A pathetic little story was told of a pupil in a St. Louis school who reported the circulation of a paper for subscriptions to a fund to pay the organist and a boy to blow the same.

W. L. Ellison, deputy sheriff, made a trip to Fulton. The Times of that city suggested that his business might demand the services of a County Court clerk and a preacher.

The U. S. Court at Memphis, Tenn., ordered the sale of the Paducah and Memphis Rail Road to satisfy mortgage bonds.

A quotation is made from the Paducah Herald saying, "The Murray Gazette comes to us this week clothed in a good paper, worthy of liberal support. We hope the good people of Calloway and surrounding counties will not let it suffer from want of patronage."

An I. C. train was blown from the track in Southern Illinois and several persons were injured.

J. R. Smith, of the firm of Smith & Bondurant of Paducah was a business visitor.

Ed Duguid went to Paducah on business for the firm of Hamlin & Nanny.

The paper announced that Dr. B. D. Smith, State Lecturer of the Patrons of Husbandry of Kentucky, would address the people of the County on June 25.

The marble club was regularly organized and met every afternoon in front of the clerk's office, to the annoyance of those who worked in that office.

F. H. Covington subscribed for several copies of the Gazette to be sent to friends.

Hons. W. J. Stone and Oscar Turner were to speak at the Court house on the following Monday—Court Day.

Dr. R. S. Coleman's horse broke loose from where he was hitched and scattered the contents of the Doctor's pill bags along the streets.

It was almost impossible for wagons to navigate the muddy roads from Murray to Tennessee river landings where tobacco was hauled for export and good that had been shipped to Murray merchants. Improved roads were unknown there then.

A copy of each of the two papers of Benton are on my desk. Thanks to Cleve Lovett who sent them. In addition to the news of interest to me which I find in them are references to some things which happened when I lived in Marshall county. One of which was a report on an election held at Bishop's Mill just east of Olive in which I served as clerk. That was before we had the Australian ballot system in Kentucky. The clerk had to write the names of all candidates for each office, and provided for that purpose. Voters came to the clerk who wrote their names on his book, called out the candidates for each office, and marked the vote as directed. When the election was over the officers certified the election results and took them to the County court house. The officers signing the report, mentioned were the following: D. A. (Bud) Lovett, L. Henderson, E. C. Ross and J. W. Holsapple. Bud Lovett was an uncle of Joe Lovett, of Murray, and father of Cleve Lovett who sent me the papers.

By the way, I have before me some copies of the Murray Gazette published in 1876, from which I glean the following:

Mr. J. G. Henstee, of Hollow Rock, Tenn., has been spending a few days in our county.

Mr. Lawson Boaz, who was for many years a citizen of this county, but who is now a citizen of Texas, is in our county visiting relatives and friends.

Mr. W. S. Bourland has completed a new residence and moved into it.

Prof. Brannock is very busy preparing his excellent school for the examination and exhibition that are to take place on the first and second days of June.

Misses Lucy Harding and Rubene Mathewson, called by the editor "Two of Murray's fairest daughters" visited the Gazette office.

Charlie Manning was building an office on the West side of the square adjoining the office of Dr. J. B. Sherwood.

John R. Schroeder had just hung out his shingle as a young lawyer.

Ben Briggs of the Mayfield Monitor, had a fight with a drunken Irishman.

A. C. Haley, formerly of Calloway, but then of Pulaski, Tenn., visited in Murray.

W. R. Sinclair, formerly connected with the Gazette writes in a letter from Weatherford, Tex., where he was local editor of the Weatherford Times.

W. J. Beale, of Shiloh, had been going on crutches for quite awhile because of an attack of rheumatism.

A lot of fine hogs were driven through the streets of Murray en route to the Tennessee River for shipment to market.

The death of John Kelso, a prominent citizen of the county, was recorded.

The Baptist church announced a "grand musical entertainment" to be given by the Union Sunday school in that church "for the purpose of raising money to pay a small deficit remaining unpaid on their organ, and to buy suitable music books for the school."

Among those taking part on the program were Mrs. Lizzie McGuffee, and Misses Mollie Eason and Laura Landrum, Messrs Tom Landrum and J. D. Gardner, all of Mayfield. W. L. Weathers was superintendent of the school. He publicly thanked the visitors for the entertainment.

F. C. Allen and J. N. Williams announced that they were going fishing.

A. R. Boone, of Mayfield, announced his candidacy for congress.

The death of Elijah Lamb near Conyersville was announced.

Some Early History

By JOHN WRIGHT HOLSAPPLE

My last communication closed with items from the Murray Gazette of 1876. I give a few additional from the same source as follows:

W. H. Hunter retired from the Fulton Times as one of the editors and proprietors. R. S. Murrell continued the paper.

The Kentucky Editorial Association was announced for June 7 at Danville. A new poem by H. P. Ditz of the Hopkinsville News Era was also announced.

A communique in South-Carolina reported the intermarriage of negroes and whites, saying they were communists and that they were neither Democrats nor Republicans.

Jim Melton was jailed at Murray. He had locked up a black man and his dog in the county bastille over night. Next morning the drunk man was sober and the dog was dead. It was indicated

Mr. and Mrs. Miller reside in their many friends at 1451 Bennett Ave., Flint, Mich.

Work on State Fair Progresses

Hobbies, Arts and Crafts Exhibits Should Interest All Officials Declare

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (Special)—Many professional painters and artisans started in the hobby classes at local and State Fairs. Developing a latent talent makes a hobby a pleasure, and their hobby became their livelihood.

In the art and craft section of the Woman's Department at the Kentucky State Fair, to be held September 9-14, will be literally hundreds of displays by potential and women's art.

According to Mrs. T. Byrne Roney, superintendent of Louisville, "Of extreme interest will be the rural display at a point where cotton, and wool rugs. Hooked rugs made of wool rugs, silk rugs or of yarn will be equally fascinating to the visitor."

But if it is ship models you prefer looking at, there will be oodles of them, together with original animal toys and specimens of inland wood. Of course, color design and workmanship are to be major factors in picking winners in these classes. Fair Manager Robert Jewell today said:

For boys and girls under 16 years of age, there will be cash prizes for the best State Fair poster in the scrap book showing the most original thought in compiling, there will be a first and second money prize.

If you want to see what is being done by some of the best photographers, the photograph exhibit for amateurs and professionals, will be the worth-while view. The amateurs will exhibit animal pictures and landscapes as well as portraits and their best examples of tinted work. The professionals have a wide variety of subjects, still life, portraits and animal life. It will be one of the outstanding exhibits at the new Kentucky State Fair.

Of course, this is only a small part of what is planned for entertaining the fair visitor. On Saturday night, September 7, a nationally known Barn Dance group will present a two-and-one-half hour show in the huge Horse Show Pavilion.

On Sunday there will be an all-day Dog Show sponsored by the Louisville Kratefants. It is expected at least 500 dogs will compete with the many cups and other prizes in this the outstanding show in the south. On the same day, there will be a hair-raising Rodeo and Thrill Show, at the Grandstand in the afternoon and at night. All the new rides and amusement de-

Murray College Will Start Fall Semester Monday, September 23

College officials predicted today that enrollments at Murray State College for the fall of 1940 would break the record enrollment of 1111 for the fall of 1939.

The calendar for the fall semester is as follows:

September 23—Monday
Registration of students

September 24—Tuesday
Classes begin

October 7—Monday
Last day to register for credit

November 28—Thurs.-Sat.
Thanksgiving recess

December 20—Friday
Christmas holidays begin at close of day's work

January 2—Thursday
Classes resumed

January 31—Friday
First semester closes

The September opening of Murray State College marks the beginning of the eighteenth year of the college, which opened September 23, with an enrollment of 236 students.

Murray State College is interested in the promotion of the religious life of its students. A careful checking of the college records shows that 876 of the 1121 students enrolled in the spring of 1940 were church members.

All graduates from accredited high schools will be admitted to the freshman class; all others must pass entrance examinations. There are no other entrance requirements.

There are four courses for the students entering Murray:

(a) Those preparing to become teachers, principals, supervisors, superintendents and school principals. These students receive a degree, either AB or BS.

(b) Those desiring a liberal arts degree, either AB or BS.

(c) Those desiring the degree of Bachelor of Music.

(d) Those desiring to prepare for the profession of law, medicine, dentistry, or theology.

There are five possible degrees conferred upon students finishing the required courses:

(a) Bachelor of Arts either with or without certification.

(b) Bachelor of Science either with or without certification.

(c) Bachelor of Science in Home Economics with certification.

(d) Bachelor of Music Education.

(e) Bachelor of Music.

The 13 departments open to students are: Agriculture, Biological Science, Commerce, Education, Fine Arts, Geography and Geology, Health and Physical Education, Home Economics, Language and Literature, Library Science, Mathematics, Physical Sciences, Social Science.

The faculty is composed of 77 teachers, some of whom are critic teachers in the Training School, who work with and help student teachers.

After graduation, the student receives assistance from the Placement Service. Murray to help him find a position. The service is free to all Murray students and graduates.

Many come to Murray State College not to get a degree, but to get a two-year elementary certificate. The Provisional Elementary Certificate is valid for three years in any elementary school.

Besides the regular classes at Murray, there are many extra-curricular activities. There is something for every body. The churches in Murray welcome all new students. They treat you as their own and students feel that Murray is their second home.

At Wells Hall, there is a student council, elected by the girls. The College News is the college paper, edited and published by the students of journalism under the direction of the instructor of journalism. In the spring of 1940, the College News won first place in the best all-around college newspaper in the state of Kentucky.

Murray supports inter-collegiate debate teams which have met debaters from the country and abroad, among whom were teams from Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, and London.

The Shield, college annual, is published by the Senior Class for the whole college.

The Student Organization is composed of students elected by the student body. The purpose of this organization is to unify and systemize campus activities, to increase and clearly define student character and initiative.

Every student is a member of this organization; it has administered the duties brought before it with the greatest efficiency.

One of the newest student organizations on the campus is the Robert J. Breckinridge Chapter of the Future Teachers of America, national organization fostered by the National Educational Association.

The musical organizations of Murray include the College Band, the Symphony Orchestra, a Cappella Choir, Oratorio Chorus, Men's Glee Club, Women's Glee Club, and smaller ensemble groups.

There are five scholarship fraternities at Murray State. They are: Beta Pi Theta, honorary French fraternity; Alpha Psi Omega, national dramatic fraternity; Phi Mu Alpha, honorary men's music fraternity; Sigma Alpha Iota, honorary women's music fraternity; Kappa Delta Pi, honor society in education.

The clubs in Murray hold an interest for everyone. At Murray, there are 27 clubs with fairly large membership.

Students usually take an interest in intramural sports and recreational activities. At this school there are intramural teams in basketball, basketball, volleyball, handball, softball, track, tennis, badminton, boxing, and wrestling.

The Thoroughbreds at Murray get better every year. During the 1939 football season, the 'Breds scored 113 points with the opponents scoring only 100. In the last two years the 'Breds have played 132 games, scoring 227 points with the opponents scoring only 961.

The Thoroughbreds have done as well in basketball. During the basketball season for 1939, Murray won 959 points and the opponents won only 800. In the last 15 years, during 237 games, the 'Breds have scored 11,045 points to the opponents' 7,031.

Another important feature of Murray State is the Alumni Association.

The Ramparts We Watch

To be patriotic is a virtue to be cultivated; but patriotism without the tempering influence of wisdom leads to folly. A set like Falstaff, graced to be a mouthpiece for Shakespeare's brilliance, declared with lasting and fitting candor that "the better part of valor is discretion."

In considering patriotism, we should not confuse the term with madness. Perhaps the most stable and valuable form of patriotism in America today is that manifested by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Who are the ones who criticize the stand of Mr. Lindbergh as being unpatriotic?

- The ones who want war.
The ones who are too old to fight.
The ones whose positions are such they would be exempt.
The ones who are prejudiced by lies, which they accept foolishly.

What does Mr. Lindbergh stand for? Substantially, this non-interference in the affairs of European governments and the establishment of an impregnable defense. Without American interference, there is no nation that would want to invade America, and with an impregnable defense, there is no combination of nations that could invade her if it wanted to.

What is there unpatriotic about a policy that would maintain our national unity and peace? Lindbergh proposes a logical solution. For that logic, that acute and courageous patriotism, he is branded a Fifth Columnist.

What do the ones who brand Lindbergh a Fifth Columnist propose? They propose first, to send all the planes, ammunition, and destroyers that America can produce to England—to lend all help "short of war". The leaders who two months ago coined the phrase "short of war" are now going the whole way and are advocating war itself. In a manner of speaking, those who are against Lindbergh are FOR war.

What is the result of war? Shambles and ruin and national despair; the end of Democratic hopes.

What are the results of peace? National security, happiness, the maintenance of the Democratic ideal, a prosperous God-loving people. Lindbergh advocates peace. Those who chastise him advocate war. Which is the real patriot? Which is the Fifth Columnist?

National Safety

(Written by Leslie R. Fustum, Murray College, and published in the Lion Magazine for August.)

Our Nation's Safety. What a challenging slogan! Especially right now, when each Lion is thinking so keenly of his own country, the factors involved in national safety demand careful consideration.

Naturally, when war threatens—as it does threaten all of us—we think of armaments which will command the respect of the world, and the fear of those who would like to dominate us. Armaments, for self preservation, and for world betterment.

It is just as important that we consider the conduct of life within each of our nations. It would be fatal to point all our defensive guns outward when the house itself is full of enemies. The need for house cleaning is urgent. We name some of the inner destructive powers:

- Organized dishonesty
Dishonest practices
Law Evasion—the American sport of "getting by"
Thumbing one's eye through life at the expense of others
Social and individual indifference
Political and economic injustice
Disregard for the rights of others
Lack of spiritual dynamism
What can the individual Lion do against these dangers? He can be a sane, law-abiding citizen. He can be positive in his attitude toward national loyalty. He can help direct the thinking and the activity of youth. He can uphold the community morale, and put into effect a moral and spiritual program. He can be a good neighbor and recognize his neighbor's right to live.

In the last analysis, the sincere and energetic practice of the principle of brotherly love is any nation's greatest safeguard.

The Heroism Hidden

The entire city is shocked over the tragedy which took the lives of Pat Parker and Louis Kelly Monday afternoon. Two youths swimming alone in an abandoned city pit in a isolated field were drowned.

Although sympathy is of little material benefit, the personnel of this office, as well as the entire population of Murray joins the bereaved parents in sorrow at the loss of these two splendid lads.

What might have happened at that abandoned city pit? Perhaps one tried to save the other. Whatever happened, the silence of time should the voluntary heroism that must have taken place. We may never know. But we may believe deeply and confidently that those boys' splendor in dying was nobler than the most in living.

Prophetic Poem Said to Be Five Centuries Old Reprinted

The following poem, in the possession of Mrs. G. A. Murphy, and published in the July, 1940, issue of the Baptist periodical Faith and Life, Plant City, Fla., is said to have been written in England by a woman who lived there 500 years ago.

The poem's title is "Mother Shipton's Prophecy", and supposedly is in prophecy of what would occur in the latter days, presumably the present age. It follows:

"MOTHER SHIPTON'S PROPHECY IN THE YEAR 1449 A. D."

And now a word, in uncouth rhyme, Of what shall be in future time. For, in these wondrous far off days, The women shall adopt a craze To dress like men and trousers wear And cut off all their locks of hair. They'll ride astride with brazen bows, As witches do, on broomsticks now. Then love shall die and marriage cease, And nations wane as babes decrease. Then wives shall fondle cats and dogs, And men shall live the same as hogs. And carriage without horses shall go, Distaster fill the world with woe. In London, Primrose Hill shall be, Its center hold a Bishop's See. Around the world men's thoughts shall fly, Quick as the twinkling of an eye. And waters shall great wonders do, How strange and yet it shall come true. Then upside down the world shall be, And gold found at the root of tree. Through lowering hills proud men shall ride, No horse or mule move by his side. Beneath the water men shall walk, Shall ride, shall sleep, and even talk. And in the air men shall be seen In white, in black, as well as green. A great man then shall come and go, For prophecy declares it so. In water iron then shall float, As easy as a wooden boat. Gold shall be found in streams and stone. In land that is as yet unknown, Water and fire shall wonders do, And England shall admit a Jew.

The Jew that once was held in scorn Shall of a Christian then be born. A house of glass shall come to pass. In England—but alas! Alas! A war will follow with the work Where dwells the pagan and the Turk. The stars will lock in fiercest strife, And seek to take each other's life. When North shall thus divide the South, The Eagle builds in lion's mouth. Then tax and blood and cruel war Shall come to every humble door. Then, when the fiercest fight is done, England and France shall be as one. The British olive next shall twine In marriage with the German vine. Men shall walk beneath and over streams—

Fulfilled shall be our strangest dreams. All England's sons that plow the land Shall off be seen with book in hand. The poor shall now great wisdom know. Great houses stand in falling woe. All covered over with snow and hail, In fifteen hundred twenty-six Build houses light of straw and stick. For then shall mighty wars be planned. When pictures seem alive with movements free. When boats like fishes swim beneath the sea. When men like birds shall scour the sky, Then half this world, deep drenched in blood, shall die.

But those who live to see this through, In fear and trembling shall do. Fly by the mountains and the den, To boss the forest and wild fern. For storms will rage and oceans rise. When Gabriel stands on sea and shore, And as he blows his wondrous horn, Old worlds shall die and new be born.

THE PUBLIC VOICE

Contributions to this column upon topics of interest are always welcome. They do not necessarily express the views of this newspaper.

To Editor of Ledger & Times:

Once again there is dire danger of America's involvement in an European war which has, in the course of its insensate and repulsive fury, consumed practically the whole of Europe. Once again the safe and trite suggestion that the United States should enter the conflict for the purpose of "saving Democracy and civilization" is heard on every hand. This and like phrases were the stock in trade of the agitators for American entrance into the War of 1917. The Allies won the war with America's assistance and now the most rabid Europeanists admit that the realization of democratic idealism and its special brand of "civilization" is further from the grasp of Europe of today than in 1917. Then we heard: "Stop the Kaiser." Now it is "Stop Hitler."

The cause is indeed weak that is unable to invent a new slogan for mass murder.

What is the turmoil in Europe about anyway? Why they are, as usual, fighting for liberty. The British are trying to restore the liberty of the Central European nations from German domination; while the Germans are seeking to restore the liberty of the German people from the shackles of Versailles. One is sadly reminded of Madame Roland when, on the way to the guillotine to sacrifice her head in the cause of "liberty," she lifted her eyes to the statue of liberty with the exclamation: "Oh, Liberty, what crimes are committed in thy name!"

Assisting Britain "short of war" is merely a round-about method of Europe of today to sacrifice her individuals, can't openly take sides in a controversy without making themselves a party to it. It can't be a question of helping England and "staying out of war." It must ultimately become "if the policy is followed to its logical conclusion, a question of whether we are actually willing to get into the war if such action becomes necessary for the salvation of Europe." The director says: "Any other foreign policy would be that of isolation and that is outmoded in 'Modern America.'" The director says: "The black-out of peace for all time since wars among the crowded, dynamic populations of the Old World are, and have always been, perennial affairs."

The issue in Europe is sharply drawn. The British are attempting to restore the conditions of the Versailles Treaty, even to the point of "destroying the German people." To use Duff Cooper's phrase, while Britain has suffered a change in the European status quo for the purpose of establishing German dominance in Central Europe, Hitler and the other dictators in Europe, as well as from the Nazi and Fascists in Philadelphia. RIBALD ATTACKS

A certain type of writers continue their gross perversion of facts, and venomous ribald attacks on President Roosevelt. Not a single utterance, not a single act of the President escapes the most bitter criticism of their twisted and perverted minds. They can see no good in any thing he has done. Every law made by Congress is to them, as black and corrupt as a coal pile at midnight in Egypt. Yes, Roosevelt was drafted. From the farms, from the hills and valleys, from the cross roads, from the work shops, from the common laborer, from honest business, from the teacher, lawyer, doctor, from 92 per cent of the Democrats, and from every nook and corner of the United States came the cry: "Give us Roosevelt, the greatest humanitarian, and one of the greatest statesmen who ever sat in the President's chair to lead in the awful crisis through which we are now passing!"

The "indispensable man" has existed in the past, and why need we Washington was indispensable to the Continental Army. Jefferson to the Declaration of Independence. Benjamin Franklin in the courts of France, Monroe for the Monroe Doctrine. Jackson at New Orleans. Daniel Boone for the wilderness. Kit Carson for Freedom's scout, and scores of others who were indispensable for the tasks assigned to them.

The Mountain has been in labor for three months and after many political doctors had been called in consultation, and after great deliberation, and after great soothing syrup and easing powders had been given, the Mountain, by a desperate, convulsive effort, brought forth a squawking mouse. The mouse ran around squeaking: "We are opposed to explosive utterances." This brought cheers from Hitler, and the other dictators in Europe, as well as from the Nazi and Fascists in Philadelphia.

May I inform the mouse that all good men explode against

Thoughts on WAR and PEACE

Without going into technical details regarding the importance of Latin-America to us, it is enough to say that by careful planning and wise analysis of the economic situation in this hemisphere we would be able to make up in this hemisphere far the losses in trade which we are suffering as a result of the war abroad.

Latin-America and the Coming Election

If American elections were waged on issues of foreign policy instead of domestic issues, it is possible that instead of hearing of public utilities, farm relief and unemployment in this presidential campaign, we would hear of the activities of President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull in regard to Latin America.

War is futile. All the miles of oceans that separate us from Europe where war is being fought, cannot drown out or submerge those words.

War is futile. It is a grim hoax on the people made to sacrifice for it, a killer of ideals as well as of men, a robber of the very freedom it pretends to uphold; a destroyer of the civilization it purports to protect.

No one knows what new miseries the present war will inflict upon the world, but no one knows what new revolutions they will breed. No one even seems to have a clear idea of just what peace will bring, for when the confused peoples in warring countries ask for an explanation of war aims their confused leaders give them the fuzziest kind of answers.

If peace comes quickly enough, maybe that peace will be one that will really tend to prevent future wars. That's why we here in America should hope for the war to end soon—to end before we, too, succumb to the insanity.

about her own age making his way toward her table. "You look lonesome. May I join you?" he asked politely and a bright smile flashed across his face.

"Me? Stock exchange," he answered sipping his drink thoughtfully, and Dixie did not see the quick gleam in his eyes. "Oh, really?" she said very interested. She trusted this man.

He liked her. He had singled her table to sit at when there were so many more much better looking women, (or should she say girls?) than she was. Suddenly an idea flashed into her mind. She said again, "Are you? Then perhaps you can help me. I want you to invest some money in stocks for me. You can be my agent, for of course I know nothing about stocks. Will you?"

"Why of course," he accepted readily. "Nothing could please me better than to do something for you." "Thank you," she said. "Oh, by the way, I told you my name didn't I?" he asked suddenly. Dixie Madison was embarrassed. "Well, that didn't matter either. Yesterday it had, but now it didn't. She was going to be an old maid."

The thousand dollars didn't matter. She had plenty yet. Even the ring didn't matter so much. The paper had said a "pretty young woman." Well, that didn't matter either. Yesterday it had, but now it didn't. She was going to be an old maid.

Well, after all, she thought, it's an old family custom. "Dixie Madison. I am of a very old English family." "Marshall Dupint began to laugh. "So?" he said, "you are of the family that loves old maids?" "Well, they don't exactly love them but they're always there," she answered flushing. Dupint laughed loudly. Then he became serious.

"Madame," he said, leaning across the table and grasping her hand. "I am asking you to break the old custom and become Mrs. Marshall Dupint instead of Miss Dixie Madison." "What do you say to that?" Dixie was startled. Of all things that could happen right after she had decided to be an old maid, this was the worst.

"Why, Mr. Dupint?" she flutted nervously, searching for her compact. "You must give me time to think it over. I—uh—uh—uh—really couldn't say right now." "All right, suppose we have dinner tomorrow here, and you tell me then?" he suggested. "And now do you want to give me that money?" "Oh, yes of course, I had forgotten," she amended, opening her purse and taking out a check book. She wrote a large check and placed it in his hand. "May I see you tonight?" he asked helping her put her coat on.

"Of course," she said and they walked out into the street. At her apartment door Marshall Dupint took Dixie's hand in his. "Good-by, my dear," he said and put his arm about her. And because she couldn't very well help it and because she really didn't care to prevent it, Dixie let him kiss her. He pressed her hand very hard and then let it go slowly. "Good-by," she said. In her room next day Dixie Madison again surveyed her reflection in the mirror. She brushed her dark hair and tied a scarlet ribbon about her head. After all, why shouldn't she stop being an old maid. And Marshall Dupint was so handsome. So very handsome, and even if she was supposed to be an old maid, the old custom couldn't go on forever.

She went to the phone to call him up and talk with him. He had given her his phone number and address. The maid's voice answered her, saying that Mr. Dupint was not in.

Dixie got ready and seated herself on the sofa to wait for Marshall. Time for dinner came and went but still no Mr. Dupint. Six o'clock that afternoon and Dixie had called him up four times and cried each time in anger because he was not in.

At length she went down and bought a paper. The headline caught her eyes. A dangerous criminal had escaped from the pen and was now somewhere in France. The paper stated that he had been seen in the Ritz Cafe the day before with a pretty young woman, and had seen her home. And then he had checked out of his hotel and disappeared.

And then at the top of the page was a front and side view of Marshall Dupint. But there he was called Hermann Komroff. Dixie tore the paper into bits and began to cry. "Now she understood," Hermann Komroff, alias, Marshall Dupint, had been in need of money. She had given him, yes given him—one thousand dollars. But why had he taken her hand and held it so long? He must have liked her a little of course.

She held up her hand and looked at it darkly. It was smooth and soft and white, really nice to hold. But wait. Something was missing. It looked bare. Then suddenly she understood why Marshall had held her hand. He had deliberately stolen a very old and valuable heirloom ring she had worn. She began to cry again. But then suddenly she was her old self again. She went to the mirror, tore the scarlet ribbon in half, removed all her lipstick and rouge and took off her dinner dress.

She was going to be an old maid. The thousand dollars didn't matter. She had plenty yet. Even the ring didn't matter so much. The paper had said a "pretty young woman." Well, that didn't matter either. Yesterday it had, but now it didn't. She was going to be an old maid.

Well, after all, she thought, it's an old family custom. "Dixie Madison. I am of a very old English family." "Marshall Dupint began to laugh. "So?" he said, "you are of the family that loves old maids?" "Well, they don't exactly love them but they're always there," she answered flushing. Dupint laughed loudly. Then he became serious.

CHURCHES

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES

Sunday, August 11, 1940
The Methodists of Murray have established a splendid reputation among the churches of the Paris District by paying quarterly every item of the church budget. If we are to maintain this wonderful record it will be necessary for some of our members to be very generous, and for all of them to cooperate with the stewards, in order to be able to report OUT IN FULL at the third quarterly conference on Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. We are still far short of the amount necessary to pay in full at this time.

Bring your offering Sunday morning or turn it over to your stewards before Sunday afternoon. At the morning worship hour, 10:30 o'clock, Mr. Walter J. Hoshal, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of the State of Kentucky, will speak for us and immediately after the close of the service the stewards are called to meet to make final plans for the quarterly conference.

At 7:30 o'clock, the hour of the evening service, the pastor will preach and all are invited to the service. Again the attention of our people is called to the Memphis Conference Caravan, which will arrive in Murray on Saturday afternoon, August 24, and remain with us through Friday night, August 30. This group of leaders offers classes for both adults and young people, and many should take advantage of it to enlarge their possibilities of Christian service.

The Sunday-school at 9:30 is for all the members of the family and the young peoples' meetings at 6:45 might provide opportunities for Christian development for your boys and girls.

The regular services of the church will be maintained all through the summer months at both the morning and evening hours, and our people are urged to attend these services regularly. All visitors and strangers are cordially invited to meet with us.

Reports are that Mrs. I. J. Wilson, who is now in Detroit with her children, is doing very nicely following an extended illness. We wish for her continued improvement in health.

Purveyor Route One
Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Merrell and little son of Centralia, Ill., were the week-end guests of Mrs. Merrell's parents Mr. and Mrs. Burton Boyd and children, besides Raymond, Smith, Almo "circuit rider" and in "town" Saturday.

Almo also called with Clarence Francis, Church of Christ minister, to hear me tell if "Ole Eagle" is awfully popular in Calloway and also where.

Clarence Dodd, driving his car at about 80 miles per hour, ran off the 41-foot wide and 8 ft high levee near Coldwater river bridge.

The auto caught fire and went up in smoke. It alarmed the whole neighborhood. If a runaway horse and buggy was going even 20 miles an hour, it would be unreasonable and unthinkable. We need a law to put the speed limit for autos at only 15 miles an hour.

Laura Sutter sent word by Naomi Mills, that she picked a tomato weighing one pound and a half. It built up a heavy rain on July 31. I did NOT—so nothin' from nothin' leaves nothin'.

Several of this community were in Paris Saturday.

Clovis Boyd and son were guests of Mrs. Alice Boyd Saturday. Mrs. Boyd says it is better at this writing.

Stella Gossip

Voted early Saturday morning at Kirksey, then to Murray, with Hugh Gingles, his son at the "wheel". Saw Boyd and Ralph Wear in Ledger & Times office, also saw Mrs. W. J. Jennings of the West Kentuckian at the Court-house.

Miss Audie Fowlwell, now teacher at Dasher College, Georgia, was in town. She was once a "cox" for the Ledger & Times at Faxon under the non-de-plume of "Al". I saw Mrs. Walter Jackson, mother of Mrs. Taylor, best piano player in Calloway. I'll bet she could play Star Spangled Banner on my violin.

Ed Lovins, out Concord (Devil's Pulley) was given a flint rock Indian bow and arrow spear. An Indian from ambush shot a white man with that arrow head which was not damaged. But alas the white man failed to rally. The Devil has quit preaching in his pulpit at Concord and is now preaching at Golden Pond, over "between the rivers". Of May, tell Paw to come a-running!

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Dossy and son and daughter of Texarkana, Ark., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Felix Worley, Esther and Chauncey. First time Felix's sister has been back "home" in 14 years.

Across the River

Can't write very well for my finger has a blister just where the fountain pen rests. How's this for hot weather! I can think of no more ideal location than going off to some shady nook where a cool, clear brook trickles over the pebbles, and there rest while the rushing world goes by.

"Build-Up" Important Protector of Women

A weak, unenriched condition often enables functional dysmenorrhea to get a foothold; this leads to much of woman's suffering from headaches, nervousness, and other periodic discomfort. CARDUI's principal help for such distress comes from the way it usually stimulates appetite; increases flow of gastric juice; thus aids digestion; helps build energy, strength, physical resistance to periodic pain for many.

PAVE ALL STREETS WITH CONCRETE!

- 1 Every street demands a gritty, non-skid surface for the protection of motorists and pedestrians. 2 At night you need a pavement with high visibility. 3 Safety also calls for a pavement that is free from chuck holes, ruts and bumps... and stays that way with minimum maintenance. 4 You want a pavement that drains quickly... that is easily cleaned and stays clean... no depressions to catch dirt. 5 You want a pavement that makes the whole neighborhood look modern, prosperous, attractive.

Concrete... and only concrete... completely meets all of these specifications. For complete pavement facts write to PORTLAND CEMENT ASSOCIATION 610 Merchants' Bank Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

TO AVOID ISOLATION

Bad weather means added loneliness and isolation to many folks living in the country without the convenience of a telephone in the home. Why remain cut off from friends and relatives and the rest of the world when it is so very easy and inexpensive to have a telephone? Think what a joy it would be to every one in the family, especially the children, to be able to talk to folks down the road a piece, or miles away.

It pays to have a telephone

Well, the main event of the season is over now in Stewart County. The votes are counted and if any one lost any votes, it isn't easily recognizable by the looks on wife faces. Mr. B. B. Lewis, the present school superintendent, is the lucky man for another term.

KENTUCKY GOES TO THE WORLD'S FAIR

KENTUCKY visitors have found the long distance telephone call demonstration at the Bell Telephone Exhibit, New York World's Fair, (1) one of the most interesting in the exposition.

One of the first free calls of the year was awarded to young Jimmie Gaul of Newport, (2) who reported to his mother that a hitch hike trip to relatives in Michigan had strangely enough landed him at the World's Fair.

The telephone building has many other interesting features. F. F. Haseman, and Henry Turzaz, Jr. of Paducah, (4) are shown before appearing on the audition stage and Robert and Helen Smith of Louisville, (5) are examining the panelboard display that demonstrates the dial type of telephone apparatus.

Miss Carman Will Assume State Post

Miss Mary Clark Carman, daughter of Prof. and Mrs. A. Carman and a graduate of Murray State College in the class of 1940, has been notified by Earl Mayhew, director of Farm Security, of her appointment as Assistant Home Management Supervisor with headquarters in Georgetown, Ky.

Radio and light waves travel at exactly the same speed—186,000 miles per second, according to the Better Vision Institute. Sound waves which differ basically from light and radio waves, travels at only one-fifth of a mile per second.

HIGHER FERTILITY KEY TO BIG CROPS ON KENTUCKY FARMS

CHICAGO—It's the extra bushels per acre a Kentucky farmer harvests that spell the difference between making a profit, breaking even or his season's work, or finishing "in the red." "This is true whether he is growing corn or wheat—potatoes or oats—or any other crop.

"His secret of success is relatively simple. In addition to practicing sound farm management and selecting good seed, he is a firm believer in commercial fertilizer containing nitrogen, phosphorus and potash, and he applies it in generous quantities. His experience has demonstrated to him that fertilized crops are of better quality and higher yield. He has found, too, that both these qualities are dependent on a sustained supply of plant food."

Tennessee Valley To Expand With Plane Promotion

NEW YORK, Aug. 8—A corporate consolidation which will join an important maker of military planes and a well-known commercial aircraft concern, and which will bring a big expansion of plane building in the Tennessee Valley area, was announced Wednesday by Vultee Aircraft, Inc. and Aviation Manufacturing Corporation.

Vultee will take over the Stinson Aircraft Division of Aviation Manufacturing and plans an immediate expansion of the latter's plant at Municipal Airport, Nashville, Tenn.

Aviation Manufacturing Corporation is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Aviation Corporation, and the latter owns about 60 per cent control of Vultee. The price to be paid for the Stinson properties, which also include a parts plant at Wayne, Mich., is $2,168,000 shares of Vultee, valued at present market prices at about $2,115,000.

Stinson has previously produced only commercial, trainer and observation types of planes, while Vultee, whose main plant is in Los Angeles County, Calif., has concentrated on fighting ships.

The announcement said: "Extent of the ultimate expansion at Nashville will depend on the future course of events, but it is probable that present facilities will be enlarged immediately to three or four times the present area."

Employment Now About 500 The present floor space is 180,000 square feet, and employment about 500.

However, it was learned that eventually, Vultee expects to build a plant, which with equipment and tools will have a value of $6,000,000 to 7,000,000 and may employ 6,000 to 7,000 persons. Such a development, it was said, will be dependent on the rate at which Government plane orders are released.

Twenty-three Todd county farmers marketed 406 lambs on the Nashville yards at $7 each.

Kentucky Farm Notes

Magoffin county's banner lime-stone and phosphate year—this has been adopted as a slogan by a county committee.

Roger S. Litterford, Campbell county, has filled her gilo with heat cut at an immature stage and ensiled with molasses.

Letcher county farmers plan to replace crimson clover in their rotations with vetch, used instead of clover.

Ivan F. Pedigo, Monroe county, added 1,000 pounds of muriate of potash to a 6-acre field to be used for alfalfa.

According to a survey by county committee, Powell county's corn crop is the best of the past 10 years.

Yields ranging from 35 to 55 bushels per acre of barley are reported by many Carter county farmers.

Calloway county cotton producers estimate that 85 per cent of the crop was planted from treated seed.
