

Scopus

Search Sources Alerts Lists Help SciVal Register Login

Document details

Back to results | 1 of 1Export Download Print E-mail Save to PDF Add to List More...International Medical Journal Malaysia
Volume 16, Issue 2, 1 December 2017, Pages 101-105Open AccessEducating future medical professionals with the fundamentals of law and ethics (Article)Puteri Nemie, J.K.<sup>1</sup>  Ariff Osman, H.O.<sup>2</sup>  Ramizah, W.M.<sup>3</sup> <sup>1</sup>Ahmad Ibrahim Kulliyah of Laws, International Islamic University Malaysia, Jalan Gombak, Selangor, Malaysia
<sup>2</sup>Kulliyah of Medicine, International Islamic University, Bandar Indera Mahkota, Kuantan, Pahang, Malaysia

Abstract

View references \(23\)

The increasing awareness amongst the society on medico-legal issues as well as the growth of consumerist attitude towards the provision of medical services has caused the medical profession to be subjected to vociferous criticism if they do not meet rising expectations of the society. Substandard services have not been well tolerated and paternalistic approaches in medical treatment are considered to be outmoded and inappropriate. Any dissatisfaction on the part of the patient towards medical services provided nowadays may easily trigger claims in the court of law. This changing trend has also fundamentally changed the behaviour of the courts towards the medical profession. Judicial and legislative interventions in medical practice have created more and more rights for the patients and consequently, corresponding legal duties for the medical profession to uphold. In the present healthcare setting, the medical profession will not be able to provide infallible services without knowledge of the legal standards which they have to adhere. Thus, educating future medical professionals with the fundamentals of law and ethics would ensure greater accountability, knowledge and personal commitment in providing medical services to the society as the ideals of professionalism not only require them to have the necessary expertise, dedication, respect, compassion, empathy, honesty, altruism, responsibility, integrity, self-improvement and accountability but also adherence to the demands of law and highest ethical standards.

Author keywords

Ethics Islamic input Law Medical education Professionalism

ISSN: 18234631

Source Type: Journal
Original language: English

Document Type: Article

Publisher: International Islamic University Malaysia

References (23)

View in search results format All Export Print E-mail Save to PDF Create bibliography 1 Shaharom, M.H.
(2009) Teaching medical professionalism: An Islamic approach, pp. 57-64.
FIMA Year Book 2 Osman, A.
(2009) Workshop for teaching medical professionalism at the Kulliyah of Medicine, IIUM, pp. 65-72.
FIMA Year Book

Metrics

0 Citations in Scopus

0 Field-Weighted Citation Impact

PlumX Metrics

Usage, Captures, Mentions,
Social Media and Citations
beyond Scopus.

Cited by 0 documents

Inform me when this document is cited in Scopus:

Set citation alertSet citation feed

Related documents

Integration of Naqli and Aqli in microbiology teaching: Charing the audience\(2017\) International Medical Journal MalaysiaAn Islamic perspective on euthanasiaAramesh, K., Shadi, H.\(2007\) American Journal of BioethicsIslamic Institutions : Perception and Practice in a Village in BangladeshEllickson, J.\(1972\) Contribution to Indian Sociology

View all related documents based on references

Find more related documents in Scopus based on:

Authors Keywords