Plans Completed For Inauguration Of Lowry Lectures

Plans have been completed for the inauguration Feb. 18 of the annual Clifton Sigsbee Lowry Distinguished Lecture in the Humanities series at Murray State University.

The series, sponsored by the College of Humanistic Studies at Murray State, honors Dr. C. S. Lowry, professor emeritus and for 43 years a member of the economics, philosophy and political science faculties.

Dr. Forrest C. Pogue, a 1931 graduate of Murray State and internationally known World War II historian, will be the inaugural speaker, speaking at 10:15 a. m. in Lovett Auditorium on "George C. Marshall—the Qualities of Greatness."

Marshall was chief of staff of the Army during World War II, and Pogue, who has written a four-volume work on the general's life, is recognized as the foremost living authority on the general's career.

In addition to serving as director of the George C. Marshall Research Foundation and executive director of the Marshall Library in Lexington, Va., Pogue also was named last year as director of the newly-established Dwight D. Eisenhower Institute for Historical Research in the National Museum of History and Technology of the Smithsonian Institution in Washington.

In 1954, Pogue published "The Supreme Command," the official account of Eisenhower's operations in Europe in 1944-45 as part of the Army's World War II History Series. The first volume of the Marshall biography was published in 1963, "Education of a General: 1880-1939."

The other two published Marshall volumes are "Ordeal and Hope, 1939-1942," and "Organizer of Victory." The fourth volume, virtually complete, is expected soon to be published.

Pogue also will be the speaker at a 7 p. m. dinner in the Waterfield Student Union Building at which time he will deliver "A Tribute to Clifton Sigsbee Lowry." It will follow a reception in Dr. Lowry's honor at 5:30 p. m. in the lobby of Ordway Hall.

Dr. Lowry has long been an integral part of Murray State tradition. He joined the faculty in 1925, three years after the institution was founded, and taught here until his retirement in 1968.

Keith Letterman Wins Award For State's Top Producing Jersey Herd

You won't get him to tell you about it, but Keith Letterman has got a lot going for him.

Letterman is rather modest about his achievements, but in just two years, he has taken a far below average Jersey cattle herd and turned it into the top producing herd in the state.

Last week, he received the award for having the top producing cows in the state, with a yearly DHIA rolling herd average of 12,852 pounds per cow per year. The award was presented at the Fourth Annual Kentucky Dairymen's Conference, held last week in Louisville.

Even though this is the first time the award has come to Calloway County, that is still not the amazing part of the story.

Just two short years ago, before Keith took over, this same herd had a production average of just over 6,000 pounds per cow—half the figure that won him the award!

What's the secret? Well, it's kind of complicated, and kind of simple. Letterman started his climb, which was his first "solo" experience with dairy cows, by "close culling and living with them," as he puts it.

The award winning average was compiled with just 41 cows, while two years ago the herd was made up of 77 cows. Keith began his strict culling operation, and has wound up with only the best cows, the ones that will produce the most milk.

He is now steadily increasing his herd, but is still keeping strict standards about which cows are allowed to remain in the best producing herd in the state.

Another secret to his success is his meticulous attention to detail. Feeding is considered a science by most dairy operators, but Keith is even more particular than most. He feeds all silage, twice a day, in the winter, with soybean meal once daily. He also feeds about five pounds of quality hay per cow per day. In the summer, the cows graze on high quality pastureland.

County Agent Ted Howard pointed out that "With today's breeding results, it has gotten to the point that management is 75 per cent of any dairy operation."

Letterman's criteria for culling is complicated, but gets down to one basic premise: Either the cow is producing, or she's gone. First calf heifers must milk above 20 pounds per day or they are gone. The older cows must give at least 25 pounds.

The highest single-day record at the Letterman farm last year was 88 pounds, over 10 gallons!

To put the astonishing figure in perspective, the average peak for a Jersey is about 50 pounds, and the 88 pound mark would not be unimpressive for a Holstein, a substantially larger breed.

Young Letterman has made all his accomplishments without buying any more stock, which is also no small accomplishment.

The Letterman operation won the state award over stiff competition, too. The first runner up was Happy Valley Farms, in Danville, which is operated by the wealth of the Proctor & Gamble firm. The Danville farm has all the most modern equipment available, making one wonder what kind of results Keith would get with that kind of backing.

Tribute To Two Murray Women To Feature Mayor Of Paducah

Paducah Mayor Dolly McNutt will be the featured speaker when the community pays tribute to Mrs. Clara W. Humphrey and Mrs. Lucy K. Lilly at Murray State University Monday, Feb. 24.

Mayor McNutt, serving the final year of her term as the first woman mayor in Paducah history, will deliver the address following a buffet dinner to begin at 8:30 p. m. in the ballroom of the Waterfield Student Union Building.

Both Mrs. Humphrey and Mrs. Lilly, teachers at Murray High School, were recipients of high professional recognition in December of 1974. Mrs. Humphrey was named Kentucky Teacher of the Year, and Mrs. Lilly was presented the Distinguished Service Award of the National Association of Vocational Home Economics Teachers.

Mrs. Humphrey has taught English at Murray High 19 years, and Mrs. Lilly has spent 15 of her 22 years as a home economics teacher at Murray High.

The public is invited and encouraged to attend the dinner and program saluting Mrs. Humphrey and Mrs. Lilly. Tickets are $3 per person and may be reserved by calling the Office of Information and Public Services at Murray State (762-2798).

Campus Lights Audience To See Old Tradition With New Twist

When the curtain goes up on "Campus Lights 1975," the audience that turns out for the student-produced musical comedy at Murray State University will see an old tradition with a new twist.

Bruce Boone of Henderson, senior director of the show, calls the 38th annual production to play in Lovett Auditorium Feb. 13-14-15 "a change of pace with a variety show flavor instead of the usual Broadway-type format."

He explained that the show will have a continuing theme but that plot will not be emphasized as much as the variety of music. Scenes from the 1920s to the 1970s will feature music from each decade.

"About 20 musical numbers are involved in the show," Boone added, "ranging from solos of the Murray Men and the Bugle Girls quartets to a 40-voice chorus and a 35-piece band."

Boone and John Goode, a Cadiz sophomore who is assistant director, head a company of about 150 students involved in putting on the show. They said the different approach this year evolved from work sessions of the student writers and others involved in planning.

"Really the idea was to plan a show that appeals to everybody," Boone continued, "so we have music from each era since the school was founded. And kids should enjoy it too since there is nothing to offend and some funny scenes they can understand."

Curtain time is 8:15 p. m. for each of the three performances.

One of the oldest and best-known campus musical productions in the country, "Campus Lights" is written, performed and directed by students. Local chapters of two professional music fraternities—Sigma Alpha Iota for women and Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia for men—sponsor the (See Campus, Page 10)

Rights Of Women To Be Discussed In Meeting At University Thursday

A public meeting, sponsored by the Kentucky Commission on Women, will be held at Murray State University Thursday, Feb. 13, for the purpose of determining the needs of women.

The evening meeting, scheduled from 7 to 9 p. m. in Room 206 of Roy Stewart Stadium, is one of a series being held across the state to gather information and to determine if existing legislation dealing with the rights of women is being observed and enforced. A similar meeting was held in Bowling Green last Nov. 7.

Thursday's program will be directed by Mrs. Carol Smith, Frankfort, executive director of the KCOW, and will include a panel discussion followed by a question and answer period.

In addition to Mrs. Smith, others on the panel will be: Mrs. Marie Abrams, chairperson of the Kentucky Commission on Women; Dr. Lilli Alice Akers, University of Louisville; Don Overbey, Murray attorney; a member of the Kentucky Commission on Human Rights and legislators from across the West Kentucky area.

"Murray State University is delighted to respond in an affirmative way to the needs of women in this region by making University facilities available and through joint sponsorship of this meeting," said Dr. John Lindauer, dean of the College of Business and Public Affairs at Murray State.

Mrs. Penny Warren, a member of the marketing faculty, is the campus coordinator for the meeting, to which the public is invited.

"Local business people, employers and representatives of the University are especially invited to this meeting," she said, "as it offers an excellent opportunity to establish a positive relationship with the participants and to ask questions on an informal (See Women, Page 10)

Nothing wrong with saying "I like you"

DEAR ABBY: I am writing about the number of girls who have written to you saying: "How can I get a guy interested in me without having it look like I'm chasing him?"

First off, I am a 21-year-old college man who would like some reasonable answers to the following questions:

1. Why can't a girl ask a guy out for a date? As a male, I would welcome girls who find me attractive enough to ask me out. Believe me, Abby, I'm fairly attractive myself and get my share of dates, but I see nothing wrong with girls being on an equal basis with men when it comes to the dating game.

2. Why can't a girl be the aggressive one if she so chooses?

3. Why is it "wrong" for a girl to pursue guys?
I.W.: BRONX, N.Y.

DEAR I.W.: Where have you been? Plenty of girls ask guys out. More girls ask guys "over," however, because there is no tab to pick up, which takes the pressure off both of them.

And many girls ARE aggressors. They don't apologize for it. Nor should they. All relationships should be based on honesty. And what's more disarming than having someone say "I like you"? It doesn't matter who says it first. Girls are people, and people shouldn't play games. They should express themselves honestly, naturally and without embarrassment.

DEAR ABBY: In a courtship between a woman 65, and a man 67, who should offer the first kiss?

Please don't think this is a joke. It isn't. I am a widow and he is a widower and we are getting very close to where I will need the answer to the above question.

If he should make the first move in that direction I want to know if I should act coy, or should I respond? Or am I the one who should make the advances to let him know I am not adverse to a romantic relationship? (I am not, but I don't want to push for it.)

Women used to sit back and let the men make all the overtures, but perhaps women's lib has changed all that. Or has it?
PROPER BUT PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: If you feel like kissing him, go ahead and kiss him. He'll probably meet you halfway and beat you to the finish line.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I live next door to my son and his wife. They have only one child, a lovely 17-year-old daughter. She goes with a very nice 18-year-old neighbor boy.

My son and his wife went skiing over the weekend and left their daughter home alone—unaccompanied. She's a good girl, but I think it looked bad. (I wasn't even asked to look in on her.)

We live in the kind of community where everybody knows everything that goes on, so I told my daughter-in-law that leaving her young daughter like that might cause the girl to be talked about, even though her behavior was the best. She told me to mind my own business!

Was I wrong to say what I did, Abby? I was only warning her that gossip could start. So far I haven't heard anything, but I am 63 years old and I've seen innocent girls fall victim to vicious gossip. Was I wrong?—CONCERNED GRANNY

DEAR CONCERNED: You meant well, but obviously your "concern" was not appreciated. Don't offer any more unsolicited advice, Granny.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20c) envelope.

A reader, glad to have our corn-syrup cake recipe, has asked us to give this one.
1 1/2 cups light corn syrup
2 egg whites
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

In a small saucepan cook corn syrup over medium heat, stirring often, until boiling; continue cooking without stirring to 240 degrees on a candy thermometer or until syrup spins a 2-inch thread. Meanwhile in a small bowl, at high speed of electric mixer, beat egg whites and salt until stiff; with mixer at medium speed, gradually beat in hot syrup; continue beating at high speed until soft peaks form — 5 minutes; beat in vanilla. Use as filling and frosting for two 9-inch cake layers.

DOWN goes the temp. UP goes your electric bill

Even with your conservation efforts, your electric bill may be higher than expected.

One reason is electric heat, and you're using lots of it to keep warm, even with the thermostat set at 68 degrees.

Another reason is the electric water heater. It has to work hard to overcome the cold.

Instead of summer's diet of sandwiches and salads, the family now wants big, hot meals. So there's more use of the range and other kitchen appliances.

And what about the little electric space heater? Using it for anything other than a quick "chill chaser" is economically foolish.

If you don't already have the free "Conserve Energy" booklet, ask us for it. It has dozens of ideas to help you conserve electricity better than ever before.

Letters To The Editor

Deplores Sign Destruction

Dear Editor:
As a citizen of Murray and a graduate of Murray High School, I feel it my responsibility to write a letter concerning the destruction of the signs along incoming highways in Murray.

These signs were erected because a great majority of Murray people care about their schools. Year in and year out Murray High School students individually, and in organizations win more honors than any other high school in Kentucky.

The reason for this is the spirit, hardwork, determination, and endless effort that these students put so unselfishly into their school work. Although the signs proclaiming Murray as the home of this great high school have been torn down—the spirit and winning ways of M. H. S. will never be torn down. This spirit lives in my heart and in the hearts of many other proud people in this community.

Thank you for giving me this opportunity for expressing a viewpoint that means very much to me.

Sincerely,
Tim Swain

Try The 'Up Escalator'

Dear Editor:
"Up The Down Escalator" was the title of an article I read recently by Mrs. Edith K. Stanley, National President of Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Although this was telling about a group of foolish boys taunting one boy into trying this, only to have a security guard point him to an escalator going up if he wanted to go up. The application is good. She speaks of other foolish stories.

Forty years ago American people were made to believe they could make their way up to prosperity on a crowded "down escalator" as has been proven by repeal of 18th Amendment. President Roosevelt said he trusted in the good sense of American people not to bring upon themselves the curse of excessive drinking of intoxicating liquors to the detriment of health, morals and social integrity. He promised saloons would not return, but they did.

Through the years much advertizing on billboards and news media has led to corrupted morals and increased health problems. The escalator is going down with more than 9,000,000 alcoholics, and that many more problem drinkers, creating more and more crimes of various kinds. Sad to say many of the drinkers and some alcoholics are children nine and ten years of age and many youths.

The President and Congress put the nation on the "down escalator," and it is about time a security guard of concerned citizens lead the way to the "up escalator." Our Woman's Christian Temperance Unions all over the world are fighting the liquor traffic, and trying to prevent our children and youth from becoming alcoholics by teaching them to never take that first drink. Join us in this fight to help our nation fight this its number one drug problem—Alcohol.

Sincerely,
Lorene Clayton,
Hazel, Ky.

"Low Down" FROM THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

EXPLAINS GASOLINE RATIONING SYSTEM

SENATOR HUGH SCOTT (Pa.) "... At the request of the Federal Energy Administration, I ask unanimous consent that an "analysis of Gasoline Rationing" be printed in the Record." (A few excerpts follow):

Analysis of Gasoline Rationing
Each licensed driver in the country would receive an equal monthly allotment of coupons entitling him to purchase 36 gallons a month at the controlled price. These coupons could be freely traded or sold. The coupon market would permit those drivers with needs greater than those represented by the monthly allotment to purchase additional coupons from those who use less than their monthly amount.

Commercial users would receive coupon allotments equivalent to 90 percent of their consumption during the 1973 base period.

For that limited class of users for whose special needs the coupon resale market is not reasonable solution, 3 per cent of the coupons would be set aside and distributed by the state. This distribution would be based primarily on emergency or hardship.

Coupons would be picked up in person at the Post Offices by each eligible individual. They will be invalidated at the pump at the time of purchase, and deposited by retailers with banks in a special coupon account. Gasoline deliveries to suppliers will be made to retailers only for amounts equivalent to coupons collected.

It is expected that the coupons will sell for about $1.20 per gallon. Hence, for those who must purchase more than their basic ration, the effective price of gasoline (pump plus coupon price) is estimated at $1.75-gallon.

Gasoline rationing while it may limit consumption in the short run, makes no contribution to our mid-and long-run goals of energy independence, because it provides no incentives for increasing supply. (Space will not permit the full text of the gasoline rationing system. Your congressman can supply you with the full text.)

CRUMP GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

The Federal government and the state governments should make every effort to encourage independent drillers to seek new oil fields.

There is no shortage of public transportation in Washington or any of our state capitals. With gasoline rationing however, it's doubtful that any law makers will be discovered riding a bus to work.

Let's Stay Well

Teen-age Suicides And Runaways

By F.J.L. Blasingame, M.D.

Suicide among teen-agers is a growing public health problem. Authorities agree that such suicides are rising in frequency. The adolescent runaways also are increasing in numbers.

These events apparently reflect the degree of unrest in our society. "Adolescents function like barometers," observed John Childs, M.D., assistant professor of psychiatry at the University of Washington School of Medicine, in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association. He added, "When things in society are bad, they tend to let us know it."

The suicide rate is higher among male youngsters than female and greater in white males (9 per 100,000) than other males.

While accurate information is difficult to obtain on the number of attempts at suicide, the figure is much higher than for actual suicides. One study showed 220 attempts for every fatality among 1,100 cases of self-poisoning.

According to Joseph Teicher, M.D., professor of psychiatry at the University of Southern California School of Medicine, attempts at suicide by teen-agers should not be viewed as single irrational acts. Rather, "The attempt to commit suicide is the culmination of a long process of isolation, alienation, and loss of peer and family support"—also reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Teicher feels that a profile of the child who is likely to commit suicide can be drawn and includes no one in whom to confide, multiple separations from parents, absence of a parent from the home and the other parent harassed, serious illness in the family and a history of quarrelsomeness, truancy, or running away.

Runaways concern families and authorities at all levels of government. Over one-quarter of a million arrests were made of teen-agers in 1972, and the number likely has further increased. Contributing factors are many and include both parents working, growing rate of divorces, general attitude of permissiveness and frustration, and lack of influence of home, schools, and churches.

As do grown persons, children need to be wanted, loved, and have responsibilities and be occupied in wholesome work or sports.

The problems of youth need the attention of our best adult minds to help devise attempted solutions — and soon.

Q. Mr. O.L. wants to know whether a blunt, firm blow to the front of the chest can cause a coronary occlusion.

A. Though rare occurrences, such injuries have been reported as resulting in a coronary occlusion.

Q. Do persons who are light in weight need less protein than the heavyweights?

A. Yes. The adult who weighs 175 pounds requires about 35 per cent more protein than one who weighs 125 pounds. The protein requirement is based largely on weight, regardless of sex. Women who are pregnant or who are breastfeeding their babies require extra protein, however.

NEW LANTERN HANGER—Put any ball-type lantern on this hanger for better light utilization and protection of trees from accidental burns. Adjustable chain included with unit fits trees, limbs or posts. More information is available from The Coleman Company, Inc., Wichita, Kansas 67201.

Camper's Help Needed To Stop "LANTERN BURN" Damage To Trees

There are many ways sportsmen can aid in the conservation of America's vast natural resources. A new one has been brought to light by The Coleman Company, Inc., of Wichita, Kansas, the nation's largest manufacturer of outdoor recreation equipment. About a year ago, it was called to the company's attention by federal park administrators that camping lantern burns can cause damage to trees. As a result, the company sponsored a study of the problem through the forestry division of Southern Illinois University and the Tennessee Valley Authority, in a number of campgrounds in the Land Between the Lakes in Kentucky. The study revealed that the intense heat from camp lanterns hung on nails or short limbs kill the cambium layer, the life-line of trees, just under the bark. This will eventually show up as a "cat-faced" scar, usually about eye-level height. The wound or burn serves as a source of entry for insects and disease which may result in the eventual death of the tree. It further found that burn scars are more prominent in older campgrounds, which have been in existence for a number of years, and are more noticeable on hardwood trees. It was also learned that few campers notice the burn damage scars, and even fewer realize what caused them. "After several days of observation by an SIU team of graduate students, who conducted the study in three different Land Between the Lakes campgrounds, it was calculated that approximately one-fourth of the campers using lanterns placed them on trees," stated Richard L. Cotrell, chief of the TVA's Land Between the Lakes planning staff. "Many campers drive nails and similar objects into trees to which to hang lanterns, which also cause damage to the trees," he added. The study revealed the encouraging fact that campers are concerned about conservation, and use of limbs and nails for the hanging of lanterns was nil after they were informed of the damage that can result. The study was also used to experiment with a simple lantern hanging device developed by the Coleman firm, which is now offered on the market at leading sporting goods, hardware and mass merchandise stores. The hanger can be adjusted to fit any size tree, and allows the lantern to be placed at any desired height. It holds the burning lantern about four inches from the tree, which the survey showed, is more than adequate to insure that heat from the lantern will cause no damage. The problem can also be eliminated by making a hanger with a piece of wire, suspending the lantern between two stationary objects with a piece of wire or rope, or by simply setting it on a picnic table, non-burnable object or the ground.

Fisherman's Corner      By Ken Dean

Last weekend my fishing partner and I caught some slab size crappie over in Barkley Lake. We fished out in the Crooked Creek area long the ledges. Using crappie rigs fished about ten feet deep, we had about three hours of good fishing. Gary Crum, who had never fished out of a boat, was my fishing partner. For someone who had cut his teeth fishing off a creek bank up in Ohio, he really showed some class as a crappie fisherman. After catching his first fish, he fished like an old pro. At first, it appeared that we weren't going to do very well since the wind was blowing about ten miles per hour. But we found a sharp bend in an old creek channel which dropped off from a depth of about ten feet down to eighteen feet. The ledge there was covered with old stumps, a haven for crappie looking for some tasty shad. The band on the depth finder dial gave an indication of what was in store for us during the next couple of hours. As I was explaining to Gary the basic principles on which the depth finder operated, he gave a quick jerk on his crappie pole and pulled out a nice slab crappie. Then the wind began to slow down, the sun tried to peek through the overcast sky, and much to our delight, the crappie really began to feed on our minnows. At times we had five or more crappie lying in the bottom of the boat waiting to be put on the stringer. Several times we hooked fish simultaneously. Later, Gary said he figured we'd catch maybe a dozen fish and that he'd probably catch two or three. As it turned out, we kept 42 crappie, most of which ranged from three-quarters of a pound to one-and-a-half pounds. Gary caught about half of them — much to his surprise. While we were out on the lake, we saw some other fishermen who had some good catches of crappie. Jim Almond and a fishing partner caught about forty crappie. Bob Alsup Sr. and Bob Jr. caught about fifty nice crappie out of one of their favorite spots. Jerry McConnell and Bob Lowe Jr. caught several nice crappie along a ledge near where we were fishing. Fishing will continue to pick up and will reach a peak with the spring crappie run. As the water temperature increases, schools of crappie will move along the tributaries leading into shallow water. However, they will stay and feed along the ledges until the water warms to sixty degrees or warmer before they move into the shallows to spawn later in the spring. Until then, the best way to catch crappie is to fish along the old creek banks with minnows or jigs. Fishermen with boats equipped for typical Barkley or Kentucky Lake fishing can locate these old creek channels, find stumps and underwater brush along the creek edge, and catch scores of crappie. Experienced crappie fishermen fish out of a boat rigged especially for fishing the ledges. An aluminum jon boat or vee bottom boat equipped with a depth finder mounted on the bow, two seats side-by-side in the front, and four or more pole holders just in front of the seats, is the typical rig one might see if he were to go out crappie fishing in the spring. The metabolism of crappie increases as the water temperature rises. When this happens, the crappie must increase his intake of food accordingly. Later, when much energy must go into the reproductive process, crappie must feed heavily. When this occurs, usually in early March and lasting until about the end of May, crappie can be caught in great numbers as they begin to school up and forage on schools of shad and other baitfish along the ledges. When the weather warms up, a free crappie seminar will be held for beginning crappie fishermen in this area. Details on location, date, time, etc. will be printed in this section in a week or two.

Don Rye and Ken Dean show a stringer of 30 crappie taken on a recent trip to Barkley Lake.

Bowhunter's Bag

By Barry William Drow
 Try Turkey!
 The spring of the year offers the local bowhunter the opportunity to test his hunting skills against a game species that outclasses even the white-tailed deer in many areas. Hunting the wild turkey with bow and arrow is made even more difficult because almost all the odds are in the animals favor. The turkey can see extremely well and will spot the slightest movement foreign shape unless the bowhunter is well & completely camouflaged. Numbers are also in the turkey's favor because there are not many of them, which makes profitable hunting areas more difficult to find. The bowhunter who hunts the wild turkey will have to be ready to put in several hours of homework before he ever gets into actual hunting. The wild turkey mates in the spring and the gobbler will readily come to a mating call produced by the bowhunter. Sounds simple on first reading, but it is here that any idea that the task is simple will soon be dropped. The turkey hunter may well find a bird and fool him with a call or two, but let him make a wrong sound and the turkey will split faster than it takes to say his name. Turkey calling is difficult to learn and takes a good deal of practice in order to make good calls consistently. One of the best methods of learning to call is to work closely with a hunter who knows how to call turkeys. If you can't find someone to help, a record of turkey calls can be purchased from a company such as Penn's Woods Products of Pennsylvania. Here is where practice comes in. Stay with the recording until you can duplicate the yelps and clucks that the wild turkey makes. There are many types of turkey calls on the market. Box calls, slate calls, mouth calls, yelpers, and they all work. All that is required is practice in order to get the tone correct and to be able to reproduce that tone consistently. One of my friends, Joe Pat Futrell, practices constantly with his mouth blown calls. Joe makes sounds just like the record that I bought. I'll bet that if someone woke Joe up in the middle of the night he would find two of Harold Knight's calls hanging around his neck. Joe Pat is also a dude that always has time to answer questions about turkey hunting and he sure makes sweet music on his calls. Another useful item for the bowhunter who wishes to take on the challenge of the wild turkey is a how to book. Such a book entitled, Hunting the Wild Turkey, by Tom Turpin, is available from Penn's Woods. This book will explain a great many points about turkey behavior, sign, yearly cycle, and activities. In short, this little book will help the novice bowhunter-turkey hunter to find out just what it is that he must do in order to bag a fine gobbler during the coming spring season in the Land Between the Lakes. The bowhunter who plans to hunt wild turkey should plan to use the same equipment that he would carry into the field when he hunts deer. Turkeys are strong and will test even a well placed load of shotgun pellets. The bowhunter must rely on the well placed, razor-sharp arrow to take his bird. The best spot to aim for is the wing butt. An arrow placed at this point, where the wing joins the body, will destroy the turkey's ability to fly and will place the arrow in the all important heart-lung area for a quick kill. Finding areas in which to hunt turkey may prove difficult for the beginning bowhunter-turkey hunter. The turkey leaves quite a bit of sign in an area and he is a creature of habit like a deer. The idea is to do as much pre-season scouting as possible. Most turkey hunters spend time looking for signs of turkey activity such as tracks, droppings, and lost feathers. Turkey also scratch up the forrest floor looking for food. These scratchings are telltale signs of turkey activity in the area where they are found. Camouflage is another factor that a bowhunter-turkey hunter can't overlook. Complete camo is the only way to fly! The wild turkey has the sharpest eyes in the woods and anything less than complete camouflage will leave the hunter at the mercy of the turkey's superior eyesight. Turkey hunting is a super challenge anyway you look at it. The bowhunter who wants to hunt turkey will surely be into a different bag. He will find the turkey ready to test his patience to the limit. The experience of turkey hunting is difficult and rewarding and a perfect way in which to continue bow hunting into the spring. Don't let that bow gather dust until next deer season. Accept the challenge and come out for turkey this season. Good Luck and Good Bowhunting!

Tournament Tales

By Eddie Cloes

Last week I was severely reprimanded by Gary Marquardt for not telling the truth, so I am making a retraction right now. Last week I stated that Gary was pulling so hard when the line broke that he fell out of the boat and skipped across the water like a flat rock. Well, that's not true...he actually sank to the bottom like a big fat rock and I pulled a Johnny rescue and jumped in and probably saved his life.

Now to the meat of this week's tale which is juicier than a mouthful of Red Man.

Rodman Pool, Lorraine caught a 13 pounder (an honest 13 pound bass). Paul's best effort was a mere 10 pounder. It is enough to make you break your pole.

Unfortunately Lorraine being the lady she is, I have nothing but praise for the way she has handled this feat. Aside from a few well deserving snide remarks about Paul's ban runner she has been quite the professional. I asked Lorraine how she handled this monster after she set the hook. She said, "Oh, when you have a fish that large on you just lean back, hang on and let him do whatever he wants to." To my knowledge this is the largest anybody around here has brought back. This fish will soon be on display at Jerry's Restaurant.

Its bad enough what happened to Paul, but I am not sure than Jeanette Storey didn't hit the camel in the back with a 2 by 4.

On a recent trip to Lake Okeechobee, Charles Story took Jeanette on her first bassin' trip. You are right about it — she beat him like you would a sack full of snakes. Over the course of two weeks, Jeanette caught a bunch over 5 pounds, several in the six pound class and two over 7 pounds. On the last day when she caught one of her 7 pounders we were about a hundred yards away. To be quite honest I thought a snake or an alligator had crawled in the boat from the commotion. Other than this one incident Jeanette was very much the lady. She did tell me that the biggest fish Charles caught weighed 4 pounds.

No matter how big the fish, a woman is a woman. When I asked for the pictures of Lorraine and Jeanette with their fish, both ladies protested that they just couldn't when the pictures were taken with their hair in a mess. So when I finally get the pictures make sure you look at the fish and not the messy hair. Should have pictures next week.

Hunting for game with a 200 year old double barrel flint shotgun is a thrill and challenge that only a few have experienced in the 20th century. Those who own such a firearm and hunt with it become accustomed to the temperamental nature of the flintlock — its occasional flash-in-the-pans, hang fires, etc., enrich the hunting experience. Its not the

To bring down a fine game bird as it darts in, around, and over a hedge row, or to see a rabbit roll head over heels after being hit with 1 1/4 ounces of shot propelled by 3 grams of black powder made in Europe over 2 centuries ago, is a memory that any hunter would cherish and savor for a life time.

A person who has respect for the capabilities of firearms and understands the nature and habits of wild game could be classified as a successful hunter, but in addition, if he respects the rights of man and adheres to the regulations set down by the Fish and Wildlife Commission, it is for sure he can be called a Sportsman. ## Four Wheeling

By Hamp Brooks, Jr.

There have been several inquiries recently from different folks who want to know just what options to include on a four wheel drive rig. As most of you already know an option is something extra above standard that costs extra money. A new automobile may have a base price of $4000 but after you add power steering, power brakes, radio, automatic transmission, air conditioning, and radial tires the cost moves up to $5500. Most options available for four wheel drives from the factory are about the same as found on passenger cars and how much you want to spend pretty much determines how much you can get.

Before we get much further into this, let me say that everybody has their own likes and dislikes. I may be wild about the air conditioning in my rig while somebody else wouldn't have one in his if you gave it to him. My comments today are not meant to imply that a fellow doesn't have a good rig just because he does not have one certain option, nor, on the other hand do I mean to degrade a 1942 Willys-army Jeep as being overequipped because it has an automatic headlight dimmer.

Let's assume you have acquired a four wheel drive rig and you're just as proud of it as a three pound laying hen sitting on a ten pound egg. It really doesn't matter whether it's a twenty year old battered and bruised CJ3B Jeep or a brand new shiny $7000 Chevrolet Blazer. (Dwain Taylor sells some for a lot less.) At any rate it's four wheel drive and you're proud of it. When you "Love" a rig like you're going to love this one then your natural inclination is to bestow upon it numerous improvements and additions to make it even better for your use. Don't take that word love too lightly. Just about any dedicated four wheeler is pretty much hung up on his rig. A four wheel drive soon becomes a member of the family. If you don't believe it ask my wife or two sons or any other family that owns and uses one.

There is at present a forty million dollar business going in the way of add-on accessories for four wheel-drives. For the most part these are items that just about anybody with a limited amount of mechanical ability can install at home in their own garage. The following are my suggestions as to which of these you really need. These suggestions are prefaced by nearly twenty years of four wheeling but that still doesn't mean they are beyond reproach.

The first thing I feel any four wheel drive needs is a ROLL BAR. This is a sturdy metal pipe bent and welded and anchored solidly to the vehicle. It will support the entire weight of the rig if it ever happens to get upside down. This does not happen often but on the other hand neither does death in your lifetime. Get a good one and mount it properly. Make sure you include seat belts at the same time.

The second item I recommend is only about seven dollars but your wife or guest will treasure it. It's called a CHICKEN BAR or GRAB RAIL depending on where you get it. It fastens to the dash and provides a good place for the front seat passenger to hold onto when the going gets rough. Remember that you have the steering wheel to keep you more or less in your seat on a rough trail.

Thirdly, get a Citizens Band TWO WAY RADIO. If you every really use your four wheel drive you are going to find a place that Ma Bell didn't and the closest human being may be a good ten miles away. You can get further in two minutes on a radio than you can get in two years on foot. Even a tiny three channel CB will do but the twentythree channel units are a lot better and don't cost too much more. Prices will run in the hundred dollar range. Half of the fun on a trail ride is listening to other folks talk about you; the other half is being able to talk back.

Fourth on the list: Take those pitiful, skinny looking things the factory calls tires off your vehicle. BIG TIRES AND BIG WHEELS get you where the action is. They also give you confidence about a three hundred per cent boost in the bad places. In addition they do a lot less damage to the terrain you drive across. This does not mean that four wheel drive won't go on standard wheels and tires. It goes better on big wheels and tires. Besides the benefit of increased flotation you normally gain about one to two inches of ground clearance. Another important benefit is that folks who see your rig will constantly tell you that you can go anywhere! It is best to make this addition shortly after you get your tax refund or Christmas bonus. Two hundred and up is normal but it is a good investment for your rig.

While you refigure the family budget for these four items your local four wheeling reporter needs to get lost for awhile. See you next week and happy four wheeling.

DEFINITION "LOVE" — Relationship between man and Creator, Relationship between man and wife, Relationship between man and child, Relationship between man and beast, Relationship between man and four wheel drive rig. Opposite of relationship between your reporter with camera and fellow four wheeler who is "stuck" or "hung".

DEFINITION "HUNG" — A condition not uncommon in the old west where a fellow did not normally make the same mistake twice. A condition of being suspended in some manner. A condition occurring about the time you pay $3000 for a shiny $300 lemon. A condition not to be confused with STUCK which is always the other guy. A condition of great white Blazers on top of small piles of gravel (courtesy Hooks dictionary). A condition of big blue Jeep trucks who place front axle on hard ridge and wheels in mid air filled with very slimy mud (courtesy Sims dictionary). A condition of certain newspaper writers who happen to engage reverse instead of second gear in the presence of several large mouthed witnesses. This normally happens on steep hills.

NEW LANTERN HANGER — Put any ball-type lantern on this hanger for better light utilization and protection of trees from accidental burns. Adjustable chain included with unit fits trees, limbs or posts. More information is available from The Coleman Company, Inc., Wichita, Kansas 67201.

Camper's Help Needed To Stop "LANTERN BURN" Damage To Trees

There are many ways sportsmen can aid in the conservation of America's vast natural resources. A new one has been brought to light by The Coleman Company, Inc., of Wichita, Kansas, the nation's largest manufacturer of outdoor recreation equipment.

About a year ago, it was called to the company's attention by federal park administrators that camping lantern burns can cause damage to trees.

As a result, the company sponsored a study of the problem through the forestry division of Southern Illinois University and the Tennessee Valley Authority, in a number of campgrounds in the Land Between the Lakes in Kentucky.

The study revealed that the intense heat from camp lanterns hung on nails or short limbs kill the cambium layer, the life-line of trees, just under the bark. This will eventually show up as a "cat-faced" scar, usually about eye-level height.

The wound or burn serves as a source of entry for insects and disease which may result in the eventual death of the tree.

It further found that burn scars are more prominent in older campgrounds, which have been in existence for a number of years, and are more noticeable on hardwood trees.

It was also learned that few campers notice the burn damage scars, and even fewer realize what caused them.

"After several days of observation by an SIU team of graduate students, who conducted the study in three different Land Between the Lakes campgrounds, it was calculated that approximately one-fourth of the campers using lanterns placed them on trees," stated Richard L. Cotrell, chief of the TVA's Land Between the Lakes planning staff.

"Many campers drive nails and similar objects into trees on which to hang lanterns, which also cause damage to the trees," he added.

The study revealed the encouraging fact that campers are concerned about conservation, and use of limbs and nails for the hanging of lanterns was nil after they were informed of the damage that can result.

The study was also used to experiment with a simple lantern hanging device developed by the Coleman firm, which is now offered on the market at leading sporting goods, hardware and mass merchandise stores.

The hanger can be adjusted to fit any size tree, and allows the lantern to be placed at any desired height. It holds the burning lantern about four inches from the tree, which the survey showed, is more than adequate to insure that heat from the lantern will cause no damage.

The problem can also be eliminated by making a hanger with a piece of wire, suspending the lantern between two stationary objects with a piece of wire or rope, or by simply setting it on a picnic table, non-burnable object or the ground.

Last weekend my fishing partner and I caught some slab size crappie over in Barkley Lake. We fished out in the Crooked Creek area long the ledges. Using crappie rigs fished about ten feet deep, we had about three hours of good fishing.

Gary Crum, who had never fished out of a boat, was my fishing partner. For someone who had cut his teeth fishing off a creek bank up in Ohio, he really showed some class as a crappie fisherman. After catching his first fish, he fished like an old pro.

At first, it appeared that we weren't going to do very well since the wind was blowing about ten miles per hour. But we found a sharp bend in an old creek channel which dropped off from a depth of about ten feet down to eighteen feet. The ledge there was covered with old stumps, a haven for crappie looking for some tasty shad.

The band on the depth finder dial gave an indication of what was in store for us during the next couple of hours. As I was explaining to Gary the basic principles on which the depth finder operated, he gave a quick jerk on his crappie pole and pulled out a nice slab crappie.

Then the wind began to slow down, the sun tried to peek through the overcast sky, and much to our delight, the crappie really began to feed on our minnows.

At times we had five or more crappie lying in the bottom of the boat waiting to be put on the stringer. Several times we hooked fish simultaneously. Later, Gary said he figured we'd catch maybe a dozen fish and that he'd probably catch two or three. As it turned out, we kept 42 crappie, most of which ranged from three-quarters of a pound to one-and-a-half pounds. Gary caught about half of them — much to his surprise.

While we were out on the lake, we saw some other fishermen who had some good catches of crappie. Jim Almond and a fishing partner caught about forty crappie. Bob Aisup Sr. and Bob Jr. caught about fifty nice crappie out of one of their favorite spots. Jerry McConnell and Bob Lowe Jr. caught several nice crappie along a ledge near where we were fishing.

Fishing will continue to pick up and will reach a peak with the spring crappie run. As the water temperature increases, schools of crappie will move along the tributaries leading into shallow water. However, they will stay and feed along the ledges until the water warms to sixty degrees or warmer before they move into the shallows to spawn later in the spring. Until then, the best way to catch crappie is to fish along the old creek banks with minnows or jugs.

Fishermen with boats equipped for typical Barkley or Kentucky Lake fishing can locate these old creek channels, find stumps and underwater brush along the creek edge, and catch scores of crappie. Experienced crappie fishermen fish out of a boat rigged especially for fishing the ledges.

An aluminum jon boat or vee bottom boat equipped with a depth finder mounted on the bow, two seats side-by-side in the front, and four or more pole holders just in front of the seats, is the typical rig one might see if he were to go out crappie fishing in the spring.

The metabolism of crappie increases as the water temperature rises. When this happens, the crappie must increase his intake of food accordingly. Later, when much energy must go into the reproductive process, crappie must feed heavily. When this occurs, usually in early March and lasting until about the end of May, crappie can be caught in great numbers as they begin to school up and forage on schools of shad and other baitfish along the ledges.

When the weather warms up, a free crappie seminar will be held for beginning crappie fishermen in this area. Details on location, date, time, etc. will be printed in this section in a week or two.

Don Rye and Ken Dean show a stringer of 30 crappie taken on a recent trip to Barkley Lake.

Bowhunter's Bag

By Barry William Drow

Try Turkey!

The spring of the year offers the local bowhunter the opportunity to test his hunting skills against a game species that outclasses even the white-tailed deer in many areas. Hunting the wild turkey with bow and arrow is made even more difficult because almost all the odds are in the animals favor. The turkey can see extremely well and will spot the slightest movement foreign shape unless the bowhunter is well and completely camouflaged.

Numbers are also in the turkey's favor because there are not many of them, which makes profitable hunting areas more difficult to find. The bowhunter who hunts the wild turkey will have to be ready to put in several hours of homework before he ever gets into actual hunting.

The wild turkey mates in the spring and the gobbler will readily come to a mating call produced by the bowhunter. Sounds simple on first reading, but it is here that any idea that the task is simple will soon be dropped. The turkey hunter may well find a bird and fool him with a call or two, but let him make a wrong sound and the turkey will split faster than it takes to say his name.

Another useful item for the bowhunter who wishes to take on the challenge of the wild turkey is a how to book. Such a book entitled, Hunting the Wild Turkey, by Tom Turpin, is available from Penn's Woods. This book will explain a great many points about turkey behavior, sign, yearly cycle, and activities. In short, this little book will help the novice bowhunter-turkey hunter to find out just what it is that he must do in order to bag a fine gobbler during the coming spring season in the Land Between the Lakes.

The bowhunter who plans to hunt wild turkey should plan to use the same equipment that he would carry into the field when he hunts deer. Turkeys are strong and will test even a well placed load of shotgun pellets. The bowhunter must rely on the well placed, razor-sharp arrow to take his bird. The best spot to aim for is the wing butt. An arrow placed at this point, where the wing joins the body, will destroy the turkey's ability to fly and will place the arrow in the all important heart-lung area for a quick kill.

Finding areas in which to hunt turkey may prove difficult for the beginning bowhunter-turkey hunter. The turkey leaves quite a bit of sign in an area and he is a creature of habit like a deer. The idea is to do as much pre-season scouting as possible. Most turkey hunters spend time looking for signs of turkey activity such as tracks, droppings, and lost feathers. Turkey also scratch up the forest floor looking for food. These scratchings are telltale signs of turkey activity in the area where they are found.

Camouflage is another factor that a bowhunter-turkey hunter can't overlook. Complete camo is the only way to fly! The wild turkey has the sharpest eyes in the woods and anything less than complete camouflage will leave the hunter at the mercy of the turkey's superior eyesight.

Turkey hunting is a super challenge anyway you look at it. The bowhunter who wants to hunt turkey will surely be into a different bag. He will find the turkey ready to test his patience to the limit. The experience of turkey hunting is difficult and rewarding and a perfect way in which to continue bow hunting into the spring. Don't let that bow gather dust until next deer season. Accept the challenge and come out for turkey this season.

Good Luck and Good Bowhunting!

Last week I was severely reprimanded by Gary Marquardt for not telling the truth, so I am making a retraction right now. Last week I stated that Gary was pulling so hard when the line broke that he fell out of the boat and skipped across the water like a flat rock. Well, that's not true...he actually sank to the bottom like a big fat rock and I pulled a Johnny rescue and jumped in and probably saved his life.

Roxie Describes As Very Good Con Woman

By PAUL STEVENS
Associated Press Writer
ST. LOUIS (AP) — "I'm sure Roxie is going to write a book on this—she'll make a million dollars," a federal drug official said Friday as he dismissed as unsubstantiated a young woman's allegations that she acted as a drug courier for professional athletes.

A month-long investigation by the Drug Enforcement Administration failed to support any of the statements made by Roxie Ann Rice involving National Football League players, said Thomas H. Maher, special agent in charge.

Describing the 19-year-old St. Louis woman as a "very good con woman" and an experienced impersonator, Maher said she "used" the NFL players in a two-month odyssey late last season that took her to 16 cities.

Maher said the federal investigation has "determined that her movements and involvements with members of the NFL were not concerned with drug activity."

Blues Shutout Scouts

By The Associated Press
The Kansas City Scouts fired 25 shots at Ed Johnston Friday night but they were all blanks. Johnson and the St. Louis Blues' fierce defense made sure of that.

"Our defense played much better tonight, they didn't leave me stranded," said Johnston after recording his 30th National Hockey League shut-out, a 5-0 decision over the Scouts.

Rookie wing Eric Vail scored two goals in the third period to power Atlanta past Los Angeles.

Canucks 3, Black Hawks 1
John Gould scored two goals and set up another as Vancouver defeated Chicago and took a three-point lead in their battle for first place in Division 2.

Penguins 4, Seals 1
Lowell McDonald scored twice and assisted on a third goal to pace Pittsburgh over California.

Whalers 5, Jets 4
Paul Hurley's first goal of the year at 8:02 of sudden-death overtime gave New England its victory over Winnipeg.

Toros 4, Crusaders 1
Toronto scored two goals in the second period, including right winger Tom Simpson's 33rd of the season, and rolled over Cleveland.

Roadrunners 4, Fighting Saints 1
Jim Boyd's tap-in late in the opening period provided Phoenix with its winning goal while beating Minnesota in a brawl-filled game. The clubs drew a total of 204 minutes in penalties.

"She enticed people as a result of ruses," he told a news conference. "I think the NFL people were extremely gullible."

The federal agent's remarks were welcomed by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, who said the league's investigation concurred with that of the DEA.

"Unfortunately, as has happened in the past, because of the widespread publicity given to the irresponsible allegations, the results do not fully remove the stigma placed on some players and therefore on the league as a whole," Rozelle said.

The story of Miss Rice's travels posing as a journalist, medical researcher and doctor from the African nation of Ghana was disclosed last month following her arrest on charges of defrauding an innkeeper and fraudulent use of a credit card.

In a police memorandum, she detailed how she traveled in late 1974, supposedly to provide NFL players with drugs. There also were statements implicating the American Basketball Association. Those, too, were discounted by Maher.

He told reporters her travels began at about the same time an issue of Ebony Magazine appeared in which several black NFL players were pictured. He said some of them were the same players Miss Rice mentioned in her report to police.

St. Louis Cardinals, San Diego Chargers, Detroit Lions, Kansas City Chiefs and Cincinnati Bengals.

NFL players who said they had spoken with Miss Rice during her travels told the same story as related Friday by Maher. All said there were no drugs involved.

"As far as we can tell," said Maher, "she was doing all this on her own." He added that the federal investigation had failed to disclose any persons who Miss Rice claimed she helped her in her journeys.

The young woman financed her trip through a credit card which was allegedly stolen from Ken Houston of the Redskins, the agent said.

The DEA began its investigation after Miss Rice was arrested Jan. 4 in St. Louis on the misdemeanor charges of defrauding an innkeeper and fraudulent use of a credit card. Investigators interviewed about 10 key NFL players mentioned in Miss Rice in the police memo and visited five or six cities, Maher said.

Miss Rice is free on bail pending a reappearance in court March 3 to face the charges.

Maher said "there are extortion possibilities" in the actions of Miss Rice and he said his office's report would be sent within a week to the U.S. attorney for possible action against her.

Don Bies Takes Over Lead At Hope Tourney

By BOB GREEN
AP-Golf Writer
PAM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — There was a rather wistful quality to Don Bies' voice as he observed: "I feel that somewhere along the way I deserve to win one."

He hasn't yet. In six full years on the pro golf tour the slender, soft-spoken, 37-year-old Bies has won more than $200,000 in prize money—but he has yet to collect a title.

He took a major step in the right direction Friday, though, when he slipped, almost unobserved, past suddenly scrambling Johnny Miller and into the third-round lead in the $160,000 Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic.

Bies, a low-key type who attracts no galleries, has no idiosyncracies, dresses conservatively and blends into the crowd, took his surprise lead with a six-under-par 66 that vaulted him one stroke in front of the phenomenal Miller and Tom Shaw, a still-bubbly character despite three years of trials and troubles.

Bies had a 54-hole total of 204, 10 under par with 36 holes to go in this unique, five-day, 90-hole event that is spread over four desert courses.

Miller, who established a three-stroke lead after two rounds and appeared ready to score another runaway victory, and Shaw were one back at 205. Miller went to a scramble par 72 and Shaw had a 69.

John Mahaffey, Jerry Heard and veteran Miller Barber were one more back at 206. Heard had a four-under-par 68, Mahaffey and Barber each a 69.

Arnold Palmer, still fighting a balky putter, shot a 71 that he called "kinda boring." The five-time winner of this tournament was seven shots behind at 211. Lee Trevino, Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player are not competing.

Miller, a record-setting winner of the first two tournaments of the year and the young man who has dominated the game for the past 14 months, suddenly developed some problems but shrugged it off.

"I'm human. I make mistakes, too," he said.

His putting, which had been unapproachable in the first two rounds, turned ordinary. He three-putted once. He made bogey from a bunker. He hit one out of bounds.

"That sums up my round," he said. "The three-putt and the ball out of bounds—without them I have something like a 69 and that's not bad. I just didn't putt too good and I made some mistakes."

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Leading third-round scores Friday in the $160,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic Golf Tournament:

Murray State Track Team Is Showing Signs Of Improving

Maybe it wasn't exactly what Murray Track Coach Bill Cornell had hoped for, but nevertheless he sees a ray of hope. And what he hopes for is more improvement. His Racers have participated in two indoor meets at the University of Illinois and Western Illinois University.

Back on January 25, the Racers finished a disappointing last in a nine-team field at the University of Illinois Invitational Indoor Track Meet in Champaign. Cornell's troops could do no better than 19 points, compared to winning University of Illinois 174 points.

The field included Lincoln U., Middle Tennessee, Illinois State, Northeast-Missouri, Kentucky State, Notre Dame, and Western Illinois.

Last Saturday was a different story, however. The Racers came back to finish second to Western Illinois in a triangular meet that also included Northeast Missouri State College.

"I think we came a long way in just one week," said a determined Cornell. "We're finally starting to get in shape."

Even though WIU outscored Murray 68-48, the Racers managed to set one school record and tie two others.

Sophomore Patmore Chatham bettered the school long jump mark with a 23-7 leap. The old mark was 22-5 1/2, set in 1968.

Steve Martin, Murray co-record holder in the high jump, tied his best-ever with a meet winning 6-6 leap. And Gary Card equalled the other school mark with an 8.8 seconds clocking in the 70-yard high hurdles.

Lester Flax captured the 600-yard run with 1:13.9 time, while Kevin Caines jumped 47-4 to win the triple jump.

Northeast Missouri finished a close third to Murray with 46 points.

The Racers next indoor meet will be in the Mason-Dixon Games in Louisville Saturday.

Fixed costs are like your mortgage and car payments. There's no if's, and's, or but's about them. They have to be paid, period.

When our revenue goes down, you can see our predicament. Our fixed costs (interest payments, equipment payments, power payments, labor payments) are still there, but we have less money for paying them.

We're in this situation now. We're searching for ways to keep down all our other costs so we can keep down the cost of your electricity.

But with the coal situation, the money situation, and the inflated price on everything, the pressures are overwhelming.

Whoever Made Up Schedule For Furman Didn't Do Any Favors

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Whoever made up the schedule for Furman's basketball team didn't do the Paladins any favors this weekend.

They play two of the nation's Top Twenty teams on successive nights.

The Paladins, visiting Charlotte, N.C., were treated rudely by 12th-ranked North Carolina Friday night and play North Carolina State tonight on the heels of that 86-81 loss.

"I'm looking forward to playing Furman," said North Carolina State Coach Norm Sloan. "They are a big, strong team and stayed with North Carolina right down to the wire."

"Non-conference games like this give us an opportunity to use players who don't get a chance to play a lot."

The Paladins may not share Sloan's viewpoint. They'd no doubt prefer not to play two tough games in succession.

Friday night's game took all they had to give, it seemed.

"We played as well as we're capable of playing, which is my way of saying that Furman is one of the best teams we've played this season," said North Carolina Coach Dean Smith. "They have an excellent team and Clyde Mayes is great."

North Carolina's victory came in the first game of a doubleheader. North Carolina State whipped Georgia Tech 101-66 in the second game to complete a sweep of outsiders by Atlantic Coast Conference teams.

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 2 UCLA stopped Oregon State 67-60; No.

8 Southern Cal nipped No. 9 Oregon 81-80 and No. 20 Penn drubbed Columbia 113-69.

Mitch Kupchak, hospitalized briefly earlier in the week with an ailing back, scored 23 points and Walter Davis added 22 to lead North Carolina's victory. North Carolina, resorting to its four-corner stall offense in the last six minutes, broke a seven-game winning streak by Southern Conference leader Furman.

The Paladins, 13-5, led through most of the first half and were on top 37-36 at intermission with 50 per cent shooting. Fessor Leonard, the 7-foot-1 Furman center, drew his fourth personal foul in the opening minute of the second half and then sat out for about 10 minutes.

Immediately after he left, the Tar Heels shot into a 46-41 lead, but Craig Lynch went on a 14-point tear for Furman to shoot the Paladins ahead 55-48 with 13:30 left. North Carolina regained the lead for good on two Kupchak free throws with eight minutes to play. The four corners produced numerous Furman fouls and North Carolina, 13-5, scored its last 10 points from the free throw line.

Furman's scoring was led by Lynch and Mayes, each with 24 points, and Ronnie Smith with 15.

David Thompson's 31 points in 29 minutes led North Carolina State past Georgia Tech. Thompson, the nation's leading scorer with a 31.8 average at game time, led the Wolfpack to a 54-35 first-half lead with 14 wonderful minutes of play.

In that span, he scored 17 points, hitting seven of 12 shots, led all rebounders with seven and had two assists. When Thompson opened the second half with two layup baskets, the Rambling Wreck was exactly that.

"Overall, I'm pleased," said Sloan. "It's difficult to keep your concentration when you get a big lead in a hurry."

UCLA, trailing the entire first half, outscored Oregon State 8-0 after the break and stopped the Beavers to grab first place in the Pacific-8 Conference. Sophomore Richard Washington scored 17 of his game-high 21 points in the second half as the Bruins boosted their Pac-8 record to 5-1 and 16-2 overall. Sophomore forward Don Smith topped Oregon State with 20 points.

Southern California's Bob Trowbridge sank three free throws, his only points of the game, in the final 39 seconds as the Trojans edged Oregon 81-80. The victory moved Southern Cal into a three-way tie for second place with Stanford and Oregon State, all at 4-2. Oregon's conference mark fell to 3-3.

Gus Williams, the Trojans' premier guard, led all scorers with 28 points.

Ron Haigler and Mark Lonetto combined for 40 points to lead Penn over Columbia. The victory kept the Quakers atop the Ivy League race.

Elsewhere, Brigham Young trimmed Colorado State 88-75; Rochester nipped Army 76-75; Princeton walloped Cornell 92-59; Brown defeated Dartmouth 83-71 and Morgan State turned back North Carolina Central 68-58.

WHAT NEXT?—Flip Martin of the Murray State football team displays some of the equipment that's been used in his career at Murray which has included stints on the golf team, the cheerleading squad, the gymnastics club, track and of course, football. Martin will sign a three-year contract in May to play with the New England Patriots.

No Telling Just What Flip Might Try Next

Steve Martin is an unusual young man. And we don't mean the type you would find in a carnival side-show, although not even that would surprise those who know him at Murray State University.

What makes Steve so unusual is that on a university level he participates in football, track, golf, gymnastics and has even found time to be a cheerleader.

And get this. He holds school records at Murray in punting a football and jumping over a crossbar — and he didn't even play these two sports in high school.

It's a story in itself how Martin went out for football.

It seems that one day Martin was practicing the high jump near the football field when suddenly the ball came rolling near him.

"I knew I couldn't throw it back that far so I just kicked it," Martin now laughs.

It only took a couple of these kicks for Murray Football Coach Bill Furgerson to want to know who was kicking that football. He was kicking it back further than the Racers then number one punter. Two days later Steve Martin was representing his school on the gridiron instead of his fraternity on the intramural field.

And just a few days ago the New England Patriots notified Martin that they want to sign him to a free-agent contract in the National Football League.

The Patriots liked what they saw last season. Martin's 42.5 punting average was second in the Ohio Valley Conference, and his 47 points on 10-18 field goals and 17 of 18 extra points, led the Racers to a 9-2 record.

Martin is going to wait however, before he signs anything.

You see he is also the co-holder of the school high jump indoor record with a leap of 6-6 and naturally he wants to compete this spring for Murray. He has gone as high as 6-10 1/4 outdoors.

"I think I can go higher and besides I want a shot at the conference championship," says Martin. "The Patriots understand and want me to wait until track season is over before signing anything."

Martin, who looks much smaller than his 6-1, 185 pounds, took part in golf and gymnastics while attending Pike High School in a suburb of Indianapolis, Ind.

But what about football and track?

Martin, who has acquired the nickname "Flip" or "Flipper" because of his performances on the gymnastic floor, looks nothing like the pro-football player that he may soon have the opportunity to become. Instead he looks more like the typical college student who would find sitting in the stands cheering his team to victory. But that would be too easy.

Any day now someone at Murray could walk up to you and tell you that the school had decided to start a swimming team because "Flipper" Martin had convinced them he was part fish.

Steve Martin has surprised everyone at Murray at one time or another — everyone that is except himself.

Southwest Splits Pair Of Contests With East

Host Southwest split a pair of cage games Friday night with East Elementary in the only local basketball action in the county.

In the seventh grade girls game, East had an easy 37-20 win while in the eighth grade contest, Southwest romped to a 54-26 victory.

It was a very slow-moving first half in the girls game, which saw East lead only 6-2 at the end of the opening period. In the second quarter, East added 10 points to the board and pulled out to a big 16-4 lead at intermission.

Action remained slow in the third period as Southwest outscored East 8-7 to trail by 11 going into the last period. Southwest managed to pull to within seven points in the early minutes of the fourth period but East began running and put 14 points up in the last stanza to take the 17-point win.

Mary Wagoner led the scoring attack for East with 21 points while Carson put in 12 for the losers.

East goes to 5-1 with the victory while the Southwest girls fall to 0-6.

In the boys game, it was almost a repeat of what happened last Tuesday when the two teams played at East. In that game, East was in the game until the second period when they were outscored 15-2 and went on to drop a 46-38 contest.

Last night, they stayed in the game for two quarters. But in the second half, Southwest exploded and coasted to the lopsided win.

Early in the first period, East moved out to an 8-2 lead behind the left-handed shooting of guard Kenneth McCuiston who scored all six of his points in the early flurry. But behind the scoring punch of big Ricky Garland, Southwest came back and knotted the score at the end of the first period, 8-8.

Cohoon hit a 12-footer for East at the 1:23 mark of the second period to trim the Southwest lead to one at 15-14. That was as close as East would ever come in the game.

By halftime, Southwest led 20-15. Then in the third period, Southwest rattled off 14 consecutive points while holding East scoreless and that was the game.

In the last half, Southwest outscored East 34-11.

It was the strong rebounding of the big Southwest team that played a major role in the win.

Scott Barrow pulled off 13 rebounds, Marty Carraway and Barry Guthrie each had eight, Garland had seven and Kelly

White six. In the scoring department, Garland turned in a brilliant game with 24 points while Barrow, also playing an outstanding game, added 16 markers.

Cohoon led East with 11. "Southwest goes to 7-2 on the season while East has a 2-7 record."

Boston Streak Ended By 76ers, Jazz Lose

By The Associated Press
The Boston Celtics finished their latest serenade Friday night but the beat goes on for the New Orleans Jazz.

While the Celtics' 11-game National Basketball Association winning streak suffered a 98-95 demise at the hands of the Philadelphia 76ers, the Jazz hit the road for the 28th time...and for the 28th time the road hit back. This time, the bad guys were the Milwaukee Bucks and the bad numbers were 119-98.

Elsewhere, the Chicago Bulls turned back the Detroit Pistons 95-83, the Buffalo Braves downed the Los Angeles Lakers 108-98, the Washington Bullets trounced the Seattle SuperSonics 99-76 and the Houston Rockets trimmed the Atlanta Hawks 105-97.

Milwaukee, led by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's 35 points, withstood a 27-point barrage by Pete Maravich to defeat New Orleans. Jon McGlocklin tied his season high with 18 for the Bucks, who broke a slump of six defeats in eight games and handed New Orleans its 28th defeat in as many road games.

The Bucks, on five points by McGlocklin, outscored New Orleans 8-2 in the last two minutes of the first half to lead 54-44. Abdul-Jabbar and Mickey Davis scored eight points apiece in the third quarter as

Nuggets Threatening To Become Fool's Gold

By The Associated Press
The Denver Nuggets are threatening to turn into fool's gold.

Friday night's 101-96 loss to the San Antonio Spurs was the eighth in the last 16 games for the once-sizzling Nuggets. It dropped their over-all record to 43-12 and left them 9 1/2 games ahead of San Antonio in the American Basketball Association's Western Division.

In other action, the New York Nets shaded the Memphis Sounds 114-110, the Kentucky Colonels nipped the San Diego

Conquistadores 115-114 and the Indiana Pacers beat the Virginia Squires 111-106.

George Gervin and Rich Jones combined for 51 points to lead San Antonio over Denver. The Nuggets led 79-74 at the start of the final quarter, but the Spurs' tenacious defense, led by substitute forward Chuck Terry, held them scoreless for 7 1/2 minutes as the Spurs snatched an 87-79 lead.

Gervin scored 26 points and Jones 25 in pacing the Spurs to their fifth consecutive victory. Denver was led by Mack Calvin's 23 points.

Nets 114, Sounds 110
Julius Erving's jump shot snapped a tie with 1:26 remaining and Larry Kenon added a late basket as the Nets rallied to defeat Memphis.

Colonels 115, Q's 114
Louie Dampier scored 28 points to lead Kentucky.

Pacers 111, Squires 106
George McGinnis, dormant for more than three quarters, erupted in the fourth period and led Indiana to victory.

GENERAL

ST. LOUIS — A federal investigation into a series of drug allegations made against National Football League players by a 19-year-old woman has turned up nothing to substantiate any of the charges, a federal drug official announced.

IS BAPTISM ESSENTIAL TO SALVATION?

With reference to this question, most religionists would say "baptism is not essential to salvation;" some going so far as to say, "baptism does not save, and has nothing to do with salvation." On the other hand, nearly every Denomination requires something they call "baptism" BEFORE one can be a member of that Denomination. Before proceeding further and discussing the question, it is appropriate to note the logical conclusion to such positions. You see, if one has to be baptized to enter a particular Denomination but does not have to be baptized to go to heaven, then it takes more to get into that Denomination than it does to get into heaven! Then, too, it necessarily follows that if baptism is not necessary to salvation but is necessary to membership in a certain Denomination, then that Denomination is not necessary to salvation — for without baptism that Denomination couldn't exist! In such instances it's a matter of people obeying a non-essential command to enter a non-essential church!

However, the question, "is baptism essential to salvation," is a BIBLE question, and it deserves a Bible answer. What saith the Scriptures?

According to the Scriptures, baptism: (1) is joined by the coordinate conjunction "and" with "faith," precedes, and is in order to salvation, Mark 16:16; (2) is joined with repentance and, like repentance, is "for the remission of sins," Acts 2:38; (3) is essential to one washing "away" his sins, Acts 22:16; (4) is the means through which one is united with Christ in "his death," Romans 6:3-5; and (5) is the means whereby one enters "into Christ" and puts "on Christ," Galatians 3:27.

The religious world has completely reversed what the sacred text says. For example, the world says "baptism does NOT save us," whereas the apostle Peter said, "baptism doth also NOW save us..." (1 Peter 3:21).

To be sure, baptism "only" does not save. For that matter, no one command "only" saves! Baptism, however, is included in obedience to the Gospel (Mark 16:15, 16), and one must obey the Gospel to be saved (cf. 1 Peter 4:17; II Thessalonians 1:7-9).

Dilbeck Says Agnew Made Lot Of Money; Left Him With Problems

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Real estate developer Walter J. Dilbeck Jr. says former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew made a lot of money and connections during their partnership and left Dilbeck all the problems. Dilbeck made the comment Friday after Agnew announced he was terminating his one-year, $100,000 contract with Dilbeck because Dilbeck exploited their business relationship and defaulted on a final $25,000 installment.

Dilbeck, whose financial exploits included the ill-fated Global Baseball League which fizzled when all six teams got stuck in Venezuela with unpaid hotel bills, says Agnew is the exploiter.

"I haven't received a dime from him and he's taken $75,000 from me. I gave him a free ride. Everybody knew he was broke when I hired him," Dilbeck said in an interview Friday night. "He got a lot of real connections out of this deal and I got the problems."

Dilbeck said Agnew's final payment wasn't due until June 30, "but if he needs $25,000, I'd be glad to send it to him. That's what he's done before." Dilbeck, 56, said he made advances on several occasions when Agnew asked him for money.

In a letter to Dilbeck which was released to news media, Agnew said Dilbeck's "desire for publicity has violated the confidentiality of many negotiations in progress and shocked our clients."

"In the beginning, I thought the problem was your inexperience with the news media. But now I must conclude that your exaggerations and outright misstatements of fact were a calculated scheme to promote your image at the expense of my integrity."

Dilbeck laughed off Agnew's charge that the former vice president's integrity had been jeopardized by their partnership. "His image wasn't too good when I hired him," Dilbeck said. "In fact, a lot of companies prefer dealing directly with me."

"All I did was what he told me. But I had a feeling this was coming. I've felt he's been making other deals in the East and I don't think he's been representing me."

Dilbeck also accused Agnew of working on an autobiography instead of tending to business. Dilbeck has said publicly that he and Agnew had nearly completed a pair of multimillion-dollar deals in Kentucky — one for homes and apartments purchased with Mideast oil money, and the other for sale of a coal mine to Japanese interests. But Dilbeck said the only deal Agnew concluded was the $2-million sale of an Oklahoma coal mine. And Dilbeck said he never received any money from that transaction.

A statement released by Dilbeck said the partnership was being terminated because "Agnew's apparent preoccupation with Arab powers (as investors) is distasteful and unsatisfactory due to Dilbeck's long-standing association with many Jewish people and interests in this country."

But Dilbeck said later, "The whole problem was he didn't want me to talk to the news media... If he'd have stayed, he'd have made millions, because I am going to."

"It all boils down to this: $75,000 looked good to him when he was skinny. But I guess he's just gotten too sophisticated for Hoosiers."

Dilbeck, who started selling used cars when he was 16, is a flashy dresser whose business career has been equally flamboyant.
