Int'l. Students Discuss Problems with Dr. Downie

International Conference Features Guest Speakers

An Olivet International Conference, sponsored by the Association of International Students, was held at College Church of the Nazarene Saturday, May 16.

The main speaker for the conference was Dr. G. L. Downie, a medical doctor who just recently returned from Africa. His address, which highlighted the morning session, dealt with cultural change and communication among the nations of the world.

Registration for the conference was followed by an opening session. Dr. Harold W.

Reed, O.N.C. President, gave the invocation after which Prof. A. V. McCombs, sponsor of the A.I.S., welcomed the conference.

A symposium on international relations was then held. The featured participants were Rev. Robert Schreiber, pastor of the Kankakee Immanuel Baptist Church; Walter J. Charlton, Kankakee banker; Dr. W. T. Hodges, the college doctor; and Prof. F. O. Parr, professor of sociology.

A seminar and a panel discussion were other highlights of the morning session.

In the afternoon a banquet was held in the Mural Room at which various international dishes were served. The banquet was followed by a picture-taking session with the international students posing in their costumes.

O. Samuel Cleare of British Guiana, a post-graduate student was moderator and head planner for the conference as President of the Association of International Students. He was assisted by Miranda Leung, vice-president; Becky Philo, secretary; Japheth Lijoodi, treasurer; and Rev. Norman Moore, foreign students adviser.

The Association of International Students was formed in September, 1963, by both American and foreign students at Olivet. Its purpose as an organization is "to bring about a better understanding, relationship, and brotherhood on our campus and in the communities about us."

major in home economics. The couple has two children.

Commenting on the newly-bestowed honor, Marangu stated that he was quite pleased with the opportunity to visit the Fair and with his having been chosen.

O.N.C. Kenya Student Honored

John Paul Marangu, a senior pre-medical student from Kenya, has been selected by the Queens Council, New York, to visit the World's Fair in New York this year. He will be the guest of one of the Councils of the Boy Scouts of America.

Marangu was recommended for this honor by the Kenya Boy Scouts Association, and recently was notified by Solomon Adagala, Kenya Students' Adviser in the United States.

Marangu has been in Scouts work for over twenty years, having early joined the Cub Scouts in Kenya in 1943. His avid participation paid off in 1951 when he became a representative from Kenya to the International Patrol Camp in London, England. Marangu later became a Scoutmaster in the high school of his home community.

He and his wife Leah came to Olivet about 4½ years ago. John plans to graduate in June with a bachelor of arts degree in chemistry and hopes to continue his studies in medical school or in graduate school. Mrs. Marangu will graduate next year with a

Vikings Banquet In Homewood Tonight

The Vikings Male Chorus will hold its annual spring banquet tonight at Surma's Restaurant in Homewood, Illinois, north on U.S. highway 54.

Charles Stinson, vice-president of the City National Bank in Kankakee, will be the featured speaker at the banquet. He will be showing slides of the Rose Bowl football games of the past and of the Tournament of Roses Parade. Mr. Stinson has attended the famous event for many years.

Liz Harlan, Dan Ide In Lead Roles

"She's a draggetailed guttersnipe! She's a foolish, ignorant girl! She's so deliciously low — so horribly dirty!" These flattering little epithets are ascribed to Liza Doolittle, a cockney flower-girl from "Cheapside," England. She wants to become genteel more than anything. She goes to Professor of Dialects, Henry Higgins, who determines to make a duchess of Liza by changing her speech and appearance. Will these changes suffice for her membership in high society?

This satire on the shams of aristocratic society is the play, "Pygmalion" written by the unforgettable G. B. Shaw. The play is intensely and deliberately didactic and aphoristic. It has been extremely successful both on stage and screen, all over Europe and North America.

Our Speech Club is sponsoring its presentation here in the Recital Hall by ONC students, May 21, 22, 23. The play will start at 8 p.m. each evening.

The cast will include:

- Prof. Higgins—Dan Ide
- Liza Doolittle—Liz Harlan
- Col. Pickering—Ned Long
- Mr. Doolittle—Gary Huffman
- Freddie Hill—Don Dickerson
- Mrs. Hill—Marsha Wise
- Miss Clara Hill—Donna Neikirk
- Mrs. Higgins—Diane Yochim
- Mrs. Pearce—Ruth Miller

A Pre-Summer's Daydream

in Just—spring when the world is mud—luscious the little lame balloonman whistles far and wee and eddieandbill come running from marbles and piracies and it's spring
when the world is puddle-wonderful

—e. e. cummings

The year's at the spring,
And day's at the morn;
Morning's at seven;
The hillside's dew-pearled;
The lark's on the wing;
The snail's on the thorn;
God's in his heaven—

—Robert Browning

What a change spring hath wrought on campus! What a disruption in the old routine! How barren a library, but what a migration to the Kankakee State Park! My, what a great time to be alive, outdoors, and away from the books! (Not to forget those term papers, collateral reports, and final exams, of course.)

"Spring, When a young man's fancy turns to . . ." well, all sorts of things—love, baseball, swimming, love, picnics, convertibles, love, tennis, golf, marbles, and also love.

How thankful we should be to God, the Creator of all things, for the beautiful Midwestern metamorphosis in nature which we are now enjoying! In regard to the seasons of the temperate zone, we can rejoice that God is not just the God of winter, but also of spring.

However, as we loosen up and begin to find pleasure in this world of open-air beauty, we might be prone to accept certain deceiving implications in these poems by cummings and Browning (despite their disparity). Here we see a vivid, vigorous spring revealed in exciting imagery. In cummings' verse is disclosed a refreshing, innocent, childlike spring, while Browning's song summons us to breathe deeply and contentedly in a romantic, sensuous world. Nothing wrong in that, of course!

Yet it will be easy, very easy, for us Olivet Nazarene College students to become quite sensualistic, especially during the months of summer vacation. It will be temptingly simple to passively say, "God's in his heaven—all's right with the world!", and to be wonderfully happy as we work and play and chase after the balloonmen in a rollicking world, where thought, devotion, responsibility, and concern are foreign words. But such happy complacency would be terribly wrong!

In the first place, all is not right with the world (although all is not wrong either), and even in the spring, the world is not just prettily "puddle-wonderful". For, although we are surrounded with evidence of Divine order in external physical nature, we Christians are surrounded now by chaotic conditions in society, caused by internal disorder in the nature of Man.

In the "long, hot summer" which lies ahead, evil and disruption among men will be evident wherever we go. The racial crisis, especially, may demand that Christians either be Christians or be phonies and hypocrites. The presidential campaign, the poverty problem, and other issues of national importance call for men of God to rise up for Him.

And, on the very personal level, most of us shall confront crises of our own where we will need the guidance and truth of God. This summer we shall work alongside non-Christians who are eagerly searching, blindly groping for the Genuine, the Real. We will then be responsible to introduce them to the Way, the Truth, the Life—to Jesus Christ, our Savior.

For, although all is not right with the world, God is not just in His heaven either. God is the Almighty, Infinite, Omniscient First Cause, who personally Loves His creation, and for whom even such comprehensive, descriptive adjectives and predicates are pitifully trivial. As our God, He commands would-be Christians to fully consecrate themselves to His will, to His redemptive plan of salvation and order for all men who will believe in Him through Jesus Christ.

The words of the Preacher challenge us on a spring day in May, 1964: "To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven. . . He hath made every thing beautiful in his time . . . whatsoever God doeth, it shall be forever: nothing can be put to it, nor any thing taken from it: and God doeth it, that men should fear before him."

John Lunsford

By Line . . .

Lacking the inspiration or whatever it takes to create a sentimental sort of article for the last issue of the paper, I nonetheless feel compelled to somehow incorporate this theme into whatever I set down. At the same time, however, I see a need to keep this pure sentiment from dominating our thoughts, for what has come in the past year has value only in how it prepares us for the next.

Therefore, a consideration of the summer before us lies as a more important task than a re-examination of the achievements and follies of the past.

For most of us, of course, summertime is important for the job by which we will be able to earn enough money to continue our education. But this does not imply that in summer our education stops temporarily. On the contrary, summer with its periods of slow work at the factory and the several holidays and long weekends challenges each of us to make the most of these opportunities to broaden our horizons. Chances to travel, read good books, meet new people, even attend summer school make summers sometimes more important from an educational standpoint than the regular academic year. Out from under the tensions which build up during the school year one is better able to apply himself to whatever interests him. This is true not only of summer school which is becoming increasingly popular but also in areas of personal investigation which can and should captivate our attention during these relatively carefree days. (Certainly it will become increasingly difficult to pursue topics in which our interest is not basic to our jobs as our responsibilities increase.)

With this then as our goal for the summer, to further our education in the broadest sense of the word, we can honestly and rightfully anticipate a period of fruitful labor in which opportunities are limited only by our ambition.

Student Government: An Administrator's Viewpoint

Excerpts from the speech delivered for a panel discussion at the First Student Leadership Conference, Bethany Nazarene College, Bethany, Oklahoma, March 22, 1964, by John H. Cotner, Ph.D., Dean of Students, Olivet Nazarene College, Kankakee, Illinois.
(The second part of a two part Article)

The over-solicitous administrator will discourage student government, because he feels that it is impossible to have good government without his assuming all the responsibility for it. Students, he will say, cannot assume responsibility simply because it belongs on the shoulders of the administration of the institution. This misconception, of course, arises from the belief that government must be "all or nothing at all."

This attitude may also be adopted by student leaders. Those students who believe that student government implies that students are able to enforce their own desires regardless of the wishes of the administration are unrealistic as the administrator who wants to assume all of the responsibility. At any rate, we must escape the explosive tension caused by irate administrators enforcing their desires on an unwilling student body. I am firmly convinced that a group of students can be responsible for its actions, just as any single individual student can. Any other concept would lead to defeatism. The achievement of the capacity for self government, whether it be with an individual or with groups, is a slow, laborious process. It does not come easy. A student body, as well as a student leader, must learn to be responsible. It is quite clear, I think, that it should be neither a case of "student government" or "faculty government" but rather a joint responsibility, the aim of which is "college government" which works toward the achievement of common objectives. Mutual student-administrative responsibility will prevent the inevitable complaint of many students that their government is strictly a make-believe with the students little more than a rubber stamp for the decisions made by a few administrators. It is incumbent upon us administrators to indicate our belief in the capacity of our students for responsibility by our actions in our daily work with the students.

Student government is not merely an administrative device but rather an educational instrument and process. The operation of an effective student council on a college campus should be an educational experience for all students and especially for those fortunate enough to be members of the council. A well conceived and wisely administered student council in a college is one of the choice instruments for education. The student council is an instrument designed to enhance enlightened self-discipline in areas of personal and group management at that critical period of maturity when the sense of self-determination is optimum. Herein the student leaders find opportunity for democratic living and the application of the principles which are judiciously shared. Opportunity is given for becoming familiar with and concerned for the basic and worthy social objectives for which all of the members of the community are striving.

The idea of students serving on faculty committees comes close to the practical ideal of democracy. At our college, students serve on both policy making and administrative committees. The question may be asked on what committees should students serve and be given

Mother-Daughter Weekend "A Success"

The annual Mother-Daughter Weekend, sponsored by the Women's Residence Association, was held Friday, May 8, through Sunday, May 10. The event was highlighted by a number of varied activities for over 100 mothers who attended.

Registration on Friday in Williams Hall was followed by the group's attending the Oratorio Chorus performance of "Belshazzar's Feast" on Friday night in Chalfant Hall.

Saturday morning's features included a coffee hour in Nesbitt Hall, after which the mothers were given a guided tour of the campus.

An afternoon banquet in Miller Dining Hall was accompanied by a hat show, "Les Peax Chapeaux". Afterwards a style show given by Samuel's Inc., a Kankakee women's apparel shop, "Bride's Trousseau", was held in Chalfant Hall.

On Saturday evening the mothers and their daughters attended the lyceum program presented by Edward Mondello, organist. Following was a vespers service held in both women's dormitories, during which each mother was given a rose.

The Weekend's success was largely due to the work of Karen Reeves, WRA president and assisting committees, according to Donna Stirratt, WRA vice-president who has been elected president for next year.

She added: "The Mother-Daughter Weekend was considered a success by all and will probably become an important tradition for years to come."

seats. It has been our experience that students have served well on such committees as the Lyceum Committee, the Athletic Committee, the Calendar and Student Activity Committee, the Chapel Committee, the Student Personnel Services Committee, the Library Committee, the Food Services Committee, the Intramural Council, and the Annual Homecoming Commission. Although opinion will differ among administrators, it is my belief that students should have voting representatives on as many committees as possible which deal with broad campus issues and concerns. It should be pointed out here that students in turn should consult faculty members and give them seats on their various committees and councils in order to maintain a proper liaison between the student and faculty interests.

In closing this discussion it may be well to emphasize the note sounded at the beginning. To make an instrument such as a student council effective for the education of young people in democratic living, students will have to be given opportunities for responsibility. In the final analysis it is not administrative organizational routine with machine-like precision that measures the worth of this laboratory enterprise but the positive disposition of students to find worthy solutions to problems and the carry-over into post-college life of the habits and skills learned in connection with student government.

Christian Responsibility In 1964 Nat'l. Elections

A resolution urging a broad program of election year activities for Christian citizens was adopted recently by the National Council of Churches' policy-making General Board.

Calling on members of the Council's 31 constituent denominations not to "remain aloof" from politics, the Board's action asked the Christian voter to exert his influence through all proper channels for the election of candidates "whose policies he believes best represent the ideals of the Judeo-Christian faith."

The action held that Christian citizens "cannot be indifferent to the denial of minority rights; to the impairment of the freedoms of expression and religion; to foreign policies which could lead to nuclear warfare; or to policies which ignore our responsibilities to eliminate famine, disease, and ignorance" both at home and abroad.

Christians should demand that candidates for public office announce "serious" positions on controversial public issues, rather than meaningless platitudes to run on but not to stand on."

Voters should also make their views known to candidates by mail or in person, and try to influence the views of other voters through letters to editors, conversations with friends, and statements from church social action groups and other organizations.

The resolution underscored volunteer work in political parties and voting in primaries as two "most effective" means of fulfilling Christian responsibilities during elections.

It pointed out that an "independent" voter who "shuns political party membership on the ground that he always 'votes for the man' ends up having to choose between men already selected by others."

Those who choose not to work within political party structures should realize they "lessen their opportunity to exert an influence on the selection of party candidates." By the same token, those who fail to "take the primary as seriously as the general election" may be faced with a "choice of evils" on election day, the resolution said.

The Christian should "contribute his time, funds, and skills" toward improving the political party's role in elections, the Board members urged.

During the campaign period, churches should "bring before their members the widest possible discussion of the issues and candidates at all levels of our political system," it said. They should make members aware of official church positions on public issues.

To the Editor:
In a recent Glimmerglass, there was an article asking if there were any Democrats on Olivet's predominantly Republican campus.

This letter is to assure you that there are. We may be few and far between—but be assured—we are here!

Crime Expert Virgil Peterson Addresses Banquet

The annual Junior-Senior Banquet of 1964 was held Friday, May 15, at 7:30 p.m. in the Old Spinning Wheel, a restaurant in Hinsdale, Illinois.

Sponsored by the class of 1965, the Banquet featured Virgil Peterson, the chairman of the Chicago Commission of Crime, as guest speaker.

The Banquet was held in the Bennington Room of the Old Spinning Wheel, following a pre-party in the Old Spinning Court, the north lawn outside the scenic dining room. A wishing well, and gift and gourmet shops were also prominent.

Beautiful music was the background for the gracious dining atmosphere of the Old Spinning Wheel.

Mr. Peterson, who serves also as operating director of the Crime Commission in Chicago, is a well-known speaker on many subjects. A former FBI agent, he is recognized as an expert on organized crime. He has written many articles for publication, including some for the Reader's Digest. Peterson is also listed in Who's Who in America.

The Banquet, a semi-formal occasion, was well attended and enjoyed.

Paul Waldfoegel and Fran Garner served as co-chairmen of the Junior-Senior Banquet Committee, which made the arrangements and plans for the Banquet.

Sociology Club Forum

Courtship, Love and Marriage

Lee Kimmons

Can a college marriage work?

What if there is doubt and reservation, but you feel that if you don't marry then, chances are that you may never marry?

How important is marriage to adult happiness?

What is a reasonable time for courtship before engagement and then from engagement to marriage

These were a few of the questions asked by Olivet students Thursday evening, May 14, at the Sociology Forum on Courtship, Love, and Marriage after a lecture by Dr. Vernon Snowbarger, professor of Sociology and Dean of Students at Bethany College a panel composed of Prof. Leroy Reed, Mrs. Forrest Nash, Dr. Fitzhugh of Manteno State Hospital, and Dr. Snowbarger.

Due to its relevance and stimulation of thought, the Forum was worthwhile. It provoked questions in the minds of many students — some too personal to be asked in such a gathering.

Dr. Snowbarger presented ten areas of consideration in choosing a life partner. They were as follows: 1) physical attraction, 2) sex relationship, 3) parental attitudes, 4) religion, 5) adjustability, 6) homemaking, 7) moral values, 8) outlook on life, 9) respect, and 10) economic factors. One panel member said, "Be objective", but is getting a wife like buying a car . . . checking off the list . . . 1 . . . 2 . . . 3 . . . if personal happiness and love are subjective, how is a person to be objective about his love relationship? Many satisfactory marriages would probably go on the rocks if the two were to be truly "objective".

Being complex personalities living in a greatly complex society, many factors are involved in building a happy marriage. It almost seems as if a real stable and happy marriage is no more than pot luck. Chances for a happy marriage seem to be based largely on what roles are expected from the marriage partner before the wedding vows are said and how closely they are carried through afterwards. To play one's role consistently, a person must first discover himself and find his own identity and then look for someone as nearly like himself as possible . . . a complement to his personality, ideals, and plans.

The following statement from one of the panel members should be remembered: "There is no perfect marriage partner and no perfect marriage, because there are no perfect human beings."

It is felt that there should be more discussion and expression concerning the problems of courtship and marriage among college students here on Olivet's campus. No other area of life has such a profound affect upon the present and future happiness of everyone in our American society.

Christian Responsibility . . .

A church or its pastor which believes that it ought to remain aloof because of some reluctance to avoid 'mixing religion and politics' is abdicating a civic responsibility in behalf of a distorted and false conception of the principle of separation of church and state", the document declared.

Sports Highlights

Track

The first quadrangle meet between Zeta, Delta, Kappa, and Beta found Zeta coming out on top by 11 points with a total of 49. In this meet, there were two records broken as follows: Ken Coil (representing Beta) set a high jump record and the 880 relay record was set by four of Zeta's men, Danny Salisbury, Bob Rogers, Jim Bliester, and Ross Swinehart.

An interesting sidelight was in the duel between Bob Isenhour and Danny Salisbury in the running broad jump. Danny just nudged Bob out in the last jump of the day.

The four societies ended up in this order: Zeta, Kappa, Beta, and Delta.

Be sure to watch the "Today Sheet" for the all-school open track meet which is to take place in the very near future.

Baseball

The baseball season opened with an upset win of Delta over Zeta in a 9-0 rout. The winning pitcher, Russ Anderson, handcuffed the Zeta batsmen until late in the ball game when Wayne Drake got Zeta's only hit of the day.

Later the tables were turned on Delta when Sigma pulled off an upset win.

The next ball game was between Zeta and Gamma, a lopsided contest which found Zeta on top by a score of 17-2.

"O" Club Banquet

The "O" Club closed out the year with a trip to Bloomington, Illinois, highlighted by a banquet dinner at Sinorak's Restaurant. Transportation was provided by the school bus. While in Bloomington, the Club toured the campuses of Illinois Wesleyan and Illinois State Normal. The evening was climaxed by the presentation of awards to several outstanding athletes. The highly coveted Slagg Award was won by Nedra Jo Francis (Kappa) and Kieth Burba (Delta).

Trophies were presented to Frank Wilson for the ping pong championship and Bill Ulmet for the golf championship. In addition to these awards, letters were given to those athletes attending the dinner who made the girls' and men's All-Star Basketball Team and All-Star Football Team. The rest of the athletic awards will be presented in Chapel later in May by Coach Ward.

The "O" Club was proud to have at its banquet Professor and Mrs. Slagg and Dean and Mrs. Snowbarger.
