Abstract

The "Meet the Editors" panel session provides attendees with an opportunity to meet journal editors or representatives, from the Senior Scholars' Basket of Eight Journals and leading international IS journals, who share key points about the journals. The panel targets active researchers interested in learning about possible publication opportunities. The perspectives provided are intended to assist researchers targeting the journals for publication consideration. Attendees benefit by asking questions about manuscript preparation, submission requirements, the review process, responding to peer reviewers' comments, and preparing the final article.

Keywords: IS journals, publishing, submission requirements, peer review.

1   Focus of panel

This panel session provides attendees with an opportunity to meet journal editors, or representatives, from the Senior Scholars' Basket of Eight Journals (please see: http://ais.site-ym.com/?SeniorScholarBasket) and leading international IS journals. Key points about the following journals will be shared:

- The basket of eight journals, including:
    - European Journal of Information Systems
    - Information Systems Journal
    - Information Systems Research
    - Journal of AIS
    - Journal of Information Technology
    - Journal of MIS
    - Journal of Strategic Information Systems
    - MIS Quarterly and
- Leading international IS journals

The panel is targeted toward active researchers interested in learning about possible publication opportunities. The perspectives provided are intended to assist researchers targeting the journals for publication consideration. Attendees benefit by asking questions about manuscript preparation, submission requirements, the review process, responding to peer reviewers' comments, and preparing the final article.

2   Structure of panel

The panel will be structured in two parts, each about 45 minutes in duration. The first part will be comprised of presentations by each editor or representative of the IS journals included in the panel. Each editor or representative, in alphabetical order according to the journal title, introduces himself and provides a brief overview of the journal, such as the name of the journal, editor(s)' name, whether general or niche, key points about the journal, etc. The editor or representative will then entertain a randomly selected question from a list of prepared questions.

The second part of the panel will be open to any questions from attendees. Questions may be about publishing in general, or targeted to a specific journal or a specific point. The discussion will thereby proceed according to questions asked. After the session, those attendees interested in the journals can talk with the editors and collect any printed marketing materials from the editors, such as flyers, business cards, or calls for papers (CFPs).
