THE DESIGN FOR A PROTESTANT CHURCH.

The drawings representing this disign ine the first and second story plans at three thirty-seconds scale and two elevations at five thirty-s conds scale rundered in color of indicate troeffect of the combination of material chash in the construction.

The design is the result of the solution of an acculed problem with the following conditions:

A church was to be built for a Processing society in a for of about 40,000 inhabitants. The site proceed is a tria rular corner 10; 204 feet de p: 104 f et front with a vest erp sure on the narrower front which foces a shall so dy park. The strets are wide and societ by large trees. The lot is nearly level.

The additorium is to hav an apple vestibule and a seafing capacity for eicht hundred (lot including the Balcony), with suppofor roan and a choir of twenty persons. Adjoining the their should be a story a room for the choir.

There will be, on one side of the courts a parish bouse, to Include a Sunday-School room to shat about iwe hundred percond, infant class room, and three other class rooms, library, perlore, kitchen, diming-room, cleak and toilet room. blace in harmony with feelings of reversion and of faith, and calculated by subtil successions to stimulate these emotions was not an easy task. The style of this courch and parise house is an adaptation of the Italian Romanesce to our modern requirements, containing the essentials of that style in their entirety but adding certain properly recognized innovations that modern consitions of parish life and work require in the arrangement of the plan generally.

The location is in the center of a matropolitan district and I have properly given my building the distinction of a lof y stire, symbolizing thus the partitations and the deals of the worshipp rs.

Not the least striving phenomenon is the growth of the arly Christian church was the breaking down, wit in the sphere of its own organization, of distinction, of class and casts, its affirmation of the brotherhood of man as a corollary to the fate should of God. its effort to express in daily life its selse of social unity. The lapse of miniteen centurie. it it is adical changes in the forms of social life. It is for this base of church life that we need to supplement 'te caurch, as the House of God, with the church as the nouse of man; and hence, by the side of end united to our house of worship, I planned a paris house, with provision for social activities for the expression of and the unbuilding of social unity. The marish house is ecclesizatical in style for the court and arcades porch are remissions of cloist rebut the parlors, large Sinday-Sc ool room and library instill into it a social aspect and home feeling which is in accord with the modern spirit of worship.

The garden is below the streat level so that passers-by may look through the broad entrance down onto its walks, flower-

Our cource will have the chief entrance to the vest have f an ample vestibule here low to admit the mesters light through the great sheel window and from similar windows on either side will fall a tiffus d and off ted light. There on either side of the vestibule lead to the balcomy, and the meat window above this will be one of the striking flatures of the clurch and a most useful one.

The pestor's study the choir norm are on the right and left of the organ with access to the choir and pulsit claifors. Behand the organ are two small torlet rooms for the us of the choir and partor. The choir and pulsit have been accorded sufficient and c to emplasize their importance and sive ample noon for the server . The hisles are wide and roomy specially the onter analytic tich is essential in wedding of funeral processions.

The parish fouse line well toward the south and east of the lot with sunlight from the east and west. How has been provided a School room with class rooms adjoining but see find by curtains or door ; a kitchen and large dimins hull are power in the second story.

There are two intraries to this intic the bullion, one through the Carbonile of the other acrose the on ris. Adjoint the street of the west is a large pail of close, coal and collcounts with stairs leading to the performing second story which computicate with the lining-roof by corrigons. Of this floor is also a library, any of acc to from the stairs in the tower: al.o t commuticate and since room with increase from the contridor. A sin and dish-washing room adjoins the ining-root and is the time of the with which it is contributed by taire additional to the staire to the staire does by taire additional to the staire to the staire does by taire additional to the staire to the staire does by taire additional to the staire to the staire does by taire additional to the staire does by taire additional to the staire does by taire additional to the staire does by taire does by taire does by the staire does by taire d

The large square tow r in the nole on the ast side sarres to bind the two buildings together and its lower story forms a vectbule uniting our House of God with our loss of man op asizing thus the necessity of an intitat, connection between the life of the spirit and the activities of mer.

The closestates are to be covered with red table. The closestates are table to be covered with red table. The closestates are baved with tile laid in simple ratern red cool gray brichs will be used for the walks in the same. The vertical floors will be of marble mostic.

It is church interior we will solve units and nervasive charm of rich, soft colorings with smarked of hre dift of architectural treatment, a charte severity of lines: a fitting manity of form. We will have to use plaster for the most of and shall of the permanent first decorative effects by the use of proving and moldings for our ceilings. The lower members of the unsees will project below the borizontal ceiling on the lide and will be first ad in oak. All the glass will have the true, deep, rice color or and the whole interior that soft indescribable flow. In the paris house interior we will the care that our placement, we shall relaavoiding any freekistness of triviality of treatment, we shall relating severity of style, ind seek to impart a propose.

I have bound to make this building inposing in emineority patisfactory from every point of view: typifying its purceses as charin and yet withal to all uring that ice passer-by, looking cown
