

THE UNIVERSITY of EDINBURGH

Edinburgh Research Explorer

Soft Law and European Citizenship

Citation for published version:

Shaw, J & Stiks, I 2009, 'Soft Law and European Citizenship'.

Link:

Link to publication record in Edinburgh Research Explorer

Document Version:

Other version

Publisher Rights Statement:

© Shaw, J., & Stiks, I. (2009). Soft Law and European Citizenship.

General rights

Copyright for the publications made accessible via the Edinburgh Research Explorer is retained by the author(s) and / or other copyright owners and it is a condition of accessing these publications that users recognise and abide by the legal requirements associated with these rights.

Take down policy

The University of Edinburgh has made every reasonable effort to ensure that Edinburgh Research Explorer content complies with UK legislation. If you believe that the public display of this file breaches copyright please contact openaccess@ed.ac.uk providing details, and we will remove access to the work immediately and investigate your claim.

- A presentation by Jo Shaw and Igor Štiks, School of Law, University of Edinburgh
- Draws both on general research on citizenship undertaken by Jo Shaw and on the first results of the collective research project CITSEE (The Europeanisation of Citizenship in the Successor States of the Former Yugoslavia)
- Individual and collective coordinates to be found on the last slide

- EU citizenship in Articles 17-22 EC (etc.), in EU legislation, and in case law
- Two areas of ‘soft effects’ (‘Europeanisation’)?
 - ▣ Status of TCNs under EU law – status of ‘civic citizenship’ proposed after Treaty of Amsterdam
 - ▣ Impact on national law governing acquisition and loss of national citizenship and associated rights
 - Member States: Rottmann case

What is CITSEE?

3

- The Europeanisation of Citizenship in the Successor States of the Former Yugoslavia (CITSEE) is a study of the citizenship regimes of the seven successor states of the former Yugoslavia (Bosnia-Herzegovina, Croatia, Kosovo, Macedonia, Montenegro, Serbia, Slovenia)
- The case of multi-level governance of citizenship in the context of a region which was familiar with such a concept in an earlier time
- And where there are perspectives for all ‘former Yugoslav’ states to become EU Member States

After 1991, as Yugoslavia began to disintegrate, new states emerged alongside each other, each with their own citizenship regimes determining who was a 'citizen' and therefore who had the privileges of citizenship (residence rights, welfare rights, property rights, political rights, etc.).

A map for all seasons.....

CITSEE examines these regimes as they developed in the last two decades, against the background of Europeanisation, as a variety of European perspectives develops for each of these states.

EU influence on citizenship policies in the new Balkan states

7

- EU Member
 - ▣ Slovenia
- Direct influence of EU and other intl bodies
 - ▣ Bosnia-Herzegovina, Kosovo, Macedonia (candidate country)
- Partial influence of EU
 - ▣ Croatia (candidate country), Montenegro
- No influence
 - ▣ Serbia

How can I get in touch with Shaw/Štiks/CITSEE?

8

- ❑ Collect one of our leaflets at this conference
- ❑ Email us collectively via citsee@ed.ac.uk
- ❑ Email us individually via i.stiks@ed.ac.uk or jo.shaw@ed.ac.uk
- ❑ Visit our website at <http://www.law.ed.ac.uk/citsee>
- ❑ Join our delicious network at <http://delicious.com/citsee>
- ❑ Join our CITSEE group on Facebook

European Research Council

