As tradition requires I am going to say a few words before closing.

Let me first thank the organizers and their staff for the excellent work done in organizing this Meeting. I wish to thank the speakers, the conveners of the parallel sessions for the high level of the talks and the variety of the topics. All this devoted work has lead to the outstanding quality of the program.

This time, once more, the attendance and the alive participation of so many young colleagues has fulfilled one of the main goals of these Incontri, giving a testimony of the excellent level of their research and of their commitment as well.

Many problems affecting our community and especially the new generations have also emerged and have been raised up and discussed during these days giving an additional, important, testimony of the severe difficulties that the youngest among us are presently facing. Hopefully better times will come.

It has been decided the next edition of IFAE will take place at the Università di Roma "La Sapienza". In the meantime I wish you a very productive year full of excitement and new results.
