From the B-52's to the Beach Boys: Airband Was a Huge Success

Christine Ginty
Grizzly News Editor

Thanks to the Resident Life Association, Ursinus' 19th Annual Airband was an enormous success. Ursinus faculty and students were shaking, flipping and dancing the night away to benefit the Eric Altmann Charitable Trust.

Eric Altmann, a former Ursinus student, succumbed last year to chondrosarcoma, a form of tissue cancer that unfortunately is incurable. Jane Altmann, Eric's wife, founded the trust to research this form of cancer.

Thanks to the generosity of Ursinus faculty, staff and students, as well as the hard work of the Residence Life Staff, the college raised $10,000 for the trust. All of the funds go to the Joan Karnell Cancer Center of Pennsylvania Hospital to help purchase "DNA chip reader."

The night started off with the talented hosts of Joe Pursley and Liz Potash, whose humorous and at times off-color jokes, had the audience bursting with laughter. Next came the always entertaining faculty and staff act who got their groove on to the B-52's "Love Shack." This act, with a Wizard of Oz theme, was definitely a hard act to follow, but the students were hardly willing to let the faculty and staff outshine them.

The students put on a great show, performing to a variety of music ranging from the Beach Boys to Aaliyah. Nine acts performed, but the audience seemed to especially enjoy the sight of the some of the male RA's dressed in drag.

While all the performances were spectacular the judges had to choose their top three favorites.

First place went to Brandi Carey, Kimberly Lankford, Harry Michel, Olalekan Popoola, Latonia Tiggett, Naquan Williams, and Jaisa Alicea for their "Tribute to Aaliyah."

Tau Sigma Gamma, in their brightly colored shirts and grass skirts surfed right into second place with their medley of Beach Boys music.

Third place was given to the UC gymnasts, comprised of Casey Aivazian, Amanda Busher, Jess Cowden, Jen Fouse, Reyna Hochstedler, Jumaah Johnson, and Bridget Young, who had the audience riveted with their Janet Jackson Mix.

Despite a few minor technical glitches, the night went off without a hitch. Congratulations to all the performers and the Resident Life Staff, especially the co-chairs Krista Bailey and Gina Kosmalski, their hard work not only made Airband a huge success but a night full of memories.

Protheatre Stages History with Twilight: Los Angeles This Weekend

Syreeta Dixon
Special to the Grizzly

This week Ursinus will be presenting "Twilight: Los Angeles" by Anna Devere Smith. "Twilight" is based on interviews done by Smith of the people in Los Angeles in the wake of the L. A. riots. The interviewees range from Korean storeowners to Black scholar Cornel West. Smith says in an interview with Women in Communications that she "looks for a poem that a person has. So when I am conducting an interview, I am waiting for the rest of a person's language to move out of the way for this poem to come forward."

This play examines people's feelings in the aftermath of the riots occurred in L.A. after the verdict in the Rodney King trial. The play is not didactic but gives us a glimpse into the souls of the people that we saw on T.V.

She fleshes out the people that poked the streets, the men and women that hid guns by the register, the police officer that tried to control the crowds, and even Charlton Heston, spokesperson for the NRA. "Twilight" is the second play from her series, "On the Road: A Search for the American Character." Her first play of the series was the critically acclaimed play "Fires in the Mirror" based on the 1991 riot in Crown Heights, Brooklyn.

Twilight opened in 1993 in Los Angeles, moved to New York City where it was the first non-musical show by a black woman to open on Broadway in ten years. Twilight earned two Tony Award nominations, an Obie Award, A Drama Desk Award, and an Outer Circle Critics Special Achievement Award.

In addition to being a talented playwright, Anna Devere Smith is also an accomplished actress, featured in films such as Philadelphia, Dave, and An American President, and she plays a recurring role on the television show "The West Wing." She also teaches at Stanford University.

Directing the show is Dr. Tim Raphael, assistant professor in Communications Studies and Theatre. This is his third production at Ursinus College. His first was "Stalin's Daughter," by August Baker. Raphael says his reason for choosing to produce this play was in remembrance of the verdict and the people who were affected by it.

April is the month that the four officers that beat Rodney King were acquitted and the riots occurred. He hopes that we will listen to the poems these people have so that we can leave the theatre and learn from them as their lives were changed in 1992. He also states that he wanted to do what the Greeks tried to do so long ago when theatre was for catharsis.

The play runs tonight, Friday and Saturday at 7:30 pm. There will also be an extra showing on Saturday at 2pm. Tickets are $2 for students and senior citizens and $5 for adults. To reserve tickets call 1-610-409-2631.

Fitness Week A Fitness Blast

Ann Antanavage
Grizzly Editor-in-Chief

The first Fitness Week of Ursinus College was held this week.

Starting on Monday there was a Yoga class and a Self-Defense class. Tuesday a Flexi-ball class was scheduled, but was cancelled due to extenuating circumstances. Wednesday there was a Pilates class. Today there will be a Bench Press Competition at 7pm and a Belly Dancing class at 8pm. And tomorrow there will be healthy snacks and drinks in the Fitness Center Lobby. Mmmm, come out for Gatorade, water, and multi-grain bars! Saturday will be the day for the drawings to be held for the Phillies tickets and the MP3 player.

If you attended a workshop during the week you are entered in the drawing for an MP3 player and if you attended the fitness center during fitness week, you can enter to win Phillies tickets.

Fitness Week was organized by two ESS majors, Vaneesha Vallabh and Amy Gooding, who are both sophomores in Dr. Borsdorf's Fitness Program Management class. They were asked to plan the event as a project for the class that would promote the physical well being of the Ursinus community.

The Phillies tickets were donated and the ESS department purchased the MP3 player. So come on out, participate, and get entered in the raffles. You could win! Also be sure to pick up a button giving tribute to the first GREAT Ursinus Workout Week!

Congratulations to the new Editors-in-Chief of the Grizzly

Ann Antanavage, a junior returning for her second year!

And Kelly Gray, a junior Arts and Entertainment Editor who will be taking on the position for the first time!

We wish them both the best of luck next year, and thank them for their hard work this year.

Adolph Reed To Deliver Pancoast Lecture

Christine Ginty
Grizzly News Editor

On April 24, Adolph Reed will be delivering the Pancoast Lecture at Ursinus. The topic of his talk is entitled, "Has Terrorism Trumped the Domestic, Political, and Economic Agenda?" Reed has been a big proponent for domestic needs in America.

He argues that federal anti-terrorism efforts should not be used as an excuse for the lack of attention paid to domestic issues. He will be discussing, amongst other things, his effort to encourage tuition costs at public colleges and universities to be provided by the United States government.

Adolph Reed received his Bachelor of Science from the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill in 1971. He then obtained the Doctor of Philosophy in Political Science from Atlanta University in 1981.

Reed is a Professor of Political Science on the Graduate Faculty of the New School for Social Research in New York since 1998. He has also taught at the University of Illinois at Chicago, where he was a professor of Political Science and African American Studies. In previous years he taught at both Yale University and Northwestern University.

Over the past fifteen years, Reed has published five books including: Class Notes: Posing as Politics and Other Thoughts on the American Scene; Stirrings in the Jug: Black Politics in the Post-Segregation Era; Without Justice for All: The New Liberalism and Our Retreat from Racial Equality; The Jesse Jackson Phenomenon: The Crisis of Pur- pose in Afro-American Politics, Race, Politics and Culture: Critical Essays on the Radicalism of the 1960s.

In addition to his other accomplishments Adolph Reed served on the American Councils of the American Political Science Association and the National Conference of Black Political Scientists. Some of Reed's writings can be found in numerous scholarly journals such as, Urban Affairs Quarterly, Studies in American Political Development and Political theory.

Male Birth Control: The Latest Medical Breakthrough?

Corrie Harkins
Grizzly Editor-in-Chief

In the past male contraception has been limited to three options: a vasectomy, the condom, or the withdraw method. None of these methods rivals the success, reversibility, and reliability of the oral contraceptives that are available to females.

Researchers in Australia have completed a study on men using an injected type of birth control. Patients in the trial were administered 3 monthly shots of a combination of two hormones. Progesterin and testosterone were the two hormones that were injected into the arm of the males in the study. According to researchers this hormonal cocktail was totally effective in preventing pregnancy of the men's partners for two years. The men chosen to participate were fertile and led normal sex lives for the duration of the study.

With female contraception around for over forty years the recent development of this male contraceptive may lead some skeptics to wonder why its male counterpart has been so long in the making? There are actually several explanations for this. The first is that in order to develop an oral contraceptive for women scientists needed only to suppress the production on one egg; whereas with a male contraception they have to suppress the production of a massive amount of sperm.

The second reason why no form of contraception, comparable to that of the pill, exists for men is the fact that many large drug companies do not want to invest a large amount of money into creating a product that will only compete with one of their existing products. They do not want to create another product that would compete with the success of female oral contraceptives.

The final reason why there is no male contraceptive pill has to do with societal attitudes and taboos. There is not as much of a demand for a male birth control pill because much of American society holds the position that birth control is a responsibility of the female, not the male. There may also be the social taboo, and shame for a man that is associated with not being fertile, and virile, and to be incapable of producing offspring.

Although there are many reasons that contraception for men is so slow in the coming, you should be happy to know that there is a range of products currently being tested for such a purpose. One of these methods is an implant device or a pill that would contain hormones that suppress sperm production. This would be comparable to the hormones used in oral contraceptives for women that suppress egg production. Another option works in a manner similar to that of a vasectomy. Rather than an evasive surgical procedure that blocks the vas deferens (the tube in the penis that carries sperm out of the body), this only involves an injection into the vas deferens that demobilizes the sperm. Scientists have also recently discovered a protein that enables the sperm's tail to move. Manipulation of this protein, and its structure could demobilize the sperm, therefore preventing the fertilization of the egg.

Greek Portrayal in Movies: Demeaning Not True!

Quinn Dinsmore
Grizzly Writer

OK, I admit it. I'm not proud of it but I don't regret it. I drove to the theater with some of my sisters to see the movie "Sorority Boys." Make all the jokes you want about being a shallow teenybopper but I spent money to see it because I was curious. What's even worse was that it was very funny, exactly the type of movie you need after a long stressful week.

The raunchy humor and sexual innuendoes were targeted directly at college students and we loved it. But now, as I see the previews for "National Lampoon Van Wilder," I start to get a little worried. What do movies like this say about the Greek system on colleges across the nation? Definitely not so funny anymore.

From movies like "Animal House" to "Skulls," Greeks are easy, predictable targets in movies. There's always the stereotypical frat boy on the "seven-year" college track, chasing the ditzzy sorority girl who disappears into his messy room for a one-night stand. You always have the ritual and traditions that make no sense, harsh or ridiculous pledging, intense clique behavior, and a lot of money wasted on maintaining appearances.

Don't forget the token chauvinist pig and the "Cruel Intentions"-like President who will stab you in the back before you can get close to her boyfriend. As Junior Jenn Ludwig remarked, "The movies show the complete morons or truly horrible people, not the happy medium where most Greeks fit." Watching these movies, I start to understand the shocked or disapproving look I get when people find out I am in a sorority.

Well guess what? I'm not exactly the girl from "Legally Blond," who made it to Harvard with her designer wardrobe and feather pens. The plot was charming, but what parent would support a sorority that picked a wet t-shirt contest over studying for the bar exam? I hate the fact that people assume you're a bimbo who sleeps around if you have letters on your chest. I know that all of the sororities on this campus include student leaders, incredible athletes, and brilliant scholars excelling in their majors, not to mention the community service every semester. Greek organizations are more than social groups to throw keg parties; they are a family that can help a person develop as an individual. So why don't we see that in movies?

The KOKs and the DOGs in "Sorority Boys" show the worst of Greek behavior, never-ending parties and brutal elitism. But not all groups are alcoholic, lazy, and degrading to nonmembers. Both national and local groups attract a diversity of members who have different visions of what Greek life should be. But for those not in the system to see the positive aspects, these movies paint a tainted picture of Greek life. And that should worry everyone.

I'm not naïve. I know a lot of groups are accurately portrayed in these popular films where everyone gets a good laugh at the wild college years. And to be honest, I wasn't thinking about profound social implications when I settled into my seat to watch a movie about transvestite frat boys who learn a lesson about inner beauty. But Greek letters carry an image, value, and responsibility the movies never show and that's no laughing matter.

Parking Policy not fun for some Residents!

Ann Antanavage
Grizzly Editor-in-Chief

Does anyone else see a problem with the new parking policies on campus?

Don't get me wrong, I appreciate all that Campus Safety does for us, but we have two weeks of school left and now they are enforcing a new parking policy?

At my house the new parking policy is especially frustrating. I live at 201/203 Ninth Ave. We have a driveway that wraps around our house, something that should not be blocked, I agree! With the enforcement of the new policy, we are not allowed to park anywhere but in four places in front of the garages.

Needless to say, there are more than four students with cars living in my house, and I am not one of them. Not to mention that all semester long everyone parked wherever they wanted, without a word from Safety or the Police.

Now, we are not allowed to block the drive, park on the grass at the sides or back of the house, and there can only be four cars in the driveway due to the limited parking spots.

When talking to Safety, they said that students could not park in front of the house because the Police requested the move because it reduced visibility for drivers pulling out onto Ninth Ave. Ok, I understand that, and as I mentioned before, students should definitely not block the drive, but otherwise why only allowing use of the four parking spots? There is plenty of space at the sides of the driveway, that other cars and trucks could get by if people were more careful with their parking.

I really don't understand. Is this a ploy to frustrate students who once had a parking spot? Now there is rivalry building as students try to park in the spots and steal them away while other students are out driving. This is not a good time of the semester to enforce, people are busy, moody, and stressed about finishing the se-

One girl even went so far as to write a little note to Safety on their memorandum that they posted on our door.

In seeing all of the turmoil that has been created, all I can ask, once again, is: Why didn't they enforce this sooner? If the parking situations across campus were as bad as I heard, then why wasn't action taken back when they started? There have been about eight cars parked at my house all semester with no tickets, no problems, and no complaints, that I know of. Suddenly it's a problem!

Tara Reid: Check Out This Rising Star

Kelly Gray
Grizzly A&E Editor

Ever since the release of "American Pie" in 1999, Tara Reid has started to become a household name.

Guys think she is beautiful and girls just cannot stand her. However, everyone can expect to see more and more of Tara Reid on the big screen.

Tara was born on November 8, 1975, in Wyckoff, New Jersey. She first began her acting career at the age of 6. Tara appeared on a children's game show called "Child's Play" in 1982.

After starring in the game show, Tara starred in commercials for Jell-O, McDonald's, and Crayola.

In 1987, Tara starred as "Amanda" in the film "A Return to Salem's Lot." However, the film did not fair well with audiences.

While working on her acting career, Tara attended the Professional Children's School in New York City. At this school, she learned with many famous classmates such as Sarah Michelle Gellar, Macaulay Culkin, and Jerry O'Connell.

Then in 1994, landed a guest spot on "Saved By The Bell: The New Class." Then NBC used Tara in their very popular soap opera "Days Of Our Lives" in 1995. It was a small role, but Tara was starting to gain more and more experience in the acting field.

In 1998, Tara received a big break to star in "The Big Lebowski" with John Goodman and Jeff Bridges. The film, written by Ethan and Joel Cohen, did not receive that great reviews and audiences did not care for it either.

Again in 1998, Tara earned a small role in the horror film "Urban Legend." The film was a hit among teenagers and Tara was beginning to become noticed.

From 1998 till 1999, Tara starred in several television movies, but there was still not that big movie role for her.

Also, in 1999, Tara received a small role "Cruel Intentions" with Ryan Phillippe, Sarah Michelle Gellar, and Reese Witherspoon.

Finally in the summer of 1999, "American Pie" was released. Tara was in the role where everyone would notice her and could earn her more movie deals. The film was hit with audiences everywhere.

Also, Tara starred in "Body Shots" in 1999 with Jerry O'Connell and Sean Patrick Flanery. However, the movie was not released in theaters and went straight to video.

In 2000, Tara starred in "Dr. T & The Women" with Richard Gere, Helen Hunt, Farrah Fawcett, Kate Hudson and Liv Tyler. The film, directed by Robert Altman, did not receive good reviews and was not a moneymaker in the theaters.

In 2001, "Just Visiting" was released starring Christina Applegate and Tara Reid. Again, this film was not a crowd pleaser and did not review well with critics.

Two films, which spelled success for Tara, were "American Pie II" and "Josie & The Pussycats." Both films released in 2001, put Tara's face back on the screen and her popularity was beginning to rise.

This month, "National Lampoon's Van Wilder" starring Tara Reid and Ryan Reynolds was released into theaters. In it's first weekend, the film came in 5th place.

However, USA studios, which released the film, spent three times more than it cost to make the movie on advertising.

Not only are the films making Tara a popular icon, her private life is usually in the news quite often. Last year, Tara began dating TRL host, Carson Daly.

The two became engaged, but a couple months later Tara broke off the engagement. In a recent interview, Tara told Cosmogirl that when she first broke up with Carson that should could not eat and had to seek therapy from five different therapists.

Although, Tara has starred in some films, which did not appeal to audiences, you can expect to see her more and more. Some may like and some may not, but her movie deals keep on rolling in.

Tara Reid in Van Wilder

Carrot Top: A Juice with a Kick!

Sarah Ewald
Grizzly A&E Editor

He's obnoxious, he's red, and he loves 1-800-CALL-ATT. Who am I talking about?

You guessed it, the ever crazy, ever large and in charge, Carrot Top.

While Carrot Top can be found trying to get girls to go skinny dipping with him on his AT&T commercials, he wasn't always so popular.

Carrot Top's real name is Scott Thompson, although if you call him Cinnamon Spice he will answer to that as well. He grew up in Cocoa Beach, Fl and went to Florida-Atlantic University in Boca Raton. There he majored in marketing, but got his start in comedy by doing "open mic" nights while at college.

Since then he has appeared on college campuses all over the country, does tours, and now commercials. In fact, last year he was even a most eligible bachelor on The Regis and Kelly Show.

It's no big secret to Carrot Top that people think he is a little weird. He even acknowledges that he is weird.

"I consider myself pretty strange. Sometimes I remind myself of the Kennedys. I don't know,

Scott "Carrot Top" Thompson

maybe I am a Kennedy or even an Osmond," said Carrot Top on his website www.carrottop.com.

Carrot Top also adheres to the belief that clothes should never match. In fact, often he must create his own clothes because he can't find what he wants in the stores. He does admit that his favorite color is plaid, but that he loves all colors.

As for personal preferences Carrot Top likes to wear boxers, in his own words found at www.carrottop.com, "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot." He also enjoys coffee from the time he gets up until the time he goes to bed. Along with his taste for coffee he also enjoys many types of wine and almost any alcoholic drink.

There have been many comedic influences in Carrot Top's life. He says that his major ones are Jonathan Winters, Robin Williams, and George Carlin. He also loves Gary Shandling and Bill Maher. And, recently he did a television special with Chris Rock.

When Carrot Top is not performing he likes to relax by going jet-skiing, surfing (internet, waves, TV), snowboarding, wakeboarding, and playing pretty much any sport.

Carrot Top also loves many different types of music. He considers The Rolling Stones to be the best, the Grateful Dead, Smashing Pumpkins, ABBA, Phish, and he says he will listen to anything but the Hanson Brothers.

Carrot Top is definitely his own person and to prove it he has a carrot tattooed on his ankle. If you are a Carrot Top fan, I would definitely recommend checking out his website, www.carrottop.com. Here you can find information about his life, pictures of him, merchandise, and tour dates. Also, Carrot Top is coming out with a book on his life which you can only order through the website. It is supposed to include many personal moments in Hollywood Gossip! Carrie Bradshaw with a Baby?!?

Sarah Jessica Expecting

With all of the rumors of Sarah Jessica Parker and Matthew Broderick's troubled marriage, they have fooled the public. Representative of Parker's confirmed that she is pregnant and the baby is due in the fall.

We all know that Broderick is the father of the baby, but who is going to be the father of Carrie Bradshaw's baby on "Sex & The City?" The pregnancy will be written into the story line, but the show's writers are not sure who the father is yet.

The news of the pregnancy caused HBO to shut down the production of "Sex & The City." The fifth season was to premiere in June, but has been pushed back to July.

Britney & J.Lo Opening Up Restaurants

Yes, that is right folks both Britney and J.Lo will be having their own restaurants.

Last Friday, J.Lo unveiled her Cuban themed, family-style restaurant Madre's. Nicole Kidman was in attendance for the opening. Britney's restaurant, which has yet to be opened, will be an eatery in the Dylan Hotel on East 41st in Manhattan. There is no restaurant theme, but expect a hip, hot, sexy New York lounge atmosphere. Bobby Ochs will operate the restaurant, which is unnamed at the moment, for day-to-day operations.

People can expect affordable priced American Brasserie. Also, don't forget that Britney's video game "Britney's Dance Beat" for Play Station 2 will be released in May.

Russell Crowe Donating His Brain?

Oscar award winning actor, Russell Crowe, will donate his brain to science.

Crowe, who is very interested in medical science, will donate his brain to Sydney University so scientists can better understand the workings of the human brain.

Scientists believe they will be able to tell the defining moments of his life by the gray matter of the brain. The University is also seeking 1,000 people who are talented and creative to participate in the study. Anyone interested?

Pam Anderson & Kid Rock Engaged

This past weekend, Pamela Anderson and rocker Kid Rock became engaged. Supposedly the Kid Rock proposed to the former Baywatch star outdoors in the Las Vegas. This will be Anderson's second marriage and Kid Rock's first. No date has been set.

Real World Movie

MTV will be producing a movie about a fake real world. Like the take of their reality show "The Real World", the film called "The Real World-Final Season" will include fake housemates. The plot of the film is how the make believe housemates are kidnapped by an obsessive fan. The film will air on MTV on August 6.

Oh, No! Diego!

Katie Lambert
Grizzly Staff Writer

On Friday, April 5th, Q102 personality Diego Ramos made headlines across radio broadcasting country when he pulled a prank that landed him in handcuffs.

Diego appears on the Chio in the Morning Show on Q102, visiting different people and places as a prankster while the episodes are aired live on the station.

On this particular morning, Diego was at an IHOP restaurant in Northeast Philadelphia to work his prank. He enjoyed a full breakfast, and when it came time to pay, Diego refused to do so; he told the staff of the restaurant that he would come back at a later time to pay his debt, calling himself the "IOU Man."

The whole prank was being aired live on the morning show, via Diego's cell phone. Apparently, the staff did not know that it was a joke and that it was being aired on the radio. When the manager was called and he started getting anxious because of this IOU Man, he called 911 for police assistance in the fiasco.

The police arrived on the scene at 8:15 a.m., lights and sirens blaring. They were told that a customer was trying to pay with an IOU that he would go back and redeem the following week. When the police were told the whole thing was a joke, they were not at all amused; Inspector William Colarulo stated that the occurrence would be investigated as a criminal incident, based on either "recklessly endangering persons and risking a catastrophe," or breaking the wiretapping law because of the use of the cell phone to bring the prank to the airwaves.

The night of the incident, Diego had not yet been charged with anything in particular, but police said they would seek a subpoena to acquire a tape of the prank as it was broadcast.

The first officer to arrive on the scene on April 5th remains unnamed, but was the one who, on March 24th of this year, was also called to the scene of this particular IHOP to investigate an armed robbery by two men. Police were also very upset about Diego's prank on Friday because the emergency call to the officers had come in during morning rush hour traffic, "placing at risk the responding officers, other motorists, and children going to school," Colarulo's report stated.

After asking Diego whether or not he had any means by which to pay for his meal, he continually responded negatively, stating that he also did not have with him any form of identification.

He did, however, offer to wash dishes for 30 minutes.

Officers told him that if he did not show ID and pay for his meal, he would be placed under arrest. As soon as Diego heard the word arrest, reports state that he, at that moment, jumped up and yelled that the whole incident was a practical joke and that he worked for Q102's Morning Show.

Diego was then placed in custody for a brief while.

Colarulo stated, "This was a prank that we don't consider funny. The manager of the IHOP was acting in good faith by calling 911." He also praised the officer that handled the situation, claiming that he had "handled everything by the book."

When the Morning Show jockeys heard the commotion from the incident broadcast by way of Diego's cell phone, station officials called the police station and offered to pay by credit card. Diego was then taken out of custody and released.

What did Diego have to say about the incident? "If we inconvenienced anyone, I apologize."

Inspector Colarulo's remark when initially asked if Diego would be placed under arrest and taken to prison? "If he is arrested, we do not take IOU's for bail."

Y100's Caseyboy and His Crazy Stunts

Kate Petersen
Grizzly Writer

April is Springbook for radio, which is comparable to February sweeps month for television. Y100 has decided to make Springbook Stunt Month. Morning show producer and Ursinus Alumni, Caseyboy is the man behind the stunts.

Casey said that he's always made a jackass of himself, even when he wasn't getting paid. Now that he is paid, why not continue? He loves to entertain and the stunts are certainly attracting more listeners.

In March, morning show personality Marilyn Russell left the morning show to spend more time with her family.

Although she is still with the station, broadcasting on weekends, the morning show was unsure of how her departure would effect the program. The month of stunts is coming a human salad and getting a nuclear wedgie. Y100.com is updated every day with video footage of all of the stunts.

Casey admits his favorite stunt thus far has been being dragged by a horse, although he says the second time around hurt, due to his clothes dragging off. The zamboni, he says, was fun too, until it started to hurt. He's still in pain from that adventure, and he's got the cuts and bruises to prove it.

Getting produce sliced on his stomach by Ken Doyle, a third degree black belt, was the most frightening stunt thus far. And although he wasn't sure about the enema, he says it wasn't as bad as he thought it would be.

"I really look forward to the rest of the month. I'm excited, even for walking on glass," said Casey.

Caseyboy from Y100

Everyone on the morning show staff has been helping in coming up with ideas for stunts.

Some stunts still to come may include walking through a carwash, walking on glass and possibly driving a car into a lake. The circus is also coming to town too, which leaves endless possibilities.

Keep tuned to the Y100 morning show for more Springbook stunts.

certainly keeping listeners interested.

Thus far, Casey has completed numerous stunts, including: being dragged by a galloping horse, having a Kung Fu expert cut produce on his chest, getting an enema, being sprayed with a fire hose, running naked through the city, being pulled by a zamboni machine, be-

- Pantala Naga Pampa
- Rapunzel (Encore)
- Where Are You Going
- Don't Drink The Water

DMB is currently on tour through May. In June they will take the month off, then restart the tour July through September.

DMB will return to this area, for three shows in July, playing July 16, 17 and 18 at the Tweeter Center in Camden, NJ.

FYI: If you plan on going to The Tweeter Center in Camden, N.J. this summer just to tailgate before the concert, be warned, you will be kicked out by the cops as soon as the concert starts. So if you go to tailgate make sure you high-tail it out of there before hand.

On Wednesday, April 10, the Dave Matthews Band played to a sold out crowd at the First Union Center in Philadelphia, PA. As usual, there was a great deal of tail gating before the show. Beer was the typical beverage of choice and the beautiful springlike weather even allowed for some BBQ. Fans started entering the First Union Center as early as 5pm, for a show that didn't start until 7pm. Starting off the night with What Would You Say, the hits continued throughout the evening. Carter, the drummer, wore a phantom's Jersey. And the light show was almost as exciting as the music. Y100's Ben Harvey was broad-

Skin Cancer is Not Your Friend

Mary Sim
Special to the Grizzly

Each year more than a million people in the United States are diagnosed with the most common forms of skin cancer.

Most people who are diagnosed with non-melanoma skin cancers are age 50 or older, but because these diseases often are a result of too much exposure to the sun year after year with out or little sunblock. Everyone — even the youngest toddlers — should take precautions against them.

Sunlight and Skin Cancer

Ultraviolet (UV) radiation is the single most important cause of skin cancer, especially when the over-exposure resulted in sunburn and blistering. Other, less common causes of skin cancer include repeated exposure to x-rays and exposure to coal tar, arsenic, and other industrial compounds.

Sunlight provides much that is beneficial and even necessary to life and good health. Tanning and burning, however, are not among those benefits — there is no such thing as a “healthy tan.”

Over the past decade, researchers have discovered that the tanning response begins only after DNA in skin cells has been damaged by exposure to sunlight. Although the exact wavelengths and timing of the solar radiation associated with different types of skin cancer are under investigation, the basic preventive lesson remains the same: protect your skin from the sun.

Fortunately there are ways to prevent most non-melanoma skin cancers and to detect them early when they do arise. When treated early, the vast majority of these cancers are curable.

Sun Safety: Protect Yourself

1. Do not sunbathe.
2. Avoid unnecessary sun exposure, especially between 10:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m., the peak hours for harmful ultraviolet (UV) radiation.
3. When outdoors, use sunscreens rated SPF 15 or higher. Apply them liberally, uniformly, and fre-

4. When exposed to sunlight, wear protective clothing such as long pants, long-sleeved shirts, broad-brimmed hats, and UV-protective sunglasses.
5. Stay away from artificial tanning devices.
6. Teach your children good sun protection habits at an early age: The damage that leads to adult skin cancers starts in childhood.
7. Examine your skin head to toe at least once every three months.

Do You Know?

The sun's harmful ultraviolet (UV) radiation can penetrate many types of clothing. It can also go through automobile and residential windows. When you're on snow or ice, your face and eyes are at almost twice the risk of UV damage because of reflected glare? Remember to always wear SPF of at least 15 to protect your skin from the sun's harmful rays. Please visit or call (x2412) The Wellness Center if you have any questions. So why Not Try Some Self Tanners? Comparative Pricing Report

Sarah Ewald
Grizzly A&E Editor

You're never fully dressed without a...tan?

That's right, the warm weather is here, so it is time to put away the sweaters and jeans and pull out the shorts and tank tops.

But not so fast, if you're like most people you might be a little self-conscious to start baring pasty-white skin.

We're not all born with a perfect tan, and let's face it with the scare of skin cancer tanning beds don't seem like the best bet.

Another alternative, other than looking like Casper's girlfriend, is to get your tan from the bottle.

Tanning creams, sprays, and foams are a safe alternative to the sun and to tanning beds. They are usually easy to use, inexpensive, and the right brand can give you a very realistic looking tan.

In order to make sure Ursinus Campus was filled with bronzed beauties I decided to scope out the self-tanners available at CVS.

Now I only looked at CVS so the prices and brands might vary from store to store, but probably not by too much.

The first type I looked at was Neutrogena Instant Bronze. They had three different varieties, lotion, spray, and foam. The bottles all advertised, streak-free and the price for any of the types was $9.99. Not too bad.

The second one I looked at was Coppertone's Endless Summer. This type came in a crème and also advertised it was streak-free. The price on this one was $10.99, but it was also 20% off with a coupon.

Coppertone also makes an oil-free self-tanner, Effortless color. This one was a lotion and cost $8.99 with an additional 20% off.

I then looked at Banana Boat self-tanners, which you could get in either a crème or a spray. Both cost $7.99.

Finally I checked out Bain de Soleil, which came in two varieties, Radiance Eternal and Streakguard. Both were a crème and both cost $14.99.

All of the self-tanners came in either a light, medium, or dark depending on how tan you wanted to get.

While you might want to save some money and buy a cheaper brand, that might not always be the best of ideas. It is important to research any self-tanner before you buy it.

Some things to look for before you buy are: if the tanner will make you orange, if it is easy to use, it will stain clothes, and how often you have to put it on.

It is also important to remember that any self-tanner will streak if you do not exfoliate the skin you are going to put it on first. Using a shower puff or an exfoliating body scrub will do the trick.

So get ready for summer, because with self-tanners there is no excuse not to show off your legs.

The Letters and The Cane

Harry Michel
Grizzly Staff Writer

I know that everyone has been wondering why I and my other frat brothers are walking around twirling red and white canes, or why we wear apparel that have two different sets of Greek letters on them?

Everyone wants to know what's the deal. Well we are apart of Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity incorporated. It was founded January 5, 1911 on the campus of Indiana University in Bloomington, Indiana.

Kappa Alpha Psi has a long and illustrious history. The international fraternity is a social fraternity whose foundations rest on achievement and leadership, brotherhood, and self-discipline. There are 355 undergraduate chapters and 339 alumni chapters of Kappa Alpha Psi here and around the world.

The canes, I'm sure everyone is wondering, what is there purpose?

The canes are a symbol or icon of our fraternity. The history of the cane started when its honorable founder Elder Watson Diggs joined after African Americans were allowed into the Army, Elder Watson Diggs was part of 365 infantry.

At that time blacks were put on the front line of the wars and Elder Watson Diggs was shot in the leg during a battle. Diggs had to use a cane for the rest of his life. He began twirling his cane and doing tricks with it, and from there the icon of the Kappa Cane was established.

The cane is now used as an instrument for performance. The performance style that it is used in are what most historically black fraternities call "stepping," you can see some of this at the many step shows and competition that are held in the area. We are learning the art of twirling and stepping with the cane; another form of stepping is party walking.

The main Greek letters of the fraternity of is Kappa Alpha Psi, but as many of you may have noticed that there is another set of letters. Phi Nu Pi the symbol of another part of the brotherhood, a bond between the brothers that isn't discussed outside of the bond and which isn't seen by the public eye. Most of the men within this bond are referred to as Nupes once they have found that meaning of Phi Nu Pi.

What most brothers would say is that it is "the fraternity that was so nice, it had to be named twice."

The fraternity does a lot with leadership and youth programs like the Kappa League, which is an instructional Leadership League. It is an organization oriented toward helping young men of high school age to grow and develop their leadership talents in every phase of human endeavor.

The fraternity is about leadership and service. The fraternity is a historically black fraternity, but nowhere in any official documents does it state it is strictly a black fraternity. In fact the fraternity has non-African American members.

We are here to do new, more innovated things to and for this campus. We only hope that the campus population will partake and be more receptive to our activities than it has in the past, activities than involve African Americans.

Congratulations to those who solved last week's 6 degrees of separation!

GREEK CORNER

Calling all Greeks! It's GREEK WEEK!!!!!! On Sunday, April 14th all Greek organizations at Ursinus College kicked off Greek Week with the annual Greek Picnic. Tons of fun was had by all. There was a tug-o-war, and relay races.

There will be many more fun activities as the week continues. All Greeks are invited to attend the events, and are strongly encouraged to participate. So for a complete schedule of events check with your president.

The brothers of Phi Kappa Sigma would like to congratulate its newest members Brother Joshua Rucci, and Brother Sean Conley.

In addition, the fraternity would also like to welcome back our long lost brother Alain Fernandes (aka Big Al).

The Brothers are pleased to announce as of April 27th our group here at Ursinus will be elevated from a colony to the Delta Rho chapter of our international fraternity. The brothers would like to thank all those in the campus community who have helped us in our

UC Women's Rugby Making a Breakthrough in Women's Sports

If one wanted to find out about the history of the Ursinus Women's Rugby Club, he/she would have their work cut out for them. The Ursinus College web site hosts many links and information sites about almost any activity the campus holds. However, finding information on Women's rugby is not easy, in fact it's almost impossible. Ursinus Women's Rugby Club has existed on campus for several years, yet there are little records showing this. With all of the other fall and spring sports, there is little room for rugby to be recognized by the school as an actual sport. In the past two years, we have practiced on four different fields. In the fall of 2000, the team practiced on Paisley beach, only to be moved to the field located in front of Berman. This new field proved to be acceptable, however with the start of Intramural flag football, we were once again asked to relocate. With a little hesitation we took over the field area behind Reimert, which anyone can attest is not a true field. Finally, in the fall season of 2001, we were informed that the team was going to be provided with a field of our own... "the bowl". The name itself is enough to reveal the conditions of the playing ground. Being one of the lowest fields on campus, it unofficially serves as the campus' drainage ground. Even during a drought season the field is usually extremely muddy, causing the field to be inadequate for safe running. Rugby is a tough sport, but never have there been so many sprained ankles just from practicing on a field. However, we were excited to have a field of our own, and we were hopeful that the sport would begin to be taken more seriously. But intramural season began again, and this time games held on "the bowl". Thus, today the rugby team can be found practicing on Berman Field. Because rugby is a club sport, it cannot receive funding though the school. Thus the players must pay a fee (anywhere from $ 10-20 depending on how many years one has been playing) in order to be recognized as an actual rugby player. For years the rugby team has been paying these dues, yet, until recently, was not recognized by any union as being full rugby members. A few months ago, Ursinus Women's Rugby was voted into the Eastern Penn Rugby Union (EPRU). With 28 other women's teams making up three divisions, Ursinus was finally recognized by other teams. We are currently in Division III, Bracket B with the College of New Jersey, Albright, and Muhlenberg. However, Ursinus plays teams who are in other Brackets, and even in other Divisions. The spring season of rugby began several weeks ago with the team learning more drills and putting more effort into making the team better. Under the coaching of Dr. Cellucci, captains Adrienne Lopata and Kelly Howell serve as wonderful leaders for the young and upcoming team. After losing to Muhlenberg during our first match, Ursinus played in the West Chester tournament, only to play Muhlenberg again. The game was quite an improvement from the last, with communication from on and off the field. Our team persisted and never gave up, and was rewarded with a 9-5 victory over Muhlenberg. That was the first victory the Ursinus Women's Rugby Club has seen for several years. However, the victory was well deserved. Even though the team is not taken as seriously on this campus as other sports, or even intramurals for that matter, it is a rising team. With the recent acceptance into the EPRU, the Ursinus Women's Rugby Club has a good chance of adding another victory to the list. If the team continues to persist through hard times, and muddy fields, it will continue to move forward with great improvement.

BETHLEHEM (April 13, 2002) — Ursinus sophomore Katie Dougherty (right) won the 5000 meter run, in an NCAA automatic qualifying time of 17:26.75, to lead the Ursinus Track & Field team at the Greyhound Invitational. In other women's action, Latonia Tiggett finished second in the 400 intermediate hurdles, provisionally qualifying for nationals with a time of 1:04.43. Tiggett also broke the school record in the 100 high hurdles (15.89). The Bears 4x100 and 4x400 relays team also set new school records. The 4x100 team comprised of Jackie Kram, Tiggett, Mariana Morris, and Eileen Duffy, took second with a time of 50.62. The 4x400 team (Morris, Tiggett, Duffy, and Kacie Meyer) took first with a time of 4:03.37. In men's action, Ryan Warden won the javelin, with an ECAC qualifying throw of 51.85m. Joel McElwee took third in the 200 meter dash (23.53), while Greg Furman (1.63m) and Naquan Williams (12.55) finished fourth in the high jump and triple jump, respectively.

Workman's Workouts Paying Off for Field Hockey

Joyce Anne Koubaroulis
Sports Writer

With just two weeks left of post season, the Ursinus Field Hockey Team is looking strong for next year. The players worked in the off-season with Jeremy Workman on conditioning and strength training. Post season began when the team returned from spring break, and it was kicked off with an indoor play date at West Chester on March 24. Now, the team is back out on the field and preparing for the Temple Tournament on April 20th. Aside from physical training, the team has been preparing mentally for the upcoming season as well. There have been several team meetings where the division change, team expectations, and team goals have been discussed. The team will be faced with some new challenges, as they will be competing at a new level in the Centennial Conference. Everyone is on the same page, and they know that hard work and dedication to the program will equal success. Even though the division has changed, the work ethic of the team will stay the same, as they continue to strive for excellence. The team is returning 15 players, and they will be graduating 4 seniors. The seniors will be missed, as they added experience, speed, leadership, and enthusiasm to the group. The returning team believes that team unity is their biggest strength as they are finding out that their friendships off the field enhance their teamwork and performance on the field.

Erin Fitzgerald Named Centennial Conference Women's Lacrosse Player of the Week

Bill Stiles
Ursinus Website

COLLEGEVILLE (April 16, 2002) — Ursinus College senior midfielder Erin Fitzgerald (right) was named the Centennial Conference Women's Lacrosse Player of the Week. She garners the honor for the third time this season.

Fitzgerald, a first-team All-American selection in 2001, scored 10 goals and assisted on nine others in a 3-0 week for the Bears. She tallied four goals and three assists in a win over Washington and led Ursinus to a 25-5 win over Dickinson with three goals and five handouts. For the season, she leads the Bears in goals (43), points (69), and is second in assists (26). Ursinus is currently 10-1 and ranked sixth in the nation.

Baseball Team Winds Down Season Looking For Top Spot in Centennial Conference Playoffs

Matt Simeone
Sports Writer

With a 9-3 record thus far in the Centennial Conference, Ursinus finishes out their conference schedule with big games versus Haverford, Johns Hopkins, and Western Maryland. This past week, the Bears went 2-2. During the week, the Bears battled with Franklin & Marshall, but fell both games by scores of 12-8 and 18-14. On the weekend, rain forced a Saturday doubleheader at Dickinson to be postponed until Sunday. The Bears did not let this setback affect them as they took both games by scores of 11-5 and 6-3. In the first game, the Bears erupted for 7 runs in the 6th inning. Joe Bolinski had 3 hits with 5 RBI while Mike Gizzi and Matt Platco added 3 hits each. After the Red Devils scored 5 in the bottom of the 7th, Scott Barr finally put them away to pick up his 4th win of the season. In the second game, Jay Marakovits went 3-for-3 with a single, triple, and a 3-run home run to lead the Bears offensively. After a 45-minute rain delay at the start of the 6th inning, Jim Cunningham came in to relieve starting pitcher Ryan Bown. Cunningham pitched two superb innings to put away the Red Devils. Bown, who found himself in a few tough situations, pitched very well to earn his second win of the season. Two weeks ago, the Bears combined two superb pitching performances by Scott Barr and Mike Lombardo and key hitting to sweep Gettysburg 2-1 and 2-1. In general, the team has looked very solid on defense and has been lead by Tyler Pittenger, T.J. Shaughnessy, Eric Shipe, Jordan Hartline, and Ryan Smith offensively. This week, the team has four key conference games. On Tuesday/Friday, the Bears will battle with Haverford and on Saturday, the team travels to Johns Hopkins for a big doubleheader. The next home games are Wednesday, April 17th vs. College of New Jersey and Friday, April 19th vs. Haverford.

Another Flawless Season for Women's Lacrosse to Lead Team to Second Consecutive Championship Title

Erin Fitzgerald
Grizzly Sports Writer

This past week was a big one for Ursinus Women's Lacrosse. They played three Centennial Conference games, and won all three, bringing their overall record to 10-1.

Still ranked 7th in the nation, the Bears traveled to Muhlenberg last Tuesday to take on the Mules.

Despite some heavy downpours, the team opened up a storm of their own en route to a 21-6 victory. Twelve different players scored for the Bears including four goals from Emily Durkin, three goals and one assist by Erin Fitzgerald and two goals and two assists by Jaime Matty. Sarah Ulmer and Leigh Voigt each scored twice for Ursinus while Becca Mannion registered six saves in goal and Melissa Scholl made four.

After a day of preparation, the Bears boarded their Tropiano chariot and settled in for the long trip to Washington College. The travel time did not slow Ursinus down however, and the team cruised to an 18-7 win. By half-time the score was 10-2 and the Bears never looked back.

Fitzgerald led the Bears with four goals and three assists while Durkin added four goals and an assist and Diane Elia chipped in with three goals.

Saturday was more of the same, with Ursinus playing host to Dickinson. On a beautiful sunny day in which the stands were full of fans, the Bears put together an impressive 25-5 win over the Red Devils.

Durkin put on a scoring display to open the game, scoring six of her game high seven goals in the first half. Fitzgerald added three goals and five assists to the cause while Voigt and Elia recorded hat tricks. Eleven different players recorded goals en route to the victory.

The three Conference wins bring the Bears' CC record to 7-0, and keep them in first place. By beating Haverford this Wednesday and Swarthmore next Saturday the Bears would earn the right to host the CC Playoffs for the second straight year. The playoffs will be held April 27th and 28th.

UC Men's LAX Stars - What Are They Up to Now?

Julie Micklos
Sports Writer

You may be wondering where the men's lacrosse team has been this season. The program did not have enough players for a team this year.

This year's team absence will be marked by intense preparation including recruiting, skill development, and strength and conditioning. Those who decided to stay with the program have been doing other things to get them ready for the 2003 season.

Some of the team members, like Sophomores Dan McGovern and James Ortiz, are coaching at area high schools. Others have joined the club Rugby team in order to keep in shape.

Sophomore John Karpinski is playing summer lacrosse to keep his skills up to par for next year.

Dan McGovern explains: "This year has been kind of hard with the low numbers we have, but next year we are looking forward to having a real strong team."

"I am disappointed with those players that decided to drop at the last minute. I feel we could have competed this year and I am also looking forward to next year's season," said Junior Bob Johnson.

We look forward to seeing them again next year.

Win, Loss, and Postponement for UC Softball As Season Winds Down

Ann Antanavage
Editor-in-Chief

This past week, the Softball team lucked out with only two game days. The first was against Washington where the ladies cleaned up with two wins, 5-1 and 12-4. Improving their record to 13-10-1 overall and 5-1 in the Centennial Conference.

In the first game, Erin Skinner scattered five hits and struck out three. Patti Ruby hit a three-run double, which was the big blow in a four-run fifth inning. Jess Troutman added two hits, while, Co-Captain, Sarah Smith had two hits and two RBI.

The Bears scored seven runs in the sixth inning of the second game. Jamie Ruhling went 2-for-3 with three runs scored and two RBI, while Jess Troutman, Sue Sobolewski, and Kelly McCloskey added two hits each. Skinner picked up the win after throwing four innings of two-hit relief.

The next game, however, left the team with a 13-12-1 overall record. UC was swept by Rowan, 4-3 and 10-0.

The Bears rallied in the first game, with three runs in the fifth inning but fell short. Allison Vasta led the offensive with two hits and two RBI, while Sue Sobolewski and Denise Cook also managed hits for the Bears.

Ursinus managed only three hits in the loss in their second game against Rowan. Sarah Smith, Jamie Ruhling, and Kelly McCloskey hit safeties for the Bears. Sorry, Ladies!

This past Saturday, UC Softball was supposed to play Franklin and Marshall, but due to rain at Franklin the games were cancelled. How do you guys always get away with postponed games?!

On Tuesday, April 16th we played Haverford at 3:30pm and on Wednesday they faced Scranton at 4pm, both games were at home. Check the Ursinus College Athletics homepage for more info on the games.
