Renovation of Johnson Hall moving closer towards completion

by Alvin McEwen
News Editor

The renovation of Johnson Hall is going as scheduled.

The renovations, which began last year, will make Johnson Hall over 60,000 feet wide, twice its normal size. Johnson Hall usually houses the theatre and dance and mass communication departments.

The renovations are designed to expand what each department has to offer to prospective majors. The new addition will be located where Johnson parking lot once was. The parking lot will be placed across the street by the tennis courts.

To be included in the larger Johnson Hall is an orchestra pit, dressing rooms, an experimental theatre room, audio and television studios, and television and audio booths.

According to Bill Culp, assistant vice president of Renovations and Special Projects, the close coordination of McCrory Construction Company, the Physical Plant, college police, and the SC State Highway Department has resulted in a perfect no time lost accident record.

Culp said as the renovations are nearing completion, certain changes will have to take place.

He said concrete footings and piers are now in place and will be ready for erection of structural steel within 10 days to two weeks.

Because of this, he said, it will be necessary to detour traffic around the road circling Johnson because there will be a power crane in the middle of the road to unload and erect the steel.

Culp said traffic will be detoured on Stewart Ave. and Water St. He also said the they have already made safety concessions to those who jog past Johnson so they do not have to get close to renovations. The sidewalk across the street has been paved so that students can jog and walk away from the construction site.

Culp said however, that students still get close to the construction site and this is dangerous.

Culp said pedestrian crosswalks have been added at the end of the construction site along with speed limit signs and caution signs.

He also said as a solution has been worked out for future traffic problems that the closing of the street may cause.

The parking lot on Stewart and Aiken Ave. have been restored to "open parking." Before this, Culp said, construction trailers were in the lot, but they would be blocked in by students parking at the sidewalk.

Construction workers mark the streets in front Johnson Hall.

The Rock Hill City Fire Department and emergency vehicle operations have been notified of the interruption of normal traffic patterns in the vicinity of the construction site. Winthrop College Police Department is assisting in maintaining safe traffic with the least inconvenience to all persons using this area.

Culp said renovations should be completed by June 1993.

Class allows students to experience beauty of Yellowstone National Park

by Mary Frances Monckton
Editor

Most students taking summer course at Winthrop will find themselves sitting in a classroom several hours each day, taking notes and listening to lectures. But those students who enroll in SCI 222 will experience something out of the ordinary.

SCI 222, offered during C term this summer, is a trip to Yellowstone National Park. Students earn six hours of science credit and the course also fulfills the lab requirement. The course, lasting June 10-27, is a combination of geology and biology.

Dr. Martin Knoll, geology professor, and Dr. John Dille, biology professor, are in charge of the course.

Knoll said the course looks at the interrelationships the two disciplines.

"Yellowstone is ideal. It has beautiful displays of both biology and geology," Knoll said.

He noted that Yellowstone has geysers, volcanic rock, and hot springs — perfect for geologic study; and pine forests, alpine vegetation, and animals, such as elk, buffalo and moose — for biologic study. The class also studies the effects of the 1980 Yellowstone fire.

The 15-member class goes out to Yellowstone in two vans. Knoll said they make stops at the University of Nebraska and the University of Indiana. The group campsite is located in Lodgepole Pine Forest on a lake.

"There's excellent fishing," Knoll said. "We hike everywhere, anywhere from one mile

Students taking the trip to Yellowstone National Park can enjoy sites like Mammoth Hot Springs.

Author to read from books about 1800s South Carolinian women

by Anne Bonett
Staff Writer

Mary Kratt, the author of "The Only Thing I Fear Is A Cow And A Drunken Man," will be at Winthrop on Thurs., March 26 at 7 p.m. in the Recital Hall. She will be presenting a set of dramatic readings from her book with the help of almost a dozen readers.

The book contains 25 adapted or edited stories about women in the 1800s from South Carolina. The stories were compiled from various sources. These include diaries, books, old newspapers and family papers.

Kratt said one of the most interesting stories she found was in the Dacus Archives. It was from a diary kept by David and Emily Lyles Harris from 1861 to 1865. It started out as a farm journal where David recorded his cattle and crops. The journal was continued by Emily after David left to fight in the Civil War. She described the daily hardships of looking after the farm, the children and their slaves. She said during this time she felt as if she was "walking in the dark." This is the title Kratt took for the edited version contained in her book.

The stories are about all kinds of people, Kratt said. They were collected over a 10 year period while Kratt was working on another project.

Kratt said she kept coming across interesting documents on women from South Carolina. She said there seem to have been very few stories written on women during this period. Most of the stories about people from this time were about wealthy men like bankers and mill owners. "I wanted to know what my kind of people did," Kratt said.

The stories are about women from wealthy families, middle class women and slaves. Kratt said it was interesting to find out what these women's points of view were, especially during the Civil War.

This is an approved cultural event.

RSA needs student participation for their campus events

by Jackie Lowery
Staff Writer

The Resident Students Association (RSA) in the past has had week long events for the residence students. But this year the events have been changed to the weekends.

The first event, that took place March 20, was the Physical Plant Appreciation Day. A morning reception was planned to show the physical plant workers how much the residents students appreciate the great jobs they are doing. The reception lasted from 6 to 10 a.m. with coffee, juice, and doughnuts were served. The reception went well with a very good participation from the Physical Plant.

The events planned for this weekend include an Air Band/Lip Sync Contest, Residence Hall Olympics, and Pool Party.

RSA is sponsoring an Air Band/Lip Sync Contest on Fri., March 27 at 2 p.m. in the Amphitheatre.

The contest is open to all

Winthrop Residents Students. Two prizes will be awarded: First place ($100.00) and second place ($50.00). The prize money won by the residents will go to the hall council of the winning residents. Contestants may use appropriate props (instruments, costumes, etc.)

All entries must be in good taste as not to offend anyone. Contestants are asked to have their music on either a CD or cassette. They should bring their music to the front of the Amphitheatre at 1:30. RSA plans to have a short rehearsal/set-up from 1:30 until 2. At this time, contestants are asked to have their music ready at the beginning of the song being used. All students are encouraged to come out even if they do not want to participate, and winners will be announced at the end of the contest.

Due to rain the Residence Hall Olympics will be held in conjunction with a pool party that will be held Sat., March 28 from 2 till 6p.m.

The Residence Hall Olympics will be at the Peabody Field and the prizes to be awarded are $100-first place, $75-second place, and $50-third place for the hall councils.

Events include: wheelbarrow race, three legged race, long distance run, egg toss, dizzy lizzy, soccer goalie show down, simon says, clothes relay, water relay and leap frog.

All residences are invited. People are allowed to sign up at the times of the events and do not necessary have to be from the residence hall they are representing.

However, the money will go to residence hall that they are participating under. There will also be a pool party at the Peabody Gym and everyone is encourage to bring their bathing suits. Music will be provided by D.J. Brian King. Refreshments are also provided and everyone is invited to have a good time. If there are any questions about the events, please call Laura Foster at #3706.

Cultural Convergence focuses on Bahamas

by Stephanie Nicholson
Special to the Johnsonian
Kinard Auditorium was packed to near maximum capacity when the film Bahamas: 992-1992 was shown Mon., March 16.

This was the second in a series called "Cultural Convergence", which is commemorating Columbus' voyage.

Dr. Gerald Fish, associate professor of Biology and Geography, spoke at the event. Fish, who taught college in the Bahamas from 1983-1985, said the Bahamas have been occupied for 1000 years. It was also the last place to be settled in the West Indies.

He also said the first Indians that settled there, called the Seabonays, were agricultural hunters and gathers. They lived in small villages, but were extinct within 20 years. This was because 90 percent of them died of disease, the principal cause of death in the tribe.

The Bahamas were totally unpopulated for the next thirteen years before being settled by the Puritans and remained a white English colony for 135 years.

With a population of 260,000, the Bahamas is now a part of the global economy. Their economic activity is the salvage of goods or wreckage. 75 percent of their gross national product comes from tourists.

The "Cultural Convergence" series will continue Mon., March 30 with "The Abundance of the New World."

The Student Government Association is currently seeking students to fill the following positions: on campus senators, secretary/treasurer, media specialist, non-traditional senator, international senator, graduate senator, and national exchange student senator.

Applications can be picked up in Dinkins 212 or 209. If there are any questions, students should call the SGA office, ext.3417.

to nine miles...to the tops of the mountains."

The temperature ranges from 20-30 degrees at night and 60-70 degrees during the day.

He added that students enrolling in the course should be in moderate physical condition and should enjoy camping. The camping could be considered moderate because showers are available everyday.

Shirley King, program coordinator for the New Start Program, enrolled in the course last summer.

"It's was fun, full of adventure, and you always knew why you were there. It was a very positive experience," she said.

But SCI 222 does not only involve a trip to Yellowstone. There is also an academic requirement for the course. Knoll said the students are required to keep a daily field journal of what they see and learn. Upon returning to Winthrop, students must write a research paper about something they saw. Students are able to do the further research needed at Winthrop.

The grade earned for the course depends upon the field journal, research paper and participation, each counting one-third of the final grade. No science background is needed, only the completion of Writing 101.

Knoll said the class is limited to 15 people and that it tends to fill up quickly. The class is usually evenly divided between males and females.

In order to take SCI 222, students must pay for six hours of summer tuition and a $500 special fee, which includes van rentals, camping, supplies and equipment. Students also need to bring a sleeping bag and about $200 for food.

"It sounds like a lot of money, but in comparison to other field camps, it's a good deal. It's the only field camp like this in South Carolina," Knoll said.

King said some students took their vacation time for the course.

"It was a way to take a lab science, earn six hours of credit and take a nice trip," she said.

Interested students should contact Dr. Knoll at 323-2113 or Dr. Dillé at 323-2111 as soon as possible.

"It's so beautiful it's hard to put into words," Knoll said.

Public Safety Forum

At this time of year, there is usually an increase in textbook thefts. For the thief, textbooks are a source of ready cash at the bookstores, which do a volume business in textbook buy backs at the semester's end. Stealing textbooks is a crime and is punishable by law.

Don't let yourself become the victim of a book thief. If your books are not in your possession, lock them in your room or car. Never leave them where they are readily accessible to just anyone. If your books are stolen, report the theft to Winthrop police as quickly as possible.

It is also helpful to notify the Winthrop Bookstore and The Bookworm, so that they watch for your books to be brought in. Both bookstores require positive ID and signature from the seller. In most instances, when the theft is reported quickly, the thief is caught and the books are recovered.

As always, if you have any questions or need assistance, call the Public Safety Office at ext. 3333.

Student responds to last week's letter

Dear Editor:
Well, I thought I'd be able to make it through the semester without pestering you and your paper with another of my letters but it seems that's not going to be the case.

Letter to the Editor

Last Monday night I finally obtained a copy of your Wed-18-Mar issue and now I feel compelled to comment on the letter by Mr. Jay Campbell. I will try to keep my remarks brief.

To begin, let me make clear that I have met Mr. Campbell only briefly last semester and that I am not a member of the Gay Men's Support Group. For that matter, I am not gay. However, my heterosexuality certainly does not preclude me from sharing his dismay at the intolerance with which the Group has been received. Indeed, the overall campus reaction to this organization demonstrates only too well why and how badly the group is needed.

Mr. Campbell, if you are reading this, I would like you to know that I have witnessed the exact same vandalism and disrespect and I find it just as despicable. I know that publicly defending you and your Group invites the same sort of angry censure that you have no doubt already experienced, but I do not care. I am no stranger to such criticism. My mind is my own and I will decide what I think.

The problem here is, as Mr. Campbell suggested, one of intolerance — intolerance for the freedom of others to be who they want to be the way they want to be. Ours is not a free society regardless of what all the flag-waving psychopatriots would have us believe. As Jack Nicholson stated so eloquently in the classic film "Easy Rider," we Americans will talk about freedom all day long but the minute we see or hear of anyone who actually is free — as in free enough to choose his or her own sexual preference — we tend to get shockingly indignant, if you know what I mean. It should come as no surprise that violence against gay men and lesbians in our society is greater than that directed against all other minorities combined. I'm not sure why this particular form of personal expression elicits so strong a response and this is not the forum for discussing my theories. However, I would like to address a few of the issues I feel are relevant.

The first is whether or not homosexuality is unnatural. In the sense of actual human engineering, I suppose it is. The human body is quite obviously not designed to work that way, but so what? Humans are unique in that we engage in sex for purposes other than mere reproduction. As seekers of pleasure, what is unnatural in seeking pleasure where one finds it?

I have heard a lot of people make the assertion that only humans engage in gay sex. Untrue. Homosexuality has been documented in a number of other species, most notably in dolphins (yes, Flipper!). So in the sense of it being unnatural by reason of it being an aberration unique to humans — sorry, Charlie.

The second issue is the religious issue. I am very much aware that the Bible condemns homosexuality as an "abomination" (Leviticus 18:22 and 20:13) and demands death as punishment (Leviticus 20:13 again). Okay, I admit that pretty much settles the matter for devout Jews and Christians, but what about atheists? What about agnostics or Buddhists or Hindus? What about pagans (and there are a lot more pagans out there than most people are willing to believe)?

Is this rabid inquisitorial gay-bashing just one more religious witch-hunt? Bad move. The Holy Bible was meant to be read and meditated upon as a guide for living, not rammed down people's throats. I seriously doubt that anyone has ever been won to Christ as a direct result of having a Gospel tract thrust in his face by an over-zealous Bible-thumper screaming "You're gonna burn in Hell, you filthy faggot — praise Jesus!"

I am also very much aware of the many people who testify that the Holy Spirit delivered them from the terrible bondage of homosexuality. That's fine, but it's important to keep in mind that this was something that occurred after they had developed their own personal relationship with God. Until someone actually

Health insurance policy a smart idea

by Jessica Brown
Spotlight Editor

An article ran in last week's paper that I would like to address. This article concerned a mandatory health insurance policy and was written by your's truly.

I have heard several people gripe about this proposal, mainly the fact that it calls for mandatory insurance. I think that the one word that turns students off of this proposal is mandatory. A lot of people get really bent out of shape when they feel like they are being forced into doing something, even when it's for their own good.

Let's face the facts. Everyone needs good health insurance, but good health insurance is hard to find. Being a student increases the difficulty of getting decent coverage. Many students are letting the word mandatory interfere with their good judgement.

Many students have no idea how insurance works or even if they have any coverage. This ignorance, however innocent, is one of the main reasons this proposal should go through. Consider this scenario.

While horsing around in the amphitheatre, you trip over a loose brick, roll down the hill and fracture a few ribs (I know this is extreme, but you never know what will happen where accidents are concerned). Crawford sends you to the hospital emergency room for x-rays and treatment. While filling out the piles of paperwork in the waiting room, the receptionist asks if you have health insurance.

You're not really sure if you are covered or not. You were covered by your parents' insurance in high school, but are you still covered now that you are over 18 years old? You can produce no proof of insurance, so the receptionist apologizes when she tells you that they cannot treat you unless you have insurance.

Again, this example may seem extreme, but much worse accidents have happened and will happen to Winthrop students. Do you want to be denied medical treatment simply because you do not have any insurance?

I know, I know. You don't see why you should have to pay for it if you don't want it. Take out that little word mandatory and the proposal will be fine. The fact is that making the policy mandatory will reduce the rate which will have to be paid for the insurance.

I have talked to Dr. Bill Wells extensively about this proposal and, quite frankly, he has sold me on the idea. I think that this proposed plan will provide excellent coverage for students at a reasonable price. It will be about $200 less than the voluntary policy currently offered by Winthrop. Also, if you can prove that you have other coverage, you are not required to purchase this plan. That fact alone should alleviate some of the doubts about a mandatory plan.

My advice to each of you is to check with your parents and make sure you have some sort of coverage. Some plans will cover you until you are 21 as long as you are a full-time student, others do not. Be sure you know.

Even if you are covered, I think that getting this new plan to supplement your existing one is a very good idea. For the price you will be paying, you cannot find a better policy. I have talked to my parents and we have agreed to do just that.

The point I'm trying to make is that you shouldn't wait until some emergency comes up before you worry about whether or not you have medical coverage. Be prepared for anything and don't let a little thing like the word mandatory get in the way of rational thinking.

Why is this student kissing a statue? He's on the Rail Europe Adventure!

Students can win a trip around the world while exploring Europe

NEW YORK—U.S. college students traveling or studying abroad this year will have the opportunity to participate in "The Rail Europe Adventure," a scavenger hunt/photo contest that encourages students to visit important European landmarks and other European sites.

Sponsored by American Express Travelers Cheques, Rail Europe, and The College Connection, Inc., "The Rail Europe Adventure" will give students the opportunity to have fun, see Europe, and win great prizes all at the same time.

Prizes include a trip around the world, round-trip airfares to U.S. destinations, American Express® Travelers Cheques, and first class Eurail passes.

Students who are planning to travel to Europe can participate by registering with The College Connection, an international marketing company specializing in advertising, creative media, and promotions targeting U.S. college students. Students must have a rail pass to participate.

"Traveling by rail is tremendously popular among college students because it's the cheapest, easiest way to get around," said Mitchel Thrower, president of The College Connection. "It is a bonding experience, a rite of passage for students traveling and studying abroad, and a great way to meet people."

Upon entering, students will receive a treasure map of Europe and a list of clues, plus a Rail Europe Adventure T-shirt. Each clue indicates a location or object that the participant must find and photograph, with the student appearing in each picture.

While some locations are easy to find, others will require some investigation and/or ingenuity.

For example, the student may be asked to find six blondes (male or female) in a couchette in Scandinavia, or to kiss a statue in a Belgian garden. Prizes will be awarded on the basis of artistic expression, humor, and photographic quality.

"The items have been carefully chosen to give the contestants the chance to see both famous cultural meccas as well as beautiful nooks and crannies of Europe that are off the well-worn tourist path," said Thrower. "We hope to encourage college students to have a creative and adventurous sojourn, and most important, to travel with an open mind."

Students can also enter the Photo Contest by submitting their snapshots of interesting, unusual, or humorous situations encountered on or near a train. The portfolios will be judged for composition, execution, and clarity.

In addition, students are encouraged to wear their Rail Europe Adventure T-shirts during the Scavenger Hunt. Designated spotters will award $20 in American Express Travelers Cheques to entrants seen wearing the shirt in or around American Express travel locations in Europe. Spotters will double the award for those students already carrying American Express Travelers Cheques when asked.

"American Express Travelers Cheques have been traveling abroad with students for 100 years, since the invention of the Travelers Cheque in 1891," said Amy McIntosh, vice president of marketing at American Express Travelers Cheques. "And we're excited to be part of a program that is encouraging this next generation of global travelers."

Students or parents who wish to register for "The Rail Europe Adventure" can write The College Connection, 19 Newtown Turnpike, Westport, CT 06880 or call (203) 847-2200.

Glastnost Ballet falls short of expectations

Review

by Rachael Scalf
Staff Writer

Despite various technical difficulties and some rather uninspired dancing, balletgoers were able to enjoy a few nice moments during the Glastnost Ballet last Thursday night at Byrnes Auditorium.

The Glastnost Ballet is a small troupe from the former Soviet Union currently touring the U.S. performing a program of duets from the traditional and modern repertoires. Most of its dancers are celebrated and accomplished soloists who have toured internationally and danced with such companies as the Bolshoi Ballet and the Kirov Ballet.

With a few exceptions, the program was awash with bland performances and stale choreography. A lack of energy was evident throughout most of the evening.

The dancers appeared to be tired even as they were warming up backstage half an hour before the curtain call. Due to its hectic schedule, the troupe is required to travel more than twelve hours by bus between destinations leaving the dancers with little time to rest before a production.

Audio trouble also plagued the ballet production. Throughout the course of the evening, two reel-to-reel tape machines broke down and a cassette tape recorder had to be used as a last resort. It is to the dancers' credit that they were able to arrive gracefully at their musical cues even as the music dragged and droned sometimes at annoyingly loud volume.

Thursday night's program was basically a "ballet sampler" that included several last-minute changes. Omitted from the program were such ballet favorites as a pas de deux from "Sleeping Beauty" and the "Black Swan Pas de Deux" from Tchaikovsky's "Swan Lake." Added was an adagio from "The Nutcracker" and a selection from "Giselle."

One of the better selections of the night was "The White Swan" from "Swan Lake," choreographed by Marius Petipa. The ballerina portraying the Swan Queen Odette, Tatiana Chernobrovkina, executed her birdlike movements with a gentle grace that was simply unforgettable.

Perhaps the most exciting and most moving portion of the ballet came before the intermission. A story of unrequited love, "Evening Dance," was sleek and bold. The feeling of unfulfilled longing was heightened by its musical setting by Schubert coupled with the Schiller choreography which included strong vertical lifts.

A final highlight of the performance was a scene from the ballet "Satanella." Some of the best energy and athleticism was seen in this colorfully choreographed piece by Marius Petipa.

Because the audience was treated to vignettes from such classics as "Swan Lake," "Giselle," a selection from "Don Quixote," as well as some exciting contemporary abstract ballet, the evening was not a complete waste of time. And since the Glastnost Ballet has a touring schedule that lasts for years, perhaps they will come to perform at Winthrop College again—preferably after having a good night's sleep.

Smith enjoys teaching biology

by Stephanie Nicholson
Special to the Johnsonian
After talking with Dr. Julian Smith, a Professor of biology at Winthrop, it is evident that he is definitely a lover of biology.

Dr. Smith attended Wake Forest University and majored in chemistry. He then went on to receive his Ph.D in zoology at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Afterwards, he taught at the University of Maine, where he was doing Post- Doctorate research.

Three years ago, Dr. Smith taught at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte and 102. He says that CIS would help freshman and he enjoyed teaching it.

Dr. Smith's hobby is biology, but he also enjoys tennis, squash, badminton, racquetball, and woodworking. He spends a lot of time chasing his 3 year-old son and 8 month-old daughter.

Smith says that he's happy at Winthrop because it is small and admission is very selective, but it is still large enough to do research. He says that the Biology Department is growing and he would like to see more people in Tri- Beta and the Biology Club.

Co-Op program offers student valuable job experience

by Jennifer Borash
Staff Writer

One of the special learning opportunities available to Winthrop students is the chance to work a co-op job for credit. Jeff Lambert is one student who took advantage of this opportunity.

An accounting major, Lambert was contacted by Professor Charles Alvis of the accounting department, who knew of his interest in computers. Lambert said he thought he would be working at an accounting job, but instead found himself working for the chemical division of Hoechst Celanese.

His job there was to work with a Lotus computer designing a spreadsheet to calculate emissions, a job formerly done manually.

While he did get paid for his work, Lambert has not yet received credit for the time spent on this project. One-hundred-fifty hours are required, plus a three page paper describing the co-op job. Lambert has submitted his paper, but there was a problem with the number of hours recorded.

Lambert said that although his job was not in accounting, he did enjoy the programming work. Hoechst Celanese is a local company, and the hours were flexible, so Lambert was able to work around his class schedule.

Lambert said it was a possibility that he would seek a future position with Hoechst Celanese.

"Hoechst Celanese is a good company, and I enjoyed working for them," said Lambert. "Things may develop, but right now I'm still trying to get credit for last semester."

Wendee Hembree: sports announcer of the future

by Shelley Canupp

Special to The Johnsonian

You don't often come across a girl that can rattle off baseball stats faster than most guys. But then, Wendee Hembree is not your ordinary girl.

Hembree, a senior at Winthrop, dreams of becoming a sports announcer.

"My hero is Harry Carey with the Cubs," says Hembree, a Mass Communication major who's hobby is learning baseball facts and figures.

Her father helps her by giving her periodical quizzes to see how much she knows about the sport.

"Sports announcers have to know everything about the sport," she says. "My dad has been a great inspiration to me."

Often called a "daddy's girl," Hembree says she adores her father who played minor league baseball and coaches high school baseball and football.

"I want to marry someone just like him," she says. "My parents have the ideal relationship."

Growing up in Woodruff, S.C., Hembree played basketball and cheered for the football team. She says she never was a tom-boy, she just liked sports. "I could sit and watch baseball all day," she says. "I enjoy watching more than playing."

Hembree's friends often envy her ability to talk to guys, but she says she could talk to a wall about baseball.

"Guys say they just don't find many girls they can talk to about baseball," Hembree says.

Who does Wendy predict will be number one this year?

"The Braves, of course! They have the ability and the will power to go all the way!" she says.

Saap likes Winthrop atmosphere

by Jennifer Phillips

Staff Writer

Name: Carlton Saap

Class rank: Junior

Major: Social Work

Hometown: New York City

A typical day in the life of Carlton Saap includes classes, working with children who have developmental problems in the Human Development Center and actively recruiting for National Student Exchange.

Carlton, himself, is part of National Student Exchange, coming from Buffalo State.

Carlton's reasoning for coming "downsouth" was to find a place to live after graduate school. He was slow in making the transition to Winthrop, but now he likes it so much he's considering transferring here.

Carlton said he likes the trees and architecture of Winthrop.

"It just feels Southern," he said.

Carlton said he would most like to change the passivity of the students here at Winthrop.

Some of Carlton's favorite things to do are jog, watch soap operas, and engaging in amateur psychoanalysis.

Little known facts about Carlton are: he's bilingual in Spanish, he doesn't have a New York accent and his father is a Baptist preacher.

His career goal is to be "a lawyer working in the public sector with disadvantaged juvenile delinquents."

Carlton's motto is: "I never judge a book by its cover."

Freud's Couch seeks session with Winthrop students

by Melanie Gustin
Entertainment Editor
"Freud's Couch" is finally here to clear the unconfused mind. You ask just what is Freud's Couch? It's nothing other than a couch Sigmund Freud had his patients lie on while psychoanalyzing their internal conflicts. No, actually, Freud's Couch is a wordy, upbeat band with a melt of many styles -- jazz, heavy metal, and rock. They're classified as having alternative sounding music.

Scott Collins, singer and guitar player for the band said they invented the name Freud's Couch because the music they perform "is therapy for our souls".

The lyrics give the message that you don't need to live up to anyone's expectations, but your own. You don't need to be the cover girl of a magazine or the Marlboro man. "This imagery only causes people to be unhappy and dislike themselves," said Collins.

"Freud's Couch" consists of four band members. Collins, who works at Winthrop as an audio visual coordinator, is from Boston, Mass. Jack Hanewinkel, who is the bass player and singer, is from St. Louis, Mo. Both Collins and Hanewinkel graduated from Oklahoma State and have performed in various bars throughout Oklahoma, Texas, and California.

John Thompson, the keyboard player, who is also from Boston, Mass., graduated from The New England Conservatory of Music. He is a trained jazz musician and has played with such jazz artists as Buddy Rich, John Schofield, and Lionel Hampton. The drummer, Dave Oder, who is from Charlotte, graduated from Appalachian State.

The four of them all moved to the Charlotte area at about the same time. They were looking to become part of a band and met through ads in the newspaper.

The band has been together for a little over a year and has performed in various cities across the Carolinas and Georgia. In Charlotte, they have performed at The New Millennium, The Double Door Inn, the Pterodactyl Club and the Milestone. They've also had a great deal of experience performing for the college crowd at fraternity parties and student unions on the college campuses of Duke, Wake Forest, USC, and Clemson.

"Freud's Couch has just finished doing the tracks for their first compact disc called "Sex and Big Words". The CD will be released, by the RTD Record Company of St. Louis, Mo. in early May.

The band will be making their debut in Rock Hill at Mannequins on Fri., March 27. Beginning at 9:30 p.m. opening for Freud's Couch will be the band Nipsy Russell Experience. Come relax and listen to a unique sounding band, where no two songs are alike. "Freud's Couch loves all creatures, great and small, come see our show," said Collins.

Search continues for head basketball coach

by Mary Frances Monckton
Editor

In the Jan. 22, 1992 issue of "NCAA News" Winthrop College ran an advertisement requesting applications for the head men's basketball coach position. The application deadline was Feb. 28.

Tom Hickman, chair of the search committee, said 128 applications were received. The committee has spent the last four weeks narrowing the 128 applicants down to approximately 12 candidates. Hickman said they are in the interviewing process now and hope to announce the name of the new head coach by April 1.

Once the 12 candidates have been interviewed, Coach Steve Vacendak and President Anthony DiGiorgio will meet with the committee to discuss the qualifications of each candidate. Hickman said Vacendak will recommend a candidate to the president for final approval.

At press time Vacendak could not be reached for comment.

The head coach's position is a full-time, 12-month appointment. The advertisement in the "NCAA News" listed the coaching responsibilities to include recruiting, budget management, scheduling, fund-raising, community relations, on-court teaching and coaching, and monitoring of student-athlete development academically and athletically.

The seven-member search committee includes: Dr. Jason Silverman, history professor; Dr. Wilhelmina Rembert, chair of the Department of Social Work; Kellie Thompson, student; Jack Frost, Sports Information director; Tom Hickman, associate director of Athletics; Taylor Glass, Winthrop personnel director; and Fred Faircloth, Eagle Club.

OSAP reports college drinking tragedies

December 1991

- The father of an intoxicated 20-year-old killed in a fall from a window of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity at Clemson University is suing the university, the fraternity and two downtown bars.

- A student of the University of Montana in Missoula has been convicted in the shooting deaths of two friends. After travelling to a gravel pit to drink beer, the youth shot his friends point blank and then torched the car they had ridden in.

OSAP's National Clearinghouse for Alcohol and Drug Information

Alcohol vs. Books

The typical college student spends more money for alcohol than for books !!!

OSAP, Alcohol Practices, Policies, & Potentials of American Colleges, 1991

- A 22-year-old Franklin and Marshall tennis player from Sweden was found unconscious in his dormitory room. He died in the emergency room of respiratory arrest with a BAC of .40. He had passed out after drinking in a friend's dormitory room.

- A University of New Haven student was discharged with vehicular manslaughter while intoxicated after his car struck a tree, killing one passenger and injuring two.

- At the University of Idaho, alcohol problems have become very serious. Over 80 percent of the Medical Center's emergency room cases are alcohol-related, and five students have died this fall in alcohol-related incidents.

OSAP's National Clearinghouse for Alcohol and Drug Information

College Students: Heavy Drinking

(5 or more drinks in a row within last 2 weeks)

L. Johnston et al, National Survey of High School, College, NIDA, 1992

- A Cal Poly fraternity member from San Luis Obispo, CA, suffered an acute alcohol overdose after a drinking game with a usually-fatal BAC level of .57.

- Binge drinking may be increasing among college students. While the 1990 national surveys show that 41 percent report having five or more drinks in a row, recent surveys increase this percentage to 52 percent at the University of Missouri and 56 percent at Keene State College (NH).

- Seven people were arrested for underage drinking at Marian College. One youth who was arrested for disorderly conduct, was also given his fourth underage drinking citation.

- Charges of rape against a University of Richmond student were dismissed when the victim testified that she was too drunk to know that she was being sexually assaulted and the defendant testified that he was so drunk that he did not realize at first that she was not consenting. The two were among a group drinking beer and grain alcohol in a dorm room.

embraces the Christian faith, it is ludicrous to expect him to adhere to its tenets. After his conversion, his sexual preference becomes a private matter between him and God and it is not our place to judge. Remember Matthew 7:1-6 and mind your own salvation.

Personally, I find gay sex revolting and I have a hard time imagining how anyone can enjoy it, but so what? What occurs between two consenting adults in the privacy of their bedroom is none of my business nor is it any business of the church or the state. Our society should keep its laws out of our sex lives. This country was supposedly founded on the ideals of liberty and equality, so how about we start showing a little of the tolerance we should be known for?

Or are we truly that scared of real freedom?
