FARM ORGANIZATIONS WANT NO MORE FREE TRADE

The topic that interests the farmer in this country most at this time is the effect the Roosevelt-Hull free trade pact has had on the American farmer's market for the sale of grain and live stock.

A speaker for the Grange holds the present packs the most damaging of anything that has yet happened to grain and stock producers. He minced no words in openly condemning both Hull and Roosevelt.

The Dies committee investigating Red activities, backed by Grange, expose the part Communists have in consumer organization sponsored by the Agricultural department.

Senator Arthur Capper has the following to say concerning the American farmer and the American market:

"Personally, I believe the American farmer is entitled to the American market, up to his capacity to supply that market at parity prices or less. When the farmer is getting more than parity prices, then it will be allowable and just and proper to consider lowering tariff walls to protect the consumer against too high farm prices.

THE NEW COLLEGE PRESIDENT

Cedarville College with a history of forty-five years has had two presidents, the late Dr. David McKinney being the first president, to be succeeded by Dr. W. R. McChesney, who was chosen from the faculty, having been connected with the school since its doors were first opened in the old McMillan home on the Columbus pike, awaiting the erection of the first unit of the campus buildings.

By the action of the Board of Trustees the institution will have a third president beginning next September, an alumnus of the College, the Rev. Walter Smith Kilpatrick, '84. He will be one of the youngest college presidents in this part of the country and one fitted by temperament and training at home and abroad for the honor conferred upon him.

Those who know the incoming president and have had close contact with him since he graduated here feel that with the backing of the board and faculty there is a really bright future for the institution. The Herald has no hesitancy in speaking for loyal co-operation on the part of this community and the county.

However bright the picture might appear today, nothing can be said or done that will eclipse the life work of President McChesney, who asked to be relieved of administrative duties as soon as possible. As the field was canvassed for a president Rev. Kilpatrick was given a warm endorsement by President McChesney.

The President-elect has accepted the offer and will assume the duties of President in September with the full knowledge of the responsibilities ahead of him in the administration of the college activities. In the meantime from the first of January he will serve as president-elect to familiarize himself with the institution requirements.

President-elect Kilpatrick—"Our Congratulations."

Cleveland and Toledo find they could not shake Gov. Bricker down for political funds in the name of relief, have started to finance their own problem by issuing bonds against delinquent taxes.

Gov. J.M. Cox, owner of the Dayton and Springfield News and the Sun, also Miami News, has purchased the Atlanta Journal, the second largest paper in the south.

Some weeks ago this column made the charge that the relief situation was a plain racket in the ranks of both political parties, and we criticized Mayor H. H. Burton, Republican, for his attack on Gov. Bricker, in not calling an extra session of the legislature.

One of the topics that has not been dropped for discussion is the Yellow Springs postoffice appointment months ago the Democratic county committee made a recommendation and we understand Sen. Donahay gave endorsement but for some reason Postmaster Hackett is holding on.

Walter Winchell, the Sunday night radio news commentator, pictured people in Ohio starting to death by the thousands, all due to the indifference of Gov. Bricker, on the relief issue.

That politics is back of most of the relief clamor is best shown for on Monday we get publicity from Cleveland booming Mayor H. H. Burton for a U. S. Senate seat in 1940.

Stranger In Town By Sarah Jane Clark

JIM saw Joan first as she stopped in at Du Vall's grocery. "Mother wants a T-bone steak, the kind she always gets, and a pound of bacon." Her voice was that delightfully husky kind.

She looked like a grand girl. He wished he knew her. But he was a stranger in the big city, and he'd have to wait. Couldn't rush things with a girl like that.

Jim turned to look back at the store he had just left, and found that the girl had overtaken him. "Hello, there, you going my way?" he asked.

He turned the corner and entered the doorway of his apartment. Then he saw the girl the third time. She was just opening the door and going up the stairs.

He ate his solitary supper in his one-room kitchenette apartment. Then, what was there to do? His first Christmas away from home.

But when Jim got out onto Delaware Place he almost changed his mind. A snow had begun to fall, a heavy leisurely snow with big flakes.

There was a bump and a crash as an armful of packages landed on the sidewalk.

That made a thick carpet on the streets and sidewalks, already icy from the drizzle of the afternoon.

With his head down he trudged through the snow, plowing his way with difficulty against the strong wind.

Strange to say, the girl laughed amusedly. "Why go around barging into people this way? It's just my luck, Christmas eve, to have my bundles all scattered, and it's a little ruefully, 'some of them broken'."

"Say, that's a shame. You must let me replace anything that's broken," Jim insisted. "Really I'm awfully sorry about this. I was facing the snow and had my head down.

High Court Decides On Lopaidd "Divvy"

The Second District Court of Appeals voted two to one to uphold lower court decision that the $150,000 estate of Peter Lang, Fairfield, passed to his 16 grandchildren on the basis of parental representation subject to rights of their parents rather than in equal one-tenth shares. Three children, Mrs. Katie Land Herr, Daniel Lang, and Mrs. Anna M. Boodaker, were held to possess life estates. The majority opinion held the estate then passed to the grandchildren per stirpes and not per capita. Judge Frank Geiger, dissenting, assumed the testator wanted the grandchildren to share alike, saying "there is no indication he wished to penalize any of his grandchildren for the simple reason some may have belonged to a larger family than others."

upon that as my real home."
 "Mr. Miller, did you ever try to find your parents?" he was asked.
 "Yes, I did. As a young man I became a brakeman on a railroad. One of the switchmen in the yard had also come from the same county in New York. He had heard of a family which had lost a boy years ago. They supposed he had drowned in the canal. He and I made the trip to that locality, and saw an elderly man and his wife. They examined the cross on my arm made by vaccination, and the scar under my chin received from hitting a stone when I fell off a mule. I was identified. I was their son. They and the other children gave me a fine welcome. I was there only a short time, however. I could not stay away from my railway job long, and besides I had by horse to look after. I went back into the section into which I had been transplanted. It was more like home."

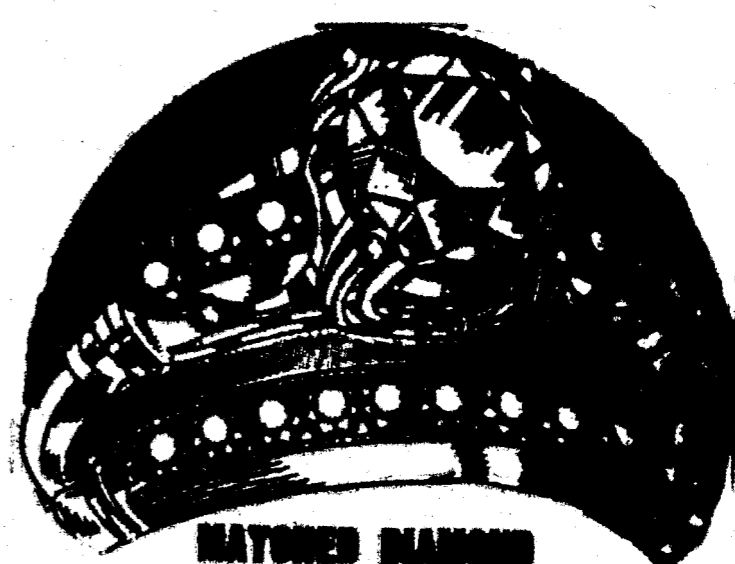

He told of his marriage forty-eight years ago, his children and grandchildren, his business through the years, his home of contentment and comfort, and his faith in God. "She helped to make a man of me," he said fondly of his wife, and I thought that here is a humble example of an appreciative response to the providential care of God.

TRANSPLANTED

By Charles Bruce Linnale

"I do not know how it happened. A fellow coaxed me to go with him, I was too young to say 'No'."

So began John Miller, who, in a reminiscent mood, related how he wandered away from his home in New York state. That was sixty-eight years ago. He believes he was about five years old at the time.

He chanced to meet the "fellow" on a street in Erie, Pennsylvania. He had run away just before that from a canal boat crew as they were unloading. The men had picked him up along the old Erie canal in New York. He now believes the crew merely intended to give him a ride, and on the return trip would leave him off near his home. Evidently he was a good natured, interesting youngster. As a temporary mascot he would relieve the monotony of the trip. At Erie however he ran away from his hosts, and once separated from them he was too young to tell inquirers where his home was. However, the police system relating to juveniles was not then so fully developed.

The "fellow" he met in Erie was a traveling violinist. In the summer he would travel by train from village to village, and play his violin upon the streets. Then he would take up a collection. Johnny's role now was to pass the hat at each performance. In this manner they drifted into a community seventy miles south of Erie. His companion took good care of him, and always seemed to have money for food and lodging.

One day they missed the train, and attempted to walk to the next town. Several farmers gave them rides. One generous man with a keen human interest asked where they were going. "We are lost!" Johnny said very earnestly. The good farmer replied, "Come with me to our house." It was during harvest. The man needed help, and the "fellow" decided to aid him a while. Johnny played with the farmer's son, who was about his age, and had a good time.

One day the "fellow" suggested that they run away. His wanderlust came back upon him. They drifted into a small city six miles away. After several hours, Johnny ran away from him and found his way back to his farmer friend. He took the train, and being under age did not need to pay fare. The farmer gave him a home. "He promised me a riding horse and saddle if I would stay with him until I was of age," he related. "I agreed to do this and he kept his word. I always looked

How Other Lands Mark Christmas

A melting pot of the world, America has created its Christmas traditions from countless customs brought across the seas from foreign lands. In these far-away places the Yuletide symbols of hygiene ages still endure. Here are a few of them:

ENGLAND:
Christmas to rural Englishmen means not only the observance of Christ's birth, but also a parting of the ways between the old year and the new. Preparations are started for the next year's farm work, which begins right after Christmas. Throughout the island such trappings as the holly and mistletoe remain undying traditions, nor is any Christmas complete without the Yule log burning. On clear frosty nights the carol singers raise their voices over the countryside. To many Englishmen's despair, such American customs as the turkey dinner are gaining a foothold.

GERMANY:
Two years ago storm troopers in Berlin lit bonfires in the public squares as a revival of the pagan custom of celebrating the winter solstice. But this distraction will not stop the Christmas-loving Germans from decorating their trees in every town and village, and joining in the famed Christmas hymn, "Stille Nacht, Heilige Nacht."

ITALY:
Most Italian families celebrate Christmas eve and spend the following day quietly in their homes. Here it is a feast more for grown-ups than for children, whose merry-making day comes 12 days later, on January 6. On Christmas eve families gather around the "ceppo" or Christmas log blazes. At nine p. m.

IN ITALY—Children of the Italian Alps at Christmas Time, praying before a wayside shrine.

begins the "cezone," or big supper, at which no meat may be served. Gifts for children, which come on Epiphany, are brought not by Santa Claus but by an ugly witch whose name is "Befana."

FRANCE:
Exchange of gifts comes not on Christmas but mostly on New Year's day, which in France is the big family day for reunions of cousins, aunts and uncles. Santa Claus is "Pere Noel," who leaves his gifts in wooden shoes. Christmas eve is not spent at home but in revelry and feasting.

BELGIUM:
Neither Santa Claus nor Pere Noel visit children here—but St. Nicholas makes the rounds, usually on December 6! A quaint Belgian custom is the putting up the chimney of a few carrots for the little donkey on which St. Nicholas makes his visits.

RUSSIA:
This anti-Christian nation forbids celebration of the Yuletide but no longer compels foreign residents to import their own Christmas trees. Making an about-face, the Soviet government uses this emblem of childhood for its New Year's celebrations when Dada Moroz, or Uncle Frost, appears with gifts for good children.

POLAND:
This Christmas celebration lasts until February 2 and is preceded by fasting which is not broken until the first star appears on Christmas eve. In all homes the tablecloth is placed over a layer of fragrant hay in commemoration of the manger.

HUNGARY:
St. Nicholas leaves boxes of candy for children early in December after which the youngsters must be on their good behavior. They write letters to the angels, who, they believe, bring their presents. If they find bits of tinseel on the floor, they claim this is angel's hair and proof that the angels are everywhere, observing which boys and girls are good.

HOLY LAND:
Where it all began nearly 20 centuries ago, worshippers reverently hail each Christmas at the church of Nativity which is built over Christ's traditional birthplace. It has remained unchanged more than 1,800 years. There pilgrims gather from all over the world to intone "Glory to the New-Born King."

REVISED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for December 10

LESSON SUBJECTS AND SCRIPTURES—Lesson subjects and Scriptures taken from the Bible. Lesson for December 10.
REACTIORS TO THE GOOD NEWS
LESSON TEXT—Matthew 11:16-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—Matthew 11:19.
The response which men and women make to the preaching of the gospel today determines their destiny for time and eternity, just as it did when Jesus was first sending out His disciples to preach.

How do you react to the gospel message? Indifference will keep a man from Christ just as effectively as open rejection. A childlike faith, on the other hand, will bring a man into "delightful fellowship with Him in both life and service." The Lord gives rest for the soul and companionship in the yokefellowship of Christian service.

I. Childlike Disaffection (vv. 16-19).
Jesus, who was skilled in the art of teaching, took a familiar scene from the daily life of the people to show how utterly childish was the criticism of His enemies. Children at play, trying to interest their companions, present a wedding scene of great joy with no responses. They then try the opposite with no better result.

The enemies of Christ were just like such children, and His enemies are the same today. Opposition to the gospel likes to clothe itself in learned phraseology and express itself in the terms of dignified logic, but in fact it is but an expression of personal feelings encouraged by the devil and altogether the work of disgruntled children. Not often does it show its true nature in a forthright expression of unbelief and infidelity, for it prefers to hide behind some self-righteous criticism which it can level against Christian people or against their faith.

Why not be honest, unbeliever who reads these lines, and tell the truth about your reasons for failing to accept Christ. When you do that you will find that they are not reasons at all but only excuses, and there will then be hope for your repentance and conversion.

II. Deadly Indifference (vv. 20-24).
Rejection of Christ may be and all too often is simply indifference to His holy person and work. Jesus pronounced an awful judgment on the cities which had been honored by His presence and His great works, and which should have been awed by His message and power but which had passed Him by in bored indifference.

These again are typical of countless thousands who today comfort themselves by saying "I do not oppose the Church; I'm not against Christianity. I just don't take any position either for or against." By so doing they have declared themselves to be against Christ. Jesus said, "He that is not with me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth abroad" (Matt. 12:30). Let not such think for a moment that their judgment shall be less severe than that of the cities of Chorazin and Bethsaida!

III. Childlike Faith (vv. 25, 26).
God, the Father and our Lord Jesus Christ, have a great and loving interest in the touching beauty of the faith of a child. The unquestioning dependence, the absolute assurance of the child heart, these are the things that receive an answer from the Almighty.

This is not intended to reflect in any way on those who may have learning, wisdom and power but who with all have maintained a childlike humility. God knows them and honors and uses them. The point we do want to make is that all too often the learning and standing in this world are a barrier between men and God simply because men put their trust in these things and not in Him. It is always a serious matter when a man permits his God-given ability to stand in the way of his trust in God. What folly it is to expect the infinite and eternal God who made all things, including the brain of man, to be turned through the narrow compass of finite thinking.

IV. Fraternal Companionship (vv. 27-30).
A study of the theories and philosophies of this world leads only to unrest. Bewildered and unhappy is the man who puts his trust in them. But in Christ the weary and belabored human soul will find perfect and eternal rest. Why then does the mass of men reject Him to go on to wander in despair?
The rest which we find in Christ is not a useless and inactive repose. Far from it. It is a blessed yokefellowship with Christ in carrying forward His work. Here man finds his real usefulness, for only here is he liberated from the limitations of sin and self and joined in a yoke with the One in whom dwells all wisdom and power.

THIS MESSAGE TO SCHOOL CHILDREN SHOULD BE READ BY MOTORISTS, TOO.

Every boy and girl has read about whales running slam bang into boats. Folks used to think Mr. Whale did it because he was mad. Scientists know the reason. Mother Nature put the whale's eyes, one on each side of his huge head. He can see what is coming from either side—but he can't see what is straight in front of him—that's his blind spot.
Mother Nature put our eyes in the front of our heads. We can see what is happening straight ahead of us, but we can't see what is coming from either side. Those are our blind spots.
But Mother Nature gave us something she didn't give the whale—a neck—so we can turn our heads quickly and see what is coming from either side.
Don't have any blind spots when you cross streets. Use your neck. . . . save your neck—look both ways when you start across streets.
. . . and you, too, Mr. Motorist, use your NECK
. . . Watch both sides of the street, as well as ahead, and do your part to protect the children now starting to school.

Got Her One of Our $4.00 Duart Permanents Today for $2.95 FOR CHRISTMAS Who Knows, Tomorrow May Be Christmas? Bea's Beauty Shoppe Phone: 14 Cedarville, Ohio

JUST wanted to say Merry Christmas, and thanks for the check, Mr. Breen.

Mr. Joseph Breen paused in signing a letter and smiled back at the freckled girl.

"Merry Christmas to you, Jim," he answered, "and you're most welcome to the check. Are you going out to—blow it all in, or perhaps give it to your mother for a holiday present?"

"Neither." The excitement of the moment made the lad forget that an office boy was conversing quite freely with the president of the company.

"Mothers ain't so stuck on checks," he continued, "they like something more personal, something that shows you really thought about 'em."

"So?" the president's eyebrows went up in question.

"And what," he inquired, "did you select that was personal?"

"The sweetest scarf"—Jim was warming up enthusiastically—all blue and gold and fringed on it, long as my hand.

"It must be a beauty," agreed Mr. Breen.

"Yes, but that ain't all, Mr. Breen. My mother said she hoped some folks would sing carols outside our house tonight. 'Cause she loved 'em."

"And what do you think? A whole crowd of us are going to sing carols for her. Oh, boy, that's like that!"

The lad moved towards the door.

"Perhaps you're going to sing carols for your mother tonight, too?"

"—I hadn't thought of it before," confessed Mr. Breen, "but perhaps I will, Jim."

His mother was just like any other mother. How she would like to have carols sung in front of the little white house on the hill.

Mr. Breen reached for his phone. "A train leaving at two, you say?"

"Outside, she car-walied, with Jenkins at the wheel."

"Hello, Jenkins," he greeted.

"I've just got an hour and a half to do some last minute shopping. Then I'll catch the train for home."

"Take a holiday for a week, Jenkins, do you get me?" she like that.

And up in the white house on the hill little Mrs. Breen put the golden coffee and brown mums on the snowy table.

Gifts were exchanged around a Christmas tree and games were enjoyed.

Mrs. Frank Bird, Mrs. W. A. Spencer, Mrs. Frank Creswell, Mrs. Belle Summers and Mrs. J. S. West composed the committee in charge of arrangements.

D. A. R. Entertained By Mrs. Summers

"National Defense" was the program theme of a meeting of Cedar Cliff Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, at which Mrs. Belle Summers, was hostess at her home Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. M. J. Bahin, chaplain conducted a devotional service and Mrs. Roger Henderson, regent, in a brief ceremony, received Mrs. Bernice Taylor Ross, Yellow Springs, into the chapter as a new member.

Mrs. Anna Wilson, read a paper on "National Defense," in which she declared "The Boy Scout organization is a part of our national defense work."

Two American flags have been prepared by the chapter, one to be presented to the Cedarville Boy Scouts and the other to the Cedarville Girl Scouts. Steps were taken to make money to purchase a flag for the Cedarville public schools.

A Christmas story, "The Little Mixer," was reviewed by Mrs. Bahin.

A dessert course was served to twenty members by Mrs. Summers, assisted by Miss Wilma Spencer, Mrs. Wilson Galloway and daughters, Clara and Carolyn.

'Merry Christmas, Mary Christmas,' Says Santa Claus

What's in a name? Plenty, if it happens to be Mary Christmas, or Santa Claus, and that's actually happened.

Both Evansville, Ind., and Racine, Wis., have their Mary Christmas, and at Marshall, Mo., there's a jolly fellow whose last name is Claus, and whose parents christened him Santa.

Evansville's Mary Christmas comes from an old family which has had a Mary in each generation. Racine's Mary Christmas got that way by marrying a fellow named Samuel Christmas, and she's now a telephone operator.

Which explains that strangely personal and timely message long distance operators hear out of Racine around Christmas time: "This is long distance, operator—Mary Christmas!"

Racine's Mary Christmas, who is short, chubby and looks just like the artist's conception of Mrs. Santa Claus, gets hundreds of fan mail letters every year.

Three years ago she appeared on a Yuletide radio program and has been so deluged with fan mail ever since that she's founded a "club" in the club which has members in 40 states, Canada, Hawaii, India, China and New Zealand.

Marshall's Santa Claus is similarly Christmas-minded. Each Yuletide he tries to answer the fan letters which come from all corners of the globe, many in such strange foreign languages that he can't reply. He's much in demand for church parties and other Christmas affairs.

Santa is a plumber on weekdays, a vegetable gardener on the side and a preacher in the Church of God at Blue Lick, Mo., every Sunday. Two years ago, when plumbing business was bad, he was grateful for a $250 check sent him by Mae West, the actress.

In Roselle, near Boston, lives an Ambrose Claus who with his wife last year celebrated his golden wedding anniversary. Like all other folks named Claus, they seem to have a lion's share of Christmas spirit.

Temperance News
Sponsored by Cedarville W. C. T. U.

"As the youth of other lands are marched across battle fronts, there is a large army of our youth being regimented today for a parade of drunkards a few years hence," stated Mrs. D. B. Hoffman, chairman of the Temperance Committee of the Woman's Department of the Ohio Council of Churches.

"Not only are our boys being recruited," continued Mrs. Hoffman, "but our girls as well. Three times as many girls are dispensing liquor as bartenders today as are enrolled in our colleges and universities. These young women will be the mothers and home-makers of the next generation."

Continuing, Mrs. Hoffman quoted Martin Nelson, secretary of the Keeley Institute, as saying: "Drinking among women, especially housewives, has grown to be the greatest problem of the nation."

A few of the facts presented by Mrs. Hoffman follow:

1. The annual drink bill in the United States is estimated at three and one-half billion dollars.
2. The annual drink bill in Ohio is 301 million dollars.
3. Per capita consumption of alcoholic beverages increased from 1.73 gallons in 1933 to 14.45 gallons in 1937.
4. In the state of Ohio more than three times as much is spent for liquor as is spent on the public schools, and fifty times more is spent for liquor, crime, gambling and tobacco than for religion.
5. The liquor industry hires more than 50,000 persons, and its ratio of employment with other industries is as one to 128.

The temperance leader ended the discussion by stating: "If the good people of our state would acquaint themselves with the facts regarding this enemy of the home, the church, and the nation, there would be no question as to what would happen concerning this evil. Let us look forward to and work for a dry Ohio."

Bob Ingersoll spoke the truth when he said that the liquor traffic was "the devil's best friend and God's worst enemy."

President Catten of Colgate University said to his students: "It is difficult to become enthusiastic about anything which has all the evils on the debit side of the ledger, or if there is anything to be said in favor of consuming alcohol as a beverage, up to the present time it has been carefully concealed. If beverage alcohol were totally removed from the world tomorrow morning by a sudden upheaval of nature, the result would be complete gain. There might be regrets, but no loss. That is the thing in a nutshell."

Who's the who in liquor sales Sallyhoo?—Mr. E. Normous Proffits. "It is my professional opinion, after observation of many years in the practice of medicine, that beer is doing more harm to humanity than all other alcoholic."—Dr. Gilbert Davis, Chicago.

Santa Claus Gets Around

© Busy Eric Kingle doesn't fight ordinary inventions—he uses them!

Down Florida way where the chambers of commerce require that everything be different, Santa goes to work on an airplane.

Donner and Blitzen can't fly through the air like a plane, so old St. Nick tries a new wrinkle.

Here he pops up in a railroad engine—

Then, again, he abandons his toy and travels in an automobile—

But in the end he goes back to reindeers. Can't get along without 'em!

3 Christmas Islands, Harbor, Cove, Sound, Are Found in Atlas

Not one, but three Christmas islands will celebrate the Yuletide this year, all of them under the British flag. The first is located in mid-Pacific and is really a submerged mountain 15,000 feet high with only its top above water. The second, in the Indian Ocean, is forest-covered and had a population of 46 when the last census was taken in 1886. The last Christmas island is near Cape Breton in the maritime provinces of Canada.

France has a Christmas harbor on Desolation or Kerguelen island about 2,000 miles southwest of Australia. The United States has a Christmas cove near Boothbay harbor, Maine, which is a summer resort.

There is also a Christmas sound near the southern tip of South America about 130 miles northwest of Cape Horn and located in an island belonging to Chile.

1939 Toys Sprout Wheels As Kids Imitate Parents

Today's civilization-on-wheels has revolutionized the Twentieth century toy industry. Several decades ago children played with paint cans and cut-out dolls. Now girls and boys want wheel goods. The desire to have an automobile like dad's is so great that toy auto manufacturers must change their designs as soon as new models appear. Velocipedes must be streamlined, scooters must have pneumatic tires, and doll carriages must be of the latest baby buggy design.

Greene Board Delays Selecting Successor

Consideration of a successor of H. C. Aultman, who will retire in August, 1940, as superintendent of the Greene county school system at expiration of his present term, was again postponed by the county school board last Thursday.

Indications were the selection of a new superintendent will be delayed until late in January, after the board's annual reorganization meeting. Paul Brown of Sugar Creek township will become a new member January 1, marking the only change in the board's personnel.
