Three Professors Up for Tenure

The word is thrown around on college campuses but few students know the definition of tenure...and their involvement in the process.

Tenure is a long-term commitment by the college to academic excellence and freedom. The student handbook describes tenure in this way:

"As a result of its commitment to academic freedom, the Board of Trustees of the College has provided for the granting of tenure. Tenure ensures the freedom of faculty to teach and inquire without fear that their findings, or the findings of their students, must conform to prevailing political or intellectual fashions. Both faculty and students benefit from the atmosphere of free inquiry which the institution of academic tenure protects."

Tenure is a commitment of employment to faculty who meet the College's standards of excellence, who continue to work at an appropriately high level, and who meet the ethical standards of the academic community.

The awarding of tenure is not automatic, nor can tenure be earned simply by meeting certain minimum requirements. The tenure review process is an integral part of the College's pursuit of excellence, and the decision to confer tenure must have as its goal the long-term strengthening of the particular academic department and of the College as a whole.

In accordance with the Student Handbook, student comments on teaching effectiveness are invited at the time of a faculty member's review for tenure.

Students can submit letters to be shared with the Promotion and Tenure committee, and the faculty member.

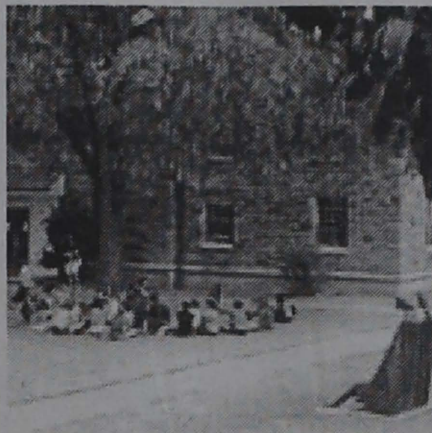

This year, the following members of the faculty are being reviewed for tenure:

Dr. Beth Bailey, Biology
Dr. Lynne Edwards, Communication Studies and Theatre
Dr. Thomas Ruttledge, Chemistry

Student letters should be sent to Dean Judith T. Levy, Office of the Dean by October 1, 2002.

Class of 2006 Arrives at Ursinus

New Meningitis Vaccine Law in PA

Ann Antanavage
Grizzly Editor-in-Chief

We've all noticed that super long line at registration, that wasn't there last year but do you know why it's such a big deal at Ursinus?

There is a new Pennsylvania Law that requires all college students in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, obtain the meningitis vaccine.

The letter you received over the summer states that you must either prove that you've had the shot, or waiver your option to get it. That's because the law now requires that all students either have the vaccine, or sign a waiver stating that they would rather not have the immunization.

The fact is that this is a law that was in the making quite a few years ago when it was noticed that college freshman are six times more likely to contract meningitis.

Although not very much is known about meningitis it is known that ages 14-25 are at the highest risk for the disease and that coughing, sneezing, and intimate kissing can transmit the disease.

It is also believed that the college atmosphere, of communal living, smoking, and irregular sleep patterns can increase the likelihood of the disease being spread.

The only prevention from this fast acting disease is awareness of the symptoms and vaccination!

Meningitis Symptoms

Septicemia
 Vomiting
 Headache
 Drowsiness
 Seizures
 High Temperature or Fever
 Dislike of light
 Joint Aching/Joint Pain
 Stiff neck
 and Flu-like symptoms

Note: not all symptoms will occur at the same time!

www.musa.org

Facts and Figures

The Meningitis Foundation of America's research has shown that there are 3000 cases annually.

- 300 of those cases end in death.

- Of those 3000 cases, 100-125 are college students.

- Of those 300 deaths, 5-15 are people of college age.

Phi Kappa Sigma: Leaders Commended for Talents

Joe Calhoun
Special to the Grizzly

Ursinus students and Phi Kappa Sigma Brothers Greg Striano and Geoffrey Brace have both been awarded scholarships in the amount $3,000.

These sizeable portions of cash scholarships have been awarded through the Education Fund Scholarship of Phi Kappa Sigma, International Fraternity. The scholarship was founded to reward brothers who are academically strong, active on their campuses, and whom assume leadership roles in their chapters and communities.

The men are members of the newly founded Delta Rho chapter of Phi Kappa Sigma, one of the national fraternities chartered at Ursinus last year.

Senior Geoff Brace was surprised and delighted to win the scholarship.

"Think about it," he said. "We paid $180 for initiation and we got $3000. It seems like a deal to me."

"Truthfully, it's nice to win and Greg and I are both thrilled," Brace said.

Both seniors, Striano is studying history and Brace is a politics major. Congratulations!

Best Buddies Gives Laptops to the Handicapped

Julia Campbell
Grizzly Writer

For Ursinus students, technology is available at the click of a button. They can easily check-in with parents and friends via email or instant messenger, get the weather or news in seconds. Few students can imagine their lives without easy access to the world.

For some individuals however, this technological luxury has remained a dream until now.

This summer, Ursinus Best Buddies president, Julia Campbell, worked in association with President Strassburger and Computing Services to benefit individuals with mental and physical handicaps.

"For many individuals with mental retardation, inadequate access to technology is a part of their social isolation. Through the generous donation of two laptops, a unique partnership among a student organization and a dedicated faculty team will result in a bold crossing of [that] digital divide," stated

Pennsylvania Program Manager and 2000 Ursinus Alumnus, Carlos Ciruelos.

Best Buddies is an international non-profit organization dedicated to building one-on-one friendships with college students and individuals with mental retardation and physical handicaps. Through these friendships, participating individuals gain personal insight into the importance of friends while enjoying such activities as friendship outings, Phantom's games, Phillies games, zoos, watching movies, and enjoying one another's company.

Ursinus College President, John Strassburger noted that "Best Buddies is a wonderful example of how modern college students look beyond themselves to help others, and by helping others, the students themselves also grow as humans and as citizens."

E-Buddies is one of five friendship programs created by Best Buddies International that pairs people with and without developmental disabilities in e-mail friendships.

E-Buddies are matched based on similar age and interests, and they commit to exchanging e-mails at least once a week for one year.

By following these programs, Carlos Ciruelos said that members of the student-based organization at Ursinus "have built Best Buddies into a model for volunteers nationwide to follow."

Over three dozen student members are paired with individuals from the Norristown, Pa.-based Gateway Employment Services. They dine out, visit sports events, and create an atmosphere of communication and mutual respect.

Campbell noted that, "many individuals perceive our buddies as 'handicapped.' "These individuals that appear to be so different from us starve for affection and acceptance," she said.

"Our buddies look forward to the smell of a flower; a ride to the park; a trip to the super market; a cheer at a sport's event; a hug; an embrace. We as 'normal' people tend to focus on the materialistic values in life, often losing sight of the importance of spending time with our families, going to ball games, or simply enjoying the gifts of life."

The friendships formed in Best Buddies are based on what Campbell considers the most important values. "Our members don't care what you look like, what you do for a living, or how much money you make. They value friendship and the individual as a whole."

She urges people to think of "handicapped" as simply appreciating one's life and honoring and loving the lives around them.

New members are invited to join Best Buddies and can contact Julia Campbell at extension 3343. The first organizational meeting of the semester will be held on September 12 at 7p.m. in Wismer Lower Lounge. For additional information on Best Buddies in Pennsylvania and New Jersey, call (215) 569-0069 or visit www.bestbuddiespennsylvania.org

Research presented by 54 Students and Alumni

COLLEGEVILLE, Pa.—Fifty-four Ursinus students presented their research at a total of eight academic conferences at the end of the 2002 Spring Semester. In a typical year, over 200 of the college's students will present papers or posters at such events.

Those presenting in the spring were:

Stephanie Parker, a senior economics and business administration and international relations major from Allentown, Pa., reported on her honors research at the National Conference on Undergraduate Research (CUR) in, Wis., in April. Her paper was titled "Connections Between Civility and Citizenship at Work: A Preliminary Investigation."

Three Ursinus students, Alicia Morgans '02, of Reading, Pa., Michelle Janelsins '02, of Monkton, Md., and Lindsey Lewis-Calabrette '03, of Quakertown, Pa., were selected to participate in the 6th annual "Posters on the Hill" display, also sponsored by CUR, on April 18 on Capitol Hill, Washington, D.C.

All biology majors, the students presented their joint poster, titled "Analysis of Clonal Diversity Amongst Hybrids of F. heteroclitus and F. diaphanus Using Varied Portions of the Mhc Complex," to Congressional representatives. The goal of Posters on the Hill is to help members of Congress understand the importance of high-quality undergraduate research.

Timothy D'Andrea and Katie Shearer, presented posters at the 2002 Pittsburgh Conference, the largest conference in analytical chemistry, in New Orleans, La., in March 2002.

D'Andrea, a junior chemistry major from Collegeville, Pa., presented a poster titled "Determination of Blood Alcohol Concentration in Goldfish and the Weakly Electric Fish Eigenmannia virescens." Shearer's poster described her research on "Chromatographic and Thermodynamic Behavior of Cholesteryl 10-Undecenoate Liquid Crystalline High-Performance Liquid Chromatographic Stationary Phase." Shearer is from Reading, Pa.

The following gave papers at the 17th Annual University of Scranton Undergraduate Psychology Conference in April:

Seniors Terra Vicario of North Plainfield, N.J., and Erica Henninger of Whiting, N.J., "College Students' Responses to New Communication Technology."

Sophomores Sarah Napolitan of Lancaster, Pa., and Lauren Thomas of Ocean City, N.J.: "Who's The Player?: The Effects of Class and Gender on One-Night Stand Participants."

Junior Jason Marakovits of Allentown, Pa., "Order in the Classroom: Early Educational Experiences and Attitudes Toward College."

Seniors Kristin Kinelski of Metuchen, N.J., and Jessica Markowitz of Cinnaminson, N.J., "The Effects of Maternal Employment on Urban and Suburban Middle School Students."

Junior John Mohl of Yardley, Pa., "Violations of Equity Undermine Morale in Work Settings: Can Amicable Work Relations Be Restored?"

Senior Tara K. Russo of Randolph, N.J., "Learning Processes Involved in the Viewing of Random Dot Autostereograms."

Junior Duane Todd of Roebling, N.J., "Quality of Life Inventory: Validity and Relationship to

Junior Megan K. Austin of Audubon, Pa.: "One-Night Stands as Function of Pre-College Relationships, LTR, and Dating Status."

Sophomore Kiyotoshi Hashimoto of Osaka, Japan, and senior Diane Elia of Broomall, Pa., "Cross Cultural Differences in Attitudes Toward Mental Illness: Japan versus the United States."

Senior Kristie Bruno of Norristown, Pa., "The Effectiveness of Implementing a Social and Emotional Learning Program for Elementary School Students."

Senior Rebecca A. Mersky of Lansdale, Pa., "Factors Affecting the Perceived Increase in Violent Crime: An Analysis of Actual and Virtual Experiences."

Center for Continuous Learning students Kirstin Gambone of Collegeville, Pa.; Chris Lu of Gilbertsville, Pa.; Susan Deitrick of Royersford, Pa.; Susan Fields of Trappe, Pa.; Amy Gelband of Eagleville, Pa.; Dorothy Zohé of Gilbertsville, Pa.; junior Jamie Szucht of Quakertown, Pa.; seniors Dorothy Rowles of Marlton, N.J.; and Deborah Stickney of Dansville, N.Y., "The Relationship between Maternal Employment During Infancy and the Quality Subsequent Relationships with Parents and Attitudes" and "Expectations Regarding Maternal Employment among Male and Female College Students."

Seven Ursinus students presented talks on their chemistry research projects at the 66th Annual Intercollegiate Student Chemists' Convention in April. The Chemistry Department of Lebanon Valley College, Annville, Pa., hosted the convention. Five of the students won prizes for their work. Presenting were:

Timothy D'Andrea ('03) - "A GC/MS Study of Anesthetic Effect and Transport of 1-Alkanols in the Weakly Electric Fish Eigenmannia virescens."

Layali Eshqaidef ('03) - "A Study of the Anesthetic Effect of 1-Alkanols on Goldfish." Layali won second place in the Biochemistry division.

Katie Shearer ('02) - "Chromatographic and Thermodynamic Behavior of Cholesteryl 10-Undecenoate Liquid Crystalline High-Performance Liquid Chromatographic Stationary Phase." The paper was awarded second place in the Analytical Chemistry Session I.

Andrew Vincent ('02) - "Comparison of Octyl and Fluorooctyl HPLC Stationary Phases." Andrew received first place in the Analytical Chemistry Session II.

Alan Silverstein ('02) - "The Synthesis and Characterization of a Triply-Bonded Rhenium Complex." He was awarded 2nd place in the Inorganic Division I.

Mariam Mumtaz ('03) - "Determination of Ethanol Distribution in Phosphatidylcholine Unilamellar Vesicles Using 1D and 2D Nuclear Magnetic Resonance (NMR) Spectroscopy."

Cheri Faust ('02) - "NMR Study of the Distribution of Ethanol in Phosphatidylcholine SUVs Containing Membrane Channels." Cheri received a 1st place award in the Physical Chemistry Division.

Five Ursinus history students presented papers at the annual Phi Alpha Theta Eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey Regional Conference at Caldwell College on April 13. The students and their papers were:

Rebecca Chilcoat, 2002, "A New Form of Masculinity: A Change Between World War II and the Vietnam War."

Larissa Gordon, 2003, "From the Inner Quarter to Courtly Love: A Comparison of Secular and Religious Gender Ideologies in China and Europe during the Thirteenth Century."

Aaron Ranck, 2002, "Anti-Zionism and the State Department. A History of Flawed Policy and Unfulfilled Prophecies."

Michael Travers, 2002 "Two Manuscript Diaries of the Civil War: An Exercise in Document Editing."

Brian Walsh, 2002, "Immortality in China."

The Ursinus Department of Economics and Business Administration held its 13th Annual Undergraduate Research Conference, on Friday, April 19 in Olin Hall. Students from 10 colleges in the region participated. Presenting Ursinus Honors Students were:

Rosana Bitar, "Economic Development in the Middle East and North Africa: The Case of Jordan."

David Freese, "The Effects of International Trade on Environmental Sustainability."

Brian Hess, "Do Economic Sanctions Achieve their Goals?"

Lorelei Hollenbach, "Assessing Fed Credibility."

Stephanie Parker presented the same paper on civility and citizenship that she had presented at the CUR Conference in Wisconsin.

Nicole Russo, "An Examination and Analysis of Factors Associated with Predicting Economic Activity."

Aaron Sevigny, "Do ETF's Improve Market Efficiency?"

Five Ursinus students participated in the First Annual Conf Chem Online Undergraduate Poster Session in March 2002.

Shearer presented her project on Cholesterol 10-Undecenoate, mentioned above, at this conference as well.

Eshqaidef presented her blood alcohol project, mentioned above, in this venue as well.

Andrew Vincent, a senior chemistry major of Bordentown, N.J., and Jami Wilson, a senior chemistry major of Willow Grove, Pa., gave a presentation on "Comparative Studies of Fluorinated and Nonfluorinated High-Performance Liquid Chromatographic Stationary Phases."

Timothy D'Andrea also presented his poster, mentioned above, on blood alcohol in fish at this conference.

Three Ursinus students presented independent projects at the Third Annual Berks County Conference on Undergraduate Research and Creativity at Penn State University on Apr. 13.

Eshqaidef presented her project on experimental blood alcohol levels in fish; Matthew Bunzck, a senior French major of Norristown, Pa., presented his research on "The Aubry Law in an Historical View of Labor Relations in France." And Debora Sarmiento, a senior international relations major of Ottawa, Canada, presented her independent project on "Political Culture, Socioeconomic Inequalities, and Corruption: A Study of Obstacles to the Development of Democracy in Brazil."

Zack's Closes the Equivalency Door on Snacks and Juices

Johanna Nash
Grizzly Writer

As a junior at Ursinus College, I have gotten into the groove of eating around campus. I for one do not prefer the food offered at Wismer and therefore rely on Zack's for the majority of my dining experiences. I am on the 9-meal plan that comes with $250 of "bonus".

This year there have been some drastic changes taking place at Zack's. I personally feel as if it has been taken over by stingy dictators with the way everything is being handled. For starters, we can no longer grab a cup and fill it with a beverage while we wait for our food to be made. Instead we have to get all our food, walk to the register, pay for the meal, ask for a cup, walk back to the soda machine, and then walk to the table where the lids are. I feel like this is going to cause more lines and comotion during the lunch rush than the occasional person who steals a $.90 soda.

Secondly, we are no longer allowed to use meal equivalency to buy anything except the food the workers themselves prepare. This means if someone wants a simple lunch of chips and a Fresh Samantha, it cannot be payed for with the $3.40 we have for lunch equivalency, but rather the extra money we have for bonus.

There are numerous students who rely heavily on being able to grab a quick lunch in between classes and this makes the process all the more difficult. It is hard enough to avoid the crowds around campus after 400-some new freshmen have arrived and now the quick and easy way of being able to grab lunch and go has been taken away from us.

New Hours For the Fitness Center Spell Big Problems for Students

Cassie Stewart
Grizzly Writer

Have you attempted to go to the fitness center and no piece of cardio equipment was available to use? Me too. So what do you do? The logical solution, as well as what I try to do, is to pick a different time to go when the crowds aren't as big, and also at a time that conveniently fits into my schedule. Unfortunately that time happens to fall in the window when the fitness center is closed in the morning, which is the perfect time, since the gym traffic is not out of control and the greenhouse effect has yet to infest the whole building, especially the cardio area.

I was hoping to develop a daily routine that included a morning workout but am finding it hard to work around the new hours that were presented this year. I, as well as others, have class and lab that consume my afternoons; therefore I find that the evening is the only time I am able to go, kind of like everyone else.

Then when evening arrives and you're already heading on over to the fitness center, you walk in and BAM, masses of people are in your face. Apparently everyone else had the same idea as you did. Now some people are there to socialize, and others are more serious about their workout, but nonetheless there are a lot of people. As you maneuver around people and walk over to the cardio area, you're disappointed to find that all the machines are occupied.

As soon as someone is finished, four people run over at the same, all of whom are interested in the same machine. After everyone offers each other their turn, someone else hops on and you're once again stuck waiting. So you either settle for lifting, join in on the socializing (which ruins the point of working out), or get fed up and leave. To some this may sound a bit exaggerated or extreme, but it may also sound really familiar.

Perhaps the crowds will die down when the work load for school begins to pick up, I don't know, that would be nice, but the fitness center also has to accommodate for a larger freshmen class as well. Once again, the comment that I think has to be made is that we certainly pay a lot of money in general to attend Ursinus College, and we do in fact have an awesome facility that was built for our use.

I cannot say that I am angry about the new schedule, but rather disappointed. I am disappointed that not only are there probably students that are willing to fill the hours needed to keep the fitness center open in the morning, which would financially help some students out, but also that the needs and desires of others appear not to be taken in to consideration.

In remembrance of September 11th, The Grizzly is requesting short essays, blurbs, ideas, thoughts, and prayers from the student body of Ursinus College.

Labels are killing Internet music

(U-WIRE) PITTSBURGH — Radio stations are good for music in the same way that paved roads are good for cars — they keep things progressing smoothly. So it might come as a shock to most sensible people that the recording industry has succeeded in pushing legislation, effective Oct. 20, that will probably destroy about 90 percent of Internet radio stations. As in all matters regarding record labels, this one is driven by money.

After the deadline, Internet radio proprietors will be forced to pay seven cents per listener per song. That may not sound like much, but the Internet is a big place with lots of music fans, and that seven cents multiplies rapidly. The result is a bill that vastly exceeds each station's annual income. And since the bill is retroactive to 1998, they will also have to pay for everything they've broadcasted for the last four years.

This situation brings to mind images from a year or two ago, when the record companies went head to head with Napster and succeeded in bringing the file-sharing program to its knees, much to the disappointment of music fans everywhere. But Internet radio is much different than Napster. It uses streaming technology that can't be stored, making it strikingly similar to the radio you listen to in the car everyday.

But radio broadcasted on the Internet is different because just about anyone can do it — all you need is a server and software. There's no equipment to buy and no licenses to secure. Internet broadcasters do it for the love of the game, but apparently that is unacceptable. No music is good music these days unless someone is making a hefty profit.

When interviewed recently by Newsweek, independent Web broadcaster Jim Atkinson estimated his earnings for 2001 to be about $10,000. On Oct. 20, he expects to pay about $17,000 in performance fees for that same year. When the numbers add up, the little guy is the obvious loser.

These developments should outrage anyone who is interested in good music. Internet radio creates opportunities for independent bands that can't be found on your FM dial or MTV. This is just another instance of labels tightening their grip on the industry and forcing the public to listen to anything they throw at us. And judging from pop music that has been released in recent years, it's a rocky road to travel.

5 Unusual Reasons to Stay Single

Keely Hedges
U-WIRE

(U-WIRE) LOS ANGELES — Being single isn't as bad as you might think. The feelings of self-pity, misery, and utter loneliness are a far cry from the reality of collegesingledom. And while many mourn the sad lives they lead without a significant other, I offer the top five reasons for becoming single and staying that way. Even though a girl/boyfriend can offer loving to last a lifetime, is it really worth the pain involved to have them at your side?

Reason # 5: Not having to share anything with anyone.

Even though most of us were taught to share at about the age of five, the last thing we really want to do is divvy up all of our time and belongings. Take sleeping arrangements for example. Twin beds were not meant for two, and spooning on a hot summer night isn't anyone's idea of a good time.

Sure, one likes to have sex or even cuddle on that bed, but when it comes to actually sleeping, one person per bed is the only way to get a good night's rest. There's no kicking, extra body heat, or unwanted snoring to keep you up all night. Having to share your bed is simply an encroachment on your privacy, and being able to snooze alone means quality slumber.

Reason # 4: Being able to tell the truth.

Although many of us don't like to admit it, having to lie to your partner is just one of those things that comes with the relationship. Life would be a lot easier if you didn't have to, but realistically everything you say and do is not disclosed to your significant other.

For example, such questions as: "Where were you last night?" or "Who was that girl/boy you were talking to?" are nine times out of ten responded with a lie, if in fact you wish to keep your relationship intact. Therefore, coming from a moral perspective, isn't it easier to ditch the excessive white lies and opt for the luxury of freedom?

Reason # 3: Being unaccountable to anyone but your parents.

For some reason, girl/boyfriends feel it's their duty to know where you're going, why you're going, whom you're going with, and when you'll be home. They inadvertently assume the role your parents used to occupy, and abuse it even more than they ever did.

Going out with your friends can have the capacity to spur World War III, and having to call your significant other becomes more of a chore than a pleasure. Being single makes you relish your unaccountability, and allows you to not reach for the cell as soon as you change location.

Reason # 2: Not being jealous, ever.

Some people would have to admit that the only thing they really ever become jealous about is their girl/boyfriend. Wanted or even unwanted attention from the opposite sex will absolutely drive some people up the wall. And even though they might trust their significant other, trusting those around them can be a different story.

Furthermore, jealousy, my friends, is the root of all evil and being evil is the last thing you want to spend your life doing. So, while you may be jealous of your friend's new car or your classmate's good grades, not having to be jealous of your partner will put your mind at ease.

Reason # 1: Bitter, psycho exes. To some this would be the number one reason not to be single, but think about the fun you can have telling crazy stories about them, trying to avoid them in public places and pissing them off whenever you happen to be within their field of vision.

The battle with the ex can be exhaustive at first, but in retrospect can keep you quite entertained. Going to bars and seeing them purposely make out with someone can be just the fuel you need to try and get them back. And while I'm not suggesting cold-hearted revenge, being single and loving it will do the job just fine.

Even though these aren't your typical reasons for choosing to be single, they do serve to remind us just how impractical we can all be at times. And while being single has the capacity to bring freedom, fun, and hook-ups, it also means a life free of jealous situations.

Fall Movie Preview:

Blockbuster Bust or Academy Award?

Kelly Gray
Grizzly Editor-in-Chief

As the summer movie season comes to a close, studios are gearing up for their new films to debut this fall. This fall is filled with comedies, dramas, action, science fiction and romance, which should be enough to satisfy all Americans. However, is it worth to spend that $8.00 at the theater this fall? Entertainment Weekly has composed a list of the new films debuting this fall and sharing their opinion if it is worth the $8.00.

Returning to theaters this fall will be some household names and some new faces in Hollywood. In September, Heath Ledger and Kate Hudson will start in "The Four Feathers," which is the fifth adaptation of A.E.W. Mason's novel onto the big screen. This film may be an Oscar contender, but it is a very violent film. Remaining with the theme of drama is "Moonlight Mile" starring Dustin Hoffman and Susan Sarandon. Director Brad Silberling tells the story of a young woman's murder and how the family deals with the aftermath.

Also, "Legally Blonde" superstar Reese Witherspoon returns to the big screen in this fall's "Sweet Home Alabama." Witherspoon plays a fashion designer who becomes engaged to the son of New York City's mayor, but she has to return to Alabama to confront her husband about getting a divorce.

Other films debuting in September are "The Tuxedo" with Jackie Chan and Jennifer Love Hewitt, "The Banger Sisters" with Goldie Hawn and Susan Sarandon, and "Trapped" with Charlize Theron, Kevin Bacon, and Courtney Love.

When you didn't think that Hannibal Lecter could not come back and scare anymore, Hollywood will release "The Red Dragon," which is the prequel to "Silence of the Lambs." This anticipated prequel stars Sir Anthony Hopkins, Edward Norton, and Ralph Fiennes and will give movie goers the background story of Hannibal.

Michelle Pfeiffer is back again starring in a movie based on an Oprah Book Club book called "White Oleander." The film, which also stars Renee Zellweger and Robin Wright Penn, will explore the life of girl who tries to escape the trouble after her mother, played by Pfeiffer commits a murder.

In October, from "Dawson's Creek" fame, James Van Der Beek will star in "The Rules of Attraction." The film, which is centered around college students, will focus on the students as they go through school and of course sex, drugs, and violence come into play. Katie Holmes, also of "Dawson's Creek" will star in "Abandon" with Benjamin Bratt. Holmes plays a young student, who is in love, but the boyfriend disappears one day and the trouble begins.

Returning to the big screen in October will be everyone's favorite pop diva, Madonna. Starring in "Swept Away" directed by her husband, Guy Ritchie, Madonna will play a woman who transforms into a sincere person after meeting a fisherman.

007 will make his return to the big screen in November of this year. Pierce Brosnan will star in the 20th James Bond film along with superstar Halle Berry. After twenty films, the writers have created a script that the audience will enjoy and should be able to follow throughout the film.

Also returning to theaters in November will be the second installment of Harry Potter films called "Harry Potter and The Chamber of Secrets." The first Harry Potter film brought in over one billion dollars across the globe. There is no doubt this Harry Potter installment will do just as well as the first one.

Coming to theaters in November will be "I Spy" with Eddie Murphy and Owen Wilson, "The Core" starring Hilary Swank and Aaron Eckhart, and "Treasure Planet" the Disney version of Treasure Island.

Two other big hits expected in November will be "Solaris" and "8 Mile." "Solaris" is a sci-fi movie starring George Clooney and directed by Steven Soderbergh. Eminem will star in "8 Mile" along are similar. Eminem says the film is not about his life.

In December "The Lord of the Rings: The Two Towers" will be released. This second installment of The Lord of the Rings is expected to be even bigger and better than the first installment. Once again, Elijah Wood, Ian McKellen, Viggo Mortensen, Sean Astin, and Orlando Bloom will start if You Can," in theaters this December. The film stars Tom Hanks, Leonardo DiCaprio, Christopher Walken, and Martin Sheen. The film centers around DiCaprio's character which a con artist who wrote millions in bad checks and pretended to be a pilot and a professor.

With the success of Moulin Rouge, Hollywood has decided to make the well known stage musical "Chicago." The film stars Catherine Zeta-Jones, Renee Zellweger, and Richard Gere. Many wonder if people will buy into the sudden hype of films such as "Moulin Rouge."

For the fans who loved "Analyze This," DeNiro and Crystal are back to give movie goers some laughs in "Analyze That." All of the old characters return from the first film and expect as just as many laughs in the new film.

If some of the films mentioned do not interest you taste, you can check out www.ew.com to obtain a full list of movies coming out from September till December of 2002. Although this summer there were a couple disappointments, expect a huge box office draw with sequels to many hits that the audience has been waiting for.

The artists include Jacob Lawrence, Faith Ringgold, Sam Gilliam, Elizabeth Catlett, Howardena Pindell and Romare Bearden. The exhibition is circulated by Smith Kramer Fine Art Services.

Thursday, Sept. 5, 7 p.m. Philip and Muriel Berman Museum of Art, Main Gallery Music in the Museum Series Voices of Africa Choral Ensemble

This acclaimed choral ensemble will present the unique experience of a cappella harmonies and traditional West African percussive rhythms. The vocal harmonies will be complemented by traditional percussion instruments including sakara, hand-held frame drums, double headed bells and sanga drums found in Ghana and Nigeria.

Thursday, Sept. 12, 4 p.m., Olin Auditorium Let'em Have it Just That Way: The Songwriters of the Harlem Renaissance A lecture by Michael Lasser

Michael Lasser is the host of Fascinat' Rhythm, a nationally-syndicated public radio program that explores the history and themes of American popular music. Lasser will discuss the songwriters and performers of the Harlem Renaissance and the cultural merging of blacks and whites affected by their bright, jazzy, irreverent songs of life. Although the Renaissance was first and foremost a literary movement, it was the work of Fats Waller, Duke Ellington and other songwriters who drew thousands of whites uptown to Harlem each night. A reception will follow in the Berman Museum from 5 to 7 p.m.

Friday, Sept. 13, 7:30 p.m. Philip and Muriel Berman Museum of Art, Main Gallery Performance by storyteller Charlotte Blake Alston Let the Stories Be Spoken

In conjunction with the exhibition of African American Works on Paper: The Wes and Missy Cochran Collection, the nationally-acclaimed storyteller Charlotte Blake Alston will present Let the Stories Be Spoken. Drawing on the storytelling subtexts of the works on display, Alston will evoke riveting images of African culture and historical lore with her telling of African and African American folktales, song, and poetry.

Wednesday, Sept. 18, through Sunday, Nov. 3 Philip and Muriel Berman Museum of Art, Upper Gallery Donald Meyer: The Americanist Paradigm & the Extontriptych

Subtitled, The Context of the Process: The Hand, The Eye and the Moment From Sketchbook to Triptych, the installation chronicles 30 years of creative process culminating in the three-paneled, egg tempera Extontriptych, shown for the first time in this exhibition. An opportunity to view the creative process from initial sketches to the creation of a major work, the exhibition includes early drawings, drybrushes and sketches augmented by a video and scholarly essay. The Extontriptych recalls a farm in Exton where Meyer lived, met his wife more than 30 years ago, and began to paint. An Opening Reception will be held on Sunday, Sept. 22, from 3 to 5 p.m.

Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, Sunday Sept. 18, 19, 20, 21, 22 The Third Annual Ursinus Fringe Festival 2002

Direct from the Philadelphia Fringe Festival, a variety of theater, dance and performance artists will present their latest works on the Ursinus campus over a five-day period. Domenick Scudera, the founder of Philadelphia's Theater Rumpus and an assistant professor of communication studies and theater at Ursinus, organizes this popular annual event. All performances are free. Please call 610.409.3604 for specific dates, times and locations.

Friday, Sept. 20, 4:00 p.m. Philip and Muriel Berman Museum of Art, Main Gallery Artist Talk by Emma Amos

In conjunction with the exhibition African American Works on Paper: The Wes and Missy Cochran Collection, the Berman Museum of Art will present an informal gallery talk by the noted New York-based artist Emma Amos, whose piece titled "American Girl" is included in the exhibition. Amos has been described as an "African-American artist of incredible strength, color, and dramatic palette." She will discuss her work and her experiences as an African American woman.

Sunday, Sept. 22 4:00 p.m., Bomberger Auditorium Heefner Organ Recital ~ Alan Morrison and Jeannine

M o r r i s o n

Alan Morrison currently holds the positions of head of the Organ Department at The Curtis Institute of Music, Philadelphia; artist-in-residence at Rollins College, Winter Park, Fla.; and college organist at Ursinus College. Constantly in demand as a soloist, Morrison has performed at three National Conventions of The American Guild of Organists, as well as solo recitals and festival appearances in prominent venues throughout the USA, Canada, Germany, Brazil, and Italy. Radio stations world wide feature his recordings and live concerts, and his awards and honors include inclusion in both the International Who's Who in Music and the Georgia Music Hall of Fame.

Jeannine Morrison, Alan Morrison's mother, has had a lifelong career as a concert pianist, duo-pianist, orchestral soloist, accompanist, teacher and adjudicator. She holds degrees from Rollins College; Columbia University, New York City; and The Royal Academy of Music in London, England. Her debut with the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra at the age of 20 launched a long and steady career throughout the Eastern United States. Heard in duo-recital with Joanne Rogers in more than 350 performances, she has appeared both solo and with orchestras throughout the nation.

NEW THIS YEAR IN THE GRIZZLY!

Tired of your boring dorm room? Think it could use a little redecorating?! Then SWAPPIN' SUITES is just the contest for you!

Swappin' Suites is a contest that The Grizzly is holding, with help from businesses and other organizations, like RHA. This contest is for you so that you can make your humble abode a little more welcoming!

The contest begins now with the application. Fill it out with your roommates and another set of roommates that want their rooms redone too and turn it in!

We will publish the applicants and the student body will get to vote on who gets to have their rooms redone!

Once the contestants, carpenters, and designers are picked we will publish the results in preparation for the big SWAP!

Over Fall Break, the roommates will switch rooms and decorate their hearts out!

The end results will then be published for all the campus to see!

Look for our other contests that we will be holding throughout the year and be sure to get your applications in for SWAPPIN' SUITES!

SWAPPIN' SUITES APPLICATION - Carpenter or Designer Application

Which position are you interested in?

What experience do you have?

In 50 words or less, tell us why you want to participate in Swappin' Suites!

Rules and Regulations will be given to those who apply and will also be published in a future issue of The Grizzly!

You must apply to be picked, and you must read in order to vote for the rooms you want to be swapped and redecorated over Fall break!

So get involved and get that application in today!

Say goodbye to boring, empty walls and unorganized closets!

SWAPSUITES TODAY!

Applications must include 2 teams.

Teams, designers and the carpenter must be on campus for Fall Break

All participants must be willing to be interviewed and photographed by The Grizzly staff during the contest.

Submit these applications to The Grizzly by 9/20/02! You can drop them in Dr. Edwards office or in the box in Wismer Lobby!
