears at times as quarterback last year, and two promising sophomores, Danny Sullivan from Newburyport, Mass., and Bob Hamilton of Manchester, Conn., are counted upon to help Benner carry the offensive load. The team will miss three fine players, fullback Charlie Yanush, tackle Charlie Wingate and tackle Bruce Morse, all veterans who won't be able to play because of injuries.

Abbott rated Massachusetts as the Yankee Conference favorite, but termed Connecticut, New Hampshire, and Rhode Island serious contenders.

“A Sail, Spark White
Upon The Space Of Sea,
Can Pin A Whole
Horizon Into Place.”

(DANTE GABRIEL ROSSETTI)

By Chris Hastedt

A sailboat doesn't need the sea. Six University of Maine men each day transform Pushaw Pond into a magical microcosm of wind and sail. They are preparing for something. And they have already been successful.

Under the direction of Dr. Richard Gibson from the College of Technology, the University of Maine sailing team placed second behind Dartmouth in the Hewitt Trophy Race September 28th. Similar success is predicted for the team's Oct. 12th meeting with Bowdoin and their Oct 19th race at New London, Conn.

Maine's fleet of seven 12 foot dinghies sail from a landing area on Pushaw Pond. Three teams comprise the entire personnel of the university's navy. They are:

- Team #1 Skipper: John Duym; Crew: Scott Vernon
- Team #2 Skipper: Howard Jones; Crew: Steve Pollard.
- Team #3 Skipper: Bill Sterns, Crew: Tom Sawyer.

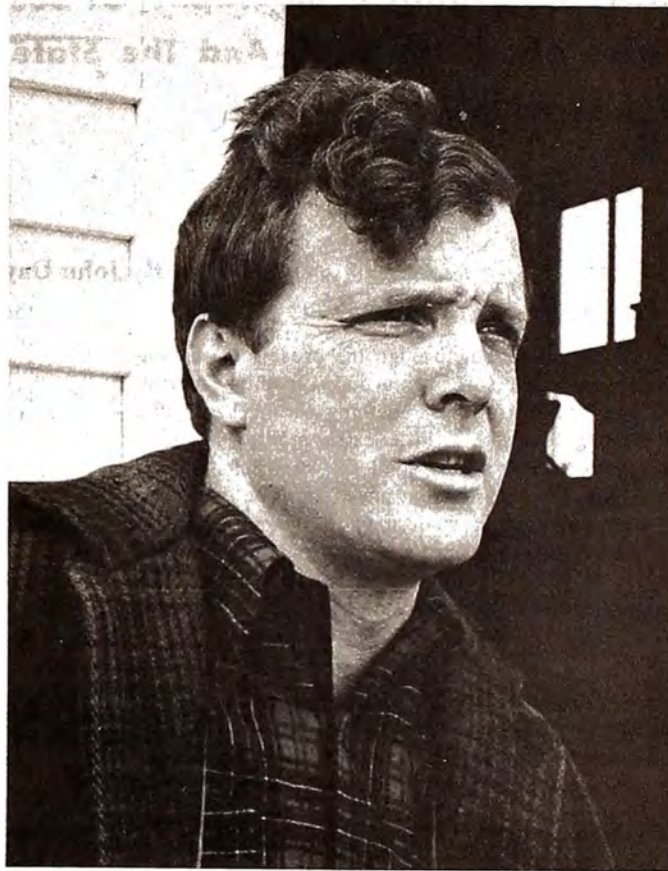

“These boys will all be with us for another year,” commented Coach Brian McCall of the university's athletic department

“They've already picked up a lot of experience and we're confident of a good showing in the next two matches.”

Joe Scott: Biography Of A Folk Minstrel

"He was something like you. He wanted to write a book"

Dr. Edward Ives

Joseph William Scott was born in Lower Woodstock, N. B., in 1867. Temperamentally unsuited to farming, he left home as a young man for the lumberwoods of Maine, arriving just as the burgeoning pulp and paper industry was creating a boom in the woods that would equal anything seen when lumber was king. He settled in Rumford Falls, a raw paper town and woods depot that had only been carved out of the wilderness a few years before Joe arrived, and worked up and down the Androscoggin River, where he became known as a crack woodsman and river-driver... a great guy... a man among men... and among women.

In 1894 he was jilted by a beautiful girl, Lizzie Morse, and it marked him.

Joe wrote songs. He almost always wrote about local events. Most of the people he wrote about he probably knew personally.

All his life Joe Scott was known as a splendid singer. But he made it his business to peddle songs. Joe was a common sight around the lumber camps of western Maine. He'd come into a camp with his grip full of printed ballads, spend the evening singing and selling his songs, and then the next day he'd be off for another camp.

In his later years some puzzling stories began circulating about Joe Scott. After 1901 people talked less and less about his ballads and more about Joe Scott the magician, the doer of marvelous tricks and the finder of lost or hidden objects. Joe reportedly could throw his voice, make a table rise from the floor, tell fortunes and toward the end, seemed to be experimenting with hypnotism.

Some of Scott's contemporaries thought Joe had "sold his soul to the devil."

Joe Scott, a wandering minstrel of the kingdom of spruce, died in 1916 at the Augusta State Hospital.

Dr. Edward "Sandy" Ives, Maine's Professor Of Folklore, Is Writing A Biography Of Joe Scott. He Talks About His Book And The State's Tall Timber Legacy.

By John Day

How did you get interested in Joe Scott?

IVES: It all came about through the process of serendipity. That's what you do when you find something interesting while you are looking up something else. When I first came to Maine, to make a little extra money, I started singing programs and songs around the state and while I was doing this I'd occasionally meet someone who had been a river driver or a woodsman. Someone who said to me, "you ought to come see my grandmother. She knows a lot of those old songs." So I would go and see the grandmother and in the course of time I got much more interested in collecting the songs and studying them than in singing them.

And so while I was doing this, I discovered a person by the name of Larry Gorman. I don't know how many of his songs I collected. Then I went out and got a lot of biographical information on him and, before I knew it, I had a manuscript.

How does Joe Scott fit into all this?

IVES: In the process of looking for material on Larry Gorman I ran into people who remembered a man by the name of Joe Scott. As one man said, "what are you interested in Larry Gorman for?" I said, "Larry Gorman was about the best of the people who were writing songs of the woods, wasn't he?" They told me they had seen people who were better song writers than Larry Gorman had ever thought of being and I said, "well who for instance?"

They said, "there was Joe Scott."

"Oh, who is this Joe Scott?" I asked.

So they started talking to me about Joe Scott. The first man who told me about Joe was Herby Rice. Herby told me:

"Joe Scott was something like you. He wanted to write a book."

After I finished the book on Larry Gorman 1964 rolled around and I was due for a sabbatical. The Guggenheim Foundation gave me one and I took off the year to work on a book about Joe Scott.

You say you travelled around quite a bit. These were the same places Joe Scott went?

IVES: Pretty much. I talked to people who had known him as much as possible. To find out where these people were, I put letters in every newspaper in Maine, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, Newfoundland, New Hampshire, and some in Vermont. I scattered them all over the place and I still have a considerable file of correspondence. I got replies from people who had known him, or people who remembered their father talking about him, or people who knew some of his songs.

Why would you write a book about someone like Joe Scott?

IVES: Let's take a quotation from Virginia Woolf.

"Biography will enlarge its scope by hanging up a looking glass in odd corners."

Also, the inevitable question arises, should only the lives of great men be recorded?

Is not anyone who has lived a life worthy of biography, the failures as well as the successes, humble as well as the illustrious?

Did Joe Scott leave an indelible trail for you to follow?

IVES: No. He lived in a time when records were not kept every time a man made a move. But I find it enlightening to see how much you can still find out about a person just by talking to others who knew him and by looking up what official records are available. What are the official records in this particular case? Well, I have no birth certificate. I have a date on a tombstone. I have a death certificate. I have a marriage certificate. As a matter of fact, I have two marriage certificates, although he only married once. Beyond that . . . he tried to get a divorce at one time. There's an official record that he once sued somebody for pay. As far as official records go, that is about it.

Not much to go on.

No. It isn't.

IVES: From there on I had to work with what I could get from talking to people, with what one person said, corroborated by another person.

I've been very much interested in this whole business of the biography, especially of the biography of the unimportant person. Now take John Kennedy, for instance. Good God, there is so much material available there . . . everything, every paper the man owned. Evidently he always thought in terms of posterity. A lot of famous people do and they save things . . . they put them in libraries and so on. So there's plenty of material. Today if a person, even you or me, does something look at the amount of material that anyone trying to do what I am doing now a hundred years hence would have available to him, just in official records.

Were people surprised that you were taking the trouble to find out about Joe Scott?

IVES: Yes. But more often the reaction was "I am awful glad somebody is doing something about that guy. They told me Joe was a very interesting person.

Were Joe Scott's songs good?

IVES: Yes, they were extremely good. It is going to take a whole book to how how good they were.

Does this tie in with what you teach at the University?

IVES: Oh heavens! Well, what I am teaching right now is folklore and that's all I'm teaching. I'm teaching courses in folksong and, in my courses, this material is used all the time. It's hard to tell where one job begins and the other leaves off.

Are you a native of Maine?

IVES: No.

How did you get interested in the folklore and lumber industry of Maine?

IVES: I always have been interested in folksong even before I came here.

When was that?

IVES: 1955. It was a matter of having a general interest and then coming to Maine.

Where did you come from?

IVES: Originally from New York . . . White Plains.

How did the ballads get into circulation?

IVES: Joe had them printed on some little slips and he would go around the lumber camps and sell them for 10¢ apiece.

Are they still well known?

IVES: Most of the people who remember them now are elderly people. And by that, I mean people in their 70's and 80's. In the days before electricity became general, before radio, before television, especially, this is what people had to make their own entertainment. But in lumber camps it was the tradition and there was a time, say Saturday night, when you couldn't go to town because you were too far from town . . . and Saturday night was the time men would entertain each other. There would be step dancing . . . somebody had a fiddle.

Several different people told me about how they would go out and take the door off the blacksmith shop. You see a pole floor in the lumber camp is a lousy dance floor, so you take a door and make a platform. Then anybody who could dance would dance on it.

Do you visit any lumber camps today?

IVES: No, I haven't because (folk songs) no longer are a tradition.

Is there anything significant about your research?

IVES: There has been a lot of research done on songs and ballads, but the emphasis has been on collecting them. A certain amount of study has been done about effect of beliefs and superstitions upon ballads.

"Biography will enlarge its scope by hanging a looking glass in odd corners."

But while most scholars I know admit that ballads were created by individuals, very little study has been done on the person who made up folk songs. . . how he went about it.

My book on Larry Gorman, as far as I know, was the first full-length study of an individual folk poet. The book on Joe Scott will be an extension of this work. I am taking an individual ballad writer and telling the story of his life. I am trying to show how he made up his songs and, in addition, as much as possible, taking each song and telling the story and events behind it. In other words, telling what Joe Scott knew about the events he made into a song.

Joe Scott's Ballads and others like his, will they ever die?

IVES: I have seen collections of ballads made in the 17th century, collections all through the 18th century . . . and very often the people who put together those collections say in their introductions:

"These are the last surviving remnants. Once these old men die, they take with them their songs and a precious part of our heritage has been lost forever."

Song collectors today still say this. I've said it myself. But now I don't quite believe it anymore. Many of these old ballads still are with us. Collectors are going out and finding songs that people claimed died years ago.

I am a bit suspicious now when anybody tells me that this is the end.

Joe's Ballads

BENJAMIN DEANE

Benjamin prospers in his business at Berlin Falls, but thirst for more gold leads him to selling liquor illegally and running a "free and easy house." After pleading with him to reform, his wife leaves him for another man. Deane goes to the house where she is staying and finds her there with the other man. In a fit of jealous rage he shoots her dead. From prison he warns others to avoid his fate.

Good people all both great and small read these lines penned by me

liberty*

Who is serving out a sentence for a deed that I have done

And it's here I fear I will remain, 'til my race on earth is run.

(Benjamin Deane shot his wife, Berlin, N. H., May 4, 1898)

THE NORWAY BUM

An old bum tells his story, saying he is a man who "has seen better days." As a young man he fell in love with a girl whom his family felt was beneath him, and when he married her they disinherited him. However, he settled in Norway and set up a medical practice there. One night he was returning from seeing a patient and heard the firebell ringing: "Norway was fast burning down." He found his own house in flames and saw his wife and child screaming for help from an upstairs window, but no-one could save them and they fell back in the flames and perished. He ends the song by saying that in order to drown his sorrow he took to drinking rum.

Do you think by my dress I would rob a hen's nest

Or do anything that was bad

*If you think that I would I will tell you the truth
You would strike the nail fair on the head.*

(Poem first appeared in print in Rumford Falls Times, April 13, 1901).

THE PLAIN GOLDEN BAND

A young man (or not so young) recalls his parting from Lizzie, the girl he adored. She gave him back his ring, saying that she had put "a stain on that plain golden band," when she met a young man who offered his love and told her false stories about her fiance.

He ends the ballad by saying his love will remain pure and that they will find him "in the green shady forest so far far away."

*I am thinking tonight of the days that are gone
When the sun clammers over the mountains at morn*

And the dewdrops from heaven like diamonds did glow

They were kissing the rose in the valley below.

(Supposed to be about Scott's own life. The parting from Lizzie Morse probably took place in the spring of 1894).

THE WRECK ON THE GRAND TRUNK

A wreck took place on the Grand Trunk Railroad between Bethel and Locke's Mills, Maine. Two double-headed freight trains collide and one of them is carrying explosives. A number of men in the crews of both trains are killed. There is also a verse that tells of "two tramps were riding on that train that never will go tramp again."

You bold sons of freedom your attention I'll command

And you I will not long detain

Of what I'm going to write, it happened in this state

Here in this Pine Tree State of Maine.

(Date of the wreck, January 17, 1901)

Dr. Woolley Accepts A Check For $3,500

Alumni News

The University of Maine Class of 1968 has established a $3,500 scholarship fund in memory of the late Prof. David R. Rittenhouse.

Income from the fund will be used annually to aid sons and daughters of class members attending the university.

Degree

Dr. Winthrop C. Libby, left, acting president of the University of Maine, September 23rd was presented an honorary Doctor of Laws Degree at the fall convocation of Ricker College. Also receiving an honorary degree was Roger J. Voskuyl, executive director of the Council for the Advancement of Small Colleges.

Rochester Alumni Will Meet November 1

Dean Richard Hill of the College of Technology will address members of the Rochester, N. Y., Area Alumni November 1. On November 2 he will address the Northeastern Alumni Association in Albany.

Dr. Libby Addresses Hancock Alumni

Dr. Winthrop Libby, acting president of the University of Maine, spoke on the state's consolidated state college system August 9 at the fall meeting of the Hancock County Alumni Association at the Jordan River Country Club, Trenton.

A nominating committee of George Bearce, Kenneth Blaisdell and Richard E. McKown were appointed to help pick a student recipient from Hancock County for the association's $100 scholarship.

Appointed:

Johnson

Miss Susan M. Johnson of Bangor last month was appointed assistant director of the General Alumni Association.

She replaces Philip O. McCarthy, who resigned to become assistant dean of men at the University's South Campus.

Miss Johnson graduated from John Bapst High School and is a member of the Class of 1967 at the University of Maine. She received her Bachelor of Science degree in education and taught English at Brewer High School during the past year.

McCarthy

Her new duties will include assisting in the publication of the Alumnus magazine and active participation, with selected volunteers, in the Annual Alumni Fund raising campaign.

McCarthy, a native of Houlton, had been assistant alumni association director since February of 1966. He is a member of the University's Class of 1962.

Prior to joining the General Alumni Association McCarthy taught school in Dunellen, N.J., where he was chairman of the school's mathematics department. In 1966 McCarthy returned to Maine to teach in Cape Elizabeth.

College Tips:

Frank McCann, left, president of the Southern Kennebec County Alumni Association and Robert Schoppe, right, past president of the General Alumni Association, recall their college days with two University of Maine freshmen, Craig Jamison of Gardiner and Deborah Rafford of Farmingdale. The Southern Kennebec County Alumni Association hosted 50 university freshmen at a luncheon September 6 at the Augusta Country Club. The Northern Kennebec County Alumni Association has a similar program and on August 28 hosted 30 university freshmen for a cookout at East Pond at Oakland.

'06 Cousins met for luncheon at the Augusta House on July 9—and there was a span of 62 years in their ages. Hollis Letteney '60 of Augusta and Frederick J. Simmons can boast of a University of Maine family. Mr. Simmons who spent the month of August at The Simmons Homestead, at Morrill, writes, "When these families get together, they constitute a college club and a "U of M Alumni Association—all in one."

MR. KARL MACDONALD

'07 Held our "LITTLE Reunion" on August 3 at Kobs Lobster Pound, Searsport. Dick Talbot and Perce Wyman with wives were present. Also, Ben Williams and Karl MacDonal. Mrs. MacDonal had a shock in February and was in the hospital for three months. She is now in the Bradbury Nursing Home, Belfast and is slowly recovering.

Herbert Green, Spencer, Mass., says he drives his car winter and summer about every day so he is in good health and not among the missing.

Terchak Bye, Portland, is in excellent health except for his eyes. Requires three pairs of glasses for different distances. They were having their 60th wedding anniversary at his cottage at Sebago Lake and expected all of the family from three states.

Frank Holbrook, Asheville, N.C., gets along very well but uses a cane when walking. Like some of the classmates, he uses a typewriter for better reading of his letters.

Hazel (Webb) Clemons, West Springfield, Massachusetts, passed her drivers license examination and has a new car. Said it is probably her last one. She wrote, "Sad thought, isn't it?"

Joe Goodrich and wife, Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., called on me and also Ben Williams the middle of June. Said it was probably last time they would drive East.

Ben Williams, Isleboro, took his drivers examination recently and did not pass. He has another try at it on August 10th. I passed mine on the second try and I hope Ben does. The reasons, not an absolute stop at a "STOP" sign.

'08 Phil and Rebecca Emery, their daughter Elizabeth and Rebecca's sister, Miss Marion Talbot stopped in Belfast in late July on their annual trek to Washington County and the Alumni Meeting, Banquet and Dance at Washington Academy, East Machias. On the way they entertained Will and Bell Cobb and Jim Gannett at luncheon at the DOWN EASTER restaurant in Stockton Springs.

Alice Philips has passed her automobile driver's test, good for two years. Congratulations are in order.

Leslie Sargent writes that he and Christine have moved from their home in New Castle, N.H., to Havenwood, a Home for the elderly, in Concord, N.H. Leslie writes "Christine has arthritis and uses a walker and I have a heart condition and can't be very active." He adds that Havenwood is a very friendly place in which to live. Their address is: Havenwood, 33 Christian Avenue, Concord, N.H. 03301.

I regret that we did not have a picture taken of the members of the class and their guests at the dinner at the Little River Inn.

'09 As planned, I attended the doings at Orono on June 7 & 8. Saw many old friends, but 1909 was represented only by Old Uncle Fred. It was disappointing, but we must all try to retrieve our good name next June, Our 60th—remember!

Margaret Gerrity is spending the summer at York Harbor as she has done for many years. She expects to move from her Newton home to Longwood Towers in Brookline before the end of the year.

A phone chat with Walter Harvey brings the good news that Mrs. Harvey (Edna) is now home after many trying years in hospital and nursing homes. It has been a long hard illness and the return home should be great therapy during convalescence. We all wish for Edna a rapid and complete recovery.

The Henry Nashes report a satisfactory winter in Sarasota and now plan to return to the same address this coming winter. This summer they are enjoying their lovely house in West Dummerston, Vermont.

The Jess Masons are having a fine summer at their cottage at Lufkin Point, Essex, Massachusetts. They are both well and enjoying their fine location and beautiful flower garden.

The George Naumans are well and spending the summer at their fine home in Peterborough. They attended a family reunion at Rangeley in early August and are now planning to return to Sun City, Arizona, for the coming winter. You will recall that they purchased a home there last year.

11 A letter was sent to "Bob" Marshall, our old basketball star, who lives in Jacksonville, Florida, and received a reply from his son, Phil Marshall, Box 5306 Daytona Beach, Fla. (32020). Bob had a serious operation and had to have some of one leg removed and is now in a nursing home in Jacksonville, where he has lived for many years and has many friends. His son goes to see him often and takes care of his mail and says that his father is in good spirits and still has a good sense of humor.

We were glad to see the note that Florence Taylor Royal sent to the Alumni Office. She is retired and lives at 75 So. Main St. Bradford Conn. She writes as follows:

"I have had three enjoyable trips across (1954, 1959, 1964) This one included a trip to the Holy Land. During June 1967, I visited in Denver Colorado, San Francisco, then on to Hawaii just for the fun of it—a wonderful trip." Another 1911 world traveler.

"Ray" Davis and his wife did not go to Florida as he has had a heart condition for some time and does not get around very much. However, the Doctor says that he is doing all right and Ray seems to show some improvement.

Several hardy members of our class were back for the June Commencement activities. Arthur B. "Rick" and Ann Richardson came up from Owls Head; Al and Madelyn '36 Conley from Boothbay and those world travelers N.E. "Nemo" and Bertha Smith came up from Franklin, where they spend the summer. Forest Kingsbury attended as well as your Secretary and his wife Francis M. J. Bearce '15.

A Report of the 55th Reunion of the Illustrious Class of 1913

13 The 55th Reunion of your Class is a thing of the past, but it would certainly be remiss if some record of this event was not presented in printed form so that over the years ahead we may show those that follow the steps we have taken as a class to help encourage progress and prestige for this great University.

On our 50th Anniversary we saw three perfect days, but on this, our 55th, we found things a bit showery and cloudy at times; but over this three-day period we did not "miss a trick" and had a wonderful time together.

After registering, several of us took a bus provided by the University and in 5 years since our 50th, the University has certainly made great strides in providing new dormitories and sizable buildings for classrooms. We were all amazed and looked with pride at this progress.

At 5:30 p.m. we all met in the Peabody Lounge at the Memorial Union Building for a social hour and here, with our stereo playing, we drew quite a number of alumni from some of the other reunion classes. Promptly at 6:00 p.m. we took our music and crossed the hallway into the Ford Room where we had a most delightful roast beef dinner, served by several attractive waitresses who entered into the spirit of the occasion.

President Ober presided at the class business meeting and opened the meeting with the reading of the names of those who had died since our 50th Anniversary in 1963—Percy E. Jackson offered a prayer which impressed us all.

In view of the fact the Secretary's report of the 50th Anniversary in 1963 had been printed in the Alumnus, it was voted to dispense with the reading of this report.

The Treasurer reported that there was left over from the 50th Reunion after all bills were paid the sum of $91.48; and this money was placed in the bank and when withdrawn on May 24th, 1968, showed that there was interest accrued in the 5 years of $20.10 with a total of $111.58 and this sum was used to help pay the incidental expenses of this reunion. As there are still a few small bills to be paid, there will probably be no carryover when the books are balanced.

GIFTS—Three members of the Class have contributed to the University General Alumni 1913 Fund, a total of $528.00 with a vote of the Class giving it unrestricted handling, and it was voted to add this amount to the gift of about $2500.00 made at the 50th Anniversary.

15 Belated word has been received that Harry A. Titcomb was named Superintendent Emeritus of the Neptune, New Jersey, Public School System in 1966. For many years prior to his retirement, Harry had a brilliant career as superintendent of that school system. He is presently residing at 1626 Marconi Road, Belmar, New Jersey. Our sincere congratulations, Harry!

During the month of June your scribe had the unexpected pleasure (?) of being confined to the Waldo County General Hospital in Belfast due to a sudden heart attack (from which he is recovering nicely, thank you!) That thoroughly equipped, modern, and excellently staffed, 60-bed hospital which was opened in 1957, is a wonderful tribute to the many years of hard work, thought and caring of one of the prominent members of the Class of 1908, William A. Cobb. For many years prior to his retirement as Superintendent of the Belfast District of the Central Maine Power Company, he did volunteer staff work in the old, original hospital. Since his retirement in 1955, he has put in full time as Chairman of the Board of Directors.

17 The following news item from the Alumni Office should be of interest to you. "Activities at the new alma mater center on South Campus, Dow Field, where 500 students will be quartered: Dr. Arthur Kaplan, now head of the Department of Psychology at the University, will be Director, and Roger Frey '55 will be Assistant Director. Phil McCarthy '62 will be Assistant Dean of Men."

Several classmates have been celebrating their 50th Wedding Anniversaries. Bryant Hopkins, and his wife (Emily Hall), of Waterville, were honored at home by their four children, Mrs. Harold (Emily) Jordan '41, Mrs. Marcus (Priscilla) Parsons '44, Mrs. Richard (Elizabeth) Knight '54, and Bryant Hopkins, Jr. '50. They were married on July 15th, 1918. The Donald Bridghams, of Egremont, Mass., were honored on their June 24th Anniversary, at a dinner party in the Richmond Church Hall. They have three sons, Lawrence, Odentien, Maryland; Keith, Lanesboro, New Hampshire; and Merle, Centralia, Washington. A fourth son, Malcolm, was killed in World War II. Mr and Mrs. Edmund LaPointe, Orono, celebrated their 50th Anniversary at a family gathering on July 2nd. Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Foster (Doris Ballard), of Belgrade, were honored on July 10th at a Reception arranged by their children, Vernon, Jr., Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, Thomas, Indianapolis, Indiana, and Mrs. Philip Wettengel, Gross Point, Michigan.

Raymond Pendleton, Carmel, had the pleasure, this summer, of a Reunion with his three brothers, Henry, Lewis and Walter. Their ages totaled 300 years.

The following news items, deleted from my last column because of lack of space will still be of interest:

The Linwood Pitmans spend most of the year in Portland with two months this winter in Englewood, Florida. Linwood is one of the founders of the 60 Plus Men's Group at the Woodfords Congregational Church; they meet in Portland for lunch, recreation and a speaker, the group has grown in a bit over a year from forty members to over one hundred and fifty.

The Aubrey Drakes still keep an Albion, Maine, address, but live in Arizona and California winters, traveling with a 20-foot trailer. They have crossed the United States twelve times. On their way home this spring they are planning to visit New Orleans and Texas.

'21 Buckie Crandall "This spring I started on a new career in the historic town of Plymouth, Massachusetts, and am keeping busy on various engineering problems for several nuclear and fossil fuel electric projects.
"After serving nearly 5 years in the Civil Engineer Corps of the Navy during World War II, I was an independent engineering consultant in New York and New England I later retired to a reasonably leisure life in Wolfeboro, N.H., but after 4 years of retirement, the life became too boring and I joined the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers My work with them included studies of such projects as the Passamaquoddy Tidal Power Project, the much-maligned Dickie-Lincoln School Hydroelectric Dam on the St John River, and other various river and harbor projects

After 11 years of this work, I was retired because of the statutory age limitation So as not to go into another boring retirement, I became associated with the firm of Delano & Keith of Plymouth who have a long history in the field of engineering and surveying in this area Among some of our activities is the work as engineering consultants and construction surveying for the Bechtel Corp, who have the contracts for the construction of the Pilgrim Nuclear Electric Station at Plymouth, a fossil-fueled plant in Connecticut as well as others

'28 How nice it was to see those of you who were at the Saturday morning Class Meeting. And nearly as nice to hear about the ones I had missed at the banquet Friday night. When I began to read the letters which had been sent to our former "Prexy" Matt Williams, I realized how many hours and hours of work effort Matt had put in to make our 40th reunion a success. From all of us, Matt, thank you very much. And I'm sure much thanks also goes to Mrs. Matt, (Ruby Carlson, '29).

After class meeting one conversation led to another so I went off without the letters, but Matt, bless him, sent them along. I shall hope to share them with you in the future columns.

Our officers for the next five years are Rev. Frederick H. Thompson, Portland, president; Mrs. Kenneth (Mabel Kirkpatrick) Lovejoy, Bangor, secretary; Roger E. Lewis, Elizabeth, N.J., vice-president; Horace E. Bell, Augusta, treasurer; Mrs. Eldwin A. (Hope Craig) Wixson, Winslow, personals editor. Members of the Executive Committee are Albert M. Parker, Port Washington, N.Y., chairman; Matthew Williams, Dover Foxcroft; Lynwood Betts, Port Washington, N.Y., Mrs. George (Thelma Perkins) Dudley, Portland and Kenneth C. Lovejoy, Bangor.

There were about 25 at the class meeting and I understand about 70 at the Friday evening banquet.

Basic business done at class meeting was donation of $1200 to the University of Maine Foundation, earmarked to be used for the University of Maine at Orono. The sum of $100 was donated to the Alumni Activities Fund.

The class voted to have a Class Agent for fund raising as well as keeping class members in contact with each other. The Executive committee met immediately after the business meeting and chose George and Thelma Dudley to be class agents. They accepted this responsibility.

'33 It was a great reunion! Everyone attending enjoyed it, and we talked about those who didn't! "Thanks" to everyone who made it "go".

The new class officers are: President—Frank W. Hagan, Vice President—James W. McClure; Secretary—Marjorie Moulton Murphy, Treasurer—Edwin L. Giddings.

It was recommended and we voted to have a class agent. John Wilson was our choice. A committee to work on our 50th reunion gift and finance was set up. This includes the treasurer and president plus Blanche Henry, Helen Hilton Bailey and James McClure.

Ed and Mary Louise Giddings hosted the lawn party Saturday afternoon. It was super as usual. They even came up with an afternoon free of rain!

Incidentally, Ed has just been appointed lecturer in Forest Resources at the University. Our congratulations are really to the University and the young people making up the classes.

I do not have the official count for class members returning, but it was nearly 50. Add to this husbands, wives, children and "in-laws". Two class members attended who had not been back to campus since graduation. Luthera Burton Dawson and John Cunningham.

Luthera works for the government in Washington DC. It is not surprising, knowing her, that it involves much writing. She has two children (I use the word advisedly as she was accompanied by her daughter-in-law).

John Cunningham brought his charming wife with him—they have two children. John is as quiet as ever. He lives in Indiana and keeps very busy manufacturing heating units.

John Wilson, who has lost none of his bounce, now lives in Texas and was the member traveling the greatest distance to reunion.

Only my love for Betty Pendleton and her many years of service to the class put me into this situation of class reporter! Send news or I'll use my imagination!

to receive a Distinguished Secondary School Teaching Award. A certificate plus an award of $1200 was presented to him at an informal reception on June 12. Head of the English Department of Wellesley Senior High School since 1955, Bill was nominated for the award by a former student who cited him as the high school teacher who did more than any other to influence his life.

He and Mrs. Crockett live at East Natick, Mass. Their son, Stephen, is attending the Graduate School of Architecture at the University of Pennsylvania, and their daughter, Deborah, is a junior at the University of Missouri.

Max Rappaport of Brewer was installed president of the Equitable Life Insurance Society's Chartered Life Underwriters Association in June in New York. Max joined the company in 1938 and has previously served as trustee and vice president.

Earl Brown is now with the Tiffany Company, Division of American Lubricants Company. His address is 2900 Northeast 30th Street, Fort Lauderdale, Fla. 33306.

Phyllis "Penny" Johnson, daughter of Irene (Sanders) and Bill Johnson, Belfast, received her degree at Commencement, and will be teaching second grade at Hollis Center this fall.

Howard Stevens and Ruth (Vaughn) have two 3 year old granddaughters, according to a note received by the Alumni office. Ruth works in Warren Memorial Library and is studying for her M.S. at UMP.

'35 The class of '35 was well represented at the annual meeting of the General Alumni Assoc. in June. Carl Whitman was reelected president; Paul Bean and Milt MacBride were given honorary life memberships on the Alumni Council from which they retired.

Dr. Gerald H. Leavitt, Millinocket, has been reappointed to the committee on membership development of the American Optometric Assoc. This group surveys, stimulates and promotes membership in the A.O.A. which represents 15,000 practicing optometrists in the U.S.

Ivan Booker has been holding pottery-making classes at the Oakland House in Brooksville this summer. This is his second season at Oakland House and the program has been a great success.

Now you're back from vacation and settled into the fall routine, how about some news items?

'36 September—schools opening—and thanks to Myron Collette we have an appropriate item. You could almost call Myron a travelling school administrator. As superintendent for Unit 34, the school districts of Ashford, Columbia, Union and Willington, he drives 1,600 miles a month. He resides in Manchester, Conn. with his wife and two teenage daughters.

From my own dooryard practically comes word that William B. Pierce of Wright, Pierce, Barnes and Wyman, resident of Topsham has been elected President of the Consulting Engineers of Maine. We also note from the same clipping that J. Wiesendanger, husband of Georgia Fuller, E. Winthrop, has been elected director of same group.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Nash Brooks, Winslow, have announced the engagement of their daughter Ann '69 to Peter Hunter, graduate of MMA.

I have exhausted every clipping and note I have so if you want a class column in the winter issues either SEND some or MAKE some!

'37 The Rev. Edward H. Redman, minister of the Unitarian Universalist Society of Northern Virginia and an employee of the Health, Education, and Welfare Department, was a featured speaker of the celebration of the 150th anniversary of the Independent Congregational Society of Bangor on June 9th.

Newell J. Wilson of Suffern, N.Y., received and M.B.A. degree from Fairleigh Dickinson University at Rutherford, N.J. last June.

Although this is not a strictly 1937 item, it will be of interest to many of our class. Len Shaw, '36, and Fran, his wife, stopped to see us during a visit to Maine. Len and my husband were Newton High Schoolers together back in the good old days. We all talked fast as there were many years of news to catch up on; we enjoyed seeing them and the snapshots of their handsome children.

Wish some of the rest of you would stop by for a visit, or send a note with news for our class column, as news is hard to come by.

MISS JO PROFITA

'38 Let me remind you that man does not live by bread alone. There certainly are such delights as thirtieth reunions. I would like to go on record as saying that ours was the reunion to outshine all reunions. Why? Because we had the fare to get to Orono, the intestinal fortitude to keep up with things and the zest to have the fun that we did.

Festivities got underway Friday with a "happy hour" at Hancock Hall. That is when various classmates saw each other for the first time in 30 years. Such changes! Distinguished grays, glabrous pates, prosperous paunches, beautiful belles and just wonderful, loving faces. (Choose your own category!) My cup ran over when I saw my own true love, Prexy Hauck. To have him and Mrs. Hauck with us gave the weekend that extra special "zing." Our class president, Bob Fuller, did his usual marvelous job organizing the event and assuring its success. His nimble wit was second only to that of our banquet toastmaster, that Dale Carnegie threat, Jim Stanley, who fulfilled his chores with great polish and humor.

The class meeting Saturday morning was the epitome of un-parliamentary procedure, but fun! While our treasurer, Buzz Sherry, may be doing a super job managing the Hotel Commodore in New York City (as a guest, I can attest to that), I have private misgivings about how he is managing our funds. After all, he refused to give anything but a hypothetical report. Officers elected were: president, Bob Fuller; vice-president, Ernie Redman, secretaries (each term to run one year), Jo Profita, Kay Rowe, Jim Stanley, George Tsoulas and Arnie Veague; treasurer, Buzz Sherry; executive committee, John Haggitt, Waldo Hardison, Jim Stanley, Jo Profita, Margaret (Wilston) Bebek and Cora (Sharon) Leukhart.

There are so many people it would be fun to mention, but space does not permit it. For instance, it was a joy to see Billy Pearlmutter and to meet his Bea and his "instant" sons. Then there were Betty and Wally Gleason, George and Mary Tsoulas, the Rod Elliotts, the Bob Schoppes, Sarah Littlefield who will welcome visitors at her WHATNOT SHOP in Orono, Peter and Eleanor Zoidis, Gerald and Marjorie Hart and the Norman Thompsons. Back to campus for the first time since graduation was Annette (Youngs) Redman whose dad was U. of M. treasurer during our college days.

Please let me hear from you. This time I am hampered by a dearth of space. In the future it will probably be a dearth of information.

'39 Paul E. Browne '39 of Vassalboro has announced his candidacy for Kennebec County commissioner, the short term. He owns and manages the family planned Golf Course on the Webber Pond road in Vassalboro. He taught and coached at Bucksport High School before becoming county agricultural agent in Springfield, Mass. He later managed a dairy farm in Md. He returned to Maine in 1950 and managed the Maine Breeding Cooperative for 16 years. In 1966 he purchased the Maine Cooperative Breeding real estate for his Holstein herd and the farm is operated by his son.

Betty Homans Hancock writes that her son Douglas Hancock '68 is entering the Massachusetts School of Optometry in Boston this September.

Kay Cox Bennett '39 and John Bennett '38 are building a cape cod house in the beautiful town of Damariscotta.

Our son, Robert, was married on June 22 in Everett, Wash. to Janice Jones. Son Bob graduated from Dartmouth College in '66 and receives his Master's degree in Business Administration this year from the University of Washington. His wife Janice is a graduate of the University of Washington. They are living in Seattle. Our whole family flew out to the wedding. Son Dick was best man and sons Douglas and Peter were ushers. After the wedding we vacationed at Mt. Hood, Oregon—the coast of Oregon and took a one week horseback trip in the Cascade Wilderness area near Mt. Ranier. Scenery was spectacular.

Please classmates send me a line with news of you and your family.

'40 A June 12, 1968 news release from Booz, Allen and Hamilton, Inc., management consultants, announces that Philip A. Hutchinson has been appointed Research Director of Booz, Allen Applied Research, Inc. (BAARINC), in its Kansas City office. BAARINC is the technical and scientific services subsidiary of Booz, Allen and Hamilton, international management consultants. Prior to joining BAARINC, Phil had considerable experience in the fields of military transportation, international military planning and logistics and is currently a member of the National Defense Transportation Association and the Association of the U.S. Army. He is presently living at 8704 West 106th St., Overland Park, Kansas.

The Wayne F. Shipmans ('40 & '41) have been busy these past few months—their daughter was married in March, #2 son graduated in May and #1 son married in June! We think a long, restful vacation is in order this year for the Shipmans!

Late news from Mrs. Ralph Mosher (Margaret Steinmetz) that they are still living on their 300 acre dairy farm just outside Union Springs, N.Y. Mr. Mosher no longer farms, but is now specializing in farm real estate, assisted part time by Margaret who finds the work most stimulating. Their children—Ellen, 16, a Junior in high school, Hugh, 12, a seventh grader and Harriet 10, is a fourth grader.

We sadly announce the recent death of Dorrice Dow Fuller (Mrs. Richard).

'42 Many thanks to Mary Louise Griffee for her newsy letter which included news clippings of several '42ers. Sandy graduated from Paul Smith College in June and will be attending University of Mass. in the fall. Rusty and Jane (both U of M '67) live in Hartford, Conn. where Rusty is at Rensaleer Graduate School. The Rev. and Mrs. Gilbert Taverner (Betty Barker Gilpatrick) are moving from Milton, Mass. to Indianola, Iowa where Rev. Taverner will serve as chaplain of Simpson College and as assistant professor of Philosophy and Religion. Gilbert is a graduate of Colby but has attended many of our reunions with Betty. As you know, Betty has been a mainstay of the class and University, and we'll miss her presence in New England, but do wish them both success and happiness in their new location.

'48 Twentieth Reunion was a big success—starting with a fine banquet where Pres. Bob Browne was named the baldest class member. Punky (Elaine Perkins) Fogler and George Marsanskis were recognized as those having the most children—seven each—and Dr. Mark Lane for having come the greatest distance—from Albuquerque, N.M. Peter Calott also traveled far to be with us, from Minneapolis, Minn.

Pres. Bob read notes from some of those who couldn't come. Al '47 and Edie Anne (Young) Hutchinson, Danvers, Mass. wrote that their eldest, Suzanne, was graduating from high school that week and plans to enter Maine in the fall. John and Pauline (Marcos) Kelly, Shrewsbury, Mass. were home supervising the busy schedules of three teen-age daughters. Bonnie (Andrews) Slager, Miami, Fla. said she was joining husband Hank on a business trip to the West Coast. I'll try to get more information from others who sent notes and report it next time.

Frank and Alice (Fonseca) Haines of New Jersey brought along their oldest daughter and Donald and Una Jean (MacDonald) Mead of New York brought a son to look over the campus and consider applying for admission in '69. At the Class Meeting Saturday morning the following officers were elected. Pres. Robert Browne, Vice Pres. Nicholas Broutas, Sec. Ruth (Fogler) Goff, Treas. John Grant—all of Bangor. The executive committee is to include the officers plus Frank Stephens, Irving Gray, Helen (Noyes) Taylor, Ralph Bean, and Elaine (Perkins) Fogler. There were 19 class members present and it was decided we should aim at a Class Gift of $20,000 to be made at our Twenty-fifth Reunion. This amount is just $100 from each class member for each year since graduation. We voted to announce at the Alumni Banquet that we would raise at least $10,000. And we're really going to go after the second $10,000, too. You will be hearing more about this by mail soon, if you haven't already.

'50 Hi! Hope you all had a grand summer. Not too much news this time, so hope you will drop a line soon.

Freda Gray-Masse sang beautifully with the Portland Symphony in April and in May sang the soprano in the "Elijah" oratorio at the U. of M. Freda has sung extensively in the U.S. and Europe as guest soloist with orchestras including the London Symphony, Toronto Symphony, the Boston Symphony, and the National Symphony of Washington. Her oratorio experience includes guest solo appearances with the Mendelssohn Choir of Toronto, the R. I. Civic Chorale, and the choirs of Brown U. and Pembroke College. She sang for the dedication of the Hauck Auditorium and has appeared in recitals in the University Summer Arts Festivals.

Dr. Mark Shedd, superintendent of schools in Philadelphia, was the commencement speaker for the U. of M.'s summer graduation exercises. Mark received an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

Lewis Clark and family are in the second year of a two-year assignment with the U.S. Agency for International Development in Lashkar, Afghanistan, where Lewis is an agricultural credit advisor working with the Agricultural Development Bank of Afghanistan.

The Charles Broomhall family of Kearsarge, N.H., had an extensive tour of the West and Canada this summer.

Everett Johnson of Cape Elizabeth was elected vice president of warehousing and transportation of Hannaford Brothers, Co. Everett is district deputy governor of District 41L of the Lions Club, International.

'52 Stanley M. Ferguson has been named registrar of Farmington State College by the U. of M. Board of Trustees.

The Associated Industries of Maine recently elected Stuart R. Cooper as chairman of its water and air improvement committee. Cooper is pollution abatement director of the Oxford Paper Co. in Rumford.

William T. Ames of Westboro, Mass., has become manager of the agency planning department and an officer of the State Mutual Life Assurance Co. of America.

Dana E. Warren was honored recently by The Travelers Life Insurance Co. when he was made a member of the Order of the Tower, the company's honorary organization for top agents. He represents The Travelers as vice president in Boit, Dalton and Church Inc., Boston, Mass. Warren with his wife, the former Beth Chick, and their four children reside in Topsfield, Mass.

Malcolm E. Osborn was the author of an article in the recently published 26th annual volume of New York University's Institute on Federal Taxation, Mal, his wife and four children live in Winston-Salem, N.C., where he is assistant vice president and tax counsel for Security Life and Trust Co. In addition, Mal will teach an evening course in business law at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro this fall.

Lester C. Bickford, associated with EKCO Housewares Co., Locke Mills, was a speaker at the 1968 Dry Kiln Operators Short Course partly sponsored by the university's School of Forest Resources.

'53 The most exciting news this month is that of a classmate whose family has up and done what all of us have thought about in vague terms at one time or another. Madeline (Carole) Armstrong Bunter, husband Bill and two daughters have packed up, locked up and left for a year of travel through Europe. They will camp their way through 20 countries, including the Soviet Union and Yugoslavia, with Carole tutoring 13-year old Judy (Five-year old Susan presented no educational problem). Talk about being green with envy! We hope to hear more about their experiences when they return.

Gerald Beach, advertising supervisor for the advertising and sales department of the Oxford Paper Co., has been elected eastern vice president of the Salesman's Association of the Paper Industry, which consists of some 1,000 salesmen in the industry who provide educational direction and keep members informed on industry affairs. Gerry has been a member for 5 years and has served both as program chairman and assistant vice president.

Helen Marie (Johnson) Fogel is a feature writer for the Detroit Free Press. She is living in Detroit, Michigan. She has three sons—Mark David, Charles Joseph and Paul Aaron.

Wilmot Oliver received his Ed.D. degree at Rutgers University in May.

Married this summer, Louise Hartford of Lebanon, N.H., became the bride of George R. Wentworth who attended Bob Jones University in Greenville, S.C., after graduating from Maine. George is employed by the Baxter Woolen Co. in East Rochester, N.H.

Margaret Snow was married to Robert J. Hampson of Pleasantville, N.Y. Bob has a master's degree from Syracuse University College of Forestry. They will live in Newcomb, N.Y.

I do have news on numerous other classmates gathered at our reunion in June (it really was fun and we all looked pretty well preserved in spite of the rigors of the past 15 years) but they are stored in Brunswick. This is being written on a lovely, balmy August afternoon at our campsite on Lake Pemaquid in Damariscotta. Ed was principal of a summer school in Waldoboro—jointly sponsored by SAD 40 and the Education Development Center, for which Ed works—so we combined business with pleasure and have camped since July 4th. Except for a few marauding raccoons and a chipmunk who insists that even food in the tent is fair game, it's been a magnificent summer.

Class officers are Philip E. (Ed) Johnson, President, Ronald Bishop, Vice President, Eini Riutta Johnson, Secretary, and Carol Prentiss Mower, Treasurer (You may notice that the residents of 10 Atwood Lane in Brunswick now hold rather a monopoly on class offices.) Executive Committee, in addition to the officers: Dr. Henry K. Woodbrey, Lawrence Wright, Fred Hutchinson and R. Clifford Cunningham.

The remaining reunion news will have to await our return to civilization and the "file box" which everyone at reunion was consistently hounded into looking at and bringing up to date.

Nancy (Littlefield) Cousins has written a cookbook compiling recipes in family form used at her mother's hotel—The Oakland House, Brooksville. It is being made up by a local printer and will be sold in the Blue Hill area. Special orders can be sent to 14 Pond Street, Orono, Maine 04473. Nancy has been supervising the lunch program in the Orono schools since last January and finds time to be financial advisor to the active chapter of Pi Beta Phi, serve with the cabinet of St. Thomas of Canterbury Chapel at the U. of M. and teach piano. Her active household is headed by Decatur '60 and shared with Sharon Louisa, 9, Louise Holden, 6½, and Stephen Decatur, 4½.

Nancy (Cameron) DeWilde writes from Hampden, where the family moved when John '54 became Personnel Director of the new Sylvania plant which opened in Bangor last summer. Their children are Catherine, 10, Jennifer, 8, and Richard, 4. Nancy sends these tidbits: Jim and Pat (Twomey) Wheeler welcomed Suzanne June 1967 while a son was born to Charles and Mary (Farnsworth) Gillis last September. And, we understand that Shirley (Clark) McPhail has moved to North Windham.

Leland Fuller was appointed treasurer of the U. of M. Alumni on Long Island group at its May 19 dinner-meeting.

'59 This is an S.O.S. for news. Newspaper clippings have been few and far between and without correspondence from you, there is no news for the column. Please try to drop a note with any information you have—or I might be forced to write about myself from now on!!!

First let me correct a mistake made in the April column! Bruce Dubov is a Major not a Captain in the U.S. Army. He is Commanding Officer of a Warrant Officer Candidate Company in Mineral Wells, Texas.

Ralph L. "Woody" Hodgkins, Jr, Regional Vice President of the Lewiston Area, was "graduated" this year from Stonier Graduate School of Banking at Rutgers University, New Brunswick, New Jersey. The course includes three resident summer courses on the campus and two years of extension study at home, plus a written thesis based on original research in some area of banking.

A trip to a nearby Dairy Queen last month proved very fruitful. It was there that I bumped into Joan (Dow) Scott and family on the way from Maine to Tennessee. Joan and husband, John, have two children, Bill and Amy Lee. They were on their way to their home in Knoxville, Tennessee. We had a nice "goosey" get-together with my three children and Joan's two plus the ice cream.

Now that's all the news that I've been able to gather this month—so you must write. After all, I can't sit around Dairy Queens all year hoping to see a familiar face!

'62 Fellow classmates—don't forget the class of '62 coffee from 10:30 to 12 noon the morning of Homecoming, Oct. 26, at the F.F.A. Room, Memorial Union, for all returning '62ers and their guests! See you there.

Bill and Judy (Cully) Redmond send "greetings from sunny Florida" where they have developed a real fondness for the South, moving to 1313 Bellemeade Blvd, Jacksonville, in September of '66, after two years in Virginia. Bill is a branch manager with Carrier Air Conditioning Co. They have purchased a "typically Florida home"—a one-story brick ranch—and have added a "little people" to the family, Kristen Elizabeth, now a year old and "truly the delight of our lives," Judy adds. Also with Carrier Air Conditioning Co., but in Los Angeles, Calif., is Nick Dann, who is a dealer and service development manager with the company.

Sue (Merrill) and George Blaisdell in Danbury, Conn. report news of a birth in their family—Janet arrived Feb. 13. Sue also writes that Gerry and Linda (MacDonald) Hunnewell are parents of another son, Thomas George, born June 24. Peter Dufour has been elected chairman of the Old Town City Council and mayor of the city. Dufour is an engineering aide at the University of Maine may well be the youngest mayor in the state Robert L. Morissette is at the University of Wyoming where he has received an Academic Year Institute in physics and math. He formerly taught at Winthrop High School.

Among '62ers receiving another degree in June were Hugh B Snow, Jr., master of arts in international relations from American University Hugh is now employed by State Street Trust and Bank of Boston and lives in Braintree, Jean Freeman, a third grade teacher in Manchester, Conn., master's of science from Central Connecticut State College, and David H Miles, a Ph D in Germanic Languages and Literature from Princeton University. This fall, he takes over as assistant professor of German at UMass

The big news in Portsmouth, N.H., is that Walt Beauheu has been named the new high school head football coach, selected from a field of nearly 30 applicants. He goes to Portsmouth from Dover-Foxcroft with a record of 39 wins and eight losses in six years. Walt, married and the father of two children, will also coach freshman baseball. The Beauheus live in Hampton.

Dr. Lloyd H. Elliott—one of the honorary members of the class—and president of George Washington University in Washington, D.C., has been appointed to the board of American Security and Trust Co. Edward G. Farrell III has completed four and a half years as finance officer in the Army and is now an accountant for Abbott Labs in North Chicago. He is married to the former Marvina Brown of Chicago and they live in Zion with their two children Joseph Daggett is now a radio-tv announcer in Champaign, Ill.

Our 10th reunion from Brunswick High on June 20 was more like a gathering of Maine alumni as a good number were there—Ben Beaudoin of Pittsburgh, Bobbie Potter Celemin of North Syracuse, N.Y., David and Judy (Zottoli) Watts of Gloucester, Mass., Bill and Ginny (Dyer) Bousum of Scituate, Mass., Alan and Priscilla Walker of New Hampshire, Jim and Sally (Kazalski) Hunt of Kittery Point, Walter and Peggy (Deraps) Higgins of Brunswick, Lin and Ann (Adjutant) Billings of Orono, Tom and Sally (Kennett) Juenemann of Freeport, Clifford and Nancy Card of Bowdoin, Walter and Sarah Savell, Alan and Millie (Simpson) Stewart, and Phil '61 and Peg Dionne of Brunswick.

Don Harnum, now of Newark, Del., will take over a nationally-famous boys and girls summer camp, Baldwin, at Chemo, this summer. Tom Shields is working with health groups throughout the state in his new job with Health Facilities Planning Council, Augusta. He previously was with UPI Seymour Cunningham is a graduate student at State University College of Forestry, Syracuse University, and was recently awarded the Bausch and Lomb Photogrammetric Award. He is studying for a Ph.D. in forest management. Adrian Sewall, has returned to Maine to become assistant placement director, responsible for undergraduate teacher placement. He previously was a counselor in the admissions office of New York State College at Plattsburgh.

'63 The clan all gathered for a most enjoyable reunion weekend this past June. Just one change was made in the class officers as you can see from the name and address above. Jim Hanson remains as president with Bruce Wentworth as vice-president and Charlie Crockett as treasurer. Mr. Wells also remains as our class advisor. Our class gift was a sizable one of $1500.

Effective this month is Richard Dumont's appointment as an assistant professor in the Dept. of Sociology and Anthropology at the Univ of Vermont. Dick received his MA in sociology from the Univ. of Mass where he is now working toward his Ph.D.

Other teachers in the news include Camillo J. Profenno at Ricker College in Houlton. He received his masters in '64 at Middlebury. Mrs. Elaine Gershman, an instructor at Maine in psychology, has taken a leave of absence for the fall semester to investigate the Primary British School System and psychology in England, Switzerland, and the Netherlands. Allen M. Brackley will be a new instructor in wood technology at Maine this fall.

Speaking of the Maine staff, Fred E. Stoddard, assistant superintendent of buildings and trades, has been recalled to active duty with a US naval construction battalion. Lt. Stoddard and his family are now in Gulfport, Miss. After a maximum tour of 2 years, it is expected he will return to his position in Orono.

Judy Clements was recently promoted to administrator of the computer standards section in the electronic data processing research dept. of the home office of Aetna Life and Casualty in Hartford, Conn. She is living at 50 Huntington St., Hartford.

Word comes from Rod McClure who is working on integrated circuits for the Bell Labs in Reading, Penna. He and his wife have two children—Barbara Susan, 4, and Bruce Alan, who will be 1 this October. They make their home at 304 Second St., Shillington, Penna., 19607.

Edgar L. Ferguson recently received his masters in biology from the Univ. of New Brunswick.

This past July, I reluctantly returned from a marvelous week of R&R with Don in Honolulu. The weather and scenery were wonderful. I really hated to return to my summer job as a bookkeeper in a local bank in Marblehead. I will see Don again in November when he returns stateside for a 30-day leave. He is undecided at the moment, but is thinking about returning to Viet Nam for the remainder of his hitch which will be up in May, '69.

In a very nice letter from Nina Varney Stein, she stated that she and Earl were married February 4, and that Earl has a graduate assistantship in psychology at UNH and is working toward his Ph.D. Nina is working in the library at the university. Judy Jones writes that Carol Heber has become engaged to Bob Laughlin and plans to marry this summer if Uncle Sam doesn't change their plans. Bob is now doing graduate work at Boston University. She also wrote that Debbie Johnson is teaching in Hermon and is also engaged. Judy's roommate, Carol Heber, had her own bit of news. She wrote that Judy is teaching 3rd grade in Bangor and is planning to be married to Dick Blake who graduated in January, on June 29. Pat Cochran is really enjoying her teaching position in the 1st grade in Bangor and attended the Winter Carnival in Quebec city with another teacher. Male or female Pat?!

Shades of AWS! Nancy Lee is another 3rd grade Bangor teacher and has recently become an aunt. Babs Ryland is team teaching in Orono and, I imagine had a ball during her April vacation in Bermuda. Doug Cooney is doing graduate work in Denver, Colo and Bob Dunklee is serving with the U.S. Marines in Viet Nam. Thanks a million for the info girls.

Judy Colucci was married February 4, 1967 to George Breault Jr. of North Providence, R.I. He is studying for his doctorate and Judy is doing social work for Family Court in Ann Arbor, Mich. For those of you who would like to write Judy, her address is 527 A Long Shore Drive.

Jeff (K-Bomb) Kestenbaum writes that he is at Suffolk Law School and is lovin' it. He'd like to hear from anyone who will be in the Boston area. Just look him up in the "Bell" book. Ed Wadsworth is an ensign in the Navy and sets his sails for the Mediterranean soon.

Lt. Rowan Malphurs has completed Infantry ranger course at Ft Benning, Ga. and is in Texas. Ray Philippon was promoted to Army private pay grade E-2 upon his completion of basic training also at Ft Benning. 2nd Lt Kent Johnson of the U.S. Air Force played an important role as a mechanical engineer at Wright-Patterson AFB in Ohio in the Development of the C-5 Galaxy—the world's largest airplane. Dr. and Mrs. Johnson should indeed be proud of Kent for his part in such an accomplishment.

At Lackland AFB, Texas, Airman Paul G. Olas completed basic training and has been assigned to the Air Force Technical Center at Lowry AFB, Colo. Also at Lackland, Fred A. Clough and Van Mouradian were each commissioned second lieutenants. Fred has been assigned to South Ruislip Air Station, England and Van is being assigned to Chanute AFB, Ill. for training as a missile officer.

Nita Hayes became Mrs. Peter Morrissey on Dec 23 and is now living with her new "roommate" at 105 Lawrence Rd., Derry, N.H. Nita is an English teacher at Pinkerton Academy and her husband is employed by Progressive Survey. Rosie Fenlason married Lt. Robin Perry of Edgcomb and they are living happily ever after in Colorado Springs, Colo. Shortly thereafter Rosie's roommate, Anne Bell was wed to George Wehrman of Phi Eta fame. Anne and George are living in Orono while George completes his senior year. Best wishes to you Rosie and "Annie B".

"B" ball star Rick Woods really scored in January when he said "I do" to the former Gail Lane of Bath. Gail is a graduate of Gorham State College and will be teaching while Rick is a personnel assistant at Bath Iron Works Corp. Morgan Grindle of Bar Harbor certainly made the right move when asked Connie Cousins to be his wife. The happy day was January 6 and they are now living on Main Street in Bar Harbor. Mr. Grindle is the owner of Islewide Electric Co.

Speaking of matrimony, yours truly will have a bit of personal news in the near future. In February I was engaged to Stan Wentzell of (believe it or not) RFD #1 West Baldwin. Stan is now employed by Uncle Sam in Maryland. My roommate, Gerri Kelley recently became Mrs. John Sherry.

'68 There are those of us who care about all of us. Few of us who care about none of us. But most of us who care about some of us—and those are the ones for whom this column is written. And by whom it is written. For these years to come I will remain merely a translator. I've hung out my shingle as head of the "'68 Class News Bureau" and am waiting for business.

Traditional June weddings have brought many of our classmates across the threshold to new lives in new places. Our very best wishes go to...

Marcia Tuthill to D. Allan Butterfield. In September both will be leaving for Rhodesia where they will serve as Methodist missionaries in that country.

Peggy Wheaton to Bill Calderwood in Bar Harbor. They will be spending the summer at Frenchmen's Bay.

Marcel H. Rodrigue to Claudette Duprez. The couple will reside at 117 Nichols St. in Lewiston.

Cheryl A. Briggs to Tom A. Harmon ('69). They are presently residing at 78 Union St. in Saco. Cheryl will continue her studies in guidance and counseling while Tom finishes his Senior year at the University where he is majoring in engineering.

Jon P. Devine to Miss Deborah E. Hardy of Reading, Mass. Mrs. Devine is a graduate of Chandler School in Boston. They plan to settle in No. Weymouth, Mass.

Pam Hogan to James W. Georgitis both of Orono. Jim is a graduate of Bowdoin College and will attend Tufts Medical School in the fall. Pam will continue her education at Simmons College School of Library Science and be employed at Harvard University.

Carol Wartluff to Timothy J. Small of Bangor, an Insurance Adjuster. The couple will reside at 9 Eaton Place in Bangor.

Miss Wendy Sawyer wed to Mr. Michael Downey of Hyde Park, Mass. Mike is a graduate of Chamberlaine College and is an operation specialist at IBM in Boston. After a Bermuda honeymoon the couple will live at 72 Sierra Rd. in Hyde Park, Mass.

Janet Reed and John Boody were married in Wakefield, Mass. this June. The couple have applied for the National Teacher Corps where they hope to combine teaching with work on their master's degrees.

Miss Margaret Miller to Cpt. John G. Coolidge of Ft. Eustis, Virginia. Captain Coolidge is a graduate of Norwich Military Academy and is currently serving his term in the U.S. Army.

Miss Janet Arthur to R. William Randall. Mrs. Randall is a graduate of Northeastern Business School and is employed by the St. Paul Insurance Co. Bill is employed by the Ernest M. Shapiro Co. The couple will live in Auburn.

Nancy C. Kenny and Michael Connolly were married in Brewer this June. Mike will be teaching at Brewer High School in the fall.

Miss Nancy Stone wed to Paul Fergus of Bangor graduate of Bowdoin College. Next fall the couple will be residing in La Grange Park, Ill., where Nancy will be employed by the Elementary School system of Lyons, Ill. Paul will be a second year student at Chicago Medical School in Chicago.

Miss Susan Stinchfield to Harvey King. After honeymooning through the Province of Quebec the couple will live in Camden for the summer.

Miss Verlie Johnson to Roger P. Farris, Jr. In the fall Verlie will teach in the Portland Public School System while Roger finishes his education at Gorham State College.

Miss Kathy Jensen to Second Lt. Robert Maxell, USAR. The bridal couple will reside in Anchorage, Alaska until January when they will leave for Ft. Benning, Georgia where Bob will report for active duty.

Judy Flanders to George B. Powers. In the fall Judy will be teaching in Eddington while George completes his graduate program at the University Graduate School.

Miss Barb Farnham to Lt. Robert S. Briggs of the University of New Hampshire. After a summer along the New England Coast, Barb will return to Milo to teach Elementary School. Bob will be serving a tour of duty in Viet Nam.

Willard Ellis will return to become an instructor in Agricultural Engineering at 'Maine'.

A BARGAIN SALE GIFT!

OR

HOW TO HAVE YOUR CAKE AND EAT IT, TOO!

Appreciated securities can be "sold" to the General Alumni Association or to the University of Maine when you are ready to make your next contribution. You regain your original investment. You can reinvest it and watch it grow again.

For example:

ASSUME YOU WISH TO GIVE	$100.00
And you have securities now worth		$500.00
Which cost you		400.00

You have an appreciation or capital gain of		$100.00
You can sell the securities to the GAA or the University for		$400.00
You will receive a check for		$400.00
And a contribution receipt for		$100.00

Tax advantages? Yes.

You have a charitable deduction on your Federal income tax in the year you make the "gift by sale." You avoid up to 25% long-term capital gains tax, or $25.00, if you had sold the securities in order to make a gift.

Hence a $100.00 gift via the "bargain sale" method will probably "cost" the average person less than $70.00.

The Cumberland & Oxford Canal

THE SUCCESS of the Erie Canal in New York created great enthusiasm in Maine for this new mode of transport. As early as 1791 a committee was chosen to learn the feasibility of a canal from Sebago Pond to the Presumpscot River. As a result of the committee's glowing report of its possibilities in opening up the "back country" to commerce, Woodbury Storer and other interested Portlanders incorporated in 1795 as the Cumberland Canal Corporation. Their objective was to open a canal connecting Sebago with the river at Saccarappa. Another corporation, "Proprietors of the Falmouth Canal," was formed at the same time to unite the Presumpscot with Fore River in Portland.

Financing the project would be by popular subscription. But the general public must have been somewhat apathetic to a canal, for even a legislature-approved lottery did not yield enough money to start work. Undaunted, the promoters sought and received further aid from a sympathetic State Legislature.

In 1825 the Canal Bank, now The Canal National Bank of Portland, was chartered, with a capital of $300,000. One condition of the charter was that one-fourth of its capital stock should be invested in stock of the Canal Company.

The Canal was completed early in 1830. There were 27 locks, each named for its locality. Sometimes, there's an interesting story behind the names — for example, the lock at Horse Beef Falls. Some time before 1776 a mill was established beside the Falls, owned by a man noted throughout the area for his parsimony. He fed his workers, because that was the custom of the day, but he fed them sparingly. One day when the men were scooping their daily ration from the beef barrel, they found a horse's hoof and a horseshoe with the meat. The mills immediately became known as Horse Beef Mills, and the Falls, Horse Beef Falls. The names endured for nearly a century.

The Cumberland & Oxford Canal served its purpose well until the railroads supplanted it for freight-carrying. But to the one-time existence of the C & O, Portlanders of today owe thanks — if for no other reason than the fact that many of the beautiful old trees lining Portland Streets were freighted by Canal boat from a tract known as "Thousand Acres" along the Songo River.
